Hamilton to be city administrator Livingston Mayor resigns

Livingston Mayor Ralph Hamilton has resigned as mayor and will become city administrator, at no cost to Livingston taxpayers.

Hamilton's resignation was made at a council meeting July 23, according to city clerk Rita Carpenter.

Mayor pro-tem Ed Lile will fill Hamilton's post.

Councilwoman Peggy McClure has also resigned as of the same date.

Both the mayor's and Mrs. McClure's seat will be on the Nov. 8 ballot.

Lile has filed for Mayor and Hamilton's daughter, Justine Hamilton, filed to run for a council seat.

The change apparently allows Hamilton, who works at Mt. Vernon Plastics, to spend more time with his family.

Hamilton said Tuesday that he took over as Mayor 18 months ago because the city government in Livingston was in chaos. "That has all been corrected now and we are back on solid footing," he said.

"I work full-time and like to spend time at my farm in Sand Hill and I think this move will give me more time to do that and see my family," he said.

Mrs. McClure, who is a primary teacher at Mt. Vernon Elementary, said that the demands of her job made it difficult to sit on the council.

Hamilton was appointed to fill the term of Mrs. Faye Baker who resigned. He finished her term and ran unopposed for his seat.

In the Rockcastle County Board of Education races Dwight Griffin of Mt. Vernon filed in District 1.

Dr. Billy George Griffith filed earlier in District 3.

Both Griffin and Dr. Griffith are unopposed.

Early Saturday morning

Train kills Mt. Vernon man

A Mt. Vernon man was killed Saturday morning when he apparently tried to cross the railroad tracks in front of a southbound CSX train near the Hummell section of Rockcastle County.

According to Deputy Sheriff Darrell Doan, Charles Ray Swinney, 19, of Mt. Vernon was dead on arrival at the Rockcastle Hospital after he was hit by the train in the 4:30 a.m. accident.

Swinney's body was carried 336 feet by the train after impact.

The accident occurred near the McNew Cemetery Road crossing when Swinney apparently crossed in front of the lead engine that was pulling 56 additional cars.

According to Doan's report, five other people with Swinney witnessed the accident, but gave no reason why Swinney tried to cross the tracks in front of the moving train.

According to Doan's report, when the conductor of the train saw Swinney he applied his brakes sending his train into emergency lock down. The train traveled some 1,100 feet before stopping.

Swinney is the second Rockcastle citizen to be killed by a southbound CSX train this year. On April 2, Larry B. Reed, 32, was killed while hunting for a dog.

To the tune of about $1 million

Sewer system needs work

By: Ray McClure

After 14 years in existence, the Mt. Vernon City Council was told at a public hearing Monday night, it's time to upgrade the city sewer system.

Richard W. Moore, city engineer, told the council several projects are being looked at, and all are costly.

He said the changes are in the 201 Facilities Plan, better known as an engineering study, and that various organizations, state and national, are looking into the financing of the nearly $1 million total cost.

He stated the Appalachian Regional Commission has been asked for $350,000 and the remainder from the state Infrastructure Authority. Both have shown interest.

He enumerated them and the cost, as:

Sewer Plant Update, sewer lines, painting, storage building, $42,000.

In unanimous decision Council picks Pensol to head Roundstone

The Roundstone Site Based Decision Making Council unanimously selected elementary school teacher David Pensol to be the new principal at the school.

The council voted Monday to hire Pensol over the other applicant, former Roundstone principal Bill Jack Parsons. Pensol and Parsons were both interviewed by the committee Friday.

The principal's opening at Roundstone came when Mrs. Kathryn Howard resigned last week to take another elementary principal's position in Clark County. Mrs. Howard had been principal at the school for the past two years, replacing Parsons.

Pensol has been employed by the local school system for the past three years, all of which he spent as a teacher at Roundstone.

"I feel fortunate to have the opportunity to head such a fine elementary school and I am looking forward to the challenges this job will no doubt provide," Pensol said.

"As a community of teachers, students and parents, Roundstone school must continue assuming the responsibility for bringing it all together. In order to continue improvement and maximize success our school staff along with our parents must work hard to insure that all children get a well rounded education, and I intend to work hard to help that happen.

With the opening of the new middle school this month Roundstone's K through five grades will have approximately 250 students.

Under state guidelines any job opening in the Rockcastle County school system must be posted for 30 days, but in a situation such as this the state can and usually will allow superintendent's to fill vacancies immediately.

Superintendent Bige Towery, Jr., said Wednesday that he would take the council's recommendation and officially hire Pensol as soon as his

Youth struck at Flat Gap

A Roundstone Elementary third grade student, Jeremy Howard, 8, of Flat Gap, is in serious condition at UK Medical center after he was hit by a truck on Flat Gap Road while riding his bicycle.

He was struck by Doug Poynter, 35, of Conway. Poynter was charged with "no insurance and no registration." The accident occurred Monday.

The Howard youth was taken to Berea Hospital and flown to Lexington. He suffered extensive head injuries. Deputy Sheriff Darrell Doan reported.

RCCHS orientation dates next week

Principal Ronnie Cash has announced that Orientation Days will be held for all four grades before the opening of the new high school. There will be certain times for each grade to learn in confusion.

Cash said Wednesday that dates and times will be announced in next week's Signal. At orientation, students will receive their schedule, books, lockers and a tour of the new facility.

