Things have changed

My brother, Ish, and I were gliding along I-75, cruising set at a safe speed, which allowed others to pass if they wanted to break the speed limit or join our cavalcade and enjoy the scenery which abounds in Kentucky, when suddenly each of us looked at the other and said almost in unison, "Things sure have changed since our days." "Things" meant the cars and driving conditions of yesteryear versus today, and "Our day" meant some sixty five years ago. You bet things have changed.

We then began to reminisce about some of our past experiences when the best of highways were narrow two land roads and cars had running boards, and windshields that separated in the middle that could be cranked open to allow fresh air to blow in our faces. Some of the coupes and roadsters had rumble seats, often jokingly referred to as "mother-in-law" seats. These were seats tucked into what is the trunk area of modern cars. When the lid to the area was lowered instead of raised, there it was, one seat big enough for two that was simply perfect for two people who wanted privacy or a place to get the mother-in-law out of the way where she could grumble to herself. A small niche (step) in the frame of the car above the running board gave access to this ideal seat for the other couple when double dating. Uh, huh, we had one of them, Ish drove and I was half of the couple that enjoyed the rumble seat.

Cars back in the twenties didn't have the speed, (at forty five miles an hour one was considered a speed demon), not comfort, (narrow hard metal spring shock absorbers and no air-conditioners) of todays vehicles whose cruising speed is sixty-five miles an hour, the tires are designed so one is floating on air, the shock absorbers are cushions of fluid, and the air conditioners keep the passengers comfortable regardless of the time of year.

A three hundred mile trip, in the twenties, could take two days of driving, and remember, there were no motels nor fast food places along the way. And the gas stations were few and far between so it was not uncommon to run out of gas and have to walk miles to get more, or even worse, push the car to the next station. Pushing cars was a normal thing to do for they often had to be pushed to start them when the car was cold and the crank wouldn't turn the motor over, or one got stuck in a mud hole and had to be pushed out. The pusher, sloping along right behind the car as it spun and twisted it's way out of the mud. The driver in cases like this was the lucky one for he didn't have to push.

Long trips could be a nightmare for there was no such things as rest areas, not even toilets, unless a gas station could be found with an old fashioned toilet behind the station the owners would allow travelers to use. Often the car would have to be stopped alongside the road where there were trees or behind a big bill-board that one could hide in or behind to attend to their needs. And one had to watch carefully where he/she stepped for other travelers had the same problems.

Entertainment was important on these trips for kids get cranky if they have nothing to keep their minds occupied and since there were no radios nor tapes to be used for entertainment we played word games, counted cars going in the other direction and even counted the sections of concrete the roads were made of. There was a constant click, click of the wheels as they rolled over these cracks in the highway. Another thing we counted was the white crosses beside the road. These crosses were put up, one for each person killed in an accident on the road. (Can you imagine what our highways would look like today if that was still done?) Today sign of a death on the highway is severe skid marks and a pile of rubble beside the road.

There were quaint little home restaurants every few miles where one could really get home cooked food and it didn't cost a weeks pay to feed a whole family. And one didn't have to pull off the highway and search for them. They were in plain view and the families that run them were courteous and friendly. Another interesting thing beside the road was the signs. The one us kids enjoyed most was the one that would always end in, "Burma Shave." These advertisements were a series of sayings on sign boards, in large readable print, sometimes extending for a mile or so before the final words of, Burma Shave, would appear. Each series had a different message on it.

Mud, snow and ice were always a problem in the winter months. It was nearly impossible to get up a hill, or sometimes even on straight sections of road, without using chains. It was a cold nasty job to put them on and take them off which often happened when the car was stuck in a snow drift or mud hole. But the joy of owning a car was worth all the trouble for it got us places where otherwise we couldn't have gone. Going for an afternoon drive then was truly, joy riding.

Now compare this to todays driving over superhighways with your car set on the speed you want to drive, the air conditioner set for your own comfort, music of your choice keeping you company, and a little red warning light will tell you if something is wrong, and you can quickly agree, things certainly have changed since automobiles were introduced as the newest way of traveling.

Commander Roger Coldiron

Cmdr. Roger Coldiron selected as chairman

Commander Roger Coldiron, son of Carmon and Edison Coldiron of Mt. Vernon has been selected as the Chairman of the Department of Professional Programs at the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland.

When he was selected for his new assignment, Commander Coldiron was serving as the executive officer in USS Thomas S. Gates (CG-51), a Ticonderoga Class guided missile Aegis Cruiser homeported in Norfolk, Virginia. The Ticonderoga Class is 567-foot, 10,000 ton warships carrying a vast array of armament and are considered the elite ships of the modern high-tech Navy. They each pack more firepower than a half-dozen World War II heavy cruisers.

The Naval academy has approximately 4,000 midshipmen, all of whom are pursuing an undergraduate education as well as commissions in the Navy and Marine Corps upon graduation. Commander Coldiron's Department supports the professional training of midshipmen including sail training, powered vessel training in 85 foot yard patrol craft and leadership training in a Marine corps environment. He is also responsible for assignment of midshipmen to Navy ships and Marine Corps units for summer training.

A 1978 graduate of the University of Kentucky, Commander Coldiron was commissioned as a Naval Officer Candidate School in 1979. Following commissioning, he was assigned to USS Moosbrugger 9DD-980, a Spruance Class destroyer homeported in Charleston, South Car. He then served as Operations Officer for the Commander, Hydrofoil Squadron Two in Key West, Fla.

Following two years at the Surface Warfare Officers school in Newport, Rhode Island, he was assigned as Operations Officer in USS Dahlgren (DDG-43) where he made the first of a number of deployments to the Middle East. USS Dahlgren was operating in the Strait of Hormuz just west of Iran when USS Vincennes shot down an Iranian airliner in July 1988.

After a two-year tour in Dahlgren, Commander Coldiron transferred to the staff of Commander, Carrier Group Two. During this tour, he was deployed to the eastern Mediterranean conducting operations when Marine Corps Colonel Higgins was hanged in Lebanon during the summer of 1989. Carrier Group Two was responsible for the successful evacuation of the American Embassy in Lebanon in September of that year.

In August 1990, Carrier Group Two was assigned to USS John F. Kennedy (CV-67) and departed on five days' notice for the Red Sea in response to the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait in early August. Commander Coldiron served as the Surface Operations Officer on the staff which was designated Commander, battle force Red Sea planning the movements of three aircraft carriers and thirty surface ships including those which eventually launched the initial Tomahawk strike into Iraq.

