PUBLIC NOTICE
Pursuant to Section 105(a) (c) of the Job Training Partnership Act the public review of the Job Training Plan for the Cumberland Service Delivery Area serving the counties of Adair, Casey, Clinton, Cumberland, Anderson, McCreary, Pulaski, Russell, Taylor, and Wayne Counties within the Lake Cumberland Area Development District and the Counties of Laurel, Rockcastle, and Whitley in the Cumberland Valley Area Development District will be on display beginning April 9, 1993

The purpose of the Job Training Plan is established to provide programs to prepare youth and unskilled adults for entry into the labor force and to afford job training to those economically disadvantaged individuals and others facing serious barriers to employment who are in special need of such training to obtain productive employment.
The Job Training Plan for the Cumberland Service Delivery Area will have an approximate budget of $2,491,126.00 to provide approximately 1,200 participants an array of services such as employability skills, basic education, on-the-job training, vocational education services, and post-secondary education services as determined by the Cumberland Private Industry Council.

The Job Training Plan for the Cumberland Service Delivery Area for Program Year 1993 beginning July 1, 1993 will be on display for public review in the Lake Cumberland Area Development District office in Russell Springs, Kentucky. Office hours at the Area Development District are from 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Central Time.

Any inquiries can be directed to Steve Clark, JTPA Director of the Lake Cumberland Area Development District (502) 866-4200.

VS: NOTICE OF SALE
HAROLD COOPER and wife,
PEGGY SUE COOPER DEFENDANTS

Pursuant to a default judgment and order of sale entered in this action on the 8th day of March, 1993, for the purpose of enforcement of a Land Contract entered into by the parties to recover the sum of $21,000.00, plus interest to December 15, 1992 in the amount of $3,315.00, plus interest at the rate of ten percent (10%) to date of judgement due plaintiffs on said Land Contract and for interest after the date of judgment as allowed by the law in the amount of 12% until paid in full, attorney's fee and costs, I will offer at public auction the herein described real property in Mt. Vernon, Rockcastle County, Kentucky.

AT THE COURTHOUSE DOOR ON MAIN STREET
ON FRIDAY, THE 9TH DAY OF APRIL, 1993
BEGINNING AT THE HOUR OF 11:00 A.M.
said property being more particularly bounded and described as follows:

TRACT NO. 1 - Beginning at a white walnut marked corner; thence with the fence to a cliff, thence southwest to a stake in the line of the corner made by the grantors and J. H. Cummins and John Reams and Luverna Hubbard opposite a fence; thence North with the fence to two black oaks near the road; thence North to a gap in the cliff; thence northwest to a corner in a branch in the line of Johnnie Reams land, a chestnut corner made by J.H. Cummins and George Hubbard; thence North with a conditional line marked to the South side of the county road; thence running with the Southside of the county road due East to the corner of Andrew Miller and J.H. Cummins land on the south side of the county road and Miller's north corner; thence running with Andrew Miller north line to the beginning, containing thirty-two acres, more or less.
There is excepted a lot com'g and to Sampson Sandusky by deed dated August 28, 1968, recorded in Deed Book 88, page 139.

TRACT NO. 2 - Containing seventy acres (70) more or less and beginning at the big spring about one-fourth (1/4) mile from the K.C. Division of the L&N Railroad Company, running north to the top of hill to a maple tree; thence West along the county road to a line in Green Chandler's land; thence South with same line to a certain large cliff, thence East to the beginning. The said land is bounded on the east by the lands of W.J. Newcomb; on the North by the lands of Mrs. Wilson; on the West by the lands of Green Chandler and of the south by Ashley Owens.
It is understood between the parties hereto that the road leading from the Maple Grove Road to the H.B. Miller Farm be left open for the purposes of ingress and egress. It is further understood that grantees are to raise the 1991 tobacco crop and thereafter or lease the crop pursuant to the procedure set forth by the ASCS office.

The plaintiff Donnie Lainhart obtained title to said real property by deed dated March 27, 1981, executed by Reuben Hammond and wife, Pauline Hammond, recorded in Deed Book _____ page _____.

The above being the same real property defendants obtained an interest by virtue of the Land Contract hereinbefore set out, same being recorded in Deed Book 143, page 93-97.

The property will be sold upon the following terms and conditions:

1. The purchaser shall be sold to the highest bidder(s) for cash or for a deposit of TWENTY (20%) PER CENT of the purchase price in cash at the time of sale and the balance payable THREE (3) MONTHS from the date of the sale, with interest at the rate of TWELVE (12%) percent from annum from date of sale until paid. The purchaser(s) shall be required to execute bond with surety thereon, to be approved by the Master Commissioner, for the balance of the purchase price. The bond shall bear interest at the rate of twelve (12%) percent per annum from date until paid, and to remain and be a lien on said property until fully paid.
2. The purchaser(s) shall have the privilege of paying all of the purchase price in cash or paying the bond before maturity by paying the principal amount thereon, together with all interest accrued thereon to the date of said payment.
3. The purchaser(s) shall pay the 1993 county, state and school taxes on the real property herein.
4. The purchaser(s) shall have possession of the premises upon complying with the terms of sale and risk of loss of improvements shall thereafter be on the purchaser(s).
5. This sale shall be made subject to all easements, set back lines, restrictions or covenants of record otherwise.
6. Should there be a lien on the property held by the United States, a federal right of redemption shall exist.

Ed McCracken of Orlando celebrated his 91st birthday at his home on Monday, March 29. We love you dad and wish you a very special happy birthday.
Love,
All the Kids

Rob and Rita Bailey are proud to announce the birth of their first child Whitney Brooke. She was born at Central Baptist Hospital in Lexington on December 2, 1992. Whitney weighed 8 lbs. 6 ozs. and was 19 1/2 inches long. Her maternal grandparents are John and Wilene Debord of Brothead. Paternal grandparents are Bill and Louise Bailey of Mt. Vernon.

The children of Lavada Kirby Graves, widow of Leonard Graves, are inviting all friends and relatives to share in their mother's 80th birthday celebration on Easter Sunday. An open house will be held in her honor at her home in Sand Springs, beginning at 2 p.m. on April 11. Everyone is invited to share in this celebration of life, especially all her kinfolks, neighbors and friends. So come and bring your love and memories but no gifts please.

Happy Birthday!
Hi! My name is Lyndsey Nicole Cook-Hoskins and I turned two on March 11th. My mommy and daddy are Jimmy and Angelia Cook-Hoskins of Mt. Vernon. My grandparents are Chester and Lillie Lakes, Larry Cook and Doug and Jean Hoskins, all of Brothead. I celebrated my birthday with a Big Bird party. Those attending were my mommy and daddy, Nanny and Papa Lakes, Papa Cook, Mama Hoskins, Uncle Terry, my aunts Cathy Wright and Janice Adams; my cousins Emily, Amanda, Rachel and Heather and my friends Nancy and Kayla Denny. A special thanks to Amy Powers for videotaping my party and to my Aunt Cathy for making me such a pretty cake. Thanks to everyone for all the nice presents I received. I love you all, Lyndsey.

Vegetable seed given to organizations by CAP

In addition to the families that receive vegetable seed and fertilizer to plant gardens directly from the Christian Appalachian Project (CAP), organizations, in counties where CAP has few or no direct services, receive supplies from CAP for their garden programs.
In addition to the approximately 1,725 families receiving vegetable seed and fertilizer from CAP, local organizations in 15 counties in Kentucky and Tennessee will distribute garden supplies to approximately 1,039 families.

CAP will distribute vegetable seed to families in Casey, Floyd, Garrard, Knott, Jackson, Lawrence, Lincoln, southern Madison, Magoffin, Martin, and Rockcastle counties.
More families will be served by organizations in Breathitt, Carter, Clark, Clay, Estill, Harlan, Laurel, Lee, Monroe, Owsley, Powell, Wayne, Whitley and Wolfe counties in Kentucky and Clay County in Tennessee.
The Garden Program is meant to help families feed themselves, inexpensively. The harvest providethem with a healthy supplement to their diets, which carries them into the fall and winter. Participating families are asked to preserve part of their produce, and are given canning jars and lids, according to need, later in the season.

Among the seeds are green beans, corn, cabbage, cantaloupe, collard, cucumbers, lettuce, carrots, mustard, summer squash, and 50 pounds of seed potatoes.
Open Bass Tournament cancelled
The cancellation of the Lake Cumberland Trust Open Bass Tour-namment, originally scheduled for April 18 at Conley Bottom Boat Dock, was announced today by Lake Cumberland Trust board president Mary Mayhew. According to Ms. Mayhew registration was short of the number needed for the tournament to go forward due to competition from a similar tournament scheduled for the same day on Lake Cumberland.

By Ike Adams

Over the last several days I've had more than a dozen letters and three or four phone calls from long-time readers of this column who are worried about me. They want, in polite terms, to know why the heck I seem to have lost interest in gardening.

For the first time in more than a decade, your newspaper and I failed to run a great seed catalogue scam. It has been pointedly pointed out to me that seed catalogues have not been mentioned at all this winter and that normally I get two or three columns out of that most important subject. People have written to ask whether or not they should go ahead and write for the catalogues themselves because time was running out.

Folks write to ask if my health is okay and whether or not I've become too feeble to till the ground and I've been telling them exactly what I should have put in this space several weeks ago.

Yes, I am going to have a garden and I'm going to try all kinds of new stuff and I'm sorry I really do apologize for the fact that a lot of you aren't lately getting something out of the column that you can actually put to use.

The truth of the matter is that the Seed Catalogue scam is a pretty big undertaking. If you don't have three or four bored adolescents at your beck and whim to lick stamps and fold letters and type out mailing lists over an entire week-end, you can't pull it off.

For those of you just now joining us, the seed catalogue scam involved sending me a couple of stamps and then we'd put you on a mailing list and request that anywhere between 50 and 100 mail order places send you a free catalogue. And my younger kids and a couple of their buddies would get involved in seeing just how much extra mail we could generate for your household.

My kids aren't younger anymore. They don't do work. Beyond negotiating household chores, unless money changes hands. They volunteer only for things that are far more earthshattering than enabling my friends to get a few catalogues. Boy Scouts and Little League and Cheerleading and Band and other stuff that involves selling sugar that they hope I will buy. My kids are very good at that sort of thing except that we don't buy much sugar in our household. Chris has diabetes so we try to keep the place devoid of things that tempt him. That probably makes all of us a little healthier.

Anyway, I'm not in a position to offer the cash compensation for 100 man hours (kid-hours?) that it takes to generate the scam so we let it slide this year. I'm looking into the possibility of having a class at Paint Lick Elementary take over the project in 1994 and we'll keep you posted. In the meantime you'll have to fend for yourself.

But that doesn't mean that gardening has ceased to be my favorite religion. I didn't plant my peas in February this year because I had been forewarned of the blizzard we experienced in mid-March. And I haven't written much about gardening of late because the darn woolly worms have been hogging all the available column space.

Nor have I had much time to get in my seed bed or, for that matter, go walleye fishing, because the job that provides my income has kept me on the road or in an airplane on week-ends when it was actually warm and dry enough to work outside.

I have, however, drained the oil and cleaned out the gas line filters on my Toyota Brite and fired her up a time or two to make sure she's capable of handling the 300 foot fence row where I plan to put Mammoth Melting Sugar, Oregon Sugar Pod, Sugar Daddy and Sugar Snap Peas, hopefully by the time you read this. Ten or Twelve varieties of lettuce will also go in that row along with three or four of onions and radishes, of every size, sort and color.

We have wintered-over kale and spinach already coming on and small turnips. Left last fall, should soon begin producing greens. We've ordered more than a hundred different varieties of things from half a dozen catalogues and we have blanks filled out for at least as many more sources that we will mail as the family budget allows. I'm particularly interested in getting out my order to the Vermont Bean Seed Company, as yet unmailed because Loretta believes that paying we rent is more important.

Over the next several weeks, I will try to avoid politics as much as possible and concentrate at least a portion of the column on things far more important. That's a promise.

If you have gardening tips and secrets that you are willing to share with the world, please send them to my home address and I will see to it that they get in your weekly paper.

In the meantime, if you desire a closer relationship with God, may I suggest that there are few better ways to develop it than nurturing along a vegetable and flower garden. There's an old song with lyrics that go, "I walk through the garden alone, while the dew is still on the roses. And the voice I hear, calling on my ear, the Son of God discloses. He walks with me and He talks with me and He tells me I am His own. The love we share as we linger there; no other has ever known...."