"We are really excited about this," Cash said. "For one thing, all the freshmen's classes will be in one wing and there will be no reason for them to leave the wing unless they have a technology or science course, and, of course, for lunch."

Supl. Towery said Wednesday that while it is going to be "very tight," he is being consistently assured by the job site superintendent and different contractors that the new high school will be ready except for the gym and auditorium.

However, Towery said there would not be time for an open house for parents before the opening of school. There will be an open house planned for the fall, Towery said.

The delay in the gym is due to the space being used for storage for furniture and other items and this kept

Sunday afternoon, July 31, was a happy occasion for Myrtle Kidwell, custodian at the Rockcastle County Court House. During an Open House, she officially received a new house from the Rockcastle County Housing Development Corporation.

Myrtle's new-house on Terry Street in Mt. Vernon has a living room, two bedrooms, a kitchen, bath, and utility room. The labor for construction was donated by Christian Appalachian Project. The house, one of six such dwellings in the county for low-income homeowners, was built with grant funds awarded to the Rockcastle County Fiscal Court from the Kentucky Housing Corporation Rehabilitation Program. The funds were administered by the Rockcastle County Community Housing Development Corporation. CAP donated the labor for three of the houses, and three were built by Landis and Allen Harding, who made the lowest bid on the project.

About forty people attended the Open House, which was hosted by Betty Carter, Anna Rose Mullins, and Nancy Meadows. Fresh flowers decorated the home, and refreshments were served.

Glen Taul, Publicity Director for CAP, took photos and gathered information. Ken Stuber, the CAP contractor on the home, was also present along with Myrtle's family and friends, many of whom brought house-warming gifts. Mr. Stuber presented a family Bible to Myrtle from CAP, and said, "Myrtle, we're glad to share this moment with you, and ask that you consider this house as a gift from Christ." Myrtle, who has cleaned homes for many people in Mt. Vernon across the years, responded by saying, "I want to thank everybody who had a hand in this, and I love every one of you."

Rockcastle County Fiscal Court holds ten-year forgivable mortgages on all six houses. The residents are required to carry adequate insurance coverage, make necessary repairs, and keep the house and ground presentable. All six dwellings were built in keeping with Kentucky building code specifications.

The next project for the Rockcastle County Community Housing Development Corporation, in conjunction with the Daniel Boone Development

Corp., Inc., is the reconstruction of four rental dwellings on Sand Springs Road in Mt. Vernon. That work will be bid out to contractors, and the current residents will have first option to rent. The board is also applying for other funds to rehabilitate more homes for low-income homeowners.

The Rockcastle County Housing Development Corporation held an open house at the new home of Myrtle Kidwell's last Sunday.

Over the last several weeks, dozens of people have been telling me that they can't raise cucumbers anymore. When the vines get almost large enough to start blooming and, in some cases, just after the fruits start setting on, their plants just wilt up and die. Folks say they've "tried everything" including varieties that are supposed to be resistant to all the diseases and bug sprays of various makes and models even though there's no obvious signs of insect damage. So I've spent a great deal of time of late explaining to my gardening friends that the chances are slim that their plants are diseased and that more than likely they are plagued with stink bugs.

How to get rid of them but, at this writing, we are picking a five gallon bucket full of cukes every day and the vine are still setting blooms.

I lost the first early hills I planted and discovered the stinkers when I pulled up the dead plants. I sprayed them with diazolan and they died instantly. However diazolan is not something I would recommend that anyone use in their vegetable garden. It will also kill cucumber vines and it might kill you too. Cucumbers, in fact, are so sensitive that liquid Sevin, mixed too strongly, will kill them.

I spoke with a couple of county agents who basically agreed with me and suggested that if Sevin wasn't doing the trick I should try the "Two-fire-brick" bug eliminator. This method works thully. First you lay one fire brick face-up on the ground near where the bugs are. You carry the other fire-brick in your left hand, face-down. With your right hand, you catch the bugs and place them on first brick and then, as quickly as you can, you smash them with brick number two.

I understand that the University of Kentucky has a published pamphlet that explains this operation in far greater detail and I may not have it mastered. Suffice it to say that it's also a great way to break most of the digits on your right hand. I called one of the agents back up to explain the sass I had on several fingers and he suggested that I may not have had the bricks in the correct order. Apparently it is sometimes difficult to tell the face of a fire-brick from the back. Anyway, if I were you, I would not waste much postage ordering this particular publication.

If you really want to get rid of stink bugs and raise fantastic cucumbers all you need is a five pound bag of 5 percent Sevin dust. Run yourself a five gallon bucket half full of lukewarm water and mix the entire bag of dust into it until you have a slurry. Then take a plastic cup and pour about twelve ounces of the slurry straight down where your cukes come out of the ground. Repeat this operation when your vines start blooming. Finally, don't be surprised if you see stink bugs scurrying out of the ground but don't try to catch them. Stink bugs put off an odor when they are smashed that will cause hogs to get nauseated.

You can plant cukes up till the middle of August and still get excellent results. Cuke that ripen in cooler weather are much crisper and firmer than the ones we pick in mid summer. There are any number of varieties that you can raise for 'dill pickles or gherkins that do far better planted this time of year than they do with spring plantings.

But if you are only interested in growing something to put in salads or eat with six beans you should stick with a variety called Marketmore-76.

When the weather cools off in October, you can cover your cukes vines with a piece of plastic that the discount stores sell for winter use down covering and they will survive until the temperature drops down into the upper twenties. We've had fresh cucumbers as late as Thanksgiving at least five out of the last seven years.

