Roamin' Rockcastle

By Hilda Payne Gabbard

Last week I had a birthday and every year folks are nicer to me. Either they are sorry for me getting older or want to help me celebrate. I get cards and telephone calls until I feel pampered! Out of state readers send cards like Ruth and Phil Gatliff who send me one lively one with good wishes.

Brenda Rogers invited me out for lunch and Dorothy Miller who had been a co-worker too. No matter how nice they were, they hinted at what age I was, I said nothing about being 49 (again).

The girls gave me beautiful cards and gifts. Brenda gave me money wrapped in tinfoil and Dorothy a mug to drink (?!). From her, she said, "I'll bet I read the words on 50 cups before I found one I liked."

Boss # 1 gave me a present too in a way. When Brenda told him she was taking me out for a birthday lunch and might take a little more time, Richard said "Take all the time you need." (Of course he knew we wouldn't stay all day.) I felt he was giving me a favor too so thanks, Boss!

Blanche had said she was having coconut creme custard pie (um, um,) for me in the afternoon so I collected John and I drove out to Clear Creek about 3 o'clock to eat with her and Cleve. I'm telling you that is the best pie I believe I have ever eaten. I asked her to not lose the recipe so she could do this again next year.

When Cleve called for a second pie, I said, "Cleve, she really baked this pie for me so I don't think you need seconds." But Blanche spots Cleve as she does that kitten so he got a second piece.

Katherine had been helping Margaret to decorate her kitchen by fastening little baskets of many shapes all along the kitchen wall to the ceiling.

I had taken several little baskets to Margaret this visit and she was so pleased that she gave me some small fancy pitchers that are his collecting.

Clyde and Margaret had a wedding Anniversary on January 6th.

She says Clyde's niece Frances Rigby and husband, Neal come to see them often and they are very glad to have them.

I'd like to ask you what he was planning for the coming spring. He said,

"Guess I'll do some gardening or tell Moss Linville, kintofy, what to do."

"Then your part will be easy," I laughed.

"Moss really did a good job last year in our garden," Clyde told me.

On Clear Creek, we stopped to see Joe Abney (the streaker) who was outside in his yard talking to Jim Clarke, who once lived in Anglin Falls county but now is farming in Pulaski County.

When I asked Joe for news, he said wasn't much to do now but he had been making some news.

"I tell you another fellow came in and understood me until my business got so bad I had to quit. I've been sick this winter, had several x-rays made to see what was wrong but I'm still going."

Jim Clarke said his wife, Ingrid, now works in Berea at the Attic Store down on US 25.

"I'm a house husband doing the dishes and everything," Jim said, showing me his soft hands.

Joe spoke to John about a job when John and his brother, Clay raise sorghum cane on Clear Creek this summer.

Bluford Payne in Michigan has asked for a job getting the "skimming" off when they are cooked.

"Boy, I love that stuff!" he said.

Ina Johnson at Paint Lick asked for the job of helping to strip the can and to be paid in Molasses.

I saw Betty Ballard recently in Berea Health Care. She works in the office for Dr. Compton and is such a nice person you don't mind being stuck with a needle (if you need one).

Eugene and Hallie Alexander leave home every time they think John and I may drop in to see them. As we did last week. Either that or they hide.

I tell you we are out in Rockcastle County. Hobert Wyatt in Livingston provided it.

One morning early he heard his dogs having a fit barking. Going out, Hobert says he saw a big bobcat or wild cat as we call them seeming ready to jump on him. Going back in the house, Hobert came out with his 110 gauge shot gun and quickly killed the cat!

I'd like to ask all of you that know Hagen Lakes who once lived on Scaffold Cane Pike to please send a Valentine card and brighten his life. He is in the Franklin Nursing Home, 422 Mission Lane 4th St., Franklin, Ohio 45005.

Remember the mountain remedies I promised you, here are a few; Drinking a spoon of baking soda in a small glass of water when you feel a cold coming on, helps.

People used willow bark as a pain killer. It is now used in aspirin. A burn could be treated by holding the burned place near a flame and the pain will be drawn out.

Here is a cough syrup made by an old time doctor which really helped the patient. Take one part of whiskey, mix in one part lemon juice, and one part honey. Bring the mixture to a boil. Cool and bottle. Take one tablespoonful every three hours. Next week "flu soup" for a cure.

One of the boys at Superior Market, James Saylor, son of Conley and Virginia, has something no one else has and that is cute, pretty, Cheryl's wife. She works in the Citizen office and is a whiz with the computers there. James has been at home for the last week or so with chills in his foot and can hardly put it on the floor. He probably is doing what Todd Jennings did to get out of work at the store. Cheryl said they had married a couple years and had some kids. Here I thought James was a kid himself!

On February 2nd, 50 years ago the two people in the picture with this column said, "I do" to work at the store. Cheryl said they had married a couple years and had some kids. Here I thought James was a kid himself!

On February 2nd, 50 years ago the two people in the picture with this column said, "I do" to work at the store. Cheryl said they had married a couple years and had some kids. Here I thought James was a kid himself!

Bill and Flossie Stephens home in Scaffold Cane one afternoon and found them taking it easy.

Flossie said, "After I work around the house and get dinner, I'm worn out."

"Same way with me," I said.

They were telling about what they did at Christmas. The children came home. Benny from near Covington brought a cooked ham. It was a nice family gathering with most of the food brought to the dinner.

Their granddaughter, Jordan Stephens was rushed to the hospital in Cincinnati and was operated on for her stomach being in physical disorder.

Flossie's resolution was to try and stay in good health, and be outdoors as much as she could this year.

Bill's was to do the least he can and get by with it.

Moving on, we went to Clyde and Margaret Linville's home in Scaffold Cane and found they already had a visitor, Steve Bullens who was teaching them the lesson he meant to use in church for the coming Sunday as I write you about some time ago.

Clyde and Margaret are shut-ins because they are unable to go to church so Steve comes over to their home teaching them the lesson.

Steve is living a good life by volunteering to do this.

Katherine and Bill Greene, Margaret's sister have returned to Florida for the winter. They lived up here during the summer and fall months in an apartment over Edd and Dorothy Mullins' home, Margaret's brother nearby.

Since this is their Golden Wedding Anniversary of 50 years, Clay borrowed our Sears, Roebuck catalogue to order Myrtle some gold jewelry. Myrtle said she would go to Wal-Mart to find some clothing, maybe long johns to keep Clay warm.

You can tell by the picture this is a happy couple so we'll congratulate them and wish them many more.

Till next week! Each new day is a gift from God. How you live it is your gift to him.

From Dorothy Miller.

Clay and Myrtle Gabbard on their 50th wedding anniversary. Read in column why they were so long in getting to the preacher.

Quail Homemakers
By Millie Eaton

Never let it be said that the Quail Homemakers is not a dedicated group. On January 18, the club meeting was held at the home of Virginia Hansel. If you remember it was a snowy winter night. That didn't stop these ladies.

Norma Thompson, our club president, called our meeting to order with 10 members and one guest present. After old and new business was discussed and everyone brought up to date on upcoming events concerning homefakers a lesson was given with everyone participating on Teens Today.

After the meeting, games were played. Secret Pal gifts exchanged and plenty of good food eaten. The meeting was adjourned to meet Feb. 22 at the home of Debbie Brown in Mt. Vernon. Hope to see everyone then.

Protective Parenting
By Ginny Gilpatrick

Surely we would all like to be able to blame President Clinton's stroke of pen last week for the abortion moral decay that has caused our country's abortion rate to soar. While any semblance of government sanction of the clinics involved may serve to facilitate, thus increase, this dreadful practice, his intention is not to support abortion but to shift moral responsibility on to the shoulders of the people. People need to change their ways and the way they raise their children, the blame for immorality does not lie primarily in the oval office.

No one can legislate morality. It would be easy if lawmakers could end drunkenness, drug dealing, irresponsible sex, abortion, rape and murder with the proverbial stroke of the pen. But these are hot issues that are resolved by the magic wand approach. In fact there are laws on the books that prohibit and set consequences for a host of anti-social and dangerous activities, and yet they persist in our society. Just because we can take someone to court for an action does not mean that it will cease to happen.

The moral decision about abortion comes long before the woman enters the door of the clinic. If the clinic door is locked by the law her decision is made for her and she does not have to wrestle with the angel of choice. Growing spiritually and morally requires each of us to throw our own wrestling, to search our own consciences and make our own decisions. The would-be underwriter who is stopped in the act by the police is no less a murderer in his heart.

Unwanted pregnancy can occur either by the willful action of the woman involved, or by force against her will. In the latter case, few would argue that she is to blame. To prevent the former situation, our society also has to own the responsibility of educating young people in morality as well as biological factors associated with reproduction. Abortion would cease to be an issue if people

President Clinton's job!

As children grow and develop they are faced with one moral dilemma after another. At first it may be a simple matter of deciding whether or not to hit their sister, or lick the frosting off the cake. The only moral law they can conceive of is whether or not they will be caught and punished. As they mature they begin to see morality in terms of promoting the good of society. Thus the healthy adolescent would refrain from shoplifting because she could understand the consequences to the owner of the store, or the economy in general, if people helped themselves to merchandise without paying.

