

Humor
An evening spent listening to Carl Hurley savor his Appalachian humor is worth more than a therapy treatment for a hypochondriac. His humor is philosophical and free of vulgarity. One can laugh freely with him but not at him when he reveals his view of being raised in the hills of Kentucky on the banks of the Rockcastle River. Many people have shared the same hardships he describes but have never seen the humorous side because they are too busy trying to put these experiences behind them and overcome the handicap a hillbilly, "Hurley proudly calls himself a hillbilly," has reached the top of the ladder of success.

But, as he giggles about the fact of not being able to button his brand new coat over his "too big" belly, he brings to mind the fact of our own "too big" belly and the handicap it presents when we try to do the normal thing or trimming our toenails. I would like to hear him describe an old fat person with dim eyesight and arthritic hands trying to reach their foot to trim toenails that have become hardened with calcium and fungus that cause them to be like small horns on the end of the toes.

Sometimes frustration overcomes the humor when I am trying to do this and I find myself wanting to throw my glasses as well as the trimmers into the trash and simply quit wearing shoes and let the horns grow.

I may as well tell you the whole story of the problem I have trimming mine and get the laughter I deserve for telling it. First off I limber up the muscles of the legs so cramps won't interfere with the action of trying to get my foot across my knee so I can see and reach the problem.

A long time ago I learned leg cramps can pop up at the most crucial times and interfere with things we want to do. Then by the time I get my foot in place my eyeglasses have slipped and I can't see what I am doing. Releasing my hold on the foot I replace the glasses and grab hold again then find I have dropped my nail scissors. I try another way to do it, prop my foot on a stool and stoop over the width of my oversized waist line which brings on one of those unexpected cramps that causes one to try to jump up quickly and rub the cramp away.

Finally after many tries a position is found that allows the procedure to begin all over. Now the arthritic joint of the thumb decides it is time to make an appearance and refuses to grip the scissors with enough strength to cut the tough nails, and the nail clippers are out of the question for there is no way those crippled fingers can squeeze them together. When I finally rise from my camped position they are trimmed and ready for shoes again.

Another of the old sayings he come to my rescue and I have conquered the situation, by saying, "If a task is begun never leave it till it's done, be the labor great or small, do it well or not at all."

Now, for those of you who know Carl Hurley's ability to embellish a story, wouldn't he have a heyday with this one? I'm sure many of you folks have the same kind of problems but are ashamed to admit it but I have thrown mine to the wind and exposed shame so can join you in a laugh about it.

If you cook foods in advance, store them in small shallow containers in the refrigerator or freezer until party time. This encourages rapid, even cooling. Reheat hot foods to 165 degrees and serve them in batches of only a few on several small platters rather than one large one. Keep extra hot foods in an oven set at 200 to 250 degrees until serving time. Refrigerate cold foods until ready to use.

On serving tables, keep hot foods hot with chafing dishes, crock pots, and warming trays. Maintain cold foods by nesting dishes in bowls of ice.

Replace empty platters or serving dishes rather than adding fresh food to those that previously contained food.

When the party is over, discard any foods that were reheated or already on the serving table. Put unheated leftovers in shallow containers in the refrigerator or freezer.

Depending on the type of food, use refrigerated leftovers within two to four days. While frozen leftovers are safe indefinitely, quality begins to deteriorate within two to four months. Reheat leftovers thoroughly, to 165 degrees F.

Juanita "Sis" DeBorde of South Bend, Ind. recently visits after eight years

On the front porch of Geraldine and Warren Gommers's home hung a large banner with the words "Welcome Home Sis."

The breeze was blowing the yellow ribbons tied around a large oak tree. Geraldine was waiting for her sister to come home.

"Delight myself, also, in the Lord and He shall give thee the desires of thine heart." Ps. 37:4 This is what Sis did for 8 long years. Because her heart's desire was to come home, just once more, to Mt. Vernon to see her family and friends.

Even though her doctor advised against such a trip because of her health problems. When they said she might not survive the trip, Sis took up the matter with the Lord. And He answered her cry "to go home just once more." He reached down from heaven and touched Sis with strength. And she came home.

The Lord blessed her trip with sunshine and He dressed the hills in His finest colors.

What a time of celebration and thanksgiving it was. All her family and friends came to welcome her home.

"I never talked so much in my whole life," she said. "I've prayed so hard for this," she said with tears flowing down her cheeks. "Thank you, Jesus, I'm blessed in so many ways," she commented.

Even though Sis has only 14 of a lung and must stay on oxygen at all times, she never let that put a damper on her homecoming.

Sis is a lady with a soft, gentle voice but behind that voice is strength

Don't invite bacteria to holiday gatherings

By: Hazel Jackson County Extension Agent
for Home Economics

Holiday parties where foods are left out for a long time leave the door open for uninvited guests - bacteria that cause foodborne illness. Keep these unwanted guests away from your gatherings by preparing, handling and storing foods properly.

Although bacteria are everywhere, a few types really like to crash holiday parties. The pathogens include Staphylococcus aureus, Clostridium perfringens, and Listeria monocytogenes. These "party crashers" can't be smelled or tasted.