Right now is also a good time to plant a row of Roma II beans or any other variety that will mature within 60 days. You can also grow summer squash, zucchini and perhaps, best of all, green onions if you can find the sets. Lettuce, spinach, collards rad-

This is Tuesday, August second and our summer has quickly passed into fall. I am never ready for the change in seasons but nature moves on with its signs.

Folks are working on their gardens such as picking and saving their green beans.

My brother, Bluford, in Michigan, was so anxious to get products from home like "shuck beans" that I would send him a mess every year so last spring '93, we planted a row of "little green beans" just for him. Then we picked the beans, broke up, and dried about a gallon and sent to him, along with a piece of fatback seasoning meat. This cooked in beans made a dish one would overeat.

This fall I don't have him to send county foods to and it leaves me with a heartache. The strong flowers attract them and they fly around the porch drinking the juice.

White daisies and blackeyed Susans, a yellow petal like the daisy fills the roadside.

The farmers are cutting and making big, fat, yellow, doughnuts (they in their fields).

I got two wedding invitation for August 6th. My kinfolk, Bill and Flossie Stephens have a granddaughter getting married in August and the family members are giving her a shower, August 6th and I don't want to miss that. We'll tell you about that next week. I might get a chance to hug the groom.

Then our good friends, brother Stephen Cole and pretty wife, Shirley, are getting married again at their home near Corbin in celebration of their 25th wedding anniversary on Saturday, August 6. We are unable to make the long drive after daylight.

Henry Nelmer, one of my good readers of the Signal for about 10 years in Indiana, called to tell me about Susan Tomes having a birthday on August 19 and wanted to know if a gang of her friends could have a party to celebrate her birthday at Renfro Valley where she works as a group called New Renfro Valley singers.

Henry plans to be part of the celebration since he and Susan are good friends.

"I'll catch a plane and fly into Lexington, then rent a car to come over to the party," Henry said. Now I don't know Susan in person but I'm always in for surprises and if Henry wants to surprise this pretty girl (I've seen her in Renfro Valley TV shows) then I'm willing to pull

PRECIOUS SOULS, CHILDREN OF AN EVIL AGE, greetings and salvations from the pleasant Plains of Wabed, where last week one of our most eloquent citizens said, "A fortune awaits the person who will design a church building without any front pews."

Speaking of church, I returned last Sunday to the choir from which I had taken a six month sabbatical, but because of my hearing problem and an acute case of magnet opus in my medusa oblong-gotcha. I finally overcame by taking Scott's Emulsion four times a day for five months.

The sanctuary was filled, including the choir loft - but not the front rows. My preacher delivered a down-right good sermon on how to deal with the storms of life, which, he said, come to us all sooner or later. Perched in the choir, I had an excellent panorama of the congregation, which included several colorful outfits, a few elegant hats, four nodders nodding, three dozers dozing, two peepers peeping, and eleven gum-chewers in a pear tree. (The record for gum-chewers is thirty-one, set the Sunday before Christmas of '93).

My preacher is a brave soul - he offers a children's sermon each Sunday. The little tykes sit at his feet as he talks. And would you believe it, he sometimes asks them questions and lets them answer aloud! And he's gotten some hilarious responses! I, too, offered sermons to the little peepers when I was a pastor, but after two or three crowd-cracker-uppers I ceased asking questions.

One Sunday I asked the kids if they were thankful for their mommies and daddies. One sharp, burr-headed little fellow replied, "Yes, but my daddy isn't here today. He's playing golf." On another occasion I asked if anyone had a favorite Bible verse, and the son of a dairyman said, "I do!" "Will you say it for us?" I asked. Out it came - "We are heifers!"

I don't recommend that my preacher change anything about his children's sermons. As witty as he is, he can handle any response. His object lesson messages will stay with the kids. And, what those little rascals sometimes say is good entertainment.

Speaking of entertainment, do you ever get the feeling that we might be going to church to be entertained rather than to worship the Almighty? Sometimes we even applaud like an audience. Is a worship service the place for applause? Yes, if we view the going-on as performances. But whom are we applauding? Performers or the Lord? In a worship service we worship the Holy One. Everything should be done with Him in mind, not the congregation. Even the sermon is meant ultimately to help the worshiper offer praise and honor to the Father. Call me old school, but I'm strongly of the opinion that a worship service ought not resemble a political convention. (Attend a Southern Baptist Convention or catch some of the "shows" on TBN and you'll know what I mean!)

Our Heritage

By: Danny McKinney
CEO of the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Assoc.

The growing of burley tobacco in Kentucky is a way to make a living, but it is more than that. It is our heritage. We can trace happenings over the years, such as tobacco being Kentucky's first exported commodity.

We can talk about our present families growing tobacco as well as our fathers and their fathers before them. We can talk about tobacco as a way to clothe, feed and shelter our families. But these things cannot describe what growing tobacco really means to a Kentucky farmer or a Kentucky family farm.

Growing a tobacco crop does more than put money in the bank or food in our mouths. It means earning a living close to home, spending time with our family in our own community or in our own county -- rather than working for an "out-of-town" or "foreign-owned" company which, typically, cares more about how much you can produce than about you as a person. That same "out-of-state" or "Foreign-owned" company often rapes our communities by paying low wages and spending its big profits elsewhere. A tobacco farmer earns his living at home, spends his revenue at home, and everyone benefits.