The consequences to society of procreancy, and license to kill unwanted fetuses that result from it, should be clear to anyone who is morally mature. Moral maturity is brought about by parents instilling they must buy it. We don't tell them, there's a price to pay if they try it. It's hard to go back, and change what we have done, We must think wisely as we go along God's plan for sex, was simple and true. It is for marriage, no other way will do. Now when we forget that, there's going to be a problem. Then we have to think about how we're going to solve them.

Has what we have taught them, worked in the past, Has it been something good that would last, Has it been something that made their lives better. Or have we led them to think, abortion is the answer

We should teach our young people that it's good and pure, To have strong morals, and not worry about their parents. Someday our youth will be leaders of this nation, Will we be proud of the way we have raised them

Somewhere, I believe we older people failed. We should have spoken up when sin prevailed, We set right back, and let prayer from our schools be taken, How long will it take, for us' Christians to awaken

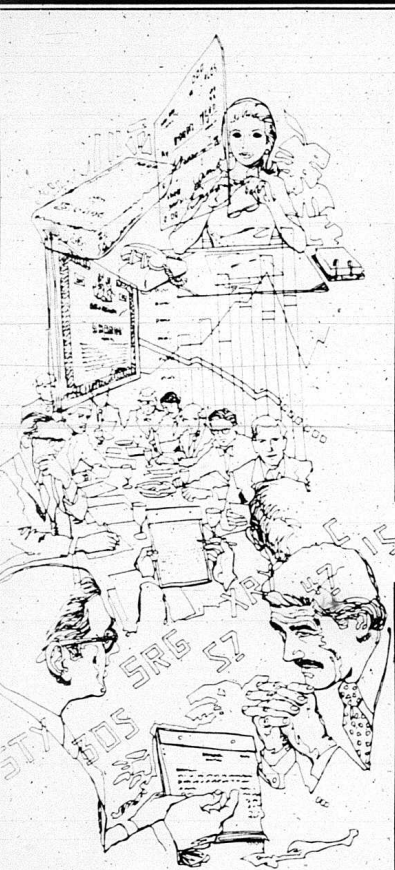

We went right along, and didn't think twice, Now our young people are paying the price. A good example, we should have been. And we should have called sin when it was sin would accept one of the myriad alternative methods of limiting conception to children they want. When "mistakes" occur then they need to be ready to accept responsibility for raising the unplanned child. This is

Sin and shame is at all time high, Could be the end is drawing nigh, I truly believe, we gave a foothold to Satan. When we let prayer, from our schools be taken.

and the library has made many changes also. Books are still a very important part of the many services we have to offer. But in addition to books we now have videos, audio tapes, magazines, records, a FAX machine, a copier, a computer to borrow books and materials from other libraries, the Readers Guide, projectors (film strip, for slides and 16 mm), screens for use with the projectors, story hours for children, genealogy department and large-print books. We subscribe to the Mt. Vernon Signal, the Reyno Valley Bugle and the Lexington Herald-Leader. We also have tax forms.

If you have never been in the library, you may not know and see what all we have to offer to the people in Rockcastle County.

Did you know that the Department of Libraries in Frankfort will loan tape players and cassettes to anyone that is handicapped? A lot of people that have enjoyed reading in the past, but are unable to now because of a disability would greatly benefit from this service. If you know anyone that would qualify for this free service please let me know and I can fill out the form to be sent in to the Department of Libraries or Pam is able to do this for bookmobile patrons.

One of the new novels that I have recently purchased is Texas Sunrise by Fern Michaels. She is the New York Times best selling author of the blockbuster novels, Texas Rich, Texas Heat, and Texas Fury and now returns to the family whose lifelong drama of heartbreak and triumph has swept millions of readers off their feet. All the wonderful characters who make up the Coleman family are back in Texas Sunrise, the searing climax to the story of this powerful twentieth-century dynasty.

Billie Coleman Kingsley, beloved matriarch of the clan and founder of the fabulously successful Fashion empire, Billie, Inc., is dying. As her family gathers together in this time of heartbreak, the indomitable Billie offers new hope to help the rifts that separate them. Even as her own strength fails, Billie instills courage, fortitude and her conviction that life goes on after crisis, after tragedy, after heartbreak.

The Coleman sage has seduced readers everywhere, and Texas Sunrise is as scintillating, sexy and delicious as its predecessors, showing best-selling author Fern Michaels at the top of her storytelling form.

A new Biography is Loss of Eden, by Joyce Milton. The forty-five-year marriage of Charles and Anne Morrow Lindbergh was one of the great love stories of the century—outlasting the traumatic kidnapping and murder of their infant child and the storm of criticism sparked by their brief involvement with the America First movement on the eve of U.S. entry into World War II.

Beginning with Charles' Midwestern childhood in Minnesota, and with the story of Anne's very different childhood experience as the daughter of a wealthy Eastern banking family, Loss of Eden traces Lindy's career as an aviator and Anne as a writer. Who would have dreamed that the charming but feckless barnstormer would be the first pilot to make a transatlantic flight from New York to Paris in 1927 and become the hero of an adoring American public, a national icon? Anne learned to fly, too, and the Lindberghs' flights became an important and dramatic chapter in their marriage. (Cont. to B11)

Fletcher, retired from L&N, and Charles' father, George Fletcher, retired after 48 years. He was a welder. He worked most of those years in the Corbin area, but moved his family back to Broadhead in 1933. He was a wonderful man and next to his family he loved the railroad next.

I can see him now in his overalls and striped cap. Every time he hears a train whistle he would check the time with his railroad watch. He was only home on weekends. He lived in camp cars around Corbin. Before he retired, the passenger trains had ceased to be and he was taking Greyhound buses. His family could ride the train free with a pass and they went to Corbin to shop and visit family and friends. George died in 1984, but his wife Maggie Fletcher, who is 90 years old, still lives in Broadhead.

Eugene McBee, Cecil Wallen, Elmer Kiddle, George Brook, all retired from L&N and live in Broadhead. George Brooks is 84 years old. As of this week our railroad will be gone and the end of an era. It makes you wonder what could be next.

We will have our cameras out this week taking pictures. I'm going to get a picture of our water tank. It has been there as long as I can remember. I'm afraid I'll get up some morning and it will be gone too.

moral responsibility in their children from the time they take their first mischievous lick of chocolate frosting. If all parents would take the time to discuss responsible decision-making with their children at each step of the way then the issue of abortion clinics being open or closed would be obsolete by the time this generation grows up.

Joyce Milon provides startling new information about the kidnapper, Bruno Hauptmann, and about Charles' own role in the case.

"Quota Decrease"

chase intentions were inflated in 1991 to boost production to an adequate level.
Continued strong sales of U.S. tobacco products in new markets (the former Soviet Union and eastern Europe) did not materialize.
Changing manufacturers' blending strategies call for more imported tobacco to lower production costs to compete with increasing sales of generic cigarettes, which constitute about 30 percent of total sales.
Burley tobacco imports have increased significantly in response to foreign market price and tobacco company production incentives. Beginning foreign burley stocks were 230 million pounds in 1992, a 28-percent increase from 1991 and a 55-percent increase over 1990.

Because manufacturers are substituting lower-priced imports for U.S. tobacco in their blending strategies, more domestic tobacco is going into grower-owned cooperatives in the eight burley-producing states. Six percent of the 1991 crop went into the pool, compared to none for the 1990 crop. Just over 15 percent of the 1992 crop has gone into the pool, compared to nearly four percent of the 1991 crop for the same number of sale days, and none for the 1990 crop.
Adjustments to pool stocks necessary to maintain adequate supplies are one component of the quota-setting formula.

"Reduced purchase intentions, in addition to the continuing social and political animosities of the anti-tobacco environment will make 1993 a challenging and volatile year for Kentucky tobacco growers," Snell said.

Warning from IRS: your refund may be smaller this year

If you usually receive a tax refund when you file your Federal tax return, you may be in for an unpleasant surprise this year.

Last January, President Bush directed the Internal Revenue Service to withhold less tax from W-2 employees. As a result, employees received a few dollars extra in each of their paychecks beginning March 1. Most employers explained the change to their employees, and also explained how filing a new Form W-4, "Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate," could change their withholding back to the old amounts.

"For taxpayers who did not file a new Form W-4, those withheld at the single rate had an average of $172 less per job withheld, while those using the married rate averaged $345 lessper job," said William E. Palzkill, IRS Director in Kentucky.
"Since the tax rates did not change, these people will still be taxed at the same rate," Palzkill said. "However, they will have less withholding credit to apply to their liability, since less was withheld."

If a taxpayer normally receives a small refund, but will owe a small amount this year due only to this change, the IRS will not assess penalties.

National Pageant accepts applications locally...

Applications are now being accepted from girls wishing to compete for the title of America's Favorite Teen, America's Favorite Pre-Teen, and America's Favorite Sweetheart. Area girls will compete in the state wide competition for the Kentucky titles.

The winners of the state competition will win a fully paid flight to the National Pageant, the official crown, sash and other gifts. Girls ages 4-18 will compete for these prizes as well as a $500 savings bond. The National Pageant will be held in Orlando, Florida, home of Disney World.
There is no swimsuit competition. Talent is optional.

Roads occupy court; bridge bids opened

Roads took up a lot of the time of the Rockcastle Circuit Court Tuesday and not all persons were satisfied.

Three groups complained to the county that their roads were in need of work.