Staph bacteria are found on skin, in infected cuts and pimples, and in our noses and throats. To prevent spread, wash hands and utensils before preparing and handling foods. Do not let prepared foods, especially cooked and cured meats and cheese and meat salads, remain at room temperature more than two hours.

Perfringens is often called the "cafeteria germ" because it may be found in foods served in quantity or foods left for long periods on inadequately maintained steam tables or at room temperature. Prevention measures include dividing large portions of cooked foods (ie. beef, turkey, gravy, dressing, stews and casseroles) into smaller portions to serve and cool. Keep cooked foods hot or cold, but not lukewarm.

Since Listeria bacteria multiply slowly at refrigeration temperatures, the bacteria can be found in cold foods typically served on buffets. To avoid these bacteria, follow "keep refrigerated" label directions and adhere to "sell by" and "use by" dates on processed products; reheat frozen or refrigerated processed meat and poultry products before eating them.

Whether planning a holiday party for a big crowd, or serving a typical family, always follow these food safety principles.

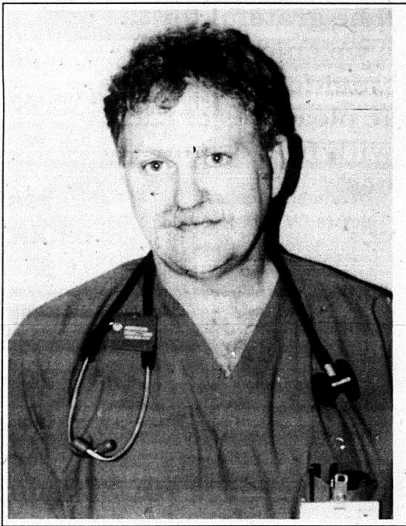

Wash your hands before and after handling food.

Keep your kitchen, dishes and utensils clean. To prevent cross-contamination from raw meat juices, always serve food on clean plates - not those that held raw meat and poultry.

Cook meat and poultry thoroughly to safe temperatures. Cook fresh roast beef to at least 160 degrees F. for medium. Bake whole poultry to 180 degrees; poultry breasts to 170 degrees; and ground turkey and poultry to 165 degrees. Cook other meat, fish and ground red meats to 160 degrees.

Keep cold foods cold (40 degrees or cooler) and hot foods hot (140 degrees or warmer).

We are much more than a long-term facility . . .

We are much more than a long-term facility. Are you aware of the other services offered by your community hospital's Respiratory Care Department?

There are EEG (electroencephalograph) services for all ages. These tests allow a physician to detect any abnormalities in the brain waves. These tests are transmitted to Lexington where they are read by a neurologist.

Pulmonary Function testing is also available. This type of test helps determine if lung function is impaired and to what degree. Another use of these tests is to determine eligibility for Black Lung Benefits. You can also see the amount of improvement achieved after using a bronchodilator.

Stress testing is a very important step in evaluating cardiac function. The patient has lead wires hooked to electrodes placed at various spots on the chest. He/she will then be asked to walk on a treadmill while the technician and physician carefully monitor the function of the heart during the "stress" of walking.

These are just a few of the services offered by our fine hospital's Respiratory Care Department.

Soil Conservation service announces name change

The second largest agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture has changed its name from the Soil Conservation Service to the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) as part of a massive reorganization effort. For the past sixty years, the Soil Conservation Service has worked with private landowners to help conserve and protect natural resources. On October 20, Secretary of Agriculture, Mike Espy, signed orders which established the Natural Resources Conservation Service. The name change became effective November 14th.

Secretary Espy established the NRCS to administer all agriculture-related conservation programs, except for those assigned to the new Consolidated Farm Service Agency (CFSA). Historically, the Soil Conservation Service focused on the control and prevention of soil erosion. However, according to the Kentucky State Conservationist, Bill Milliken, the name Natural Resources Conservation Service, "more accurately reflects what we do -- helping people conserve all natural resources on private lands. It reflects a streamlined agency that provides quality service more efficiently."

The legislation which President Clinton signed into law on October 13 mandated certain provisions, but gave the Secretary broad latitude in many aspects of reorganization. These orders represent the first set of decisions necessary to begin implementation. Streamlining and rightizing the 130-year old USDA department will eliminate 14 USDA agencies, reduce and collocate one-third of the farm services field offices (approximately 1,100), reduce staff by up to 11,000 over five years, and save taxpayers $3.6 billion over five years. Espy stressed that the 2.5 billion in savings as a result of reorganization will come from office closings and streamlining of USDA in Washington, not out of the programs run by USDA. "The new reinvented USDA will work better, cost less and improve service to our customers," Espy said.

Reorganization brings new names for USDA

Some familiar U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) agencies have new names under the department's reorganization, but the same work continues, according to Thomas G. Fern.

Thomas Fern, who has been serving as the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) State Director for Kentucky, is now the Acting Rural Economic and Community Development (RECD) State Director.

Congress passed a bill authorizing the reorganization late in September, and Secretary of Agriculture Mike Espy issued orders making the changes on October 20.