There is an old saying that "a farmer keeps the mule to plant the corn and grows the corn to feed the mule." In fact, many farmers grow tobacco to support other agricultural enterprises and grow other crops to help support their tobacco. We all know that tobacco has been the "mortgage lifter" for many years. Over the past 50 years the average tobacco farmer has made money in all except one or two years. While there may have been some years better than others, tobacco has always been the stabilizing force on most Kentucky farms.

Heritage - what does it really mean? For a Kentucky tobacco farmer, heritage means the right to be proud of his contribution and that of his father before him. It means doing what he knows how to do best. It means taking pride in working for an honest living, supporting his family, church and community.

the rug out from anyone, even Henry. He wants me to help plan out the party and it could get a little wild. Tell you more later.

Henry says he likes to read, in this paper, about Ballard Parsons and the things he says or does (some to me). Henry wants his telephone number so here goes: 1-256-2770. If a lot of pretty girls use it, don't blame me, Ballard. After all they may want a ride in your new electric vehicle.

John and I both are in bed health and don't go to church regular. We neither drive at night.

Brother John Dodson, our pastor, came to see us on Saturday, so we were feeling better the next day, we got ourselves together and attended.

When the church bulletin was passed out, we were surprised to see our names in the list of members needing special prayers along with Edd and Juanita Croucher. We knew they were in poor health but we didn't think any of the members remembered us.

Put up an old rooster in a pen to fatten, and come to the Homecoming at Gallilee Church.

I told Paige Anderkin Bengie she had a good looking husband and the picture of the two of them at Cedar Rapids Country Club, in a tournament July 4th, proves it when you see the smile Spencer wears or he is pleased at hugging a pretty girl.

Well, did we have a happy time Sunday afternoon when our great grandson, Chase Cornett and his mommy, Karen, from Park Hills in Northern Kentucky came to visit us.

There isn't anything we didn't bring out for him to play with and he proved he had a mind of his own. If I wanted to pull him in a wagon, he got out and made me let him pull or he threw aside any toy he didn't care about.

Being almost two years old in the coming January, he could go anywhere he wanted and did. It kept we three grownups busy keeping watch on him.

I now have four little yellow ducks to worry over -- I had told John I wouldn't get anymore but they are so cute, I broke over and got four.

Till then: John is working on molasses tools to use this fall. The doctor says I'm not to eat sweets so John says he'll save money.

ishes and turnips need to be sowed the last week of August and all will produce far better results than Spring plantings. If you can find some cauliflower and broccoli seed, you can still plant those directly in the garden and thin them out to about 18 inches between plants when they come up. You can buy cabbage cheaper than you can raise it but it will also grow well too if you plant it as soon as you lay this paper down.

The message, though, is that if you lost your early cucumbers and you love them as much as I do, plant yourself a couple of hills right away and buy yourself a bag of Sevin dust. And don't let the stink bugs get you down.

Hersey

But someone says that when he applauds he is saying, "God, I feel that way, too." If that's really what he means, a soft "Amen" or a raised hand would say it better.

In this bored-stuff age of ours, we are so television oriented that we carry that mentality into church with us. Use to thirty minutes segments of time, we get any if the sermon goes longer. (But that's all right. If it can't be said in twenty to twenty five minutes, let the preacher prepare some more.) Entertained by the tube, we go to church and unconsciously look for the same. Does "Good sermon, Preacher" mean "I liked what you said," or does it mean, "What you said, Preacher, helped me commune with God?"

Several years ago, a friend of mine who graduated from the seminary a year ahead of me had a pulpit committee show up at his rural church. They were from a large, prestigious church in Louisville. One of our seminary professors had an "in" with the committee and gave them my friend's name (was my Bill).

Bill's head was swimming. To think that such a great church was interested in him, young as he was. Since they were interested in him, he began to investigate the church. He knew that a man in the church I pastored worked with one of the members of that pulpit committee. So, he asked me to have my member put a question to the pulpit committee member: What is your church looking for in a pastor? I made that arrangement without Bill's name being involved.

A week or so later, Bill asked me if I had any response.

"Yes, I do," I replied. "Sam (the pulpit committee member) said, 'What most of our members want is an entertainer.'"

Joey Tackett on his McDonald's sponsored go-kart.

Tackett is Go-Karting winner

Ever since he was 12 years old, Joey Tackett has been hooked on Go-Karting. For the past eleven years, he has been racing not only in Kentucky, but in surrounding states including Daytona, Fla.

For Joey, go-karting is a team sport.

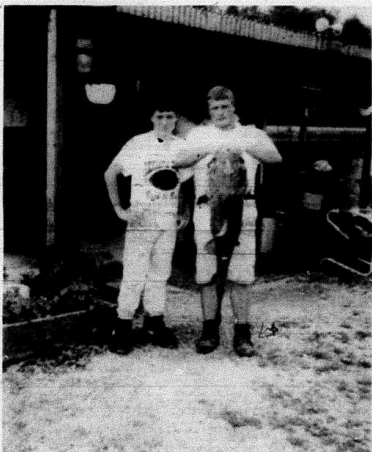

His partner is his dad, Floyd, who is with him at every race, helping him set-up the kart, advising him on the track condition, and just being there. His biggest supporter, however, is his mom, Ann.