At the conclusion of Desert Storm, Commander Coldiron was selected as the aide and Flag Lieutenant to Vice Admiral J. Paul Reason, Commander, Naval Surface Force Atlantic Fleet when he served until his assignment as executive officer in Thomas S. Gates.

Commander Coldiron holds three awards of the Meritorious Service Medal, two Navy Commendation Medals, one for heroism, and one award of the Navy achievement Medal as well as a number of service and campaign awards. He has made five major deployments to the Mediterranean and Middle East as well as shorter deployments to places as diverse as the Norwegian Sea and the Eastern Pacific Ocean off the coast of Colombia.

He is married to the former Anne Elizabeth Banks of Raleigh, North Car., Ph. D. candidate at the University of Virginia and they have one daughter, Kate, 12.

Ten free trees

Ten free trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during September 1994.

The free trees are part of the non-profit Foundation's Trees for America campaign.

The ten trees are the American Redwood, White Pine, Sugar Maple, White Flowering Dogwood, Pin Oak, Red Maple, Birch, Silver Maple, Red Oak, and Colorado Blue Spruce.

These trees were selected to provide benefits every season of the year: lovely spring flowers, cool summer shade, spectacular autumn colors, and winter berries and nesting sites for songbirds, John Rosenow, the Foundation's president, said.

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting between October 15 and December 10 with enclosed planting instructions. The six to twelve inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge.

Members also receive a subscription to the Foundation's colorful bimonthly publication, Arbor Day, on Arbor Day Foundation wall calendar, and The Tree Book with information about tree planting and care.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, send a $10 membership contribution to Ten Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 10 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by Sept. 30, 1994.

We are much more than a long-term facility . . .

We are much more than a long-term facility. Are you aware of the other services offered by your community hospital's Respiratory Care Department?

There are EEG (electroencephalograph) services for all ages. These tests allow a physician to detect any abnormalities in the brain waves. These tests are transmitted to Lexington where they are read by a neurologist.

Pulmonary Function testing is also available. This type of test helps determine if lung function is impaired and to what degree. Another use of these tests is to determine eligibility for Black Lung Benefits. You can also see the amount of improvement achieved after using a bronchodilator.

Stress testing is a very important step in evaluating cardiac function. The patient has lead wires hooked to electrodes placed at various spots on the chest. He/she will then be asked to walk on a treadmill while the technician and physician carefully monitor the function of the heart during the "stress" of walking.

These are just a few of the services offered by our fine hospital's Respiratory Care Department.

Problems at Northern get judge's attention

Because of numerous complaints to his office, Rockcastle County Judge/Executive Buzz Carlolis has written a letter to the state making a request for Northern Rockcastle Water District to alleviate a pressing water problem.

"Water shortages and low pressure are constant, which are caused by severe leaks - up to 60,000 gallons a day are going into the ground," the judge wrote.

"I am, therefore, requesting that all possible aid be extended this water district to alleviate this pressing problem as soon as possible," he concluded.

A carbon copy of the letter went to Byron Baker of the water district board.

Rep. Rogers in Rockcastle

U.S. Rep. Harold "Hal" Rogers will visit Rockcastle County on Saturday, Sept. 10 as part of his summer tour of Kentucky's 5th Congressional district.

"Everyone is invited to come and visit with me during my town meeting at the Courthouse's Circuit Court room," Rogers said. "I will be available to answer questions and hear comments about issues such as health care reform, social security, crime, economic development or any other issue important to you."

Rogers will also be available to talk with residents about any problems they may be having with the Federal Government.

No cards without form

The AD-1026 Highly Erodible Land Certification form is required before receiving any program benefits. Burley tobacco marketing cards will not be issued without this form being completed in the Rockcastle County ASCS Office.

The 1994 MQ-38- Eligibility Statements to Receive Price Support on Burley Tobacco will be mailed to all farm operators with an acreage quota on Sept. 1, 1994. This form must also be completed and returned to the ASCS Office before receiving a 1994 marketing card.

ASCs programs are open to all persons, regardless of race, color, national origin, sex, religion, marital status, age or handicap.

Residents voice concerns over schools

A small group of Livingston residents held a press conference Tuesday morning to voice their concern about what they say are overcrowded conditions at Mt. Vernon Elementary school and on school buses that travel between the Livingston area and the school as well as the amount of time some children spend on school buses each day.

With a closed Livingston school as a backdrop, speakers said that some students spend over three hours a day on a school bus.

"I would like to ask how many of you are as outraged as I am over the treatment of our children," asked Leigh Anne Zaring a Lamero parent, who spoke to the small crowd.

Mrs. Zaring and Gail Lile, a member of Hometown Education for Local Pupils told the group that some Livingston area students are on school buses for three hours per day and that some school buses are arriving at schools too late for children, who wait and need to eat breakfast.

"When the local school board decided to close Livingston school, the citizens and parents of this area were assured that there would not be such overcrowding and that the transportation of students would be worked out so that it would run smoothly and there would not be all of these delays. The local board has had all summer to work on the transportation of the county's students and all they seem to have come up with is mass confusion and chaos," Gail Lile, a member of H.E.L.P., told the group.

"There is horrible traffic congestion occurring around the schools in Mt. Vernon and there have been two bus-involved accidents already this school year," Mrs. Lyle said. But, Glen VanWinkle Director of Transportation for the county school system said Wednesday that no bus that serves the Livingston area is carrying more students than capacity "Our most crowded bus has 61 students riding it, but it has a capacity of 64," VanWinkle said.

"Mrs. Lile and Mrs. Zaring also referred to the Kentucky Education Reform Act which mandates that no more than 25% of county students should be on a school bus for more than 45 minutes at a time.

"We are well within that guideline although some children who live in extreme areas of the county are on the bus longer than 45 minutes," VanWinkle said. "And, I'm satisfied that 75% of the Livingston area students are on the bus less than 45 minutes," he said.

"One thing that may slow down our buses some is the fact that we stress safety of our students over time.

We have told our drivers repeatedly that safety is our top priority, not time between stops," VanWinkle said.

"We also service a lot more side roads than we did a few years ago and that also takes more time," VanWinkle said.

"We don't like for children to have to spend long periods of time on the buses, no more than their parents do and we are always looking for a better way to transport our students, it just takes time," he said.