Someone told me the other day that that sounded corny. I don't care. It works for me. And you can send in your gardening tips to Ike Adams, 6945 Highway 52 West, Paint Lick, Kentucky 40461.

Equal opportunity to persons with disabilities

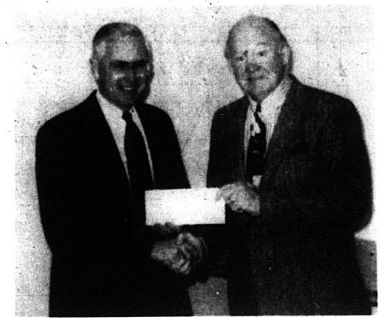

Kentuckians who want to have a say in assuring equal opportunity to persons with disabilities will have a chance to speak out at meetings throughout the state April 12 and 13.

Kentucky is taking a national leadership position in guaranteeing every citizen a fair chance for a good education and job and accessibility to public facilities, said Gov. Brereton C. Jones.

"These public meetings will allow us to advance programs of the Americans With Disabilities Act further with the help of the people who know the problems best," the governor added.

The meeting places will be accessible, interpreters for the deaf and hard of hearing will be available and materials will be in an accessible format.

Come express yourself... What thoughts, concerns or ideas do you have about ADA (Americans with Disabilities Act) Reasonable accommodation; Public accommodation; Employment; Enforcement; Transportation; Communications; Acces-

It's tax time! Uncle Ann is looking for you! Students in Mrs. Jean's Primary Classroom at RES have been learning about the economy and taxes.

Elections for parent members of the 93-94 Roundstone School Council will be conducted at a PTA meeting scheduled for this purpose on Thursday, April 8, beginning at 6:30 p.m. To participate in these elections fully, it is recommended that parent members arrive for the beginning balloting will continue until two parent members are elected. Parents may join the PTA at this meeting just prior to the election.

In Mrs. Renners primary class this week we have been studying neighborhoods. We wrote stories in computer class about a perfect neighborhood. We enjoyed a field trip on Friday. We visited the newspaper office, the courthouse, post office and Rockcastle Manufacturing. We enjoyed lunch at Pizza Hut and on the way back to school we stopped at Dairy Queen for ice cream. We want to thank everyone who took time out from their busy schedule to talk to us.

In math we studied gallons, pints, cups and quarts. We made a gallon robot out of different size paper.

Ms. Jean's class studied time in math. We studied insects and fish. On Friday the class enjoyed making Grasshopper Pie. The children were hesitant to try this as they were afraid the pie contained real grasshoppers. In computer class, we are still working on writing portfolios. We are really looking forward to Spring Break.

Miss Parrett's primary class began our study of spring. All year we have chosen a theme and every subject is correlated with that theme. We talked about seasons, plants and animals that are present in the spring.

In our portfolio we picked out our best pieces and worked on revising them. Our writing skills have changed and blossomed just as flowers blossom in the spring.

World's Fair Day will be coming up soon. The country we chose to study was Mexico. This week we made maracas. A maraca is an instrument played in Mexico.

Our students of the week were Amber Thacker and Tabatha Howland.

Mrs. Burdett's primary class has been reading Peter Rabbit and Owl Moon. We made diagrams of Mr. McGregor's garden and Peter's home. With Owl Moon, we studied similarities and also discussed the parts of the book, such as author, publisher, and illustrator.

A special thank you to Cobb for driving us around all day.

The reward for all their hard work.

The class gets to shop for items after paying out taxes.

Tiger Pause

Rest and relaxation was not a part of our teachers' weekly lesson plans, as hoped. With spring break being cut short, due to snow and flu, our students and teachers will enjoy only two days (April 1-2) mini-vacation this week.

The faculty and staff would like to thank Mrs. Caroline Graves, our Economic Education Advocate, for the breakfast desserts provided Friday morning. This was to show appreciation to those teachers who have implemented economic education in their curriculum.

Special Note:

Parents who are members of Brodhead Elementary School PTA may vote to elect parent members to the School Based Decision Making Council on Thursday, April 15 at 7 p.m. in the school cafeteria. Parents may nominate themselves or another parent member. Nominations shall be made in writing and submitted to the principal five (5) days prior to April 15. Parents or legal guardians of students enrolled at Brodhead Elementary School who have questions regarding service on the school council should direct those inquiries to the principal's office.

Our 8th graders enjoyed their visit to RCHS. The students met with RCHS teachers who gave a brief synopsis of the classes they teach and our students enjoyed listening to RCHS students' feelings about their school. We want to thank Ronnie Cash, Mrs. Connie Hamm, Jim Cox and Mrs. Betty Conley for being so helpful and welcoming to our students.

The April Calendar of events will be coming home with the students this week. Please look for this communication which is provided to help parents plan ahead for important events of our school.

Our faculty will be wearing blue ribbons the week of April 4-8 in recognition of National Child Abuse Prevention. We want to thank our PTA for sponsoring this event. Join with us... we must protect our most precious gift of all... our children. Parent Helpline: 1-800-412-9251, Child Abuse Hotline: 1-800-752-6200.

Our attendance has begun to stabilize, however, chicken pox has been the latest culprit. Please continue to encourage good attendance. Radio cassette players will be given at the next Awards Assembly, April 30. Our students will enjoy a performance by the Castle Chorus, April 7 at 1:15. Our own Showstoppers will give an afternoon performance, April 13 at 2 p.m. and an evening performance at 7 p.m.

The 4-H Demonstration Contest will be held at L.E.S. Tuesday, April 13.

The SBDM Council will meet Tuesday, April 6, in the school cafeteria.

Don't forget the Alumni Banquet,

Saturday, April 10 at 7 p.m. Call for reservations, 758-8512.

The deadline date for picture proofs is Monday, April 5.

Mrs. Pam Martin, annual sponsor, announces that Annual sales will begin April 7. They will be sold on a first-come-first-served basis and the cost is $13. We want to thank Mrs. Martin for all the extra time she devotes toward the publication of our newsletter.

Remember to set your clocks ahead one hour Saturday night before retiring, as this is the date for changing to daylight savings time.

Livingston Link

The Livingston Elementary Gymnasium was alive with budding young scientists on Thursday, March 19th, on this day the seventh and eighth graders had their science projects on display for the L.E.S. students and community.

The projects addressed many topics from which soap destroys the most bacteria to which carbonated beverage produces the most gas, of which traits are most common, dominate or recessive.

More than anything and regardless of the topic, the projects demonstrate the excitement of scientific inquiry. Each project set out an hypothesis and explained the methods used to test it, as well as the results. The projects also explained why the result was different from the hypothesis if such was the case.

All of our blue ribbon winners participated in the county Science Fair. All of these students also received blue ribbons and advanced to the science fair at Cumberland College to be held April 7th.

School winners and their projects were as follows:

Blue Ribbons

Sharon Hensley and Susie Carpenter - Bacteria vs. Dial Soap
Jesse Rountree, Evelyn Scalf, Jessica Horne - Batteries and Motors
Greta Norman, Brandi Sexton, Crystal Lear - How Do Crystals Form?

Lillian Kuntz - The Effects of Total Darkness on Goldfish

10 ACRES, MORE OR LESS

Saturday, APRIL 10, 1993 AT 1:30 p.m.

Woodland Drive, Mt. Vernon, Kentucky

Location: Near Rockcastle County High School and the New 461 By-Pass. Watch for Auction Signs.

Since plans have changed to build the new building on the property, the Church has authorized our firm to sell the property for the absolute high dollar. The property will be offered in tracts, combination, and as a whole to reflect the most favorable results.

- Tract 1: 100x181 Lot
- Tract 2: 100x180 Lot
- Tract 3: 90x180 Lot
- Tract 4: 91.28 x 100 lot
- Tract 5: Measures approximately 173 x 150. This tract has in place a good concrete foundation which you can build on. This foundation would be ideal to build a church, apartments, storage or etc.
- Tract 6: Measures approximately 82x100.
- Tract 7, 8, 9 and 10: Each measures approximately 80x180.
- Tract 11: Located directly behind Tracts 5, 7, 8, 9 and 10 and contains 3.703 acres.
- Tract 12: 2.779 acres, located behind Tracts 1, 2 and 3.

When combined, there is 9.79 acres.

Auctioneer's Note: All of the tracts have city water and sewer available and all of the tracts front on Woodland Avenue with the exception of Tract 5.

Lots in the city limits of Mt. Vernon are extremely scarce. If you are looking for a nice lot with city water and sewer to build, be sure to attend this auction on Saturday, April 10th at 1:30 p.m.

Announcements day of sale take precedence over printed matter.

Ms. Parkerson's and Ms. Alexander's kindergarten classes are studying about Mexico and Australia. Last week, Betty Jo McKay came to share her experiences from her trip to Australia with them. Thank you, Ms. Betty Jo. The classes are also studying the letter 'A' and the number 18.

Ms. Carter's primary class is also studying about Australia. They are doing a unit called "Meet an Australian." They were also invited to hear Ms. Betty Jo in the library. Some winners in the class are: Last week's olympics winner - Lauren Clontz, author of the week; Jon Bradley; Illustrator of the Week - Ashley Hobbs. This week's olympics winners are: Summer Owens, Ashley Hobbs, Jacob Taylor and Jon Bradley. Great teamwork! The class would like to thank Mrs. Nora Dewit for reading to them. Parents are needed to help with the Spring Festival, April 9. Welcome back, Tava Robinson!

Ms. Smith's class would like to welcome Mrs. Tracy Lewis, their student teacher. Their Student of the Week is John Taylor. Pets are the theme of their connections study. They really enjoyed their trip to the Richmond Mall Pet Peddlers and the movie, "Homeward Bound." What a great experience. They are focusing on Australia in their world study.

Ms. Vanzant's students have been writing riddles and working on acronyms. They enjoyed the selection of books by the author, Barry Rudner at MVES on March 4. Alicia Pugh was Student of the Week for March 8-12.

Brittani Nolan is Student of the Week for March 15-19. Jessica Riddle was selected to receive an award ribbon for the Kiri's Olympics for the best response on the math activity. Joshua Cromer was selected as the winner for the writing activity. On March 17, the homework class was rewarded for ten days perfect attendance with a trip to Pizza Hut. In Connections, students have been studying, "The Human Body and Its System." They made sculptural designs for their muscles and mazes for the digestive system. Each student made a life size outline of their body and placed various organs in their proper places.

The most recent Student of the Week is Wendy West. Winners of the Olympics Group Activity this week are Jessica Denny, Sheena Fry, Shaketa Kidwell, and Elisha Coffey. In Connections, they are presently working on geography terms. Mrs. Pensol helped their cluster make a large map of landscapes and bodies of water.

Ms. Hale's Challenge students in grades 4, 6, and 7 have completed a 2-week poetry performance workshop with Allan Wolf and Jim Navé. The workshop culminated with a presentation of poetry for the students, parents, fellow classmates, and other guests. John Love's class performed "Wynken, Blynken, and Nod," by Eugene Field; Ms. Susan Reed's class presented "Little Orphan Annie," by James Whitcomb Riley; "Elmo the Lity, Bity Bird," by Allan Wolf was performed by Mrs. Paula Clark's students and Harold Woodall's group presented "The Base Stealer," by Robert Francis. Mat. Betty Henderson's 7th grade students performed six different poems.

Mr. Davidson's class has gone to Pizza Hut three times. They are learning French. They had a guest come to their room and talk about France.

In Mr. Coffey's class, 7B will be starting the Stock Market game. The 8th graders visited RCHS on Monday, March 22. They toured the building and learned about all the class offerings that they will have to choose from when they register on April 5 for high school classes.

In Ms. Abney's class, Science Fair winners include: Blue Ribbons - Jesse Bugg, Becky Lawhorn, Jessica Rose. They will visit Cumberland College on April 17 with their entries. Red Ribbon winners were Matt Chaliff, Bonnie Grace, and Dana Reynolds. Kiri's Olympics winners were Amanda McClure and David Coffey.

After school enrichment classes begin April 5th. Your child should bring home a paper saying whether he/she was able to get the class of his/her choice. If your child does not bring a notice home, that means that the class or classes chosen were full.

This work is presently displayed in the classrooms.

Ms. Adams' Connections class is studying landforms. In language arts, the theme is hot air balloons and kites. Michael Mills and Seth Halford are celebrating birthdays on the 25th and 27th. Kiri's olympics winners are Michael Reed, Jamie Weaver, Chris Graves and Amanda Booth. Congratulations! Student of the Week is Amanda Booth.