Wayne Allen, protested his property would be landlocked if a section of old 1004 was closed. Allen asked the court not to close it. The court didn't.

Doris Brummett brought a petition asking the court for widening a section of Bowling Ridge Road, paving the widened section, and posting guardrails.

The court agreed to the widening and told Mrs. Brummett the guardrails had been requested.

She was told the state has the guardrails and would decide when they could install them.

A third group protested a gate and road repair on Rimmell Cemetery Road.

Some of the group asked that a gate to the cemetery be removed and other work on the road be done.

The court listened and then suggested the gate and road be decided in Circuit Court. The other section of the road will be worked.

Officials of the State Transportation Cabinet met with the court to review the 1993-94 secondary road program.

The court was told the state will spend about $74,000 for maintenance and $268,000 for improvements.

Road projects will be in next week's Signal. The officials took the list back to Somerset.

Bids on a new Cove Branch Road Bridge over Roundstone Creek were opened.

The apparent low bidder was N&N Contracting of Mt. Vernon for $66,900. The actual low bid was submitted by Appalachian Concrete Construction of Paintsville. But the company failed to accompany the bid with a 5 percent bid bond and was disqualified. Their bid was $58,500.

The court was told the Western Water improvement project is nearly complete. Only a few more weeks is necessary.

City wins tax suit against Renfro

By: Ray McClure

It's not over until it's over, but the City of Mt. Vernon is one step closer to collecting their business license fee imposed on Renfro Valley in January of 1991.

The City Council was told Monday by Mayor Gary R. Cromer that Circuit Judge William T. Cain had ruled in favor of the city's business license (entertainment tax) against Renfro Valley Folks, Inc.

But, Renfro has asked the court for a motion to alter, amend or vacate the summary judgement it faces and has set Feb. 12 for a hearing on his ruling.

Should Judge Cain still rule for the city, Renfro, undoubtedly, will appeal, possibly all the way to the state Supreme Court.

It could be a long road for both Renfro and the city.

On Dec. 9, 1988, the city set a business license tax, establishing a flat fee per year for the privilege of doing business in the city limits.

After that, the city annexed Renfro property into the city limits and found that their business license fee ordinance did not cover entertainment centers and campgrounds.

They then amended their original ordinance to include these businesses and established the business license fee on entertainment centers at 3 percent of ticket receipts, payable quarterly.

Renfro paid $842.86, for the first quarter of 1991, but thereafter refused to pay the tax, declaring they believed it to be unconstitutional in that it pinpointed Renfro in order for the city to get more revenue.

Renfro then filed suit seeking a permanent injunction against collection of the tax.

Judge Cain ruled that the court could find no basis that the ordinance was unconstitutional or that it was special legislation directly solely against Renfro.

So, based on that ruling, the court said the 3 percent tax must be paid.

City Attorney John Clontz said Tuesday that following the Feb. 12th hearing, if Judge Cain reaffirms his decision, the city could begin collecting the tax due them within ten days.

However, Clontz said, Renfro has 30 days in which to file an appeal but they must first post a bond to assure the city of their revenue due should the appeal fail.

In other action, Police Chief Bill Mink presented the council with the January Police Report. It showed:

Complaints, 221; assists, 46; motorist assists, 7; accident investigations, 10; cases opened, 5; citations issued, 55 and DUI arrests, 6.

Mt. Vernon Fire Department had 12 runs and Livingston 5 runs.

Humana changes name

Prompted by organizational changes at Humana, Inc. in Louisville, all 82 of the health agency's hospitals have taken on new names. The Somerset hospital will now be known as Lake Cumberland Regional Hospital.

The name change was made as part of the transition taking place with Humana Inc., the local hospital's parent organization. The company is dividing into two separate publicly held firms - one to manage hospitals and another to offer insurance and managed care plans. The hospital company will be called Galen Health Care, Inc., while the insurance company will retain the Humana name.

According to Derek Cimala, executive director at the Somerset hospital, the separation will enable both companies to direct their attention and resources to their respective operations.

"For our hospital, that means we will focus on working more closely with area physicians to provide high quality care and respond quickly to meet local health care needs," Cimala said.

The new name, Lake Cumberland Regional Hospital, was selected (A10).

Buddy Settles of Berea, sold his country music memorabilia at a public auction Saturday in Renfro Valley. Settles' 452 items were sold for about $45,000, with the most expensive item, a 1975 Lincoln Continental, that was once part of a fleet owned by Elvis Presley, bringing $16,000. At left, Settles talks with auctioneer Danny Ford. Above, local funeral director Roy Martin, seated in row and Pete Stamper, seated in row who is Renfro Valley Folks Director of Entertainment, were among the potential buyers. Officials hold pep-rally on four-laning U.S. 150

County Judge/Executive John Sims of Lincoln County, recently conducted a pep rally for the four-laning of U.S. 150 from Stanford to Mt. Vernon, according to the Stanford Interior Journal.

Eliciting support from city and county officials from Boyle, Lincoln and Rockcastle counties, state legislators and representatives of Sen. Wendell Ford and U.S. Rep. Scotty Basler, Sims noted that the road has a good beginning but the drive for full improvements can't be allowed to wane.

The state's six-year road plan calls for a relocation of two segments of the road from Stanford to Crab Orchard in the next four years but only two lanes of road are planned.

Jan Sekon, director of the Bluegrass Area Development District, said that the U.S. 150 segment will be the last remaining two-lane piece of a loop formed by Interstate 75, U.S. (Cont. to A10)

Candidate corrections

In last week's Signal, we ran a complete list of all candidates for the May Primary Election.

In the race for Magistrate District 5, William A. "Bill" Hale's name was incorrectly reported as was John Kemper's, candidate for Constable, District 4.

Ohioan arrested for assault

Ricardo Sebastian, 22, of Ohio was taken into custody Monday by police and charged with kidnapping and aggravated robbery.

Cincinnati police notified Kentucky State Police the person was reported at Exit 59 of I-75.

When police checked Sebastian was not there.

His car was later stopped inside Madison County by State and local police.

A passenger Sheri Trice, 22, had apparently been assaulted and was taken to Berea Hospital. The children in the car were not injured.

Sebastian was taken to Rockcastle County Jail.

Calvin Mize appointed

Calvin Mize, has been appointed by District Judge Walter Maguire to be Rockcastle's new trial commissioner.

He replaces Robert E. Robinson who died this week.

Mize was at one time solid waste coordinator for Rockcastle. He has homes at Buffalo and on Ky. 80 just east of Somerset.

He was to have been sworn in today.

Towery comments on schools "starting point" from state

Rockcastle County schools, as well as all other schools in Kentucky, will have more at stake within the next 20 years.

As part of the Kentucky Education Reform Act (KERA), the state last week assigned every public school a starting score and two-year target for improving.

The plan ultimately will span 20 years and guarantee every Kentuckian the best education possible.

At schools that exceed their two-year goal, the staff will be eligible for cash bonuses. For those not reaching their goal the state will send special help. At schools where scores decline, the teachers could possibly lose their job and students will be able to choose another school.

The two-year targets were established taking the gap between the base-line score and 100 and dividing it by 10.

The intent is to focus intense attention on how to improve each school. The long-term goal is for each school to score 100 out of 140 points on a scale that mainly reflects how well students perform on new statewide tests given for the first time last spring.

The tests consist of reading, math, science, social studies, writing and non-academic factors (attendance, retention and dropout rates and transition to adult life).

The tests also measure how well students use and communicate knowledge, not just how well they answer multiple-choice questions. While the grading is more subjective, educators hope the change will encourage richer teaching and critical thinking.

Statewide, the baseline scores for elementary schools, middle schools and high schools ranged from 20-63 on a 100 point scale.

And while many states have experimented with this type of testing, Kentucky is the first to implement it. A major change stemming from the plan has been curriculums in schools.

Rockcastle Schools Superintendent Bige Towery, Jr. said Tuesday that textbook oriented curriculums used in the past have now changed into six new learning goals with 75 valued outcomes.

Towery said the basic outline of the goals are "control used with communicative skills, critical thinking, problem solving and teamwork." "That has become our curriculum," he said.

Teachers are having to change their teaching strategies." Towery said. "If you were in the classroom this (Cont. to A10)

Points East

I've been doing this column for more than twelve years now. And the only thing I've done longer than that on a relatively full time basis is go to school. I took me just over 18 years to finally get out of school, but by the time I was in high school I could find a summer job starting the day after school went out and ending the day before they fired the academic machine back up for another term that fall.

I probably still be going to school and laying out the summers in a Boy Scout Camp today if the Federal Government hadn't insisted I get a job and pay some money back on the loans it had so generously provided to launch my career as a professional college student. The Fed suggested I teach or get a government job or something like that for a couple of years and if that worked out, you know; then they'd finance some more time on campus for me.

So I dropped out of school the day before my 23rd birthday. I had the government paid back over ten years ago but I haven't gone back to school full time because I've been able to have jobs, for 21 years now, that I feel are more important. Work, for me, has almost consistently been as much fun, as going to school.

I've been a classroom teacher. I've managed a motel. I've run an early childhood development program. I've had a management position, in the country's premier community economic development company. I've run my own business and, for the last seven years, I've had rewarding management positions with the Christian Appalachian Project where I hope to retire 21 years from now.