In May, he won one of the biggest races in his career at Somerset in the initial race in the Southern Kentucky Raceway series. The win placed him first on the point standing in the six race competition which will last throughout the summer

Joey has a '94 Probe Sidewinder Kart. The kart is of a fairly new design with the engine offset to the right. Everything on it is adjustable—axles, the torsion bar, and even the wheels may be adjusted within seconds. There is no limitation to the amount of horsepower. In the straightaway, the kart can reach speeds of 72 miles an hour.

The kart itself, he estimates, costs about $2,000 but is the travel expenses which are so expensive. To help out with the cost, Brad and Sundae Park, who own and operate McDonald's Restaurants in Berea and Mt. Vernon, are his sponsors throughout the year. Joey works at Tokico in Berea and does most of his racing in Kentucky at Somerset Raceway.

create dislike from poor behavior. Poor behavior erodes public support for any activity.

Remember that every contact we as hunters have with people, whether at a gas station, restaurant, or driving along to or from our hunting spot, is an opportunity. Each of us has the chance to make a favorable impression or an unfavorable one. We must be considerate, safe, respectful and courteous at all times. Hunters have done more good than anyone for wildlife and toward improving the quality of life for everyone who enjoys the outdoors. Yet, as proud as we'll can be of our accomplishments, we must earn the respect that goes with the achievement every single time we go hunting. How? By doing things the right way -- every time.

This season, let's be aware of how we act each time we put on our hunting clothes. When we travel, let's be extra careful and helpful on the roads. Try not to get in a hurry and if you come across a motorist in trouble, stop and lend a hand. People who drive by and see someone dressed in hunting attire helping another person change a tire will remember. When you stop to get gas, food, or supplies, be courteous, friendly and patient. Let someone else get in front of you in the register line and tell the cashier thanks and to have a nice day. They will remember.

Why ethical hunting is important

Each year as the fall hunting seasons get underway, we read articles, or see segments on outdoor television shows on hunter ethics. But do these reminders really stick with us? Do they?

There are rarely any secrets, or little known facts given away in these kinds of stories to help us prepare for a season or become more successful. Articles on ethics don't discuss techniques, equipment improvements or anything else about our physical performance while we hunt. They address the hunter's frame of mind, and let's admit it, sometimes philosophical stories are less likely to gain our attention. The topic of ethics usually doesn't excite the senses as might an actual hunting experience retold. Yet make no mistake, the hunter who fails to realize the importance of learning, practicing and teaching youngsters sound hunter ethics, is more unprepared to go hunting than he or she would be leaving home without a gun.

Why is being a safe and ethical hunter so important? The biggest reason is because it is simply the right thing to do. Hunting is more than matching wits with a game animal and providing good food for the table. Hunting is more than the enjoyment of being outdoors and learning about nature and wildlife. It is an agreement and trust between hunters and landowners and hunters and the public. It is a good and productive partnership for all -- when treated as it should be.

In return for granting permission to hunt, landowners trust hunters to be safe, obey instruction and treat the land and property with respect. When landowners give their permission, it is a step of faith and trust and the hunter is expected to honor that trust. Anything less is unethical and intolerable.

Likewise people who don't hunt have trust with the hunting community to act responsibly, help care for wildlife and the environment and be the leaders in conservation. And while all people who enjoy wildlife should contribute and do their part for wildlife, the truth is sportsmen and sports-women are relied upon as the primary caretakers of natural resources. When we act in an irresponsible, unsafe and unethical manner, we say to the world we are not worthy of being the stewards of wildlife. Wildlife deserves proper respect, as do landowners whose practices sustain wildlife, as do those who support hunting in any regard.

In Kentucky, 75 percent of the population believes that hunting is an acceptable activity, even though only about 10 percent buy a hunting license. Public support for hunting is strong. It remains just as crucial, however, that we as hunters conduct ourselves appropriately so that the majority of people continue to think hunting is okay. You see, most people think hunting is fine and understand the good things being able to hunt provides. It's the hunters who can Republican from Somerset, filed the two motions Friday in U.S. District Court.

His arguments to Judge Joseph M.

Hood for throwing out the charges include that the government has sidestepped the five-year statute of limitations, engaged in entrapment and purposely delayed the indictment of him to gain a tactical advantage.

Rogers, a lawyer who has been in the Senate since 1976, faces trial Oct. 17. He pleaded not guilty in April to two counts of extortion and one count each of mail fraud and lying to the FBI.

He is charged with conspiring to take money from the owner of a Bowling Green bank in return for helping pass a 1984 bill that would allow banks to expand beyond county and state lines.

The indictment said Rogers lied to the FBI in March 1992 about money he thought Wilkinson owed him for supporting the banking bill eight years earlier. Wilkinson, elected governor in 1987, has not been charged and has said he did nothing wrong.

Attorney John Clontz, part time city attorney, explained the process of zoning the city, a long and expensive undertaking. Councilwoman Karen King had requested the information.

The council re-affirmed police policy and procedures and put off until later the 1995 vehicle and water-craft tax rate.

Teachers prepare for district opening

As the Rockcastle County School System prepares to open the 1994-95 school year, teachers too, are engaged in Professional Development, Curriculum Unit Design and Classroom Management Techniques.

Cheryl Ungerlieder, Cheats Academy Consultant, recently conducted several professional development workshops with an emphasis on curriculum and thematic studies. Approximately 30 teachers, from various grade levels participated.

According to Bige W. Towery, Jr., Superintendent, Rockcastle County Schools, "I am very pleased and encouraged that our schools are devoting comprehensive attention to the area of quality Professional Development. It is very obvious that our approach to teacher/staff training has grown far beyond the traditional 'inservice days.'"