"Anytime a new school year starts it takes two to three weeks for drivers to get their routes down pat," he said. As to the group's concern about buses getting to schools too late for children to eat breakfast, VanWinkle said "The only place that is a problem is at the new high school and the principal there, Mr. Cash, has assured me that he is allowing any student who wants to eat breakfast plenty of time to do so, without any penalty."

"The main reason those buses are late is because of the traffic congestion they encounter when they leave the middle school," VanWinkle said. "We are working on that problem as well," he said.

Mrs. Zaring told the crowd to remember that school officials are employees of the taxpayers and that all the over crowding and long bus rides to be corrected immediately.

Mrs. Zaring and Mrs. Lile also told the group that Mt. Vernon school was designed to hold 650 students and that the current enrollment was well over 800.

However, Rockcastle School Superintendent Bige Towery Jr., said Wednesday that the actual enrollment at Mt. Vernon is 810 students, but that the full-day enrollment is only around 700 students. "We have 125 kindergartners and 50 or so preschool children that go only a half day," Towery said. "We are also looking at future solutions to any overcrowding problem that we may have," he said.

The group says they already have 700 signatures on a petition that will be presented to the Rockcastle County Board of Education at their regular monthly meeting Tuesday night.

"It is a simple matter of the school board and local administration putting money before our children," Mrs. Zaring told the group. "They are not in compliance with the guidelines of KERA nor are they acting in the best interest of our children," she said.

Some members of the group have threatened to boycott school and have even gone as far as to print flyers in an effort to organize an all out boycott by Livingston area students. But Ed Lyle, who heads H.E.L.P., said his group has told parents they would have no part of a boycott. "We know that a boycott would only hurt our children and further hinder their education. H.E.L.P. will not be a part of a boycott in anyway," he said.

Joyce Brewer and her daughter Melissa were at Tuesday's press conference to voice their displeasure with the school system.

Three new properties to be annexed into city of Mt. Vernon

By Ray McCleure

Three firms with property in Rockcastle Industrial Park have asked to become part of the city.

Bill Deaton of Image/Entry, the Bank of Mt. Vernon and Kentucky Highlands Investment Corp. have asked to be annexed to the city.

Image/Entry is currently lodged in the Museum building at Rentro Valley and is expected to move to the Industrial Park as soon as their building is completed.

The Bank of Mt. Vernon has a lot in the area adjacent to Deaton property, and Kentucky Highland owns a LEAP site. All are in close proximity and contain minor acreage.

The request was actually brought about by an agreement between Image Entry and the City of Mt. Vernon. The City had agreed earlier this year to loan Image Entry $100,000 to help with the funding for their new plant, which will be located in the industrial park.

As part of the loan agreement, Image Entry had to agree to be annexed into the city and, of course, pay city taxes. Mayor Gary Cromer said the other two properties were brought in at the same time to make this less complicated at a later date.

Cromer said he would have city attorney John Cloncz draw up the necessary annexation documents.

City Engineer Richard Moore told the council it had received a $647,000 loan from the Kentucky Infrastructure Authority to help pay for a $998,650 water/sewer project. The interest rate for the loan is 1.4 percent.

The city has also applied to the Appalachian Regional Commission for a $350,000 grant to help pay for the project.

The council voted to install a sewer on the first floor of a house owned by Ernest Bullock Jr. in East Mt. Vernon near Elmwood Cemetery. The council agreed it cannot provide sewer service in the basement of the house.

Brodhead businessman E.J. Taylor, 63, dies

The council set 10 a.m. Thursday and Friday for public hearing on the 1993 tax rate.

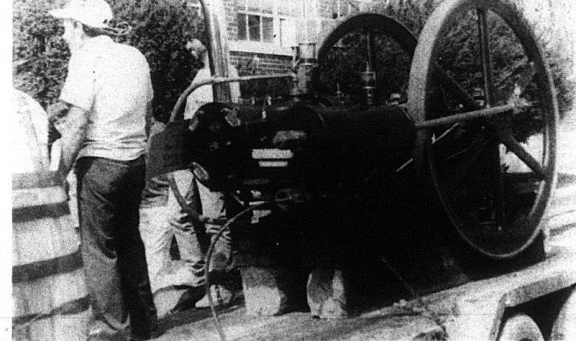

Services were held Wednesday, Sept. 7 at the Fairview Church of Christ with Bro. Danny Gidder officiating. Burial followed in the Fairview Cemetery.

Friends who live much farther away from Casey County than I do have been raving over the deals they get on produce, baked goods, greenhouse plants, brown eggs and a host of other, genuine, down-on-the-farm goods they purchase from the Amish and Mennonite "settlers" who have established themselves along the South Fork of the Green River. On my recent vacation to Letcher County, for example, no fewer than five individuals shared tales of giant ox heart and Belgian tomatoes they had grown from plants acquired from Amish owned greenhouses. I'm talking about folks who had literally driven nearly 200 miles each way from Blackey and Isom and Neon.

In Garrard County several of my friends and neighbors are more interested in the wide variety of shell beans, molasses, honey and canned goods. Madison counties are lured by homemade quilts and fine wood furniture. And everyone we run into who has made the pilgrimage expresses surprise that Loretta and I have never made the trip.

Anyway, last Saturday morning Loretta woke me up to ask if I would like to take a drive with her. A so-called drive with Loretta on Saturday morning generally means that I purchase quart cups of coffee, a box of cigars and several newspapers which I peruse while she carefully inspects every chipped pepper shaker, scratched-up-frying pan, empty Avon bottle, tin can, hoe handle, lawnmower blade, broken-down ("I could fix this") chair and every item of clothing at every yard sale in Central Kentucky.

It was a beautiful day to be out and about so I agreed to make the "drive" under certain conditions. The first condition being that I would drive, the second that we would take the Geo instead of the station wagon or the pick-up thereby limiting her purchasing power, and finally that we would wind up in Casey County no later than 2 p.m.

For the first time in the history of our relationship, I actually out-shopped Loretta at the yard sales. I found a nearly-new pair of Oshkosh kaiki pants in my size for a dollar and a brand-new basket for a buck, twenty-five. Loretta purchased a tea cup for fifteen cents and battery powered pencil sharpener for seventy-five. Don't ask how many places we stopped but we managed to find all these bargains in less than six hours. And at precisely 2 p.m. we were turning west on KY 910 some seven miles south of Liberty.