I'm doing what I enjoy most in life. I'm advocating the mountains that raised me and taught me my values. I'm telling wealthy people all across the country that eastern Kentucky is the prettiest place on earth. I'm telling them that it's unfortunate that we have the highest poverty rate in the country. Because it is unfortunate.

I'm also telling them that there are efficient ways to help thousands of people rethink things. Because I'm working for an organization that literally does help people help themselves.

I've seen hundreds of people in their 20 and 30's and 40's go through our high school graduation lines and receive diplomas from the public school superintendent. I've listened to those people tell me about exciting jobs. Better yet, I've watched them go on to college. I've seen the teen pregnancy rate, in one county, drop from an average of more than 30 girls a year to three as a direct result of our teen programs. I've seen the drop-out rate decrease because CAP had responsible adults counseling kids on the verge of failure.

We mountaineers can argue and fuss about being portrayed by the outside press for our poverty as long as we want to. We can point to the nice homes and gardens and automobiles that most of us have and growl, self-righteously, every time the new-people come in and document the social atrocity in our backyards.

"Sons of pure-bred S@#%s," we call them for making us look like a bunch of paupers and pigs. They found that bunch of no-accounts in the head of the holler and just because they're starving and ain't got no water, everybody in the country is gonna think we're in the same darn shape."

And that's right. That's what they do. Our region of the country has made a name for it's hospitality. And outsiders do, in fact, wonder why so many people live in shacks and off the government. We're supposed to be a people that takes care of its own but we do a sorry job of that. And the poverty that so many of our people live in is an open and obvious example.

Tell you matter of fact how to get your nice home on television the next time a camera crew from one of the big networks comes to town. Just drop me a line about what you and maybe another family or two has done to get the kids from that house on up in the holler back in school. The only way that our middle and upper class folks are ever gonna be able to show off is going to happen when those classes start talking about poverty and doing something about it. Every single day.

If you want to change the image the rest of this nation has about our neck of the woods, then start organizing to wipe out poverty. Start doing something about the problem and it will go away. Sit on your duff and feign ignorance and the press will continue to ignore you. Keep counting on the Government and I promise you faithfully that it will only get worse. Take the problem into your hands and accept it and make a resolution that you are going to help somebody else. Or you can just, "Amen." That's all it takes to keep me going.

In the meantime, the column should have celebrated its 12 anniversary a few weeks ago. It may not have been in this paper that long, but it's been around and I feel sorta good about that.

You can call the Governor and cuss cause he's looking for anyone who'll tell him that I'm a cad. Or you can just, "Amen." That's all it takes to keep me going.

Wabd, USA

Precious Souls, children of this evil age, I must use my space today to bring you up to date on the comin' and goin' out Wabd's way. My report on the ruckus at Harmony Chapel church's business meeting last month will have to wait.

Mr. and Mrs. Deff Devers and their daughters, Anna Belle and Ida Belle, and Mrs. Devers' mother, Mrs. Mae Belle Pealer, all of Route 1, and Mr. and Mrs. "Hap" Steeger and family (Alice, Rosalee, and Otto) of Route 3 were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tyler Twaddell and family (Verna, Vera, and Virginia) of Route 5 last Sunday.

Ample Eckerle Clinton, Route 1, went on a "weekend diet." He had strep throat and couldn't swallow.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Kerwan of Route 1 spent Sunday afternoon visiting their son, Junior, and his wife, Harriet, of Route 6. Both families are Amway representatives and will be more than happy to come to your home and demonstrate their products and program.

Twelve-year old Anna Belle Devers, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Deff Devers of Route 1 was rushed to the hospital emergency room last Sunday afternoon after she was injured while playing in the loft of Tyler Twaddell's barn (Rt. 5). Two teeth were missing, and several stitches were used to close a laceration on Anna's forehead. Word has it that she and her sister, Ida Belle, along with the Twaddell triplets, spent nine-year old Otto Steeger in the barn loft and were trying to push him down and kiss him. That's when Otto whacked Anna Belle in the face with a Dekalb seed spreader. After treatment she was dismissed.

Retired carpenter, Elsworth Follet, Route 2, put the finishing touches on his new outdoor last week. It's a two-hole, even if his wife, Juanita, who went on to glory last summer, won't be here to share it with him. (Elsworth thinks he might marry again if the right woman comes along. He's only seventy-six and knows people in their eighties who remarry.) He said digging was easy until he hit rock and had to blast. But the project is finished now and meets all the criteria for a state-of-the-arts outhouse. It's bricked on the outside, is built out of salt-treated lumber, and has a concrete floor. Wall-to-wall red carpeting and red-white-and-blue wallpaper warmly adorn the inside. It's there: ash trays, magazines, solid oak seats and lids, an antique wrought-iron latch, spray cans of Raid and Lysol, stick matches and a neon sign that flashes in use when the door is latched from the inside, and come right in when unlatched. Elsworth's Inn, as he calls it, is also furnished with a decorative fluorescent light, matching, brass toilet tissue holder-rollers, an AM/FM radio, an electric heater, two plungers and a lime dispenser that Elsworth himself designed. He was about to ask his pastor to come over and bless his finished work—like the Catholics do their boats up east—but Sallie Sowder, his sister in Cincinnati, talked him out of that. Nonetheless, Elsworth is proud, so much so that he goes out there of a morning and reads the newspaper, whether or not he gets a "call."

Carrie Faye Eshott of Route 2 visited her aunt, Mrs. Gladys Whealey last Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Gladys, of Route 3, is a patient at Briggs-Meyers Hospital and is being treated for plebitis, premilenialism, and the usual.

Word has it that Seamus O'Neill (Rt. 2) created quiet a uproar last Sunday at the Harmony Chapel Church on Big Split Road (Rt. 1). Sam Synder (Rt. 1) said it seems that Seamus had slept through most of the service and was about to start sneezing. So, his wife, Sarah, nudged him. Seamus straightened up, rose quickly

Commentary

By: George Ferrell

The recent economic news seems to indicate that the recession is on the way out.

That is good news out in the heartland of America. The economy has been like a sinking ship for so long that word of improvement is like a tonic.

Many young people probably didn't know what a recession was after a decade of economic growth. I can remember when I found out. That was in 1975 and the recession that year was a fairly deep one.

Getting it over with will mean some boom times, but the politicians had better be careful or they could put a fly in the ointment.

President Clinton, who made vast promises on the campaign trail, is now in the real world and trying to soft-pedal the issues.

We have all heard that the middle class tax cut has been scuttled. Now there is talk of tax hikes.

The deficit is so vast that something has to be done. I for one am not certain that tax hikes are in order.

The economy is strengthening and beginning to grow. A tax hike might slow that growth.

Another topic is a cut in Social Security, or at least no cost of living increase and perhaps taxing benefits on retirees.

I think there are a great many other things that can be done before something that drastic is served up. So far Clinton has shown the ability to compromise, especially on the issue of gays in the military.

I am hoping that Congress will work with him on his packages.

The health care reform issue, which Clinton has handed over to Hillary, is perhaps the greatest issue on the horizon.

Getting a package in order and through Congress is no simple matter.

Health care has been on the agenda for many years, yet there has been little action. I am hoping that the political gridlock will ease long enough for health care reform to be enacted.

It's that time of year again. Basketball time.

This week the Class A state tournament is taking place and fans will be treated to a lot of exciting basketball.

ball.
Kentucky is Number 2 and probably will take over the top spot as soon as Indiana slips up.
The Wildcats, as is often said, don't have fans, they have fanatics.
As a graduate of the University of Kentucky I follow both the Cats and the university.

I can remember the six years I spent gaining a degree, and look back on that as one of the best opportunities I will ever have in life.

Kentucky is more than basketball — it is academics, faculty, research and development for the state.

Each time I return to the campus I am impressed by the vast strides that have been made in improving and enhancing the educational opportunity for students.

As a former student I wince when I hear of tuition hikes. The burden is being placed on those who are least able to afford it.
Education is not a luxury, it is a necessity, and should be available for those who want to improve their lives.

A strong educational system is important to the state of Kentucky.
Students, required to pay more tuition, may wind up dropping out due to the financial burden.

I hope that the state's financial shortfall will be eased by the end of the recession.

Believe me, the students that I talk with say the tuition is too high already, and does not need to be increased.

It is February and still we haven't had much of a winter. Of course old man winter could still huff and puff us into a blizzard.

Lately we've had what the old timers call an Indian Summer.
That is seasonably warm weather during the wipiter months.

There for a while I began to wonder. Especially when we had a week or ten days of nothing but rain.

The sunny weather this week is something to be thankful for.

Spring is just around the corner and the dogwoods and redbuds will be blooming.

I may just make a trip to North Carolina sometime this spring to visit family.

I enjoy getting to see my uncles and aunts and cousins down in Carolina land.

If it's 50 degrees here in Kentucky it must be 60 or 70 down there.

Living alone I get lonely at times. One thing that always cheers me up are the weekly phone calls that I make to my family in North Carolina.

Having 400 miles of road in front of me the telephone can work magic in that I can keep up with what's going on in their lives.
Well, that's all for this week.
See you around at the country store.