Ms. Roark's class is reading "Clifford Went to the Circus." Their Kiri's Olympics winners are Chris Stanley, Jeremy Bowman, Chad Francisco, Jonathan Baldwin, and Shawn Cloud.

Ms. Cameron's Primary class is still working on their "Pet" unit. Their leaders for the week are Shay Barnett and Chris McGuire. Michael Howard has a birthday. The Prince candidate, John Bray, is from their room.

Ms. DeBorde's class is pleased to welcome Tava Robinson back to their class. She has been in the hospital for the past 4 months following a car accident. They have been studying the weather. Their Performance Events Kiri's Olympics group winners are:

Changes in our Schools

A Commentary

Kentucky couldn't afford to wait for education reform

By Robert F. Sexton

Executive Director, The Prichard Committee

In 1990 a wise friend offered some valuable advice as the Kentucky Education Reform Act's journey toward implementation began. He warned us not to assume people knew why Kentucky's schools needed to be radically reformed.

"Kentuckians may have enacted a massive solution for a problem they don't know they have," he opined.

Heeding this advice, let's go back to some basics. Why is this revolutionary transformation of Kentucky schools necessary? Why are we doing something no generation of Kentuckians has tried to do before?

The simplest answer starts with the 1989 Kentucky Supreme Court decision that found Kentucky's "entire system of common schools" - all the laws, regulations and funding formulas - to be unconstitutional.

All Kentucky children have the right to an adequate and uniform education, no matter where they live, the court declared, and Kentucky's school system hasn't provided it. In effect, the court ordered the General Assembly to rebuild Kentucky schools and to rewrite all the laws about schools. The legislature did this when they passed the 1990 Kentucky Education Reform Act.

It had become clear by the early '80s that America's economic competitiveness, productivity growth and the creation of high-paying jobs had fallen behind its foreign competition. The nation, it was said, needed to start "thinking for a living" with strong minds inventing new products.

American schools, by international standards, weren't preparing those minds. The strongest language came from the Reagan administration's report, "A Nation at Risk." That report said that if a foreign power had done to American schools what Americans had done to themselves, it would be considered an act of war.

While education was becoming a national cause, statistics showed Kentucky to be perilously close to the national educational and economic cellar. Kentucky had the nation's least educated work force, since only 53 percent of all adult Kentuckians had a high school diploma. About 67 percent of Kentucky's 18-year-olds graduated from high school, 38th in the nation.

Kentucky ranked 49th in adult population with college degrees; 46th in college attendance; and first in adult illiteracy. School spending was far below most states, ranking from 41st to 46th by various measures; no Kentucky school district (not even the "wealthiest") was funded at the national average, about $4,000 per student.

Poor education performance mirrored other measures of social well being. Twenty percent of Kentucky's children lived in poverty, seventh highest in the nation; Kentucky ranked 42nd (lowest) in per capita income; third in teen pregnancy; seventh in unemployment.

Problems also appeared in other areas. A profound demographic shift was, and is, at work that will profoundly shape our future. Kentucky's population is growing old, fast. For example, in 1985 there were 97,105 Kentuckians over 80 years of age; by 2000 there will be 175,812.

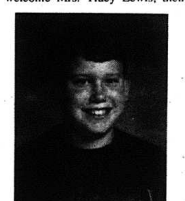

This smaller work force must be much more productive than it is now, but one-third begins life under such disadvantages that they will not be able to acquire the skills they need to contribute to their own support, much less the support of the retired generation.

Given the critical contribution these young people must make to Kentucky's future, their development has to be our top priority. So the Kentucky Education Reform Act grew up from alarm about the quality of education for Kentucky children and the conviction that poor economic conditions and education were linked. That hasn't changed.

Kentuckians throughout the 1980s said better schools and better jobs were their top priorities. They also told pollsters they were willing to pay more for schools if they were shown that Kentucky schools would improve. With the reform act Kentuckians saw an intolerable situation leading to a bleak future and decided to do something about it.

Now Kentucky children have that reform in law; it's time to see it in the classrooms.

Chad Silvers, a seventh grade student at Mt. Vernon Elementary School, has made it to the state finals in the National Geography Bee! Chad will compete with the top 100 students across the state of Kentucky on Friday, April 2nd. Good Luck, Chad!!

1989 PROMISED		1990-1993 ACTED
To Post a List of duties of County Judge Executive in Judge's office, along with the ACTION PLAN.	YES	A limited poster continues to be displayed in the judge's office containing all the information promised.
1989 ACTION PLAN Jobs: I know first hand the employment needs of Rockcastle County. At age 16, I left the state to find a job. Then, as an 18 year old, I've 50 miles a day to work. I will, therefore, fight a vigorous day-to-day battle to recruit jobs and to maintain the jobs we now have.	YES	Supported Development at Renton Valley, Rockcastle Mt. and the new Industrial Park. Employment grew by approximately 1700 employees during the period.
Good Treatment - None of us should have to face the pangs of being ignored, of seeing our ideas discounted, or of having our needs considered unimportant. Each of us deserves to have a voice to be given special consideration and to be heard and recognized. Since the county is yours, the Judge Executive is to serve you.	YES	Encouraged through media each individual to visit court meetings and to call the judge with ideas. Developed quarterly work priorities, requested individuals to add to the work list, and to question and comment on the work list. Earned over $95,000 interest income during the first three years. This accrued to each of us.
Water - A large percentage of families in Rockcastle County have no potable water. Knowing firsthand the hardships of not having enough water, I intend to attack this problem immediately and forcefully if I am elected.	YES	Three Projects have been funded at approximately 1.5 million dollars. Two are nearly complete. A fourth project, that includes the rest of the county, has been submitted for funding at $1,540,000.
Taxes - I am elected in this fall's general election. I will get the most for your tax dollar, seek alternative funding for eligible items and mind the treasury on a daily basis.	YES	The tax rate has been set at the same amount for each of the three years - 8.4¢. Alternative funding has been received in the amount of $4,842,446. When the tax base is limited, competing for alternative funding makes good sense.
Economic Development - Encouragers that introduce new dollars into the county allow for a scope of development. The expansion at Renton Valley will take the thousands of cars that pass on I-75 daily bringing in new money. The development of US 150 will promote buying along that corridor. Promoting regeneration of businesses to re-populate the 100,000 plus population South and the 100,000 population North, both less than an hour away, will bring in new dollars. Leadership can tackle this.	YES	Submitted a funding proposal to fund roads, water, sewer and site work on the Rockcastle Industrial Park II. Through a cooperative agreement with Jackson County, sought $250,000 for Rockcastle Mt. County. Established tourist commission to enhance the tourist business. Hosted meeting along with Lincoln County, Judge with speaker of Kentucky House, representatives, senators, judges, mayors on US 150 "improvement". The project is now in the highway plan.
Community Development - Encouraging the individual to produce by opening avenues for developing initiatives any community. Assisting organizations to build, to develop, to expand, to do better to serve more, promotes the common good and results in community development. This should be the commitment of any leader.	YES	Hosted Three Conferences - the Rockcastle County tourism that brought experts from across the State on business development, tourism and housing. These reached over 300 Rockcastle Countians. Up-to-date information has been maintained in the judge's offices on business, tourism and housing. Statewide report of cooperation that transpired the Rockcastle County Hospital expansion. Increased local funding for local ambulance service by 27%.
Recreation At any age, a healthy body increases the ability to reason and to produce. The strengthening of youth through activities improves the body and enhances the chances for success later in life. As Judge Executive, I will support the development of recreational areas throughout the county. Further, I will encourage the development of life league soccer.	YES	Worked with Little League toward getting an outdoor facility in or near Mt. Vernon. Applied for funds for new field at Bradwell that will serve baseball and/or soccer. This was completed in 1993. Have worked with Rockcastle River Rebirth to secure recreational funding for Livingston area. Currently evaluating recreation needs possibilities in northern section of the county. Statewide economic development guidelines indicate that we need recreation area.
Fire Protection A ready response to fire hazards saves property and lives. Also lowers insurance rates. I will support the various fire departments if elected.	YES	I have provided local or area development funds for each of the three fire departments.
All have been possible due to cooperation and hard work on the part of a lot of people. I am appreciative and thankful.
...grateful for your friendship, vote and assistance Roland

Roundstone Elementary has a school newspaper entitled the RES Press. The students laid out and wrote their own news, sports, and now ads to help defray their costs for the newspaper production. Local Two-Step Club entertains patients at Rockcastle Hospital

The Cherokee Kickers, a local two-step dance club, spent last Saturday afternoon entertaining patients at the Rockcastle County Hospital.

They performed a variety of dances with Achy Breaky, Shotgun, Sweetheart Schottische and the Bird Dance being the crowd-pleasing dances.

This club was formed because some local people wanted to have a place to dance and be able to have a place to dance which would not be a bar scene. They can also bring their teen-age children and get them in the program to learn to dance. An immediate goal of the club is to obtain their own dance hall right here in Rockcastle County.

This dance club has only been together since September and is working at a rapid pace. It has November and holds dances at any building they can find.

In the past, they have entertained at the Snowden Nursing Home in Hoosier and two times at the Protestant Health Center in Corbin.

If you would like a demo team to participate at your activity or if you would like information concerning this dance club, contact Loretta Rogers at (606) 256-5585 or Ms. Sarah Rush at (606) 379-2655.

Entertaining patients at the Rockcastle County Hospital last Saturday were the Cherokee Kickers. Members of the group who participated were Chief Kicker Ted Hart and Emma Hart.

Help Make Things Better!
ELECT WILLIAM K. BULLEN
 Magistrate from the Fourth District

Dear Citizens of the Fourth District:
 I am finding strong agreement among the people of our District that we need to begin thinking more about the future of our County. We must have elected officials who can plan, identify the long-range needs of our people, and secure the sound financial resources necessary for putting these plans in action. We need to build a brighter future for all of our citizens, especially our young people. I want to share with you five of my top priorities for our District and County.

- Develop a supervised Youth Center that provides wholesome sports, recreation, and social activities for our young people.
- Design a Comprehensive Road Plan that will facilitate transportation in our area. We do not need to drive ten miles to actually go only two. A comprehensive road plan would straighten and interconnect roads to speed transportation. This would also help reduce the number of automobile accidents and personal injuries.
- Target and attract High Technology Jobs to our District and County. We need to educate our young people for these desirable jobs that pay salaries on which they can live and raise families. We need to aspire to more than minimum wage jobs for our people.
- Work with our Universities and Department of Agriculture to develop Programs to increase farm income. The Dean of the College of Agriculture at the University of Kentucky has issued a report suggesting that the best way to do this is by attracting food packaging industries. Jobs related to these industries tend to raise farm income and spin-off related high technology jobs.
- Build Volunteer Fire Department for our District. Grants are available for a building and a fire truck. I have made arrangements to get training for volunteer firemen. This action would save approximately 30% on home owner insurance for persons in the service area covered by this volunteer department.

I know these goals can be achieved. We must, though, begin today to build a better future for our citizens. Thank you for your support.

Respectfully yours,
 William K. Bullen

EKU to host 2nd annual Kentucky conference on at-risk students

The needs of at-risk students in Kentucky schools will be addressed at a July event co-sponsored and hosted by Eastern Kentucky University.

The second annual "Kentucky Conference on At-Risk Students," a professional development and instructional leadership conference geared to all grade levels, will be held at EKU's Perkins Building Friday, July 16 from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Besides Eastern's Destination Graduation program, sponsors are Forward in the Fifth and the Estill, Rockcastle and Jackson county school systems.

Area school districts, including Rockcastle County, have been invited to send teachers and administrators to the event, which is broken down into three grade levels: primary administrators and teachers K-4, intermediate administrators and teachers 5-8, and secondary administrators and teachers 9-12.

"The conference purpose is twofold," said Ginny Eager, director of Forward in the Fifth, a Beta-based organization formed to advance education in the Fifth Congressional District. "We want to increase awareness and offer suggestions of different ways to effectively reach these students at all grade levels."

A national expert on at-risk students will address each group.

The Estill, Rockcastle and Jackson county school systems participate in Eastern's Destination Graduation Program, which combines a six-week summer school project with tutoring throughout the school year by ECU students from the respective counties. The goal of the program is to keep students in school and make them aware of various career oppor-ners are Brigett Vanwinkle, Mary Hensley, Jimmy Gay, and Josh Hale. Their Student of the Week is Jimmy Gay. The class would like to congratulate Josh Hale for being the first place stage winner in the "Color Me Beautiful" Poster Contest. His poster was chosen as the best one expressing the theme, "The Wonderful World Where Everyone Is Different." His prize includes an expense paid trip to Frankfort for Josh, his parents, teacher and principal. While in Frankfort, they will attend an awards ceremony where Josh will be presented with a cash award of $250, a trophy and Certificate of Achievement. Congratulations, Josh!