Over the next few weeks the high school, middle school and each of the three elementary schools will be providing in-house training to meet each individual School's Professional Development Plan.

On August 8-11 twelve (12) local educators will be attending the U.K. Arts Institute at the University of Kentucky. During the four (4) day institute topics will include: "KERA and the National Standards in Arts Education;" "Multiple Intelligencies and KERA" and "Assessing The Arts in KERA."

Oz Nelson, Chief Executive Official of United Parcel Service and Chair of the Partnership for School Reform in Kentucky recently stated, "Support for those who are on the front lines, delivering instruction to our children, must be a priority. In short, the successful implementation of education in reform hinges on the quality of professional development of our teachers."

In the upcoming weeks the Rockcastle County Schools will be providing the Mt. Vernon Signal with information regarding transportation, pro-school scheduling, district calendar, and public engagement.

Local teachers participate in EKVU summer writing project -- The Rockcastle County School District was represented in Eastern Kentucky University's eighth annual Writing Project this summer by Tammy Napier Miller, second from left, Rockcastle County Middle School, and Cindy Ellington, third from left, Brodhead Elementary. The project, funded by grants from the Kentucky Department of Education and the National Writing Project, allowed 20 area teachers to attend an intensive six-week course that details new and proven writing strategies for the classroom. One of the goals of the Kentucky Education Reform Act is to improve students' writing skills across the curriculum. At left is Project co-director Julie Whitaker, an English teacher at Madison Southern High School; at right is Co-Director Dr. Charles Whitaker, a professor of English at EKVU.

Cheryl Ungerlieder, center, assists high school teachers Bill Lynch and Ruth Allen.

District educators attend workshop on Curriculum Alignment and Thematic Unit design.

Sandy Coning and Hope Carmack

Two students participate in HCOP

Two students from Rockcastle County got a head start this summer and will continue to receive a helping hand at Eastern Kentucky University in the University's Health Careers Opportunity Program (HCOP).

Sandy Coning and Hope Carmack are among 30 enrolled this year in EKVU/HCOP, which seeks to attract Appalachian students into allied health disciplines and prepare them for productive careers in a region beset by acute health care shortages. The program includes a special effort to prepare the students in the sciences, mathematics and study skills.

Prior to their first semester this fall, each of the EKVU/HCOP participants participated in a six-week, non-credit summer enrichment course designed to acclimate them to campus life and lay the groundwork for the academic work that awaits them.

"We'll have an advantage over the other freshmen," said Carmack. "We'll know what college life is like."

Carmack and Coning both plan to major in medical assisting technology.

Students have the choice of four baccalaureate degree programs, Environmental Health, Health Information, Clinical Laboratory Science and Occupational Therapy, as well as three associate degree programs, Medical Assistant, Clinical Lab Technician and Health Information technician.

EKVU/HCOP provides the following:

- financial aid information and assistance.
- a summer enrichment program of learning activities including field trips to clinical sites.
- supplemental instruction in "at-risk" courses such as chemistry, mathematics and biology.
- intense advising/mentoring.

"One of the good things about the program is that the students aren't turned loose after the summer program," said Patsy Daugherty, project director. "We have part-time instructors and teaching assistants lined up who will actually attend the classes

Local students accepted into EKU teacher education program

Three Mt. Vernon residents have been accepted into the teacher education program at Eastern Kentucky University.

Among the latest additions to the program are Cynthia C.W. Rogers, Gina L.C. Nicely, and Leslie Sealf.

Students are accepted into the program their junior year only after meeting stringent EKU College of Education standards. They must display above-average academic ability, demonstrate proficient computer and communication skills (including a satisfactory performance on the University writing exam), perform satisfactorily in an individual interview and receive positive recommendations from four EKU faculty members.

Eastern's College of Education, the Commonwealth's largest producer of classroom teachers and school administrators, also met a high standard recently when it was reaccredited by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE), the agency responsible for professional accreditation of teacher education programs.

When students graduate from EKU's program, they will be prepared to lead a contemporary classroom; in the commonwealth, that means a classroom environment transformed by the Kentucky Education Reform Act (KERA).

The elements of KERA are continually stressed to teacher education students at Eastern, who have ample field experiences, both observing and student teaching, to see and apply those elements in practice.

"Our graduates are prepared to be leaders, wherever their career takes them," said Dr. Kenneth Henson, dean of EKU's College of Education.

grades, and special education. Secondary education students have majors in other colleges, but do have education counselors in the College of Education.

Free dogwood trees

Ten free white flowering dogwood trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during August.

The free trees are part of the non-profit Foundation's Trees for America campaign.

The white flowering dogwoods will add year-round beauty to your home and neighborhood," John Rosenow, the Foundation's president, said. "Dogwoods have showy spring flowers, scarlet autumn foliage, and red berries which attract songbirds all winter."

The trees will be shipped postpaid.

at the right time for planting between Oct. 15 and Dec. 10 with enclosed planting instructions. The six to 12 inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge.

Members also receive a subscription to the Foundation's colorful bi-monthly publication, Arbor Day, which includes regular features about tree planting and care.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, send a $10 membership contribution to Ten Dogwoods, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by Aug. 31.

Forest sponsors archaeology program

Area residents are being invited to help the U.S. Forest Service stabilize and map a looted prehistoric site on the London Ranger District.