Mr. and Mrs. R.P. Hafley of Route 1 visited Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Uterback of Route 2 last Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Hafley (Eudora) just returned from Our Mother of Chas-ity Hospital. Tests showed that she had contracted a rare virus that comes and goes mysteriously. Eudora's physician explained the disease to R.P., especially its strange effect on one's mentality and behavior. It made sense to R.P. After searching for Eudora for an hour last week, he finally located her in their bedroom closet, which was locked from the inside. She was making unusual sounds and would not answer when

R.P. called to her. Not knowing what was taking place, he got an axe and hacked open the door. There sat Eudora, chewing on the tongues of his new, cordova, wing-tipped shoes. And she had a pair of pumps in her lap. Eudora's disorder is known in medical circles as "Florsheimer's Syndrome."
Mr. and Mrs. Verland Scruggs of Route 1, not having anywhere to go last Sunday afternoon, stayed home.

Baking Soda...Every homemaker's dream

By: Hazel B. Jackson County Extension Agent
for Home Economics

Versatile and environmentally safe is a good description of baking soda. Sodium bicarbonate is a weak alkali that will help remove stains from china, clean your teeth, deodorize drains and clean your refrigerator.

Mix baking soda with water to make a paste for cleaning and deodorizing kitchen and bathroom surfaces without scratching.

Baking soda also will clean and shine chrome, porcelain and ceramic tile surfaces.

When mixed with water, or applied directly to a damp sponge, baking soda is an ideal cleaner for inside and outside surfaces of all kitchen appliances.

Use baking soda to clean counter tops, coffee pots, baby bottles and plastic food containers.

Baking soda is ideal for cleaning other surfaces which require an economic, non-toxic, no-scratching, grease and dirt-cutting cleaner.

When food is stuck or burned on pots and pans, sprinkle with baking soda, cover with hot water for one-half hour and then wipe.

Baking soda makes an excellent drain cleaner to help speed up slow draining sinks. Mix one cup each of baking soda, salt and white vinegar. Wait fifteen minutes. Pour the solution into the drain and flush thoroughly with boiling water. Serious clogs may also need a plumber's snaker.

For more information or specific cleaning problems, call the Extension Office at 256-2403.

McCauley reaches 1,000 points

McCauley leads Lady Rockets with 37 points over Jackson

One of the best district upsets in recent years backed by one of the best individual performances took place in the Rockcastle gymnasium Monday night in girls' high school basketball action.

Juniour Cindy McCauley posted 37 points to lead the Rockcastle County Lady Rockets in their win over the Jackson County Lady Generals, 63-55.

"It was a big win for us, confidence-wise," said head coach Christy Beaver Tuesday. "It very well may help us get over the hump," she added.

"McCauley was awesome," added Beaver. "She was all over the floor and excelled on offense as well as defense."

McCauley was honored before the game as being the only Lady Rocket ever to score 1,000 points since the high school originated in 1972. Principal Ronnie Cash presented McCauley with a game ball signed by her teammates during the ceremony.

McCauley's total to date is 1,056. She also tacked on 12 rebounds, six steals and netted 13 of 15 from the charity stripe while shooting 66% from the field on the evening.

The Lady Generals, who are ranked fourth in the region, had a 15-

12 first quarter lead before McCauley and the Lady Rockets took control of the game for the remaining three periods.

Beaver felt that aside from McCauley's best showing ever, she felt that her team wanted the win more than the Lady Generals.

"We got good solid play from a lot of people," Beaver said.

"Beth Amyx had a good night, who passed the ball well," said Beaver. "As did Melinda Smith who shot 56% from the field."

Christy Coleman did a good job of containing Jackson's best player, Shea Lunford. While Lunford did manage 26 points, she wasn't a threat down the stretch.

McCauley, however, proved to be a threat and posted 13 points in the second quarter to give the Lady Rockets their first lead at the half, 31-26.

While the Lady Generals managed to cut the lead to three in the third quarter, 42-39, it wasn't enough as the Lady Rockets rallied behind McCauley.

McCauley poured in 21 of the Lady Rockets' 34 points in the second half to put the game out of reach. The Lady Rockets, who committed only eight turnovers on the evening, bagged 17 of 22 attempts from the free throw line.

The win moves the Lady Rockets' record to 6-12 on the year.

Other scorers for the Lady Rockets were: Beth Amyx, 4; Christy Coleman, 3; Becky Osborne, 4; Melinda Smith, 9; Melinda Alcorn, 2; and Heather Deckard, 4.

In other action the Lady Rockets suffered a loss to Berea, 53-28, last Thursday after posting only two points in the third quarter.

While they trailed, 10-6, early on the Lady Rockets pulled within two at the half, 22-20.

But a two point third quarter and six point fourth quarter proved fatal as Berea pulled away scoring 31 points in the half.

Scoring in the game were: Beth Amyx, 2; Christy Coleman, 4; Cindy McCauley, 14; Becky Osborne, 4 and Melinda Smith, 4.

In junior varsity action, the Lady Rockets were successful this past week with wins over Berea and Jackson.

Record now 6-12

Rockets fall to quick Whitley squad, 98-77

An impressive full court pressure outlined by quickness was the basis of Whitley County's 98-77 win over the host Rockcastle County Rockets this past Friday.

The loss drops the Rockets' season record to 6-12.

"Whitley's press was so quick that it took us out of our offense," said head coach Clayton Cash Tuesday. "I have to give Whitley a lot of credit, they played well," he added.

Cash also felt that Whitley's defense was one of the best the Rockets have faced all year and said that Whitley could have possibly been the best team they have faced thus far.

The key factor for the Rockets, who trailed 29-19 in the first quarter, was turnovers. They committed 21.

"We have been keeping our turnovers down to about 10 or 12 a game," said Cash. "I think we have to stay around those figures to have a good game."

"I think we played well other than our turnovers," he said.

Whitley, who bagged 26 field goals, shot the ball well and were able to stretch their lead out to 15 by the half, 49-34.

Senior Corey Craig led the Rockets with 31 points. He also had 22 rebounds, five assists, five steals, four blocked shots and was 10 of 15 from the field and 11 of 16 from the charity stripe.

"Craig had an exceptional game," Cash said. "He hit the boards well and scored well."

But Whitley's pressure took its toll. It kept the Rockets away from their regular offense while also deny-

They defeated Berea last Thursday, 38-28, and whipped Jackson Monday, 40-22.

Scoring against Berea were: Heather Deckard, 4; Melinda Alcorn, 8; Janetta McLemore, 2; Jamica Cummins, 4; Dee Reams, 2; Amy Robinson, 2 and Sarah Barrett, 16.

Scoring against Jackson were: Heather Deckard, 13; Ginger Mink, 2; Melinda Alcorn, 2; Janetta McLemore, 2; Dee Reams, 7; Amy Robinson, 2; Susie Carpenter, 10 and Sarah Barrett, 2.

ing them of any fast breaks.

While Whitley stretched their lead to 79-57 in the third quarter, the Rockets did manage did cut the lead to 12 early on in the second half.

"We were able to cut it lead to 12 at one time but we just couldn't get that big basket to break into their lead any further," Cash said.

Cash also felt that early foul trouble by freshman Eddie Todd hurt the Rockets on the boards late in the game.

The Rockets had a good night from the free throw line making 18 of 28. But Whitley did better sinking an impressive 27 of 34 attempts to nurse their lead through the final period.

Other scorers for the Rockets in the game were: J.D. Bussell, 2; Mike Tackett, 6; Eddie Todd, 11; Mickey McClure, 19; Brian Carter, 6 and Chad Severance, 2.

In junior varsity action, the Rockets also fell to the much quicker Whitley squad Friday night, 74-28.

Scoring for the Rockets were: Willie Morris, 4; Ken Hopkins, 1; Corey Scott, 2; Chad Severance, 5; Eric McGuire, 1; Jarrod Singleton, 3; Jamie Linville, 4 and Robert Moore, 6.

In freshmen action last Thursday, the Rockets fell just shy of Lincoln County, 58-44, to move their record to 4-5 on the year.

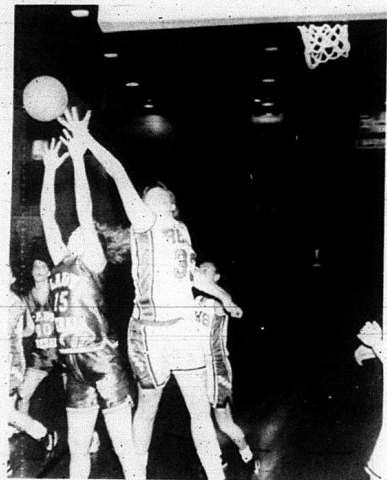

Scorers in the game for the Rockets were: Scottie Cotton, 6; Dallas Rigby, 5; Corey Scott, 2; Chad Severance, 7; Jarrod Singleton, 3; Jamie Linville, 5; Eric McGuire, 9; Robert Moore, 3 and John Hammond, 4.

Senior Corey Craig puts in two of his 31 points in action against Whitley County last Friday night.

Devon Graves of the Rockcastle 8th grade all-stars dribbles around a Red Foley defender in all-star action this past week. Scores and highlights of the all-stars will be in next week's edition.

Juniour Cindy McCauley reached for a rebound in action against Jackson Monday night. McCauley was recognized before the game for her accomplishment of scoring 1,000 points. She is the only Lady Rocket to ever reach the milestone.