Ms. McQuary's class is studying the history of Africa in Social Studies. They have had several days of perfect attendance. The faculty gave Ms. McQuary a baby shower. Hi, Ella! Chris Foster won the "Robot" for perfect attendance. Mr. Alexander's class (next door) made Ms. McQuary's class very hungry when they made home-made ice cream. Dee Dee Clark and Chad Allen won for Queen and King candidates in their class, but lost out to Tiffany McClure and Andy Hale. Congratulations, Tiffany and Andy. Ms. McQuary will be back after Spring Break.

ELECT
 Wanda Jean Bullock CHATTELLE
 Circuit Court Clerk

To the Citizens of Rockcastle County.

As I travel and talk with the people of Rockcastle County, it is easy to sense a negative attitude toward our justice system as a whole. Since any court action begins in the Circuit Court Clerk's office, it is very important to elect a clerk with the ability to work with our judges, lawyers, and families involved. One's first impression of our justice system can go a long way in reshaping our attitudes in the future. Knowing that regardless of who you are, you will be treated in an equal and fair manner, can help create a positive outlook of our justice system.

Rockcastle County businesses invited to UK employment conference

Rockcastle County businesses are invited to participate in a first-ever University of Kentucky Employment Conference April 29 in UK's Memorial Coliseum.

The conference is being co-sponsored by the University's Career Center in cooperation with the Lexington Herald-Leader.

"It is our hope that this conference will provide a common ground for Kentucky employers in education, government, social service, health and private industries to discuss current and future opportunities with job seekers throughout the state," said Drema Howard, associate director, UK Career Center and conference chair.

In addition, agencies providing free services to job seekers will be available to answer questions, Howard said.

About 50 booths representing organizations ranging from computer manufacturers, hospitals, the hospitality industry, higher education and government are expected to set up at the "networking fair," Howard said.

In addition to interacting with their colleagues from around the state, Rockcastle County employers will have the opportunity to attend morning workshops on the American Disabilities Act, total quality management, helping plateaued employees, tapping Kentucky's international labor force, and interview strategies for the 90s.

The display booths will be set up in Memorial Coliseum from 1-4 p.m. April 29. Tables and material to set up semi-private interview booths will be provided at the fair.

A registration fee for the conference will include printed promotional and advertising material which will be distributed statewide and attendance at all conference sessions.

Local residents part of growing paralegal program at EKU

As society grows more complex, so does the need for legal assistance. Recognizing that, two Rockcastle County residents are among over 200 students enrolled in Eastern Kentucky University's paralegal program, which offers a bachelor's degree in paralegal science and an associate degree in paralegal studies.

The students are: Shelley Lane Raines and Kathy Robinson. The number of students has steadily grown since Eastern established the state's first program in 1976. It was also the state's first program to be approved by the American Bar Association.

According to Dr. Jim McCord, director of EKU's paralegal program, the U.S. Department of Labor has identified the paralegal profession as one of the fastest growing fields of the '90s.

"We have found that more than 90 percent of our people, within three months of graduation, find a job or go to graduate school," McCord said. "It's fair to say that, during the recession, we've seen a decline in the placement rate, but we're beginning to see some indications that demand is increasing again."

Tandy technology scholars declares classroom champions

Tandy Technology Scholars, a program to recognize academic excellence specifically in the areas of mathematics, science and computer science, announced awards today totaling $350,000. This is the fourth year of the awards to high school teachers and graduating seniors.

One hundred teachers will receive $2,500 each, and 100 students will receive cash scholarships of $1,000 each. These national finalists were proclaimed "Champions of the Classroom" at a news conference April 2 at the National Science Teachers Association Convention in Kansas City, MO.

The Tandy Technology Scholars program is open to students and teachers in accredited high schools throughout the United States. The National Finalist were selected by a panel of educators and approved by the National Advisory Council.

Outstanding math/science/computer science student scholar nominee (certificate only) from Rockcastle County High School was Marilyn Elaine Coffey.

Trent Donnell Clark, Amy Yvonne Sears and Susan Lynn Whitt, also RCHS students, were in the top 2 percent academic nominees (certificate only).

Sexually abused children victimized by inadequate systems of care

Sexually abused children in Kentucky are often doubly victimized by inadequate systems of care, according to a task force report released yesterday, according to a story in the Lexington Herald-Leader.

Although reported cases quadrupled from 1981 to 1992, child sexual abuse is "one of Kentucky's most hidden and seldom-discussed social problems," the report said.

It cited an institutional failure in Kentucky to take victims seriously and meet their needs quickly.

It also said effectiveness of protection depends on where a child lives; the public is unaware of the monetary costs of abuse; and abusers often are not seriously punished.

The report was released by the Task Force on Child Sexual Abuse, appointed by Attorney General Chris Gorman.

Gorman said through a spokesman that copies were given to his counterparts yesterday at the National Association of Attorneys General in Washington.

"After eight months of study and hearings, the task force concluded that this under-reported crime occurs without regard to race, gender, family income or geographic location."

This Old House

By: Ruby Marler Alcorn

Rocksprings School was built in the early 1800's. The school was a one room building with one door, and four windows on each side. There were wooden shutters by each window. Rocksprings School was made of logs with weather boarding on the outside.

Inside the school house were three rows of wooden benches for the children to sit on. On the front wall, was a big blackboard, that the teacher used for each child's work. There was only one teacher for all the grades in the school which were 1 through 8. When it was time for school to begin, the teacher called one class at a time. The children came and sat on a big bench. Then the teacher called them by name to the big blackboard to do their work. When all the children were done, they went back to their seats.

My name is Ruby Marler Alcorn and I went to Rocksprings School. My classmates were Darell Cress, Sally Owens, Delora Noe, Kenneth Bradley, Jewell Bradley, Fanny Cress and Jack Noe. These are just a few that I remember. The teacher that I liked the most was Earnest Bullock. He taught at Rocksprings School for many years. He was the kind of person that wanted all his pupils to do their best.

The school is still standing but in bad shape, as you can see from the picture, however my happy memories of this place will never fade.

"Hands of "Healing" is theme of soil and water stewardship week

Emphasizing that the greatest influence on the environment comes from individual doing ordinary, thoughtful tasks in their neighborhoods, the Rockcastle County Soil Conservation District is encouraging individuals and local school, camp, church and organization leaders to join the nationwide observance of Soil and Water Stewardship Week, April 25 - May 2, 1993.

The conservation district, which works throughout the year on soil and water conservation measures, is providing literature, educational materials and speakers encourage the wise use of natural resources through the annual week-long observance.

The Rockcastle Soil Conservation District activities planned to observe this week are, to sponsor a coloring contest for all 2nd graders. We also have 2,000 white pine seedlings to give out to 3rd, 4th and 5th graders and another 2,000 more to give out to the general public. We also have church programs to give to all the churches in the community. The seedlings and church programs are now available to give out at the district office. Anyone interested in these can pick them up at the district office.

Roy Brown, chairperson of the Rockcastle County District, said he hopes Stewardship Week will challenge individuals to begin, or continue, individual conservation actions that heal the area in which they live. "The fact that you may now run less water to brush your teeth is just as important to our environment as a builder installing sediment control basins in a major urban development. Both require individual action... both (Cont. to A14)

Performance Assessment Tests were given at RCHS; above, Scott Everett, Trish Goforth, James Himes and Melinda Dykes put their heads together to come up with a solution to the problem given them during the Performance Assessment Test. Their task, which required math tools and knowledge, was to build a ramp which could not exceed a four degree grade. Below Dale Whitaker, guidance counselor, looks on as Amy Sears, Jason VanWinkle and Sarah Wilson attempt to create a clay sculpture of themselves. The test (part of KERA) is given to seniors across Kentucky to evaluate not only knowledge, but also their abilities to brainstorm and work as a team.

Workshop at Berea College

A series of Saturday morning workshops designed to help women improve their job search skills is scheduled at Berea College. Knowing Yourself: A Workshop in Self-Assessment will be the topic of a session on April 3. Determining individual marketable skills will be the major focus of the program.

The April 24 workshop will help define and create realistic goals for job success; a session on resume writing is scheduled for May 8, and on May 15, skills needed for a successful job interview will be reviewed.

All workshops will be conducted in the New Opportunity School of Office, located at 2313 Chestnut Street in Berea, from 9 a.m. - noon. They're open to women living in Madison, Rockcastle, Estill, Garrard and Jackson Counties at a cost of $3 for materials. Enrollment is limited to 14 per workshop.

The New Opportunity School also is organizing the Career Success League, which will serve as a support group for women in these communities who are seeking employment. League meetings will be held in the New Opportunity School office on the first and third Tuesdays from 5:30 - 6:30 p.m. Planned meetings are: on April 6, an introduction to the league; April 20, Caroline Francis, New Opportunity School counselor, will discuss "Presenting a Polished Image," and, on May 4, Gerry Hyde, director of Olsten Temporary Services, will answer questions about temporary employment opportunities.

Individuals who are interested in Cook those hamburgers! and wash your hands!

A recent outbreak of food poisoning from hamburgers sold at a western fast food restaurant chain focused a lot of media attention on foodborne illnesses, but preventing future outbreaks is relatively simple.

Adequate cooking of the hamburger meat and good hygiene practices are really all that's needed to prevent most cases of food poisoning from hamburger, said Joe O'Leary, Extension microbiologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

O'Leary told county extension agents attending a food safety symposium in Lexington that 99 percent of food poisoning cases are preventable by simply taking proper care at the preparation stage. "Adequate heat processing or cooking of any food should easily elimi-

Ten Free Shade Trees

Ten free shade trees will be given to each person who joins the National Arbor Day Foundation during April 1993.

The free trees are part of the non-profit Foundation's Trees for America campaign.

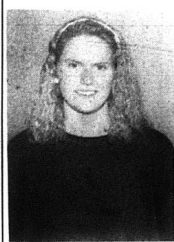

The ten shade trees are Red Oak, Weeping Willow, Sugar Maple, Green Ash, Thornless Honeylocust, Pin Oak, River Birch, Tuliptree, Silver Maple, and Red Maple.

These trees were selected to provide shade and beauty, and a variety of forms, leaf shapes, and fall colors. John Rosenow, the Foundation's executive director, said.

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting in April or May with enclosed planting instructions. The six to twelve inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge.

Members also receive a subscription to the Foundation's "Arbor Day" news magazine, The Tree Book with information about tree planting and care, and a membership card.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, send a $10 membership contribution to Shade Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by April 30, 1993.

Cattle producers urged to be prepared to prevent grass tetany

By: Tom Mills
County Extension Agent
for Agriculture

The welcome warmth of spring's arrival can mean disaster for cattle producers. Grass tetany, a syndrome that arrives each year when pastures are growing fast, is a killer of cattle.

Grass tetany results from a magnesium deficiency in cattle grazing lush, fast-growing grasses. Ironically, better cattle producers are more likely to have cows that develop the disease than less conscientious cattle producers.

Cattle producers who fertilize their pastures will run a higher risk of having their cows suffer from grass tetany. Because the soil is richer in nitrogen, the grass grows more quickly and the lush, spring growth may contain too little magnesium. In addition, those same cattle producers are likely to have their cows calving earlier in the spring, which further adds to their risk. Cows are more susceptible to grass tetany at calving and while they are nursing young calves. The more robust their calves and the more milk they produce, the greater the risk of developing grass tetany.

Fescue pastures low in endophyte may present a greater risk than those higher, even though the level of magnesium is the same. Cattle prefer the taste of low endophyte fescue and eat more of it - and less of other feeds higher in magnesium.

Symptoms of grass tetany include rapid labored breathing, staggering, excitability and prostration. Cows showing these symptoms need veterinary assistance at once.

Cattle producers can help prevent the syndrome by limiting the time cows graze fast growing pastures. They should turn cows out for short periods of time at first; then increase the time they are out on pasture. Producers also should feed the best feed they have when pastures are growing up in the spring so that the cows will eat less of the grass and more of the magnesium-rich feeds.

Producers should consider feeding magnesium supplements. This can be as magnesium mineral mixes, supplement blocks or homemade mixes using magnesium oxide trace mineral salt and dry molasses. Since magnesium oxide is bitter to animals, some type carrier or force feeding will be required to get one ounce per head per day consumption. For further information, contact the Extension Office.