First of all, you should know that most Amish folk don't believe in driving automobiles. They get about mostly on bicycles and horse-drawn carriages. Most of the carriages we saw, however, were up on blocks in one state of axle repair or another. Still it was like turning back the pages of time because we saw several fields of corn and sorghum cane being harvested by hand and hauled to barns or mills in large wagons pulled by teams of mules or draft horses.

My specific objective was giant tomatoes and we visited several farms and produce stands that advertised fresh tomatoes but they were almost all of the average, red base-ball variety. We found an abundance of green beans and sweet corn at very reasonable prices but the varieties were no different than what you'd find at a Kroger store. Ditto for hot peppers, greens and melons. We found squash, however that I've never even seen in a seed catalogue.

We visited cabinet makers who had an impressive inventory of pie-saws, shift robes, china cabinets, book shelves, tables, chairs, grandfather clocks, roll top desks and the like all made of solid oak, maple cherry.

I've seen stuff of far less quality priced twice or three times as high at tourist traps and furniture outlets. (Loretta has asked Santa Claus for a pie-saw priced at $305.)

At the end of a long, narrow, creek-graveled road we discovered the sunbonnet quilt shop where queen and king sized pattern as double wedding ring, log cabin, Star of David and a host of others start at $400 and go up. And, again, we've seen lesser quality priced over a thousand dollars elsewhere.

But the real find of the day was Noll's bulk food store where I purchased more than ten pounds of dried beans. Black beans, red beans, speckled beans, striped beans, yellow-eyed beans, Indian beans all cheaper than the pintos you can find at normal grocery stores. Noll's also carries a wide variety of home canned relishes, jams, jellies and preserves along with fresh herbs, homemade noodles and all sorts of baked goods. There are raisins, prunes, nuts, dried apples and all sorts of other dehydrated vegetables amazingly reasonable prices. Noll's more than made our trip worthwhile.

We saw all the greenhouses where all the giant tomato plants are grown, but they won't be open for business

A cold drizzle of rain drops met us when we got up Monday morning. It gave me a feeling of fall especially since the leaves on our Maple trees are now turning to scarlet and gold.

It has been cool the last few days with a warning that fall is now here.

Homier Jennings will probably start looking for his long johns or make plans to go to Florida where he goes to get out of Kentucky's winter which can be mean.

It seems when John goes to make some money, his truck acts like a balky mule. He needs the truck to work in their cane field with Arthur Davidson but it broke down and wouldn't move.

You don't know how much you miss something that you've used every day.

We were in Richmond when the truck stopped right in the middle of traffic - finally a boy at a service station helped push it back (so some parking spaces and there sat and waited while the world went by all afternoon. We were at the new mall and coming out when the engine stopped.

Finally John got the McMahan Service Station in Berea and here comes Russell McMahan, the son of the owner, a young fellow age 27 and married he said.

Russ joked, laughed and talked to John and me. He said he had pulled in two other cars besides us that morning.

He brought us by home on the Menclaus Road so I could pick up John in my car later. But it was such a comfortable feeling the boy gave us in that he said, "You'll get the truck fixed, so don't worry."

"Next day the owner called and said, "We're taking your truck down to Jennings Body Shop, they have more equipment to work with."

Todd Jennings, who is a whizz at repairing cars, told John he would get it done."

John has a long neck gourd growing up a tree and it is so interesting watching how the gourd pulled down the vine.

I had a nice surprise this morning when I went back to Dr. Owens for a checkup on my eye. He is the one who removed the cataract from my eye some weeks ago.

As I waited to see him, I saw a woman sitting across from me who reminded me of someone - Then she walked over to me and asked, "Aren't you Hilda Payne?" I told her all of my name. She smiled and said, "I am Amanda Walker. My mother was Edith Bronaugh and she used to work for you when you lived in Berea many years ago."

That was it. She reminded me of Edith. "Who is this with you?" I asked her.

"This is Geraldine Walker, one of my twin daughters and I have another daughter, Margaret Jo. They all stay home with me for my husband passed away many years ago.

When I told her I talked to Edd Bronaugh, her brother, she said Edith's wife had passed on years ago.

Edd used to scold me about not feeding the birds. All of them lived on Slate Lick Road out of Berea.

"Our ducks are growing so big but we don't turn them loose yet."

In Wildie we stopped at the Roundstone store of the Parsons boy. Libby Smith, wife to the Sheriff of the county, Shirley, was minding the country store. Then she had to go home, she said, to help house their tobacco, or haul it in or something. Now that's being helpful, standing on her feet all day in the store, then go home to load tobacco onto a truck. Don't go away. I'll be back next week with more news of a pretty woman in the store of Ballard Parsons.

Local sheep producer wins at Kentucky State Fair

Green Hill Farm owned by Jack and Patty Himes exhibited the Grand Champion Long and Course Wool Ewe at the 1994 Kentucky State Fair last week. The ewe "Marquette" was born in March on the Himes' Roundstone Farm, Marquette and her twin; "UK" were born on the 19th day Marquette University beat the University of Kentucky in the NCAA Basketball Tournament. The Himes are enrolled in the Adult Agriculture-Sheep Program at the Kentucky Tech-Rockcastle County A.V.E.C. Sheep Specialists Allan Hurlman and Mike Hancock assisted the Himes with the three sheep they exhibited at this year's Kentucky State Fair. The next show appearance for this group of livestock will be the North American International Livestock Exposition in Louisville. NAILE is the largest livestock event in the United States and will have representation from most all fifty states as well as several foreign countries. Good Luck to Jack, Patty and Marquette.

LEAP provides livestock to low-income Rockcastle farmers

Small farmers in Rockcastle County, struggling to get extra food and income, can receive livestock through the Heifer Project International program at Livingston Economic Alternatives in Progress (LEAP). The program places goats, sheep, beef and milk cows with low-income farmers who need that extra boost to get started.

The animal is not hand-out, but a living loan for the family. When a participant receives the livestock, they are then required to raise its firstborn female offspring to an equal size to the original animal and return it to LEAP. The offspring animal is then "passed on" to another family in our area so that the program can expand and help out more Rockcastle Families.

If a beef or milk cow could provide important help to your family, you are welcome to come down to LEAP to learn more of the program. Participating families are chosen by the LEAP livestock committee, which are made up of LEAP members and livestock participants themselves. Stop by LEAP's office on Hwy. 25 in Calloway, or call 453-9800.