The effort will take place on Thursday, Aug. 4. There will be three work sessions, each lasting two hours. The only requirement for participation is that volunteers be at least 12 years old and have a desire to help protect cultural resources.

Volunteers will help forest service archaeologists sift for artifacts and fill holes left by looters. The site will also be mapped and participants will each receive a copy of a report prepared from the information collected.

The Forest Service hopes to use the project to help educate the public about the need to protect cultural resources. According to archeologist Bill Sharp, people often think of hunting artifacts as an end in itself. "The real importance of any artifact comes from the context within which it is found," said Sharp. "Removing an artifact from its surroundings is like pulling the pages out of a book. Once the page is gone, neither the book nor the page can give you the whole story."

Anyone interested in helping with the project should contact the London Ranger District Office at 864-4163.

Graze alfalfa? A fine pasture

Alfalfa has the highest yield potential and feeding value of all perennial forage legumes. Kentucky farmers

It's certainly cheaper than just growing the legume for hay.

Over 40 percent of the cost to produce alfalfa hay is machinery and equipment. In a total grazing system, this cost can be eliminated or minimized.

"Grazing alfalfa has not been practiced to any great extent in the U.S., but it has been extensively in other countries," said Garry Lacefield, Extension forages specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"Research and producer experience has shown excellent gains per animal and per acre without shortening the alfalfa stand's life expectancy," Lacefield told participants attending the National Alfalfa Grazing Conference in Nashville, TN.

Alfalfa is one of the most versatile plants grown in this country, he said. It can be used for hay, pasture, silage, green-chop, pellets, cubes and soil improvement.

"Because of its yield, quality and versatility, it can be used successfully in many animal feeding programs," he said.

Systems that graze early spring growth provide quality feed and delay the first hay harvest until more favorable weather for curing, he said. Other systems allow grazing during mid-summer when cool-season grasses are less productive.

"Alfalfa's quality for grazing is excellent," Lacefield said. "Gains of over two pounds per day in grazing trials have been demonstrated. Liveweight gains per acre are quite high for grazing beef cattle with total season gains averaging 400 to 800 pounds per acre. Seasonal gains of more than 1,000 pounds per acre have been reported."

In addition, alfalfa's deep root system makes it more drought tolerant than other cool-season legumes and grasses.

Finally, Lacefield said, grazing can extend by a year or more the life of old hay fields where stands have declined or become weedy.

Plan for next year's crop to avoid corn rootworm damage

Western and northern corn rootworms already completed feeding this year, causing permanent damage in some areas.

Once producers observe damage in fields, little can be done to save defoliated plants, said Ric Bessin, Extension entomologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"Growers should begin to plan for next year," he said.

Corn rotation is generally the best strategy to prevent rootworms. However, damage can occur in corn following soybeans, because of southern rootworms. Southern corn rootworms overwinter as adults and can attack first year corn fields. But damage from this species is much less common.

Producers who decide to continuously grow corn on the same ground should determine whether or not they use a soil insecticide during planting, said Bessin. "Counts of western and northern rootworm beetles made during the next few weeks can be used to make soil insecticide recommendations for next year."

Adult western rootworm beetles are yellow with three black stripes on top of wing covers. Northern beetles differ only because of the absence of black stripes. Adult evidence this summer are a result from last year's eggs laid in corn.

Hatching early in spring, larvae feed on roots and cause the most considerable damage during rootworm development. Corn appears yellowish and shows a lack of nutrients or drought stress. Plants severely damaged may fall over during strong winds and rain, causing the plant to "goose-neck." "Plants appear to show any symptoms listed, dig up root systems and look for rootworm injury."

"If you frequently see beetles as you walk through the field, select 20 plants from several random locations in the center of the field," said Bessin. "Make counts on every third or fourth plant until you have examined 20 plants."

Rootworm beetles are jittery insects and will fly off when disturbed, so approach plants quietly. Make a count of every beetle on tips of ears, tassels, leaf surfaces and behind leaf axils.

"Treatment may be necessary if silks are clipped back to less than one-half inch or before 50 percent of plants are pollinated, and five or more beetles are present per plant," he said. "If the counts approach or reach an average of 20 beetles per 20 plants (one per plant), growers are advised to use a rootworm insecticide for the following year."

Squirrel season opens August 20

Kentucky's squirrel season opens statewide Saturday, August 20. This will be the first chance since the spring turkey season for hunters to return to the woods.

According to Jeff Sole, upland game program coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR), squirrel hunters can expect a good to excellent season this year. Squirrel populations are directly related to the volume of food available from the previous year. Last year, Kentucky recorded its highest mast, or nut crop ever.

"There should be lots of squirrels this time, even though we had a pretty rough winter this time," reports Sole.

"We just want to remind hunters to remember their safety rules, remember to pick up their hunting license, and go out and have a good time," said the biologist.

Squirrel hunting is an excellent opportunity for veteran hunters to help youngsters learn how to hunt and handle firearms correctly. Before the season opens, adult hunters should familiarize a youngster with using a rifle or shotgun safely. Attending a hunter education course, offered free through the KDFWR year-round, is a superb way to learn more about firearm safety, hunter ethics and hunting laws. Persons born on or after January 1, 1975, are required by law to complete a certified hunter education course before going hunting.