Miserable weather causes widespread calf losses

Wet conditions and unseasonably cold weather caused abnormally high calf losses across much of Kentucky.

"The wet environment aggravated the impact of the wind chill," said Duane Miksch, Extension veterinarian with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. "Rain, snow and humidity kept things wet, and wind blowing across moist surfaces compounded the effects of the cold."

"We also had a great deal of mud because the ground wasn't frozen," he added. "Mud transfers bacteria, increasing the likelihood of infection."

Miksch said producers lost calves up to a couple of weeks old as well as those stillborn.

"The potential value of each lost calf is $350-$400," said Lee Meyer, Extension Agricultural Economist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. "This figure is based on a 450-pound calf sold this fall."

Miksch advised producers to be sure calves have colostrum immediately after birth to reduce the likelihood of more losses this season.

"Colostrum within two hours of birth is much better than 10 hours later, because calves lose their ability to absorb it," Miksch said. "By the time a calf is 12 hours old, it has lost half its ability to absorb colostrum. A calf should have consumed one gallon by the time it's 12 hours old."

"Heat is also important. Be sure to provide heat when needed to get the newborn calf's body temperature up," Miksch said.

Producers should move cattle that have not calved to clean, firm sod and have a clean, bedded stall available in case of bad weather.

Meyer said calf losses will affect some management decisions, including resources use, feed quality, and breeding program.

"Producers will need to decide how to use resources, either buying baby calves or older calves," he explained. "A non-lactating cow won't clear as high a quality of feed. Producers need to think about getting cows in good condition for breeding this summer."

Several factors likely contributed to abnormally calf deaths this year, according to Miksch.

"One factor is that more calves were born earlier in the winter," he said. "We had a mild winter and an early spring last year. As a result, many cows were bred back earlier."

"We're also seeing more Brahman influence in cattle," Miksch added. "Studies show that every percent of Brahman influence lowers a newborn calf's ability to withstand wind chill."

Although pasture conditions were good, hay harvesting conditions were lousy. So hay quality was down, he said.

"Cows eating inferior quality hay often produce less vigorous calves that don't have the desire to get up and nurse," Miksch explained. "The cow's milk flow might be reduced. In addition, weak calves might not take all the milk that's available to them."

A mineral deficiency contributed to some calf losses, according to Miksch.

"Some areas of Kentucky are deficient in selenium, an essential mineral," he said. "Some calves taken to diagnostic labs had evidence of white muscle disease, which indicates a selenium deficiency."

"People who lose calves should seek a definitive diagnosis beginning with the first calf lost and each succeeding loss," Miksch added. "Send the fresh, untreated calves to the animal disease diagnostic lab. And be sure to send some fresh afterbirth; this is an important diagnostic tool."

example The Soil Survey of Laurel and Rockcastle Counties, Kentucky.

"When you think of 'survey,' what probably comes to mind is a crew of people using technical equipment to mark the boundaries between separate properties or you recall a pre-presidential occupation of George Washington.

So, how does a soil survey compare to a land survey? The survey that separates the property of landowners is primarily concerned with unadorned space or acreage. Soil Survey crews or parties point out the type or quality of the acreage."

Soil scientists, members of a Soil Survey party, are experts in measuring (1) for "lay" of the land; (2) the lands suitability for various uses (growing plants, supporting structures, aesthetic, etc.); (3) and the unseen characteristics of a lands 3rd dimension (not observed by the other survey crews), the underground part or more properly, the soil resource.

What does a Soil Survey consist of? About half of it is maps covering all the acreage within the county boundaries. The other half is text, illustrations, and tables that explain and expand upon the information that is presented in the maps.

Why make a Soil Survey? The two most important resources in this country are the land and its people. There is an economic bond between the land and the people, agriculture. In agriculture the people provide the labor to work upon the capital resource, the land.

People are infinitely adaptable to differing lands and the changing supply of resources. The land though, is not an adaptable entity.

Once a change occurs on the landscape, it is usually irreversible. It is important, therefore, to provide information to the land user about possible consequences of this persons labor upon the land. This is not the only purpose of Soil Surveys, but is also to bring force behind county clerk's intention to provide Soil Survey to all its people.

Turkey hunting permits available in early April

Wild turkey hunting permits will be available from county court clerk offices throughout the state the first week in April, according to officials with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR).

"We expect delivery in Frankfort from the license contractor March 31st, and intend to distribute the permits as fast as humanly possible to all 120 counties," said Jeff Kays, licensing section supervisor.

"This will give turkey hunters three weeks to buy their tag before the season opens," Kays said.

Usually, permits are available well in advance of hunting season opening dates. However, several problems with the permit printing contract this year unavoidably delayed availability.

According to Kays, in some areas such as Ft. Campbell Military Reservation and Reelfoot National Wildlife Refuge, turkey hunting season opens earlier than the statewide season. Permits will be delivered by April 1 to those special hunting areas.

All licenses and permits issued by the KDFWR are distributed directly through the county court clerk's office. Other license vendors receive their licenses from the county court clerk.

Kentucky's spring wild turkey season runs from April 21 through May 4 in those counties or portions of counties designated open.

1994 Trout Stamp Design awarded

Terry Doughty of Brookfield, Wisconsin has been named as the winner of the 1994 Kentucky Trout Stamp Design competition, according to Barbara Pulliam, contest coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR).

Doughty's painting of a brook trout was selected by a panel of five judges with expertise in artistry, ichthyology, trout fishing and reproduction quality. The painting earned Doughty $450, and will be used for next year's trout stamp license.

First runner-up in the contest was Len Rusin, North Tonawanda, New York and second runner-up Robert E. Mitchell of Homell, New York.

The Kentucky Trout Stamp Design Competition is held annually by the KDFWR and open to all artists. The deadline for entries is March 15 each year. For more information about the contest, contact KDFWR representative, #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY 40601; phone (520) 564-4336.

Catch and release reminder

While the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources supports catch-and-release of game fish not needed for the table, a new study indicates the catch and release of striped bass results in a very high mortality rate during spring and summer.

A two-year study by biologists on Lake Texoma, Texas, recently revealed a 70 percent hooking mortality in striped bass over 20 inches long that are caught and released in spring. Fish taken on live bait such as shad were twice as likely to die as those caught on artificials. A high percentage of the fish monitored experienced mortality six or more hours after release.

Unlike largemouth or smallmouth bass, the striped bass' biological make-up simply doesn't allow the fish to re-adapt from the shock of being caught as well as black bass species. Striped bass are much more dependent on colder water habitat, therefore it's harder on the fish when taken from a deeper, cold-water environment in spring and summer and released back into a much warmer water environment. Strippers just can't adjust that quickly, and the stress causes many of them to eventually die.

Fisheries biologist with the KDFWR are encouraging striped bass fishermen to conclude fishing for striper once a limit has been obtained to reduce population losses that occur from catch-and-release fishing. Anglers who want to practice catch-and-release of striped bass should do so during the fall and winter months, when mortality rates are significantly lower.

leaves a bluish stain just under the skin. This usually occurs around the chest, thighs, or abdomen. Severe itching is the usual symptom. Public lice are especially common when people live or work under crowded conditions. You can also get them through sexual contact, or from contact with infested furniture.

Getting rid of any of these three kinds of lice is not particularly difficult. All you have to do is go to a doctor or contact your local health department. They will recommend louse powders or other remedies which are safe and effective and usually require only one treatment. These products not only kill lice but also their eggs at the same time. Although most remedies cannot be purchased without a doctor's prescription, a pharmacist can offer advice on some over-the-counter preparations.

Upon discovering they have lice, too many people are too ashamed or embarrassed to seek any medical help. Instead they will try various home remedies, or non-prescription products which can be purchased in a drug store. The problem with most of these products is that they will kill the lice but not the eggs. In a matter of several days, these eggs will hatch and the person becomes reinfested with new lice. To be sure you have killed the eggs as well as the lice, you usually have to use these non-prescription these articles also must be sterilized. They can be treated by washing them in an automatic clothes washer at a hot cycle.

In conclusion, if a member of your family becomes infested with lice, all others in the family should be examined. Anyone found to be infested should begin treatment immediately. First, destroy all lice and their eggs. Wash or dry-clean all contaminated clothing. Then keep yourself very clean. It is very important to coordinate treating yourself and treating your clothing, bed linens and blankets to prevent the lice from returning or breeding again. Stay away from others who have lice, and don't wear any clothing or use any bed linens that have not been thoroughly sterilized. Be on the alert for situations which might bring you in contact with lice.

What are some of the things you can do for yourself or your family if you are sure that lice are present? The clothing of a person who has body lice should be thoroughly disinfected. You can do this by steaming the clothing, or by boiling it. You can also iron the clothes with a hot iron. Another way to sterilize clothing is to simply have it dry cleaned. The lice can hide in creases of bed linens or blankets so

Things you should know about lice

There are three kinds of lice found on the human body-head lice, body lice, and pubic or crab lice. They belong to a group of insects known as sucking lice, and should not be confused with the small mite which causes a skin disease called scabies.

Lice live by sucking blood from the human body. Our bodies also produce a natural warming agent known as heat. Lice are usually found on people who don't or can't keep themselves clean. But even the cleanest person can become infested by coming in contact with another person who has lice.

Other possible ways to become infested are by wearing another person's hat or clothing, and by direct sexual contact with someone who has lice.

The lice themselves seldom cause serious medical problems. They do, however, cause a person to scratch, which can lead to skin sores and infections. In instances where people are forced to live in crowded conditions and do not have the opportunity to keep themselves clean or to change their clothing, body lice are usually found. Under such situations, the lice breed very rapidly and can spread epidemic typhus, a serious illness. This disease killed many people in Russia between 1918 and 1922, so it can be a major problem.

Head and body lice look alike, but their habits are different. Let's look at the head louse first. The head louse gets into the hair of your head and makes you scalp itchy and irritated. It prefers to nest at the back of your head. If you constantly feel like scratching this part of your head you should have someone examine you. The head louse has a small gray body. It is first found near the scalp, but later it is found throughout all parts of the hair. The females lay great numbers of eggs, which are usually called nits. These tiny round white eggs can be seen easily but should not be confused with dandruff, which is flat and flaky. The head louse infests people of all ages, but those with long hair are more likely to become infested.

Nest is the body louse. The body louse prefers to live in the seams of under-clothes rather than directly on the body. Frequent laundering or dry-cleaning of clothing will usually prevent body lice from breeding.

This louse feeds by sucking blood from your body. Its sucking leaves very small blood specks on the skin. It seems to prefer the neck, back and stomach areas. The bites of the body louse are irritating and cause severe itching. If a person has had body lice for a long time, the skin becomes rough, red and covered with scabs from scratching.

Lastly there's the pubic louse. The pubic, or crab louse, so-called because it actually looks like a crab, usually fastens itself to the hair around the sex organs. Sometimes it's found in the eyebrows, eyelashes, and in the hair under the arms. Its eggs, or nits, look much like those of the head lice, and are glued to the hair. In feeding on the body, the crab louse often

Quail Homemakers

By: Millie Eaton
The Quail Homemakers were present at the yearly International Supper at the Ag Center on Thursday March 4th. This year was focused on the country of Brazil and Quail member Debbie Brown presented the program. Linda Williams and Brenda Powell of the Sunshine Club decorated with a Brazilian flair with lots of colorful ribbons and a breath of spring. There were several different dishes of the Brazilian culture to be sampled and recipes for the dishes were shared. Our club was also present at the Ford Farm and Machinery Sale on March 6th at the Broadhead Fair Grounds with our coffee pot and chili dogs going early. It was wet, windy, cool and muddily as usual, but everyone really enjoyed the crowd and being together. We would like to thank Ford Realty for letting us participate and a special thanks to Mrs. Shirley Martin and some of our husbands that were brave enough to help. Our meeting for March which was postponed early because of the winter storm was held at the home of Lorene Lawrence March 29th.