Kentucky Housing Corporation announces homeownership program for single-parent families

Effective immediately, Kentucky Housing Corporation is making available $2,000,000 statewide for low-income, single-parent families who wish to purchase a home. The 30-year loans will carry an interest rate of 1 to 7 percent, depending on the ability to pay and will be offered on a first-come, first-served basis through participating lenders.

Kentucky Housing Corporation's Director of Homeownership Programs, Cheryl Harp, suggests that interested single-parent families should call their local lender for more information about qualifying. "We are pleased to offer this special opportunity to qualified single-parent families who think homeownership is out of the question," stated Harp.

For more information about this program or the name of a local participating lender, call Kentucky Housing Corporation's Homeowner ship Department at 502-564-7630, followed by 4 from a touch tone phone, or dial 800-633-8896 or 800-247-2510 (for the hearing-impaired only).

KET, which has set the standard for quality and educational value for 25 years, is getting even better with two new series starting this September. With one of these series scheduled for Saturday morning, preschoolers will have their own block of programs on KET seven days a week.

Mark Kistler's Imagination Station, a "how-to" for kids of all ages, will air on Mondays at 6:30 p.m. beginning Sept. 5. Artist and teacher Mark Kistler offers techniques for drawing in three dimensions.

Two participate in five week Governor's Scholars Program

While their friends back home went swimming, worked at the video store or hung out at the mall this summer, 16 Kentucky teenagers created a 100-foot, inflatable plastic whale.

Others built working lasers and composed original music for a synchronized laser light show, while still more tried John T. Scopes for teaching the Darwinian theory of evolution.

All of these young people, and more like them, spent five weeks this summer as participants in the Kentucky Governor's Scholars Program, an intensive learning and growth experience that just completed its twelfth year.

The program has always been known as an unparalleled opportunity for bright young people to unleash their imaginations and creativity, but this year's scholars went further than ever before to demonstrate that the best way to learn is by doing.

A sampling of the innovative projects undertaken by the 70 scholars includes:

Constructing a full-sized replica of a blue whale. The whale, which is made of strong plastic and can be inflated with a large fan, was designed and built by biology students to call attention to the plight of this endangered species. This fall, students plan to rotate the model among their home schools.

Building houses for Habitat For Humanity. Students worked at three sites in Northern Kentucky and Ohio, including an abandoned school that they helped turn into a community learning center.

Literally digging into history by helping restore the historic site of the Battle of Perryville. Learning more about archeology and history than they could ever glean from books and classroom lectures, their specific projects included restoring the office of physician Jefferson J. Polk and developing a walking tour of Perryville.

Creating a three-minute laser light show with original synchronized music. Students concentrating in the physical sciences worked with those interested in fine arts, bringing two very diverse disciplines together to reach a common goal.

Recreating the trial of John T. Scopes, calling on the talents and ideas of students in biology, philosophy, and political and social theory classes.

The Governor's Scholars Program focuses on interdisciplinary learning and on getting students out of the classroom and into the world.

"We really try to link what goes on in the classroom to the broader community," said Milton Reigelman, dean of the program based at Centre College.

"It's important to leave campus, go out into the world and solve something out there," according to Richard Taylor, dean of the other section of the program, which was held at Northern Kentucky University.

Governor Breton C. Jones said he hopes this year's Governor's Scholars take home with them a commitment to community service. "It is my sincere wish that historians of the future will look back at the Governor's Scholars of 1994, and say, this class made a real difference in the world," Governor Jones said.

Aris Cedeno, Student Activities Director at the Northern Kentucky campus, took particular pride in the ways his faculty interacted with the students.

"We purposely look for people who don't quite fit the mold of a traditional high school/university teacher," he said.

"We want faculty who can teach in many different areas, who can cross lots of disciplines."

The Governor's Scholars Program, which began in 1983, is funded through the Governor's Office, major grants from the James Graham Brown Foundation and Ashland Oil, and private donations. Such funding enables all of the scholars to attend the program without charge.

South Central Bell of Kentucky is one corporate contributor to the program.

Kentucky is sitting on top of a valuable "natural" resource that's sometimes overlooked -- a cadre of extremely bright, capable young people who emerge from our secondary schools each year," said South Central Bell President Margaret Green.

"South Central Bell firmly supports efforts of the Governor's Scholars Program to maximize educational opportunities for these outstanding young people to ensure that they achieve their full potential and, ultimately, utilize their skills in ways that strengthen Kentucky's infrastructure and improve the quality of life in our state," she said.

Students are drawn from both public and private schools, from all regions of the state, and from all economic and social backgrounds. They spend plenty of time on academics, choosing from 15 subject areas in the liberal arts, but the program is placing increasing emphasis on moving scholars out of the classroom for a broader perspective on learning.

"More and more," said Reigelman, "our laboratory isn't the classroom, but the community, the state, and the world."

Those from Rockcastle County attending the Governor's Scholars Program were Rebecca Blanton and Thelma McNew.

The Lion King
All 4th grade teachers are planning a field trip for Thursday, Sept. 8th, to see the movie "The Lion King."

Family Resource News
We would like to announce the opening of a Family Resource Center, and welcome the director, Jerry Pensol, to Mt. Vernon Elementary. The Center will be located on the second floor in room 222. More news about the center will be forthcoming so be sure to look for news, programs and activities concerning the center.

Music News
All of our students have been working hard in music class. During the first week our music teacher, Ms. Jamie Cornelius, has been teaching a song called "Back to School." The students will use this song to learn about rhythm. Kindergarten classes have all learned the song, "Walk To School," and have all had a chance to play an instrument!

Ms. Cornelius has sent a letter home with each child which states the music rules. Please take a few moments to read this letter with your child.

All grade levels have been given a special composer name for the year. Composers that have been used are Mozart, Beethoven, Sousa, Tchaikovsky, Handel and Gershwin. See if your child remembers which composer they represent!

Many of our music classes have been awarded "SuperStars" this week. Classes may earn a super star every time they come to music class. Super stars are awarded to classes which demonstrate Super behavior and Super participation! Ms. Cornelius is proud to report that almost every class in the school has earned a superstar! Congratulations and keep up the great work!

Rockcastle Middle School News

The "Exploratory" Class of Visual Arts is off to a productive beginning with the 6th grade classes having their African masks and life-size people completed. The 7th and 8th grade art classes are working on abstract art involving a study of line, shape, negative and positive space. Ms. Bugg is very proud of the hard work and completed projects of all her students.