In August and September, hunters should concentrate their efforts early in the morning or late in the afternoon. Squirrels will be most active during these periods. Squirrels before the season to find holes and other trees that have ripe acorns will save time on the day of the hunt. Trees with green hull shavings underneath usually indicate squirrels have recently been feeding in that tree. Hunters should also scout for green-Oak nests to help them locate squirrels when the season opens.

Kentucky's squirrel season is open Aug. 20 through Nov. 11, and Nov. 22 through Dec. 31. The daily limit on squirrels is six. KDFWR law enforcement officials strongly recommend that on Oct. 15-16, squirrel hunters wear an article of hunter orange clothing. The early muzzle-loading deer season will also be open Oct. 15-16, and hunters should make themselves as easy to identify as possible to increase safety.

RCHS Summer school ends with trip to Washington D.C.

RCHS completed another summer term on Monday, July 25. Summer school is a service provided by the Rockcastle County Schools to enable students to receive benefits not received during the regular school term or to make up lacking credits. Finances for these services are provided through the extended school services (ESS) program. This program also provides for the after school tutoring and in certain cases Saturday school in some districts.

RCHS, since 1988, has worked closely with the Destination Graduation (DG) Program of Eastern Kentucky University (EKU) under the direction of Ms. Nancy Thames. DG is a federal program designed to enhance the educational opportunities provided by local school districts. This is done by providing ECU students as tutors/mentors for high school and elementary summer school students. In addition to the ECU tutors Ms. Thames, has used the grant money of Destination Graduation, to extend the classroom beyond the school building facilities. During the past four years students have been allowed to visit and dine in places such as Shakertown (Pleasant Hill), Boone Tavern Hotel (Berea), and Arlington (Richmond). Visits to facilities such as the Kentucky Horse Park and the Marriott in Lexington have allowed students to see the value in the hospitality, recreation, and tourism business. Students have also been exposed to Rockcastle County sites with visits to Salt Peter Cave, Renfro Valley, Rockcastle Mfg., Mt. Vernon Plastics and Rockcastle Hospital. Many student and teachers were pleased to find modern facilities providing products and services which compete with and rival facilities found in larger communities. The 1994 RCCHS summer school staff, through finances provided by Extended School Services and Destination Graduation, made the decision that multiple, mini trips would not be done this year, instead there would be only one culminating event which would enable students to have an educational experience they would remember and value. After several weeks of planning by Ms. Thames and Rockcastle administrators a one-day trip to Washington, D.C. to tour our nation's capitol was finalized. On Thursday, July 21 a group of 30

RCCHS students and chaperones left RCCHS at 4:45 a.m. drove to Louisville, and departed via U.S. Air to Washington, D.C. A Gold Line tour bus met the group at Washington National Airport and provided the participants with a brief, educational tour of Arlington National Cemetery, U.S. Capitol Building and several other well known monuments, shrines and facilities.

While one half the summer school group completed a tour, the group posed for a photo in front of our nation's Capitol building. The participants were all staff members of RCCHS summer school, Rockcastle County students, or tutors of the Destination Graduation program which gave 90 percent of the money necessary to provide this educational experience.

Our Readers Write

Dear Editor,
We are living in a bad time when we can't dispose of our garbage at a disposal plant ourselves and pay 75¢ a bag, when you only have a bag once a week, $3 a month.
But the Metropolis of Livingston, town board, wants it mandatory that you pay them $12 a month. I think it's the citizen's God given right to dispose of their own garbage.

It has been known in some states peoples trash has been pilfered through. Even if I wanted to bury it, should be your right. The next thing that might be passed, no toilet paper to be put in your commode.

Now Livingston cut my water off for no garbage hauling. We will see you in court. I've been thinking for some time to go back to my well and having a cess pool. Your water don't taste good anyway.

J.D. Rice
P.S.: How about my constitutional rights? seems strange to me after all these years one person refuses garbage pickup, they come up with this ordinance. Are they making money? I remember when we had no pickup at all for years. We survived then. We used to have our trash hauled off.
I for myself am getting tired of our federal, state, and county, city, telling us we can't and it's mandatory. How about you?

Why Double Vision?

There are any number of reasons for double vision. Your optometrist is trained to get to the root of the problem and, in most cases, solve it, too. Suddenly seeing double may be no more serious a problem than misaligned bifocals; it's a simple matter for the eye professional to readjust the glasses or change the placement of one segment. Occasionally, double vision may be the sign of a developing health problem; in that case, you may be referred to another doctor for further testing. In children, the key to double vision is often poor eye-muscle coordination that can result in crossed eyes. The child is unlikely to complain; instead, the brain seems to compensate for the double vision by blocking out the image from one eye. As a result, binocular vision may be suppressed and the child may grow up without the full depth perception needed for normal school and play.

Early examination and intervention—usually glasses and/or vision training—will generally improve the child's functional vision.

Billy Medley. Burial was in the Elmwood Cemetery. Pallbearers were Donald Mullins,

Today In Banking

Some "Straight Talk" On Banking Today... That Can Make Banking Better For You...

Where Does the Money Come From?

Unlike the government, a bank can't just print up a bunch of new money when the supply runs low. The money we loan to you comes from the money you invest with us. When you buy a C.D. or make another investment with the bank, we take that investment and use it to make ag loans as well as the other loans needed in our community. Out-of-town investments take your investment dollar and re-invest it somewhere else.

So when it comes time to invest your money, remember who will be loaning you the money to make some more. Save where you borrow. Substantial penalty for early withdrawal on Certificates of Deposits.

Making Banking Better For You!