Children under five: Potential for Poisoning

By: Hazel Jackson
County Extension Agent for Home Economics

National Poison Prevention Week, designated for March 21-27, focuses on children under 5 years old and the extra potential for them to be victims of at-home poisonings. Why are so many accidental poisonings related to children under five years of age? These children are in stages of growth and development where they are constantly exploring and investigating the world around them. That's the way they learn. It is a normal characteristic and should not be discouraged. It's also normal for them to take what they see and reach for and put it into their mouths. That's what parents need to be concerned about. As young children mature and increase in mobility, ingenuity and capabilities increase, stored medicines and household chemical products can become a very real hazard of them. When children are crawling, they can reach products such as drain cleaners stored under the sink or on the floor. When they can stand, they can reach products such as furniture polish stored on low tables. When they climb, they can reach products on countertops or open medicine cabinets. Such products should be locked up where possible, even when child-resistant packaging is used. Chemical products or medicines should never be left unattended by adults, not even to answer the phone or doorbell while they are using them. Children eat fast and can get hold of a product and swallow it during the short time it takes to answer a phone or doorbell. That's why the theme for this year's National Poison Prevention Week is "Children Act Fast... So Do Poisons!" What should a parent do if the child does swallow a potential poison? Or just suspect the child has? It is recommended that parents with children under five always keep a one-ounce bottle of syrup of ipecac on hand, but to use it only on advice of the Poison Control Center, emergency department or physician. The syrup is used to induce vomiting, but

Nation's top criminal defense lawyers meet in Washington

Local Attorney Jerry J. Cox, partner in the firm of Clontz & Cox, was among 150 of the nation's top criminal defense lawyers who urged congressional leaders to provide adequate funding for indigent defense, abolish mandatory minimum sentences, preserve habeas corpus review of state convictions, refrain from expanding the federal death penalty, and reform "civil" forfeiture laws, when the lawyers converged on Washington for the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers' (NACDL) Second Annual Legislative Fly-In on March 30-31.

Indigent Defense Crisis
On the 30th anniversary of the Supreme Court's landmark decision in Gideon v. Wainwright, which gave effect to the Sixth Amendment's guarantee of counsel for criminal defendants -- NACDL President Nancy Hollander and other members will push for an urgent supplemental appropriation to meet a new crisis in the criminal justice system. Last year, the government ran out of money to pay private lawyers who represent indigent criminal defendants in federal court under the Criminal Justice Act (CJA). This year, CJA lawyers are again threatened with a curtailment of payments that could last from April until October.

nate the bacteria that causes food poisoning," O'Leary said. "Cooking hamburger to a minimum internal temperature of 150 degrees should assure its safety for human consumption."

While the main cause of the recent outbreak was undercooked hamburger, O'Leary said some cases occur because of poor personal hygiene.

"This involves a failure to properly wash hands after using the bathroom or handling raw foods," O'Leary said. "Frequent washing of hands is especially important in areas where an outbreak is in progress or where a food handler has had a recent intestinal infection."

Adequately cooked hamburger should have no trace of pink in the center, he said.

About 10 years ago, a strain of the bacteria, e. coli, was identified as the cause of another foodborne illness outbreak at a fast food outlet. When a large number of customers were ordering hamburgers at the same time, the larger number of frozen hamburger patties placed on the cooking surface at the same time lowered the temperature so that the hamburgers were not thoroughly cooked. That was determined to cause the outbreak.

Does this mean that eating a medium rare steak or roast also poses a risk of food poisoning?
Not usually, O'Leary said.

Most of the bacteria present on steak or roasts are found on the outside of the cut, he said. "That area receives the most heat during cooking which eliminates the bacteria. With hamburger, the bacteria are evenly distributed throughout the ground meat. That's why it should be cooked thoroughly."

"Hands of Healing" (Cont. from A8)

make a difference," said Brown. Materials designed with the 1993 theme, "Hands of Healing," are being distributed by the Rockcastle County Soil Conservation District office during business hours from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Agriculture Center, Richmond Street, Mt. Vernon, Ky. (906) 256-2541.

To the Citizens of Rockcastle Co.:

There has been a number of people asking me who is going to be my deputies if I am elected jailer. There has been several men that have asked me for the job. At this time I have not decided, I don't want to go around telling people that someone is going to be my deputies before I am elected. I can tell you that if I am elected all the cooks and deputies will be from here in Rockcastle Co. We have a lot of people that is hard working, that is out of work, and we need to keep our people working, so we do not need to hire people from other counties when we could be putting someone to work right here in the county, and I would also like to suggest that all the candidates that win the election, if you need someone in your offices, please hire someone from right here in Rockcastle Co.

Thanks Everyone, Ralph Powell

Proposed Legislation
Criminal defense lawyers at the Fly-In also voiced their opposition to the Hate Crimes Sentencing Enhancement Act introduced by Rep. Charles Schumer (D-NY), because it would punish thought and violate the First and Fifth Amendments; their opposition to the Violence Against Women Act recently introduced by Sen. Joseph Biden (D-DE), because it would perpetuate the "federalization" of criminal conduct already covered by state laws, and further overload federal courts; their support for the establishment of federal standards for the use of DNA testing in judicial proceedings; and their perspectives on other issues affecting criminal justice and constitutional rights.

Joining NACDL members at the Fly-In to oppose restrictions on federal habeas corpus was Randall Dale Adams, who spent 11 years in Texas prison (three of them on death row) for a murder he didn't commit. Adams, whose story was depicted in the 1988 film, "The Thin Blue Line," might still be in prison if a federal judge, acting on a habeas petition, hadn't ordered Texas prosecutors to turn over evidence that perjured testimony was used to convict Adams.

child's attempts to make herself understood, if your child asks for a drink by saying "dink," do not say, "I'm not getting it for you until you say it right." Parents and teachers alike should also resist the temptation to repeat the word in the child's form; the child may begin to think that she is saying it correctly if you say it that way, too. Instead say, "you would like a drink. I'll get you one." It is better to get the drink and say the word correctly so that the child knows how it is supposed to sound without being punished for trying.

Children who have difficult time communicating are not lazy or stupid; they are just taking a little more time to learn language. If parents and siblings talk to the child and encourage the child to do his best without punishing his efforts, he will begin to feel more comfortable trying to talk even if his efforts are not perfectly right.

Let's Talk

By: Wendy Kiger
Teachers with the Parents-Are Teachers Program of the Christian Appalachian Project

The primary way that children learn language is by listening to the people around them- parents, brothers, and sisters. In order for children to learn language, they need to have a comfortable and stimulating environment at home that encourages them to experiment with talking and to engage in conversation.

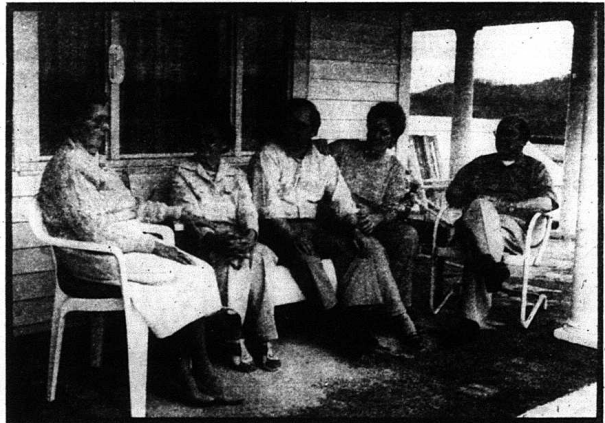

Children learn a large part of their vocabulary by listening to family members naming objects and describing actions to them. Parents can talk about what they are doing as they perform everyday activities, such as cooking dinner and folding laundry. Family members can also describe the child's actions, such as what toys she is playing with or what he is looking at. Talking to your young child is very important to her language development. Your child is absorbing everything that you say to her, and even if she is not yet speaking, she is gaining the knowledge she needs to communicate with the world.

If your child is having a problem speaking and is becoming frustrated with his inability to express himself, there are a few things that you can do to make his learning environment a positive and pleasant one. First, limit the number of questions and commands that you give your child. A child who is continually asked to talk and who cannot will become frustrated and feel like a failure. Imagine if someone insisted upon you doing something that you did not know how to do. Second, encourage your Brodhead students stand with teacher Judy Doyle and Principal Mark McKinney in the alumni garden dedicated to all Brodhead School Alumni.

Alumni invited to reunion weekend 93 at EKU

The ol' groundhog was right Feb. 2 when he predicted six more weeks of winter.

Despite the best efforts of Punxsutawney Phil, though, the "Campus Beautiful" should be awash in vivid spring colors by April 23-25, when Eastern Kentucky University hosts Alumni Weekend '93.

The 430 EKU graduates living in Rockcastle County and their former classmates from around the county are invited to what Alumni Affairs Director Larry Bailey termed a "Big Spring Bash."

The "bash" includes a starlight cruise, campus arts and athletic events, campus and historical site tours, a planetarium show, class luncheons and the annual Alumni Awards Banquet honoring the 1993 Hall of Distinguished Alumni.

Besides the planned activities, the annual event offers an excellent opportunity for former students to rekindle their special memories of Eastern, meet their classmates and introduce their alma mater to their families.

Guests can participate in as many or few of the activities as they wish, Bailey stressed.

"All the events are optional," Bailey said. "People may just want to take the time to renew old friendships, meet former professors and rekindle fond memories of their campus days."

Special guests for the weekend festivities will be graduates of 1923, '28, '33, '38, '43, '48, '53, '58, '63, '68, '73, '78, '83 and '88. Class luncheons for those groups will be held at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, April 24 at the Keen Johnson Building.

At 6 p.m. Saturday, the Alumni Awards Banquet will be held at the Keen Johnson Ballroom. The Outstanding Alumnus will be honored at the banquet, and 11 graduates are expected to be inducted into the Hall of Distinguished Alumni.

"Alumni Weekend is a special time for the University community," Bailey said, "and lots of work has gone into making it a memorable experience for returning graduates. We trust a good number of our alumni will take this opportunity to come back home to Eastern for fun and fellowship."

Activities on Friday, April 23 include the faculty/alumni reception from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Arlington House parlor. Other activities include EKU Theatre's performance of "Waiting for Godot" at 7:30 and a starlight cruise on the Star of Lexington from 9 p.m. to midnight.

Saturday features registration from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. in the Keen Johnson Building, class photos at 10:30, and class luncheons at 11:30. The afternoon features a show at Eastern's Hummel Planetarium at 3, in addition to campus tours and a special display at EKU Archives from 1 to 4. After the awards banquet, alumni can attend another theatre performance at 7:30 or a Show Choir concert at 8. Athletic events include the Ohio Valley Conference Women's softball tournament Friday and Saturday, an EKU baseball game on Sunday, the annual Ice Cream Concert at 3 p.m. Sunday and tours of Fort Boonesboro.

Mahaffey receives pro-gun award

The Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms is pleased to announce that Elizabeth Mahaffey of Livingston, has been selected to receive a Citizen of the Year Award.

Elizabeth Mahaffey has been selected to receive this Citizen of the Year Award because of a dedication to the efforts to preserve the right of the people to keep and bear arms as guaranteed by the Second Amendment to the United States Constitution according to Committee officials.

"If it weren't for people like Elizabeth Mahaffey, our Constitutional Rights would have been eroded years ago," stated Alan Gottlieb, chairman of the Citizens Committee.

The Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms is a national organization with nearly 500,000 members as well as more than 130 members of Congress serving on their National Advisory Council.

Five place in skill olympics regional

On March 5, 1993 local winners of the Harry Sparks Area Vocational Education Center skills contest traveled to Laurel County to compete in the Regional Vocational Industrial Clubs of America Skill Olympics. There are class winners from Auto Mechanics, Electricity and Welding. They competed against other schools in the region in their trade fields as well as leadership events. Those attending from Harry Sparks Vocational were: Auto Mechanics - Mike Peters, Chuck Gray, Jeff Navarre, Daryl Shaffer, Jesse Morgan and Mike Fingleton; Electricity - Brian Cox, James Hines, Chad Neal and Jason Smith; Welding - Donnie Crouch, Adam Vanzani, Scotty Bulls, David Bustle and Jason Kirk.

The winners in the regional contest receive a gold medal and the right to compete at the state level in Paducah April 14-17. The second place winners receive silver medals and third place receive bronze. If first place winners are unable to compete at the state level the second or third place winners may go and compete.

BHS Alumni Banquet is Saturday, April 10

The Brodhead High School Alumni Banquet will be held Saturday, April 10, 7 p.m. in the school gymnasium. Honored classes are 1923, 1933, 1943, 1953, 1963, 1928, 1938, 1948, 1958 and 1968.

It was suggested at last year's banquet that we honor classes every five years instead of every 10, so we are planning to try this format this year. Tickets are $10 per person, and all husbands, wives, and guests are invited.

To make reservations call Brodhead School at 606-758-8512 or write

Alumni Association c/o Brodhead School, P.O. Box 187, Brodhead, Ky. 40409.

The Alumni Garden which was begun last year in the area between the stone building and the gym will be completed by banquet time. All graduates will enjoy seeing the garden which is dedicated to all Brodhead School Alumni. If anyone would like to make a contribution toward the expenses for the garden, please send them to Alumni Association, c/o Blanche Johnson, P.O. Box 554, Brodhead, KY 40409.