- Minds in the Middle -

Team 8A has begun the 1994-95 school year wonderfully! We've chosen the name Rocket Renegades to identify our team, and Michael Parsons, our art coordinator, will soon decorate our hallway with our team name and logo.

Our students seem to be fusing together as one enthusiastic, highly motivated team of friends. On Friday, September 2, those students who had returned all office forms, completed all assignments, had kept their assignment books up to date, and who had seen well behaved enjoyed a scavenger hunt and water balloon toss.

Mr. Taylor's group won the scavenger hunt with 92 points, and Mrs. Henderson's team was close behind with 82 points. The balloon toss brought the final score to Taylor, 99-Henderson, 92. Ms. Abney and Mrs. Martin's teams were close behind, so we expect the competition to be keen in the weeks to come. The winning team gets a big surprise at the end of the grading period.

Local resident enters EKU's honors program

A Rockcastle County resident is one of 40 freshmen enrolled in the Honors Program at Eastern Kentucky University.

Dallas W. Graves, Mt. Vernon, will major in computer science and mathematics while also participating in the Honors Program, which is designed for intellectually promising students who seek a strong grounding in the liberal arts along with their more specialized major. The 28-credit hour program includes coursework in the humanities, the social sciences and natural sciences, with emphasis on effective communication, development of critical thinking skills and integration of knowledge.

A year ago, EKU's Honors program received a $178,200 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the National Science Foundation and the Foundation for the Improvement of Post-Secondary Education to link science and humanities courses.

UK to hold preview night at Corbin

Students from area high schools and their parents are invited to learn more about admission to the University of Kentucky during a Preview Night scheduled for 7 p.m., Sept. 8. The event will be held at the Corbin Quality Inn, I-75 at U.S. 25E, Corbin.

Representatives of the University, including those from the admissions office, financial aid, housing, and 13 undergraduate colleges, will be available to answer questions. In addition, several current UK students will attend the Preview Night to answer questions about campus life.

Randy Mills, senior associate director for admissions at UK, encourages any local students who are considering attending college to attend the event.

"In order for the student to make a smooth transition from high school to college, it is crucial to attend a Preview Night," he explained. "Our programs are scheduled in the early fall in order to give students the opportunity to apply early for admission, housing, and financial aid."

However, according to Mills, high school students and their parents aren't the only ones who benefit from Preview Night.

"It is also important for community college students who wish to transfer to UK to attend in order to begin the transfer process," Mills said. For more information, contact Mills at 606-257-2000.

School District gets new economic education advocate

Cindy Ellington, a teacher at Broadhead Elementary School, has been certified as an Economic Education Advocate for the Rockcastle County School District by the Kentucky Council on Economic Education (KCEE). Cindy is one of 30 teachers who completed training for economic advocacy at the KCEE Leadership Institute during the week of August

1-5, 1994 in Louisville.

As an Economic Education Advocate, Cindy will serve as an economic education mentor to kindergarten through high school teachers in the Rockcastle County School District, encouraging them to use KCEE EconomicsAmerica Programs. She will model economic education in her classroom, offer teacher training, and show how economic programs can be integrated into a teacher's current classroom curricula. All of KCEE's EconomicsAmerica programs are interdisciplinary, designed to expose students to economic concepts within the context of language arts, social studies, and other academic disciplines. Cindy will also demonstrate to teachers how teaching economic concepts can help achieve higher KIRIS assessment scores and accomplish the learner goals of the Kentucky Education Reform Act.

Dear Editor,
Enclosed please find an article for printing on your editorial page. This is the eighth in a series of articles on the Kentucky Education Reform Act. I do hope you will consider it and I thank you in advance for caring enough about our children and schools to print an opposing viewpoint.

Lindsey Wilson College signs three more baseball players

Lindsey Wilson College Baseball Coach Mike Talley announced today the signing of three more high school standouts to letters of intent.
Joining the Lindsey ranks next year will be Jonah Michael Shaffer of Brodhead, Casey Gage of Louisville and Oscar Paige of Elizabethtown.
"We are very excited about having players with the capabilities of these three young men," said Talley. "All three have the potential to be excellent college baseball players."

"Shaffer has good hands and a very capable bat. Casey is strong on offense and should provide depth for us at several key positions. And Oscar has good speed and will pose a threat when he gets on base. These are three great players and they will each make contributions to our program."

school but now in private, due to KERA), a teacher (formerly in public and now in private), and the 1991 Republican nominee for state superintendent. Currently, I work on education with Eagle Forum, a national pro-family group established in 1972 by Phyllis Schlafly.

KERA, Hillary & flower power

"Twenty-five years later, we're still living in woodstock nation," declared a recent Newsweek cover story about the upcoming anniversary of the music festival that was the epitome of the 60's hippie generation. Good article. Good and depressing for a 60's kid who remembers it well and would like to think we had progressed from that period of acute idealism and moral decadence. But the headline is correct. Even though we've advanced technologically, the 60's hedonism and egalitarianism still erode our society. The Newsweek author mentioned that some of those who bought into the "Woodstock mind-set" now "write the movies and TV shows, run the record companies and radio stations and ad agencies," and one "is even the president." I would sadly add that many of them have become college professors and education policymakers and one is even first lady.

Hillary Rodham Clinton, who appears to devote all her time to socializing health care these days, has managed to have time for her quieter project, education restructuring. Mrs. Clinton is on the governing board of the New Standards Project, in which the Kentucky Department of Education is a participant to the tune of over one quarter of a million taxpayer dollars requested this year and even more next year. The New Standards Project is based at the University of Pittsburgh and purports to rid us of the traditional testing system and replace it with outcome based education assessment. Mrs. Clinton and NSP have made great strides here in Kentucky, as witnessed by our new $30 million assessment known as KIRIS.

You know the KIRIS—the assessment that consists of portfolios of Student writing, task performances, and the written test of multiple choice and essay questions.
You know the KIRIS—the tests that call for unambiguous answers rather than objective facts and then hold the schools and teachers accountable for their students' opinions.
You know the KIRIS—the tests that determine which schools will be declared "in crisis" and taken over by the state if they don't continue to improve by a certain percent every two years, even though the required improvement in two years is to be demonstrated by a completely different class of students.

You know the KIRIS—the tests called "almost content free" by the Visiting Committee (hired by the Department of Education), which essentially means that you don't need to know much of anything before taking the tests.