As testimony to the growing quality of the UK student body, there were 44 National Merit scholars, 113 Kentucky Governor Scholars and 136 high school valedictorians and salutatorians in the 1992 freshman class on the campus in Lexington.

"This fall we were proud to announce that the average ACT scores for first-year students at UK in Lexington climbed to 24.3 from last year's 23.9," Whetington said. "This places UK more than three points above the national average."

Dr. Larry R. Smith completes "Protect Your Back" program

Dr. Larry R. Smith of Mt. Vernon, Chiropractor, has recently completed the "Protect Your Back" program co-sponsored by the American Red Cross and the American Chiropractic Association. The "Protect Your Back" program is designed to reduce the occurrence of work related back injuries. According to Dr. Smith, Red Cross statistics show that:

- The average back problem costs employers almost $19,000 annually;
- back injuries cost American business more than a billion in work benefits and lost production; Over 1/3 of a year's production (per 100 workers) are lost each year due to back injuries.

Another potential benefit could be a reduction of insurance premiums for the employer.

As a public service Dr. Smith will be presenting a mini version of the "Protect Your Back" program in his office free of charge. For further information call Dr. Smith's office at 256-2584.

Helpful tips to care givers

Day care centers can be breeding grounds for a host of illnesses in youngsters attending them, unless care givers and the children alike follow certain precautions.

Several illnesses can be transmitted easily from one child to another by the care giver.

Care givers should wash their hands with soap and hot water after changing a baby's diaper and before they work with other children. Care givers should also make sure all children wash their hands with soap and water after using the toilet.

In addition, staff who prepare food for the children need to make sure they wash their hands before handling foods.

Toys also can transmit disease from one child to another. Day care center toys should be washed frequently to help reduce their potential for spreading sickness.

Any potential unhealthful practices need to be brought to the attention of the director of the day care center. By doing so, employees may cut down the risk of your child or someone else's child becoming sick.

On Dec. 18, Sharon McKinney, Sheila McQueary and Jamie Cornelius presented their annual Christmas play at Mt. Vernon Elementary, entitled "Time Out for Christmas." The play featured the entire sixth grade class, with students acting parts or singing in the choir. This 30-minute production was presented to the student body, as well as to family of the sixth graders. In addition, special invitations (designed by Michael Parsons and Jonathan Burdette) were sent to MVES faculty and central office staff.

The choir selections featured several soloists, including Mark Proctor, Layne Nicely, Amanda Osborne, Honey Decker, Crissy Baker, Barbara Mullins, Michael Parsons, Stephanie Dobbs, Kristy Lovell, Jamie Settles, Dusty Burdette, Becky Davis, Linda Renner, and Jesse Croucher. Handbell players were Jason Carmack, Neil Mesker and Brian Kelly.

Characters in the play were: Last Year's Teddy Bear (Andy Hale), Last Year's Rag Doll (Nathaniel Bullock) Tick (Kevin Bradley), and Tock (Cody Cox). The others were the first 24 days of Christmas, spoken by other members of the sixth grade class. Narrator was Josh Chaliff.

Scenery was designed by Nathaniel Bullock and Michael Parsons. MVES faculty who were a great help in making this production possible were Gerald Alexander, Leon Davidson, Nancy Hale, and Doris Cash. We hope to continue the Christmas tradition next December!

This year when Ms. Judy Bullock asked Mrs. Sharon McKinney to design sweatshirts for the MVES basketball teams, as she has done for the past two years, Mrs. McKinney told her that she felt that two of her students were quite capable of doing the design. After a discussion, the two teachers decided that it would be a good idea to use the talents of the two students for this project.

After Ms. Bullock gave the two artists the idea she wanted on the girls' team's shirts, they began their work. After seeing the finished work, Ms. Bullock was so pleased with it that she showed it to her's coach Jason Colguer, who then asked the young artists to do a design for the boys team as well.

Rising to the challenge, the boys turned out another excellent design, showcasing their originality.

By now you're wondering who these talented young artists are. They are Nathaniel Bullock, son of Lawrence and Phyllis Bullock and Michael Parsons, son of Lyn and Carla Parsons. Both are from Mt. Vernon and are sixth grade students of Sharon McKinney at MVES. Mrs. McKinney has said that the two boys' talents are very advanced for their ages and hopes that Nathaniel and Michael will keep developing their artistic talents throughout school. Hopefully, the new middle school will have a full-time art teacher to serve the needs of all the talented students in Rockcastle County. Mrs. McKinney's class is presently served by a volunteer art teacher, Mrs. Debbie Bugg, who teaches art to them on Tuesdays during her planning period.

MVES reports results of fund raiser for Easter Seals

Mt. Vernon Elementary School recently participated in the 13th Annual Wildcat Basketball Shootout for Easter Seals. MVES, Mrs. McKinney, the event raises funds for Easter Seal programs throughout Kentucky.

One hundred and eighty-six (186) students at Mt. Vernon Elementary school raised $5,777.40 for Easter Seals by soliciting sponsors for each basket made during a three minute period. These students were awarded prizes based on the amount of money raised.

The boy and girl who raised the most money statewide will sit on the play board at a late season Wildcat home game. The Basketball Shootout is conducted by Easter Seal's state office in Louisville.

Schools such as Mt. Vernon Elementary School have raised over one million dollars in twelve Shootouts. Of those funds, 99 percent stayed in Kentucky, and 83.6 percent was spent on direct hands-on services to thousands of children and adults with disabilities. Last year over 23,000 Kentuckians received Easter Seal services.

Auto Loans Borrow, Then Buy

First you get an idea of how much you would like to finance on a car purchase. Then you come in and see us and line up your money. Now you're ready to "kick tires," "kick salesmen," or do whatever you have to do in order to get the best deal on a car. It's much easier to bargain when financing is already handled.

Some of the car companies offer low interest financing in order to move their cars but when you stop to think about it — if they are that anxious to sell the cars by lowering their interest rates, they are probably just as anxious to make a deal with a cash buyer.

lahan's mother, Mrs. Margaret Burdine.

Mrs. Janie Nicely spent a few days in the Rockcastle Hospital during the week.

"Schools" Starting Point

year you would see a change in the way teachers teach and the way children learn," he said.

"Kids get more involved in learning instead of just sitting in a seat," he added.

Hopefully the new curriculum will enable Rockcastle schools to reach their 1994 goal (also known as threshold).

Local school results were:

Broadhead, 4th, 33.1; 8th, 30.2 Livingston, 4th, 25.6; 8th, 24.6 Mt. Vernon, 4th, 31.2; 8th, 34.2 Roundstone, 4th, 30.7; 8th, 42.5 RCHS, 12th, 39.5

While Livingston's middle school score ranked as the second worst in the state, educators warned against comparing scores because it misses the point of accountability. They said that even the highest scoring schools were barely halfway to their goal.

However, the ranking did bring questions concerning the future of Livingston Elementary once the new middle school becomes active.

Towery said that any decision made concerning Livingston would have to be made by the local board of education at their next facility planning meeting in 1994 or 1995. The board did not list Livingston as a permanent center in their 1991 meeting.

Another question arising from the base-line scoring was how it would effect the new middle school.

Towery said that it would certainly be to the county's advantage to have a specifically designated middle school program. Simply because it would combine the four scores from each of the grade schools into one composite score.

"I firmly believe that there will be no schools in crisis in Rockcastle County," Towery said.

"Have every confidence that each of our schools will reach our threshold level," he concluded.

lowing discussions with employees, physicians and members of the community, Cimalla said, "our goal was to develop a new name that clearly identifies us with our community service area and reflects our commitment to delivering high quality health care services."

Lake Cumberland Regional Hospital was established in May of 1976 and has grown to employ over 650 and to care for 227 patients. Last year, nearly 10,000 patients were admitted to the facility and another 26,000 received care in the hospital's emergency department.

127 and U.S. 150 that would enclose Lexington, Lawrenceburg, Harrodsburg, Danville, Stanford, Mt. Vernon, Berea and Richmond.

"U.S. 150 is the missing link," Sekon said. "It would have an immediate impact on an economically distressed area."

Busty Chevan, an aide to Sen. Ford, said that improving U.S. 150 to four lanes is a project that his boss will back.

"It will have the senator's support," Chevan said. "Well do what we can."

Ford said that he would ask for state funding to see whether Appalachian Regional Commission highway funds could be channeled into the project. The two-lane segments planned by the state have no federal dollars involved.

State Rep. Joe Clarke, D-Danville, said he has been sold on the road project for several years not only because of the needed transportation link for Boyle and Lincoln counties to I-75 but because of the proposed Cedar Creek Lake that would provide a reservoir of drinking water for Lincoln County.

But, Clarke cautioned, "Don't get your expectations up too high." He said building such an expensive road with state funds will take time and will have to come in segments.

Clarke, who was elected speaker of the state House of Representatives earlier this month, said he would use whatever influence that office carries to see that the project gets the attention it deserves in Frankfort.

"It's a good investment for the state," Clarke said, because it provides access for labor and transportation to areas now underserved by the highway network.

State Rep. Danny Ford, R-Mt. Vernon, also expressed his commitment to the improvement of U.S. 150.

"If we're going to see economic development, we're going to have to have roads," said Ford, a member of the House Appropriations and Revenue committee. "I'm behind it 100 percent."