Have a drivers license? you are subject to jury duty

"Rockcastle Countians who wish to avoid being chosen for jury duty should burn their drivers' licenses," Secretary of State Bob Babbage said during the recent promotion of voter registration programs.

Babbage said his remarks were to get the attention of eligible but unregistered voters who were unaware that the General Assembly in 1990 had amended laws for jury selection to include licensed drivers as well as registered voters.

"For years people would say they declined to register to vote because they preferred to avoid jury duty," Babbage said.

Now jurors are selected from a list of persons over the age of 18 with valid driver's licenses issued in the county and from a list of registered voters.

Babbage explained that prior to 1990 jurors were selected from a list of qualified voters. The General Assembly added holders of valid licenses in the 1990 session.

Babbage, by virtue of his office, is designated by law as the chief election official of Kentucky. One of his main trusts as Secretary of State has been to increase public education about voter registration and election day participation.

New voter registration increased by 184,301 between the 1991 general election and the 1992 general election. Several programs were implemented by the Secretary of State, the State Board of Elections and Democracy Incorporated to Kentucky to increase citizen awareness of registration opportunities and voting responsibilities.

"Our goal is to register even more people to vote in 1993," Babbage said. "We had a record year for new voter registration, but there is still nearly 600,000 Kentuckians who are eligible to vote, but are unregistered."

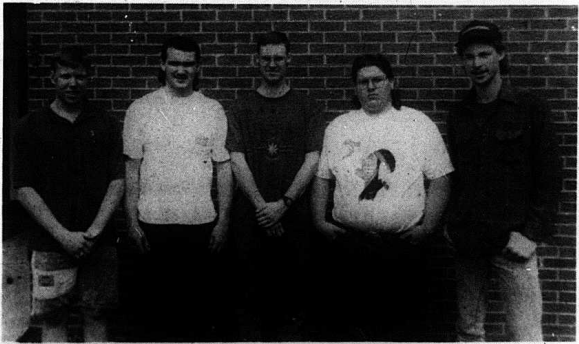

"One of our continuing goals is to increase public awareness of Kentucky's election laws and of how citizens can become a more vital part of the democratic processes," he added.

"We have seen positive responses to programs which invite our citizens to be involved in the democratic processes," Babbage said.

RCHS Science Fair Winners . . .

Six students were awarded the top three positions of last week's Rockcastle County High School Science Fair. The overall winners were: Scott Mays and Amy Croucher, Physics, 1st place; Marilyn Coffey and Heather Saylor, Chemistry, 2nd place; and Caille Mullins and Doug Smith, Chemistry, 3rd place. The students also received cash prizes for their accomplishments.

Harry Sparks Vocational School had the following 5 contestants to receive medals: Jason Kirk, 2nd place job interview welding, secondary; David Bustle, 2nd place job skill demonstration welding, secondary; Chad Neal, 3rd place electricity, secondary; Jesse Morgan, 2nd place job skill demonstration, auto mech. post-secondary; Mike Peters, 3rd place auto mechanics, post-secondary.

ART EXHIBIT PLANNED

The Rockcastle County Public Library is seeking local artists for its Spring Art Exhibit. The exhibit will run April 18 through April 30 at the library.

Any artist wishing to participate should call the library at 256-2388 by April 10th. All paintings, drawings or two-dimensional works will be accepted. All works should be framed for hanging. According to Ms. Geraldine Robbins, head librarian, "We've had great success with our exhibits in the past. There are many talented folks in our county and it's important for them to share their talents with the Rockcastle Community." For more information, call the library or drop by during business hours.

Health Center will begin offering pre-natal classes

The Rockcastle County Health Center will begin offering pre-natal classes April 15 at the health center.

Each series is divided into three sessions. The first session will be focusing on nutrition. The expectant mother will understand that not only nutrients and oxygen are passed through the placenta, but drugs and alcohol as well, and that nutrition is directly related to a healthy baby. Information on breast feeding and bottle feeding will be presented and many of the myths and fears about the pros and cons of each explored.

The second session will present information on conception and fetal development. How smoking, alcohol and drugs affect the unborn baby, and the long term effects of the use of these substances. The common complaints and physical instructional materials will be addressed, as well as recognizing signs of pre-term labor.

The third session prepares the expectant mother and partner for the birth of their baby. Breathing and relaxation techniques will be demonstrated and the process of labor explained.

The pre-natal classes will be taught by Nancy Keber, nutritionist; Lynett Fortney, registered dietitian and Beverly Carter-Section, health educator. A variety of instructional materials will be used, including films, handouts and manipulative materials. Free gift packages containing valuable samples and coupons and American Baby's Childbirth Magazine will be presented to each expectant mother.

The cost for the entire series of pre-natal classes is only $10. If you are an expectant mother and want to attend these classes, please fill out and mail the registration form below with your $10 check made payable to the Rockcastle Co. Health Center. There is no fee required for expectant mothers in our WIC program. They only need to call the health center at 256-2242 to confirm their registration.

Our Readers Write

Dear Editor,
Regarding the letters of Lora Hamilton and June Whittier, we would like to clear up the misunderstanding. The sign Lora Hamilton saw on the E.C. Porter door said, "No deliveries accepted after 1 p.m." What this sign meant was that we do not allow various vendors such as Pepsi, Coke, Kerns Bread, etc., to park in our customer parking area after 1 p.m. This was done to accommodate the increase in customers while Foodtown is out of business. It has nothing to do with discrimination of the elderly or any other customer. We tried to explain this to Ms. Hamilton.

We were not set up to deliver groceries after Foodtown burned. It was our understanding this service was and is already provided for the elderly and handicapped by the Rockcastle County Transit. Mr. Doan, our store manager, has graciously driven people home in his personal vehicle to best accommodate all customers.

We at E.C. Porter will never discriminate against any group or individual at our store. We are saddened that a few people do not understand our policies or situation.

We have increased our deliveries of products into our store, lengthened our stores hours hired more employees and maintained our low prices during this time period. We want all customers to know we value their business and we believe that we have been misrepresented regarding this incident.

Dear Sir,
During the past 12 years our Judicial System has experienced many changes. For this reason, all Circuit Court Clerks throughout the state have faced real challenges because of increased workloads and responsibilities.

However, because of dedicated people like Denver Mill, Rockcastle County Circuit Court Clerk, we have been able to meet those challenges.

Denver has served on a number of committees which have been at the forefront of changes to make a better court system.

Denver is respected by his fellow clerks as an expert at his job and for that reason, we have called on him many times for help with problems we have encountered as clerks. He has always been most helpful.

I am privileged to have served as one of his fellow clerks. He is a credit to his county and his state. We can all be proud of his contributions toward an effective justice system.

Respectfully,
John W. Kearns, President
Kentucky Circuit Clerks Assoc.
Harrison Co. Circuit Court Clerk

hurt her. He just wanted her to quiet down. In his frustration, he shook her; and she did quiet down. When she started to cry once more, he shook her again, and she dropped off to sleep. But she never woke up.

John, like many parents, relatives, and baby-sitters, didn't realize just how fragile an infant is. His child became a victim of "Shaken Baby Syndrome," or SBS, which affects more than 50,000 young children in the United States each year.

Some children die, while others are permanently handicapped with blindness, paralysis, seizures, or mental retardation. Broken bones and dislocations are also possible.

Shaking a baby vigorously for any reason can cause brain damage. The shaking may reflect the caregiver's frustration or may be intended to emphasize a disciplinary measure. However, Shaken Baby Syndrome may also result from play activities, such as repeatedly tossing an infant up in the air, vigorous bouncing on the knee, spinning a child, or carrying a child while jogging.

Young children can be injured through these actions because they differ physically from older children and adults. A young child's head is larger in proportion to his body, and the neck muscles are relatively weak. The brain is covered with less myelin (the fatty substance that encases nerve fibers), and there is more space between the brain and the skull. Thus, shaking a young child moves a less protected brain through a larger space, causing a greater impact. The result is bleeding in the brain, which can cause damaging pressure.

Between one quarter and one half of the American public doesn't know that shaking an infant can cause brain damage or death, according to the Ohio Research Institute on Child Abuse Prevention. Simple, direct education efforts can greatly reduce the number of un-informed care givers.

There are seven points that need to be communicated:

*Never shake a child who is under the age of two.

*Always provide support for the infant's head.

*Avoid games and activities that cause unnecessary back-and-forth movements of a baby's head.

*Protect toddlers from repetitive or severe falls as they learn to walk.

*Know what to do if a baby won't stop crying.

*Make sure other care givers know (Cont. to B11)

Roamin' Rockcastle

By: Hilda Payne Gabbard

Today is April Fool's Day and I'll bet there are a lot of us around. I make so many mistakes it's a wonder folks wouldn't chase me out of the country.

Twelve years ago I started writing for the Signal. My column started out calling the community Disputant which a lot of folks still do, then my opener sentence was "Hello from Clear Creek," and I took off telling about the many hills and hollows where the folks of Northern Rockcastle live. That was on October 15, 1981 and I've been writing ever since about the folks around in it.

Some months later I moved to Berea and began writing for the Berea Citizen.

I've had some mighty nice bosses and co-workers which made my job pleasant. Then the owners of the Signal became known as the Anderkin Publishers bought out the Berea Citizen and included it in their company.

Now having sold out the first Berea Citizen newspaper, the Anderkin Publication returned to home base in Mt. Vernon. I felt like an orphan also.

For awhile I took like an orphan and said to Richard Anderkin, "What becomes of me? Do I jump in the first hole I see and pull in the top over me?"

"We're going back home to good old Rockcastle and you are going with us," he said, so I would stop biting my fingernails. It may be your bad luck but I'll write again from Disputant on Clear Creek telling everything I know on folks, (they say I do). I talked to Ruth Abney, Joe's better half, and asked her to tell me some news as to what she was doing this winter.

"To tell the truth, I've not felt like doing any quilt work or embroidery, nothing like I usually do. I'm so nervous all I do is walk the floor and look out at the weather," she said.

Now I know what is wrong with Ruth Abney, she has an early case of spring fever. You know how it is and I know the very thing that will help her. As we go through the winter our blood thickens and gets sluggish, so if Ruth will have Joe dig some sassafras roots and then boil them in a kettle of water, she can drink some of that tea. It has proved itself by many folks.

Virginia Saylor at Berea gets Conley going by a treatment of the tea. He is like a lot of men who take spring fever and don't want to work. Conley even leaves town to keep from working at the store. I last heard he and Virginia had gone to the Bahamas Islands.

Shucks, about as far as I can go would be down to Turkey Pen hollow. Bill Shouse says he and Bessie will vacation in Bobtown, a few miles out of Berea.

We made a stop last week in Wildcat at the post office where we ate lunch. Jan Stevens was there running around on different jobs. His daughter-in-law, Carolyn, Jeff's wife, was holding down the store. When we gave her our order for sandwiches, we had a choice of things to go on, such as lettuce, pickles and so on.

"Be sure not to put any onions on mine," I told her and walked to the soft drink case.

"Then I heard Jan say in a low voice, "Be sure to put plenty of onions on Hilda's sandwich."

I ran back to the counter where Carolyn was making the sandwich.

"No, no, I don't want any. Give John some but not me," I exclaimed.

"Later we went down the street. I mean road to Mayor Ballard Park's store where he was snowed in for two days last week. His brother, Donnie, brought Ballard to work and back home in a truck.

"You didn't go out at all in your new electric four wheel drive?" I asked the Mayor.

"I should say not. Nobody moved around here. Bennie Saylor and Glen Coffey helped me some in the store, putting things on the shelf but, when I'm not looking, they drink up the stuff I keep under the counter," Ballard said grinning.

Glen Coffey's face turned red and he soon left. So did Saylor.

"The men do a lot of talking but the results of the election," the Mayor said. One of them has said Clinton might get shot if he came to Wilde on the taxes that he's going to put on the people."

I asked, "Has old timer, Bill Stewart, been in here lately?"

"No, for he had a bad fall." It left a big pumpkin on his head and he hasn't been here since he had the fall," Ballard told us. Then he wheeled his machine over to one of the grocery shelves and came back with two bars of real good candy which he gave to me.

When we were in his store the last time, Ballard said there would be something free given out the next time we came. So the candy was what he had in mind.

We stopped to see old timer Bill Stewart as we left Wilde and found him sitting in the kitchen where a lot of noise was going on.