You know the KIRIS—the tests called "almost content free" by the Visiting Committee (hired by the Department of Education), which essentially means that you don't need to know much of anything before taking the tests.

You know the KIRIS—tests which, due to the high stakes for the teachers, will determine everything that is taught in the classrooms of Kentucky.
The Kentucky Department of Education, Mrs. Clinton and the New Standards Project all know very well the power of the testing system. When you combine that power with the NSP and Mrs. Clinton, along with her modest aspiration to lead "a rethinking of the American way of politics, government, indeed life," there is reason for some distress. Consider, for example, the KIRIS test 4th grade question asking the 10 year olds to tell what could be done about the homeless. The Kentucky Department of Education scoring guide gave the highest score to the student whose answer included, "Some of them even have to sleep in garbage cans to keep warm and the rich people just kick them around..."
The student that said, "Build houses for people like that because God made them he didn't mean for them to die," got next to the lowest score.

The scoring guides give evidence that there are right opinions and wrong opinions. Under portfolio scoring for 4th grade, the top two scores go to stories about animal rights. The highest grade was given to a story about a group of fictional animals who were shoved off their land by the hated people. The animals got back at the People by taking some of them hostage. This hostage plan worked perfectly and the animals got their land back and had peace.

The second highest grade went to a story in which the main character was a turkey at Thanksgiving time who nearly got shot, and it ended with the turkey families having their Thanksgiving dinner and being thankful that the farmers didn't get them this year. The lower two scores went to a story about going with classmates on a field trip and a letter written to KET saying that the student didn't feel that the tomahawk chop was disrespectful to American Indians.

In the well-known "Your Dad is a Wimp" story for 4th graders, the highest two scores went to students who said they would love to be part of a family where the sex roles were reversed (Mom away at work and Dad at home cooking and cleaning). The lower two scores went to students who said no, they would not enjoy being in a family like that.

On the 8th grade level KIRIS test, the students were told, "In the United States, people are sometimes treated unfairly because of the group to which they belong." Then students were asked to identify one of these groups and describe ways in which the group had been treated unfairly throughout United States history. The highest score went to the student who selected the Japanese. The student praised Japanese comeback from WWII and said that "Americans choose to insult them." He stated that the Japanese are ridiculed and America has not done anything to combat this discrimination.

The second highest score chose Native Americans and gave a very biased but politically correct description of their mistreatment, ending with the statement that there had never been enough protest against this discrimination and "that should be our greatest shame." The next to the lowest score went to a student who chose black Americans. His answer was quite good, revealing a knowledge of history, but he made the mistake of saying that "black people have the same rights today as everyone else."

Lastly, in a question about the shrinking rain forests, the highest score went to the student who said, "We must stop clearing rain forests. We are killing animals and robbing ourselves of a wonderful treasure." The second highest score was given to the answer that produced the killing of plants that could produce life-saving medicines and the destruction of habitats for yet unknown species, and concluded that "all comes down to the basic role of money" (that nasty capitalism). The second to lowest score went to the answer which acknowledged the shrinking of the rainforest but said that the increasing population of South America required more land on which to live.

So you see what a teacher must be teaching in order for students to score well on the tests and thus keep the status of their yet unknown species, and concluded that "all comes down to the basic role of money" (that nasty capitalism). The second to lowest score went to the answer which acknowledged the shrinking of the rainforest but said that the increasing population of South America required more land on which to live.

Kentucky's restructured education system, known as KERA, focuses on such things as memorization, drill and review, textbooks, desks in rows, structure of any sort, lectures by teachers (now they are "guides" and "facilitators"), and academic basic skills which are disdainfully referred to as "lower order thinking skills." KERA promotes, of course, "Higher order thinking skills," also called critical thinking. It seems the KERA-istas believe you can teach a student how to think critically without giving him any raw data (those awful boring facts) to think critically about.

Woodstock nation. The flower children and 60's hippies are still here. They have gotten smarter. They've cut their hair, put on clothes, and gotten degrees. They control the entertainment industry, the media, the White House and that former state's right—education. It's not a comforting thought for us parents. It's downright motivating.

"Education Advocate"

Thanks to a $167,000 grant from the J. Graham Brown Foundation, and a $43,000 grant from the Kentucky Educational Foundation, these 30 new advocates will more than double the efforts of KCEE to promote the teaching of economic concepts and providing economic education programs for students at all grade levels. "We're very excited about the fact that for the 1994-95 school year, we will have 51 Advocates throughout the state spreading the word about economic education," says Jan Heiman, Associate Executive Director of the Kentucky Council. "This is a great group of enthusiastic teachers. We sent them back to their school districts with boxes of materials and heads full of ideas. Teachers like Cindy will be a real asset to our program and the Rockcastle County School District."

According to Jack Morgan, Executive Director of the Kentucky Council, the Advocates will network as regional teams with the Kentucky Council's ten Centers for Economic Education based at university campuses throughout Kentucky. KCEE is a private, nonprofit organization affiliated with the National Council on Economic Education. Since its inception 20 years ago, KCEE has exposed thousands of teachers and students to economic concepts through graduate-level teacher education courses; professional development training; instructional materials for the classroom, and curriculum enhancement.

Southwestern wins 20-13

Rockets lose first regular season home game since '89

Rockcastle County fans sat in disbelief Friday night as the Rockets lost their first regular season home football game since 1989.

The Southwestern Warriors from Pulaski County handed the Rockets a 20-13 loss, dropping the Rockets to 1 and 1 on the season and spoiling the Renfro Valley Jamboree Bowl festivities.

The Rockets main demise came in the secondary, which allowed a late first half touchdown that gave the Warriors a 20-7 lead they would never relinquish.

"We made some mental errors that cost us a ball game we probably should have won," said head coach Tom Larkey.

"Southwestern will probably finish second to Bell County in their district, but I think we are just as good as this team," Larkey said.

The Rockets took the lead in the first quarter when quarterback Jamie Linville connected with end Donnie Eversole on a 31 yard TD pass, but that lead wouldn't last long.

Southwestern scored once in the first quarter and twice in the second to take a commanding 20-7 lead into the second half.

The Rockets came out of the dressing room at halftime trailing 20-7 and immediately marched to ball to the 15 yard line when a un-Rocket like thing happened, they fumbled the football, killing a drive that could have pulled them within five points of the Warriors.