State Rep. Bob Damron, whose district includes parts of Jessamine, Garrard and Lincoln counties, said improving access to I-75 would help every part of his district. The Nicholasville Democrat said he too would support the project in the state legislature.

An Anatomy of Melancholy

Most of the people the age of my wife and me have reached a novel stage in their lives. Their children, for the most part, are educated and have left home, and many have recently married. This was to have been our age group's long-anticipated pause between children and grandchildren.

In our visits with some of this mid-50's age group during the holiday festivities, we picked up a new crisis-stage in their lives, one previous generations didn't encounter as often nor feel so acutely. The problem is increased parental dependency, and it is a major problem factor families all across the nation.

One friend from Maine is forced to put his father in a nursing home with health care, but can't find anything less costly than $50,000 a year. Another friend here in South Carolina needs to put her mother in a home with health care, but can't find anything under $35,000 a year. As an alternative, she is hiring a nurse for nine hours a day five days a week and caring for her mother herself evenings and weekends, at a cost equal to her take-home pay in the job she has held a quarter-century and can't afford to forego.

Along with the dilemma of unavailable and unaffordable health care for the elderly come buckets of guilt.

Incapacitated parents feel guilty for being such a burden to their families; struggling offspring feel guilty for not being able to provide the care for their parents that their parents once sacrificed to provide for them, and also feel guilty for getting frustrated, short-tempered, and weary from the unexpected responsibilities.

Meanwhile the longevity of individuals increases, the quantity of people living longer rises, and health care costs escalate annually. It is a treadmill which moves faster and faster the harder one tries to out-run it.

In other fields in the free-enterprise system costs to the consumers go down when the demand for services go up. Consumer consumption growth creates more fast-food restaurants, more malls and shops, more groceries, and more filling stations and more stable prices at each. But in health care, quantum leaps in expanded patients' markets seem to trigger quantum leaps in health care costs. Customary rules of economies of scale don't seem to apply.

An individual patient doesn't require many more services than he or she did ten or twenty years ago. But the number of patients has increased so radically, because modern medicine has the capacity to keep us living longer, that costs to the individual are much higher than ever before. One would have thought, judging from the success of Wal Mart and other discount stores, that dealing with large numbers of consumers would lessen health services costs for the individual customer.

Perhaps the quality of health care has gotten too good for the case to be otherwise. After all, the makers of Saturn cars have found their products to be so much in demand that they can't keep up with the supply, and some customers are offering "bonuses" to dealers to move them up on the waiting lists. Another automaker is said to have created a car so superior to others thus far, purely only on paper—that it is rumored to be selling, unproduced and sight unseen, for $250,000 to people buying them purely as investments to store undriven to appreciate in value.

Along with the improved quality of health care, another cause of high health costs for the elderly may be the scarcity of services. While hospital beds and doctors may appear plentiful, they probably are not. If not, shortages in competition account for some of the high costs. The scarcity of Saturdays and perfect-blueprint cars drives up their costs as much as does the quality of the product. The same probably is true in health services.

The surplus of lawyers can be substantiated by the recent appearance of advertisements of legal services in newspapers and on television. accountants also advertise, especially around tax return time, and so must be in plentiful supply. But hospitals and doctors, other than some chiropractors, don't seem to be hurting for business. You don't see ads for them, anyway. Visit any clinic's waiting room or any hospital wardroom or look at any nursing home waiting list, to see if the case is otherwise.

The problem is easier to diagnose than it is to cure. "Physician, heal thyself," is easier said than done. One doesn't see very many goot-offs or leeches in most health services. Most of the professionals have been trained to their work conscientiously and extraordinarily well.

The costs of caring comes from their successes in delivering such high quality, which is producing a healthier and longer-living and larger society that clamors for more of the same, expected high service and often without adequate savings accounts to afford it. Forced either to go into debt to get the relief they need or to do without the services by going "cold turkey," we can expect to hear more and more senior-citizen horror stories of suicides, euthanasia, over-the-hill crime gangs, and abandonment of parents on emergency room stoops or at racetracks—unless we face up to and solve this acidifying and oft-times angering situation.

Surely a nation that can invent atomic bombs and travel to the moon has wits and wisdom enough to find a way out of this box canyon. Our health-care is an unhealthy situation that begs for some answers hard to find.

Loveless kicks off 1993 concert series at Renfro Valley

With a monthly concert series which features some of country music's brightest stars, selecting the star of the April concert was a hot topic among Renfro Valley staff.

"We wanted to set the right mood for the entire series," said Renfro Valley General Manager Dean L. Henriksen. "We ended last year's fall concert series on an incredibly high note with Joe Diffie in December. And we took special care in choosing stars for the 1993 series. Choosing Patty Loveless to open the series met with unanimous approval among our staff."

Patty Loveless' musical style, which she describes as "traditional country with a little edge," and her eastern Kentucky roots seem a perfect match for Renfro Valley. Loveless was originally scheduled to appear in Renfro Valley in the fall of 1992, surgery to correct a vocal chord problem prevented that appearance. Instead, a benefit concert featuring local and regional entertainers was held, with proceeds donated to Loveless' chosen charity, the American Cancer Society Kentucky Division.

The surgery, performed in November, left Patty with a voice described as "good as ever, maybe even a little stronger."

It is Loveless' distinctive voice that has earned her a reputation as one of the "pre-eminent" women country singers of her generation, a compliment bestowed upon her by People magazine. USA Today echoed this praise by adding that "nobody, but nobody in Nashville sings better."

With hits like "Jealous Heart," "If My Heart Had Windows," "Hurt Me

Bad (In a Real Good Way)," "Timber (In Falling in Love)," and "The Lonely Side of Love," Patty Loveless is a regular at the top of country music charts. Give her a bluesy song like "I'm That Kind of Girl" or a rockabilly song like "Blue Side of Town" and you have pure Loveless magic. "What can concert-goers expect from Patty Loveless' Renfro Valley appearance on April 18? According to Patty, "I try to give a variety of material that people from eight to eighty can appreciate. I also try to choose songs that both male and female can relate to."

Tickets for the April 18 Patty Loveless concert are now on sale at the Renfro Valley ticket office. Tickets are $13, $14 for preferred seating (front, center sections); all seats are reserved. Loveless will perform two concerts, an afternoon show at 2 p.m. and an evening performance at 6 p.m. To reserve tickets, call Renfro Valley at 606-256-2638.

Renfro Valley's 1993 concert series includes Collin Raye, Steve Wariner, Conway Twitty, Don Williams, Ronnie McDowell and several other stars yet to be announced. The popular entertainment complex is on Highway 25 near Mt. Vernon, just off Interstate 75 at exit 62. Renfro Valley is 15 minutes south of Berea, 45 minutes south of Lexington.

Frost interviews Billy Graham

Burley farmers will get maximum quota decrease

A decline in burley manufacturers' purchase intentions for the 1993-94 buying season will result in the maximum quota decrease allowed under law.

"The U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced that burley manufacturers' purchase intentions will be 361 million pounds for the 1993-94 buying season," said Will Snell, Extension agricultural policy specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. "This is a 19-percent decrease from last year and will cause a 10-percent decline in basic quota for 1993."

Snell said manufacturers are required to deliver purchase intentions to the USDA on January 15; however, the 1993 burley quota will not be officially announced until February 1.

"The basic burley quota is set using a three-component formula -- manufacturers' purchase intentions, a three-year average of exports, and an adjustment in reserve stocks to maintain adequate supplies, according to Snell. "The manufacturer purchase intentions component plays the greatest role in determining the quota change because it is the largest component in the formula," he said.

"The large decline in purchase intentions is reason for major concern throughout the industry," Snell added. "Without the provision to establish a 10 percent maximum cut, the formula would have called for a basic quota reduction exceeding 20 percent for 1993. This is the last year for a maximum reduction. Hereafter, the basic quota will decline by as much as the formula dictates; there will be no maximum limit to future quota reductions."

Snell said the reduced purchase intentions will generate much debate among U.S. tobacco companies, congressmen from tobacco-producing states, and farm leadership on such issues as price support, policy modifications and imports.

Manufacturers' purchase intentions for 1993 are nearly 150 million pounds lower than those submitted in 1992, according to Snell. He said the following situations could have contributed to decreased purchase intentions for the 1993 marketing year: As a result of a sustained period of underproduction from 1986-90, pur-

Part of District Grant

Students will benefit from dental program

The Cumberland Valley District Health Department recently received a grant through the State Department of Health Dental Branch to provide Rockcastle County students, primary through 5th grades, with the basic knowledge of the importance of dental health. The goal was practice and maintain good oral health.

Rockcastle County's health educator, Beverly Carter-Sexton with the Rockcastle County Health Center, conducted two sessions with each grade toward meeting that goal. Good eating habits as well as the importance of brushing, flossing, and the use of fluoride were emphasized. The children were also cautioned on the use of smokeless tobacco.

The program provided each student with a toothbrush, toothpaste and dental floss. Dr. Dale Coffey and Dr. John Parsons, Rockcastle County dentists, aided Mrs. Sexton in selecting and ordering supplies for the program.

In order to evaluate the value of the program, the students were given a pre-test prior to its implementation and a post-test at its conclusion. By comparing the results of the tests, Mrs. Sexton was able to report a marked increase in the students' knowledge of dental health/care due to the program. However, she said the program could not have been successful without the cooperation and enthusiasm of the teachers and parents.