Paul and Ann Abney live there with their grandfather and three children. It was Saturday so Ann was home with the children from her teaching job.

She lived us grownups to go into the living room to talk, which we did, but the kids went with us.

If I was a thief I'd steal the 17 month old baby. He was the cutest, fattest, healthiest baby I'd seen. Soon Ann laughed and said she had to go into the kitchen to let the baby nurse.

"Why stay right here," I said laughing, "for a law has been passed saying mothers could feed their child anywhere in public."

"I think I'd better go into the other room," Ann said, still feeling the old taboo.

I liked this woman; who was pretty too. She and the children are my kind folks by marrying cousin Dan Abney. I know I'm going back and steal me a baby.

"Ann said, 'My sister Serena, who works in Dr. Bill Stewart's office in Berea talks about you a lot so tell her about your meeting her sister.' Ann - Old timer Bill seemed so glad to see us since he can't get out of the house.

Charlie King, who has been in the Skilled Nursing Facility at Berea Hospital, was brought home after some time he had spent there.

If someone wants to buy a copy of the Signal on Friday it can be found at two outlet machines in Berea. One box is at Wal-Mart and the other one is in the Dairy Maid Convention Store on Chestnut Street where you go out of Berea."

I will not have a column in any Berea newspaper.

From my column in the Signal on October 2, 1981, I had heard much of Brother Dillard Bowman's work for the Lord when we lived in Northern Kentucky so I've wanted to, hear him preach."

You'll notice, a lot of the things that you hear, your expression is the most important.

Library News

By: Geraldine Robbins

The Kentucky Library Association held their spring conference in Northern Kentucky at the Quality Hotel, March 17th through 19th. I attended all three days and Pam was there for two of the days.

On Wednesday Pam and I both participated in a Readers' Advisory Workshop. Participants developed skills for conducting interviews and learned to use readers advisory tools to link the reader with the perfect book. The presenters also offered their own list of authors to recommend. We hope to train all the staff so that when anyone asks for a specific kind of book we will be able to recommend a book that they would like. Some of the workshops we attended on Thursday were, Managing Your Library, and Rolling into the Age of Automation, The Impact of KERKA on Kentucky Public Libraries and Institutionalizing Quality in Library Services. Pam also attended, Pop Up Your Bookmobile Program.

On Thursday evening, I along with most of those that were attending the conference, were taken to a dinner/show at Oldenburg Entertainment Complex. The buffet dinner was followed by a very entertaining music/comedy show. This was one of the highlights of the conference for me. After sitting in workshops for two days, we needed some entertainment.

Friday's agenda consisted of three more sessions that were very informative. All in all, it was a valuable conference. I hope to put many of the ideas that I learned to use in the library. We always want to upgrade our library if possible and give better service to our patrons.

The date for the Art Show is rapidly approaching and we hope several of you are going to participate in the show. Please call the library and let me know by April 10th. We have received a new shipment of large-print books. Many of you have said that you are enjoying these, so come in and look at them. There are 105 books in this collection.

Some new book for our readers to enjoy are: 1. The Best Medicine by Dr. Robert Arnot. CBS News medical correspondent, Dr. Robert

Fairview News

By Mrs. Hubert Chasteen

Hello from Fairview. Than the good Lord, the sun is shining this morning - the month of March has been so cloudy, dark and rainy. But I just thank God for each day that He gives us. We should always rejoice in His love and mercy. He is so good to us.

Our weekend services were well attended at our Sunday School and attendance was one hundred and eleven (111). Thank the good Lord.

Lloyd Pickle of Snider, one of our devoted and faithful members of our church passed away last Sunday night, March 21st, at his home. Visitation began at the church on Friday evening. Services were conducted Saturday March 27 with Rev. Harvey Pennington officiating. Burial was in the Fairview Cemetery, near his wife Nancy and their son, Bailey. Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to the sons, daughters, grandchildren and all relatives left behind. They have our love and prayers. He will be sadly missed by those who knew him. We have always loved the Pickle family. God bless them.

Mrs. Gertrude Vanzant of Richmond, Ind. departed this life at her home March 26, 1993. She was the wife of the late Emory Vanzant. Her sister Irene Barnett of Mt. Vernon spent a weekend with her lately and recently spent two weeks with her. Mrs. Vanzant was able to attend the funeral of her brother Tommy Philbeck some four months ago, but now the Lord has called her home. While here for his funeral Mrs. Vanzant visited her sister Irene and she reports they had such a good time together and enjoyed that sisterly love. This family and loved ones also has our sympathy, love and prayers.

While Mrs. Barnett was visiting her mother Mrs. Mary Cope Sunday, Odella of Michigan and Eliza of Richmond, Ind.

My granddaughter Connie Adams and I visited a very dear friend of mine, Mrs. Della Bullens of Madison Manor Nursing home, Richmond, on Friday. It was so good to see her again. The Bullens family have meant so much to us for many years.

William Cope of Eubank visited his mother Mrs. Mary Cope Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Maljone have recently vacationed in Florida. They spent five weeks with his sister Mrs. Gwyn Morley. Mrs. Morley had spent three months here with the Malone family before they (all three) left for Florida.

Our company on Sunday afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chasteen, Mr. and Mrs. Darrin Chasteen and daughter Darica.

Mrs. Mary Cope visited her sister-in-law Mrs. Nannie Moore of Winchester last week from Friday until Sunday.

Our Vacation Bible School is scheduled to begin June 5 at 6:30 p.m.

Our revival will begin Sunday morning, April 4th with the Rev. David Aker as the evangelist. Everyone is invited to attend our Bible School and Spring Revival. We solicit your prayers.

Please remember church and Sunday school. Love and pray for one another.

Poet's Corner

The Blizzard of '93

By: Performance poets Allan Wolf and Jim Waver are presently serving as artists in residence for Rockcastle County Schools sponsored by the Rockcastle County Arts Council.

Dive into Denny's, the world's finest snowbound restaurant
Exit 62, 1-75 south of Lexington, Ky.
There you'll find,
Sidewalk sweepers,
Money changers,
Kitchen washers,
Worm legged servers,
Card players,
Truck drivers,
Pancake eaters,
Egg beaters
And bacon friers.

Stranded menu readers,
refugees from the snow clogged main roads, Scan pictures of chicken strips,
cheese soup,
fried bacon tips,
steak melts,
roasted turkey,
and tuna supremes.

At the counter,
A man with a cigarette and a blue sweater turns to me and says,
"What's the word on the road?"
A waitress explains,
"Closed south of here to Tenn. Ya might as well stay over."
He smiles and says,
"I'll take a grand slam with a side-order of hash-browns, Pie it on!"

A swimming pool salesman
Who says his name is Raphael Maldonado
Orders breakfast and lunch to go
And talks about the theory of eternal life,
When his order comes
He lights a cigarette, picks his food up and says,
"The whole universe is here at once."
Then he goes back to his room to watch T.V.

Behind the counter and above the grill
Michael, The full blond cook
With a football shoulders and a deep voice
Chews a bic pen and tosses toast up for the waitresses
"There's more where that came from," he says
As they run off to the tables.

Outside a big bus pulls to a stop
And unloads the whole universe.
Twenty five people rush through the door,
And sit down in the non-smoking section.
A patient blob of humanity sipping coffee
And watching March 13th
No visibility -- The storm wears on.

Dora, Doris, Debbie, Geneva, Jamie and Miss Renner
Forget about egg orders and start on hamburgers.
Bread drawers slide open and shut,
Just washed forks, knives, and spoons
Chime as they're sorted in the corner
Somebody wants something on rye bread.
A new man Dennis, with a red cap and side burns

Drinks tea and eats meat balls.
Zachary a high school sophomore, tired from shoveling snow
Orders a grilled cheese and soup
The phone lines are jammed
And all the while
Michael with his pen in his teeth
Conducts business
Over-med rare steaks,
Quesadillas,
And shrimp

The Blizzard of '93 By: Wanda Burton

The storm is coming it's going to be bad
Probably the worse blizzard we've ever had
The news they warned us over and over
To get ready to weather the storm

They said it would snow like we've never seen
They said it would blow a blizzard it would be
The temperature and wind chill would drop to a way below
So we can't say they never told us so

Just when we thought spring was almost here
When old man winter's head was raised
Like a mighty dragon he blew a cold breath
All up and down the coast he colored a great white coat

For it did come, snow and the winds
It did drift and drift and drift
They warned the folks to stay in
Just get out if emergencies begin

Some were caught traveling unaware
The more they drove the more troubles to bear
Shelters were set up everywhere
The National Guard was also out there

The farmers their cattle had to feed
And Oh! the roads were terrible indeed
Whether it was near or if it was far
They had to brave the storm and look out for harm

Everyone pitched in to try and help
They knew their neighbors were like themselves
They had to try and do their chores
Some were sick, some tired and worn

The Red Cross stepped in, opened their doors
To schools and buildings wherever
Five hundred people and some had more
They were happy to sleep on the floor

How long will it last, they say there's more
And it's already been to the hours of twenty four
It's still blowing, wind chill is twenty below
I hope there is no one out in the cold

The worst storm of history as far as we know
March 13, 1993 was the day of woe
Will long be remembered by you and me
And many others the worst we've ever seen

The trucks and plows can't help very much
Because the wind is strong stuff

It comes right back with another puff
And the roads are lowered with more of the white stuff

So thankful we must be it's not hurt us too much
Our lives have been spared, we have food and such Pray for others who aren't as fortunate as us
Just think what God can do with just a small touch

Then Kentucky hospitality stepped right in Merchants and dear folks, a hand to lend
Supplied the food-and shelter found
Made all very proud of our little county and town

The roads were closed 1-75 from Berea to the Tennessee line
It surely was a scary time
It was best that you stay at home
But so many believe nothing can go wrong

Twelve to twenty inches as best we can tell
With winds up to the pressure of a hurricane's gale
Probably history in the making
And something for our grandchildren to tell

Wedding Plans By: Brenda Lee Gibbons

Wedding plans are beginning
All fresh and new
Just like spring
In a month or two

I'm so excited
I just can't sleep
I'm all excited
From my head to my feet

Planning the wedding just so
Now and after the wedding
Our love will grow and grow

Choosing the colors of the wedding.
And the people who are in it
People who touched our lives

When they play our special song
I just know I'll start to cry
I'll start to cry
When they play our special song
Because it's my husband
That makes me strong

Sharing that special moment
With family and friends
That's where all wedding plans begin

Brock receives Certificate of merit for "Thy Kingdom Come"

Doug Brock of Brock's Portrait Studio recently competed in the Mid-East States Affiliated Photography exhibition hosted by the Professional Photographers of Ohio. The competition and exhibition took place at the Columbus Hyatt Regency/Ohio Center from March 3 through March 8, 1993.

Mr. Brock was one of 313 photographers entered in the six state competition. All four photographs he entered received ribbon awards, with one receiving a blue ribbon and a "Certificate of Merit." The "Certificate of Merit" was presented for the very unique and creative grave scene titled, "Thy Kingdom Come."

"Thy Kingdom Come" by Doug Brock

This merit winning print will be exhibited at the International Exposition of Professional Photography in Nashville, TN in June of this year.

After earning 25 "Certificates of Merit," a photographer may receive the "Master of Photography" degree. Judged by "Masters of Photography" from all over the United States, the Mid-East Regional Competition consists of entries from Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Ohio. It is one of the largest professional print competitions and exhibitions in the country.

Please note!!!!

Dwight Griffin and Mike Smith were absent when the First Baptist Church Team basketball pictures were taken.

Rockcastle County clerk receives local records grant

Rockcastle County Clerk Norma Houk has received a $22,038 grant from the Department for Libraries and Archives' Local Records Program, Department Commissioner James A. Nelson announced today. The funds will be used to restore and rebind records and to purchase canvas record covers and records storage equipment for the clerk's office.

The Local Records Program is Kentucky's unique approach to assisting local public agencies with the management and protection of their vital records. In addition to its grants program, the Department for Libraries and Archives, through its local records staff, provides a program of direct archival and records management services to local public agencies across the state.

Forty-six local public agencies have been awarded a total of $597,232 in this round of grant awards from Fiscal Year 1994 Local Records Grant Program funds. More than $6 million have been distributed throughout every Kentucky county during the program's ten-year history.

Please watchout for our children! Drive carefully!

Yes, my friends even my kin folks have shaved, thrown their walking stick away. These same people have drink from the public trough for oh these many years and the people kept them up and you the taxpayer are paying their big state pension, me top are paying. Now, they want to get another check from you. This cannot and will not happen, one pension is enough.