But the Rocket defense held and early in the fourth quarter the Rockets marched down the field again, this time scoring on a one yard run by quarterback Jamie Linville, cutting the lead to seven. Rockcastle was preparing to try and kick an extra point when Southwestern jumped offside moving the ball to the one and half yard line. The Rockets then attempted a two-point conversion that failed.

Southwestern held the Rockets on two other series to capture what analyst say was the biggest win of their two year football history.

The Rockets were led in rushing by Linville, who had 58 yards on 12 carries. Linville also had 68 yards in the air completing 5 of 11 passes.

Jason Cromer had 55 yards on 14 carries and Zach Cromer had 30 yards on 8 carries. Neil Sparks gained 21 yards on 6 carries and Jarrod Singleton gained 26 yards on just 5 carries.

Singleton also caught one pass for 5 yards and Jason Childress caught two for 25 yards. Eversole caught two passes for 38 yards.

Rockcastle's defense was led by Donnie Eversole with 10 tackles.

Eddie Todd, who was named defensive player of the Jamboree Bowl, had two sacks and two tackles.

Other players with tackles were: Jason Weaver, 3, Stacy Kirby, 6, Greg Mink, 6, Neil Sparks, 5, Saben Blair, 3, Dallas Rigby, 6, Jason Childress, 4, Zach Cromer, 3, Jeremy Lane, 1 and Casey Blaney, 1.

Quarterback Jamie Linville led the Rockets in rushing Friday night with 58 yards. While #30 Neil Sparks had five tackles and gained 21 yards on the ground. The Rockets play at Bates Creek High School in Lexington Thursday night against the Paul Laurence Dunbar Panthers.

With the wail of a siren the annual Livingston Homecoming Parade rolled off Saturday through the downtown.

Under blue skies with a warm sun and cool wind that forced coats and sweaters on some visitors the Homecoming drew fewer visitors, than years past, but still, there was an ample supply of youngsters and old timers.

The audience standing and sitting along the curb was even entertained by Britches the clown and her cohort.

First place in the float category went to LEAP for its elaborate float stressing economics in the area

Second place went to the Ladies Auxiliary. There was a tie for third place, the Livingston Lion's Club and Livingston Baptist Church.

Citizen of the Year went to Robert Calvin Webb, a teacher at Mt. Vernon Middle School.

Darrell New was recognized for his work in the U.S. Space Program.

Li's Restaurant was the recipient of the Business of the Year.

The basketball game was won by the Old Timers by 10 points. The game was dedicated to Lonnie Mink. A total of $69 was contributed to the game to replace glass in the trophy case located in Li's Restaurant.

Donald McClure entertained playing the electric organ.

The all important pretty baby contest was won by 16-month-old Cynthia Poynter, daughter of Russell and Anna Poynter. In the boy category for babies Brent Callahan (who was 2 years old Sunday) son of Hershel and Brenda Callahan, won. Presenting plaques to the winners was Ladonya Mink who was the first pretty baby winner several years ago.

The all important speakers platform was occupied by Bill Dowell and Roy Martin, parade marshalls, Bro. Billy Medley, former mayor, Sam Hampton, Darrell New, Jimmy Miller, County Attorney Jeff Burdette, Mayor Ed Lite, County Clerk Norma Houk and husband Russell and Master of Ceremonies Bill Bryant. Estill McFerron played taps and Connie Amys sang the national anthem.

Bro. Medley recounted the career and death of David Smith, Congressional Medal of Honor winner.

The homecoming committee made a booboo in scheduling the speaker's platform. County Judge/Executive Buzz Carlottis was inadvertently left off the list. He accepted an apology and gave a short talk.

Clear Creek plans new Health Service Center

Clear Creek Baptist Bible College, Pineville, recently broke ground to construct a new Health Services Center for use by students at the college. Health services are now in an aging mobile home and a cramped 1950 cottage.

Construction of the facility is expected to cost $110,000, with a portion of the work performed by students, providing much needed jobs for them to continue ministry training. The new facility will contain reception, record, laboratory, offices for medical and dental practice, and Crossroads Counseling Center, etc.

Dr. Bill Snowden, a Winchester Dentist, comes to campus regularly and treats 20 to 40 persons each visit. Students and families receive cleanings, fillings, partial plates, and root canals. Somerset physician Dr. Truman Mays performs minor out-patient surgery and blood preventive care. Dr. Sam Massey, Texas, an ear, eye, nose, and throat specialist, has staffed the clinic since 1982.

Campus nurse Gloria Harris, employed through the Student Welfare Program, sees 20-25 patients daily and provides allergy shots, school physicals, diabetic testing, and breathing treatments for asthma patients. Her husband, Jeff, is a third-year student.

We do not discriminate because of race, color, national origin, religion, sex, handicap, familial status, (having children under the age of 18).

"What Saith the Scriptures"

In Ac. 10:34-35 Peter said, "Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: But in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him." Let's notice several lessons from these fine statements of Peter.

First, notice Peter affirms that God is not a respecter of persons. God does not accept or reject men based on things like social status, gender, one's IQ, whether you're rich or poor, or black or white. God does not discriminate against any based on these types of things. Nor does show favoritism based on these types of things. You and I will be accepted of God based on our response to Jesus Christ and his truth.

Notice what Peter did say, that was necessary to be accepted of God, "fear him and work righteousness." Fear refers to an awe, respect, reverence for God. This implies, of course, that one believes in God and his son, Jesus Christ, Hebs. 11:6, Jn. 3:16, Ac. 10:43. Far too many in our world have no fear and reverence, for God Almighty. Folks are carelessly living in sin and wickedness, yet have no fear that our God is consuming fire, Hebs. 12:29.

A person must also work righteousness to be accepted of God. God's righteousness that we work, is found in the gospel, as Paul affirms in Rm. 1:16, 17.

The gospel teaches us that we must repent, "but now commandeth all men everywhere to repent" Ac. 17:30, Ac. 2:38. The gospel teaches us that we must confess our faith in the Lord Jesus Christ before men, Mt. 10:32, Rm. 10:9-10. The gospel teaches us that we be baptized for the remission of sins, Ac. 2:38, Ac. 22:16. These are the steps of salvation to become a Christian. These are the things required to work righteousness. Then from the watery grave of baptism, one is to live faithful unto death, Rev. 2:10. If we fall down as a child of God, we are to repent and pray to God for forgiveness, 1 Jn. 1:7-9, Ac. 8:22. Have you done what the Lord would have you to do to be accepted of him?