Parents are encouraged to continue an active role in prompting their children to follow good oral health practices. Some information parents may find helpful is:

Medicaid assistance care will cover many dental expenses; Parents of infant/pre-school children, who are not on a city water supply, can have their water checked for fluoride (kits for testing may be obtained at the health center) and fluoride will be provided to those homes determined to be without fluoridated water. This service is free.

The main cause for accidental loss of teeth in children is riding without seat belts (infant/toddler car seats may be obtained at the health center for $5-$10 deposit which is refunded when the seat is returned in good condition)

Decay is the leading oral health problem among school age children (free toothbrushes are given to children receiving services at the health center)

Brodhead resident remembers when trains were "King"

In the past few days the CSX Railroad has been taking up the railroad tracks around Brodhead. Soon they will be up along the entire route to Lebanon Junction. Mrs. Patricia Fletcher of Brodhead remembers the years when trains were king. She writes about it in a story below.

By: Patricia Fletcher

Brodhead is about to lose another landmark. They are taking up the railroad track. We are all watching as the railroad crew is taking it up and moving it away. The track was laid in 1866. I have many fond memories of the four passenger trains that we use to come through here. My husband and I have ridden trains many times.

When I was 10 years old and my sister 7 (Rhetta) and I came back from West Virginia on the train. We had visited our aunt and uncle, Bub and Lucille Purcell.

We had to change trains in Corbin and the nice conductor saw that we got on the right train to Brodhead. My grandmother Annie McKinney had a store in Brodhead and I used to go with her to Louisville on No. 24, to buy goods for her store. We would shop all day and come back the same day on No. 21. If someone wanted a dress she would pick something out for that certain person. The goods she bought would be shipped in on the train.

I went many times with my grandmother, Byrd Albright, to Louisville to see a specialist. We would meet my uncle Guy Albright, who was in Dental School at the University of Louisville and take her to the doctor, then visit with his family and come back on No. 21, the same day.

We always enjoyed train rides. In the summer you rode with the windows open and you would have cinders all over you.

They had "Bluch Boys" on the train that would come around with a basket of candy, gum, and fresh fruit that he sold to the passengers.

One time my grandmother McKinney took us to Knoxville to visit some of our "Hendrickson" relatives. We had never met the people, and I never saw them again.

The L&N trains stopped at all towns on their route. My friend, Audrey Fletcher and I used to ride to Mt. Vernon and spend the afternoon. You could ride for 10 cents and the train stopped at Marburg. Mail came in on the train. You could go to the Post Office in the morning and then go back in the afternoon to see if you have mail that came in on the noon train. Trains took on water at Brodhead and the L&N built a dam on Dix River, but when diesel came along, there was no need for water and they tore the dam down. We use to have baptisms there. People use to ship cream by rail to Cincinnati, butter, chickens, eggs and strawberries. When people died away from here, their remains were shipped here.

The Brodhead Fair was a big attraction here. L&N would put on extra cars to bring people.

People would stay in local hotels that week. Elizabeth Mullins said that a "back" wagon with seats would take people to the Fair from the train.

We had three nice railroad restaurants at this time, Murphy's, Frith and Clarks. There were no dining cars then and the restaurants would prepare box lunches for passengers. L&N would telegraph the depot and tell them how many to prepare. We would get 25 cents for putting lunches on the train.

When World War II came along it was more difficult to ride the train. Servicemen got seats first, which they should have. Troop trains came through and we would go over to see our servicemen, going off to war.

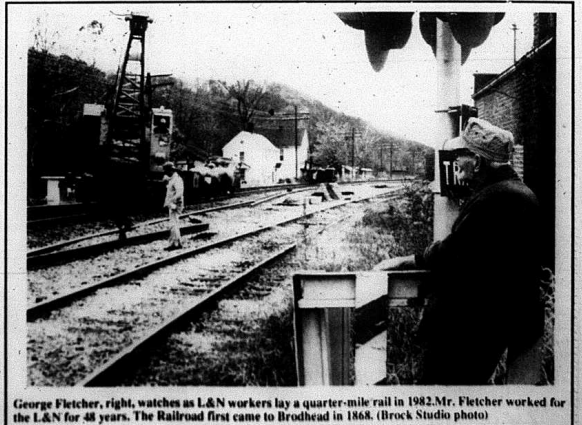

One time my mother, Carter Hoskins, took my sisters, Rhetta, Birdham, Charlene and I to Oceans, Va. to visit her sister, Lucille. The train was so crowded we had to sit on our suitcases and people even stood up. Not too many people in World War II had cars so the train was the way to go. Also gasoline and tires were rationed. Charles Fletcher and I married while he was in the Navy and we rode the train many times. When Charles was in boot camp he rode to San Diego, Calif. for training and then back to the East Coast when he finished. One of the trains that we took out of Lexington was the "George Washington." The conductor stood in the caboose and waved to every-

Dear Editor,

I have something to say about the article that you wrote. I think it's a terrible thing for the old people to have to stand outside in the cold when there is plenty of room inside the building where they give the commodities out. I think they should be let inside where it's warm. I'm sure each one would stand back until called.

POET'S CORNER

Kentucky Oaks
By: Preston Parrett

With stalwart limbs reaching out
Anchored by trunks of massive girth,
One can only ponder and wonder
How long they've been upon the earth.

For these mammoth monarchs of the forest,
Are still proudly standing tall,
And it's mind boggling to perceive
How tiny acorns started it all.

As one sits underneath their branches
Shading out the sun from the sky,

One can delve back into history
And see the pioneers going by.

Carrying their earthly belongings
Down the Daniel Boone Trail,
Maybe, they too stopped and rested
Underneath their branches for a spell.

From their vantage point on the mountain top
Danger could be seen if lurking below,
For Indians were long on the warpath
Trying to slone the pioneering folk.

The pioneers are still gone now
Brave mountain descendants have taken their place,
Showing their legacy of courage worldwide
In the eternal wars of the human race.

The twining oaks of the forest
Have been a sanctuary of peace and rest,
For the birds and squirrels
That used them for a nest.

These behemoths of the woodland
Returns to nature from which all things nurse,
Nutrients for the land, sea and air.
The survival of the universe.

Kentucky Oaks are beautiful
Soothing to the soul and eye,
As they tower majestically
Against the beautiful azure sky.

Nice
By: Lewis F. Bowling

To write this is like a dream,
Writing about a niece I have never seen.

The best way to make a start,
Pick up a pen and write from my heart.

Someone I have thought about for a long time,
Always hoping she was fine,
I always thought we were a world apart,
Yet there was room for her in my heart.

When I think we may meet on this earth,
It's like expecting one from a new birth.

When she arrives from her home,
I hope she knows she's not alone.

As that time draws near,
My heart will be filled with fear,
Will she be disappointed in me,
What I am is all I can be.

I must be the kind of man,
God wants in His plan,
Each day to do the best I can,
And to love my fellowman.

So I send to her my love,
With a prayer to God above,
To keep her safe until we meet,
With open arms and heart to greet.

What's a Hippie

A hippie wears few clothes like Taranos does
On his face there be some fuz
Just like Jane his hair be long
Then like Cheeta his odor be strong

What New Years means
To Me
By: Lewis Bowling 1993

N. is for the new life filled with God's love,
E. is for eternity with Him in heaven above
W. is for the willingness He gave His life for us all,
Y. is for the yes, we need to answer His call,
E. as for everything He gives to us all.

A. is for the answer, when on Him we call.
R. is for the righteousness, He gives to one and all,
Put them all together, what does it mean to men?
The Christ who died upon the cross,
To save us all from sin.

Our Youth and Morality
By: Flora Mae Taylor
1993

Morality is at an all time low,
It's not pleasing to God, we all know,
We may be teaching sex, a little too much,
For their innocent minds, abstinence, might be enough

Of our little children, we should be concerned,
And be very mindful, of what they have learned,
Teaching safe sex, what can it mean,
Abstinence till marriage, could be the thing

Too much too soon, might be a mistake,
What the Bible says, could all it would take,
The teachings of the Bible, have always worked,
When we veer from it, there's going to be hurt

We give kids a plan, and they think

RE-ELECT

Charles D. Holbrook
Republican-Magistrate

Being graduated or not being graduated means little to me, my major was accounting so I understand numbers when I can see them. The numbers as they stand now are $3,000 spending wise. I very well understand this because, my friends, I can see them now, when and if I exceed them, and have them but can't see them, I can't even vote or seek public office, I will be in confinement and will be a resident of Clay County. Then they can see my numbers, because they'll be on my back. The Pur Rigsby intersection most dangerous in the county is an emergency classification. This was accomplished by knowing and working with Democrats and Republicans as equals. The land donor, a Republican, a neighbor, and a good one. Not just seeking public office (but I can see the glitter in his eyes) the rest of the people are known by both Democrats and Republicans. You should, you good people put them good people in there and I respect your ability in choosing wisely in the last campaign. This election, win or lose, will be my last campaign. Hopefully I will prevail, I have done my best, and will try harder. The glitter is there, but as you know in aging it will fade. ATTENTION: All residents of District 1, more Tennessee neck scratchers are on the way. Can be picked up or mailed from Dari Delite. Partly owned and completely managed by Kay Shelton.