The entire USDA was reorganized in an effort to provide better service to the public while reducing

Loans available for grain holders

Price support loans provide immediate cash for farmers while holding the grain for feeding purposes or allowing them sufficient time to make marketing decisions.

Producers, with suitable on-farm storage or using an approved warehouse, are eligible to obtain a nine-month price support loans on their 1994 crops. Loans are available for ear corn and high moisture grains. The loan rate, by county, varies from $1.94 to $2.06 per bushel on corn and $5 to $5.07 per bushel on soybeans. The loan rate for Rockcastle County is $1.98 for corn and $5 for soybeans.

The loan repayment rate is the lower of (1) the county loan rate plus accrued interest or (2) the posted county loan repayment rate for the commodity. The posted county price is based upon the previous day's market prices at appropriate U.S. terminal markets, as determined by Commodity Credit Corporation. These prices may be adjusted to reflect quality and location. The posted county price is established and available daily at each county ASCS Office.

tions of up to 11,000 nationwide."

Fern said the FmHA and the Rural Development Administration (RDA) are being abolished and most of their loan and grant programs are being taken over under the RECD title.

The farm lending, rural housing, water and waste disposal, community facility, and business and industry programs formerly administered by FmHA or RDA will still be available at the newly named RECD offices.

New agency combines farm service functions

There's a new kid on the block-- and it's the Farm Service Agency (FSA).

It comes into being last month, when President Clinton signed into law a restructuring plan for the US Department of Agriculture (USDA) that will improve the way USDA agencies do business in Rockcastle County, said Clarence Raymond Brown, acting chairman of the Rockcastle County FSA Committee.

The FSA will administer commodity price and income support program, farm ownership and operating loans and the federal crop insurance program. The new agency combines 11 or part of three agencies familiar to farmers and ranchers--the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, the Farmers Home Administration, and the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation. Other loans offered by the former FmHA will be assigned to a new rural development agency.

In addition, the FSA will offer conservation cost-share assistance under the Agricultural Conservation Program, as well as cost-sharing and land rental payments for the Conservation Reserve Program.

The farm loan programs will become part of a new Farm Service Agency created under reorganization.

"For the time being, people wanting those important services should go to the local office that probably will still have a Farmers Home Administration sign out front," Fern said. "As additional changes are made, we will be letting the communities know about them."

"We want producers to know that the reorganization did not eliminate any programs," he said. "What will change are that these services soon will be available to producers on a 'one-stop' basis. The whole purpose of the new FSA is to be able to provide better, more efficient service and to make it easier for farmers to use our programs."

At the local level, farmer-elected committee members will continue to oversee farm program administration and will take on additional duties in overseeing other FSA programs.

"The agencies are merging at headquarters first," Brown said. "The combination of staffs and functions at the county level will come in time. In the meantime, farmers can receive service as usual at their county offices."

Open House set for Dec. 4th at RCHS

Rockcastle countians will get their first in-depth look at their newest educational facility, Rockcastle County High School, on Sunday December 4th.

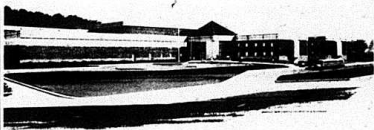

Open House has been scheduled for that day with tours of the entire facility.

The gym was opened to practice Monday, November 21 and, according to Richard Bray, finance officer for the district, the only thing remaining to be completed by the Open House will be "punch list" items - non-essential minor items.

Bray said the chorus and band rooms were now being used and the seats have been installed in the auditorium.

Times for the Open House are 2 to 5 p.m.

One project will not be ready for use by the next season needed -- the baseball and softball fields. Bray said construction was not able to progress to the point that seeding of the area could take place by the November 15th deadline. "We played at Roundstone last season and we can play there for one more season rather than take a chance on not getting the job done right," Bray told Rockcastle County School board members at their November meeting.

On opening day of sales

Burley averages $1.85

The burley tobacco market was off and running Monday, and to the joy of tobacco farmers, burley brought a good price.

And to add to the joy, tobacco was being bought by companies not giving to the pool.

Tobacco was up from $1.83 pound in 1993 to $1.85 on yesterday's market. In some markets it is high as $1.88 before leveling off.

In Danville, the price $1.85. Same price in Lexington, London, Somerset. But in Richmond it averaged $1.84 a pound.

Despite the price boost, farmers who sold burley yesterday took home about the same amount of money or less than they did last year. That is because the fee farmers pay to operate the federal tobacco program, the no-net-cost assessment, is 3.5 cents a pound higher than it was last year.

Perhaps the best news out of yesterday's markets concerned the surplus pool, the reservoir of last resort for tobacco the companies don't bid on. Gina Thomas, Tobacco Market News reporter for the Federal-State Market News Service, said the amount going into the surplus pool, or "under loan," was "practically nil."

"Prices are good, and very little if any tobacco is going under loan today," Thomas said. "Last year on this day, we had 45.8 percent going under loan on opening day."

In last year's overall market, 37.1 percent of all tobacco brought to the warehouse was left unsold and went to the pool.

When the pool is overloaded, the cost of maintaining and processing tobacco rises, as does the fee farmers pay. This year farmers must pay 4.5 cents a pound and companies pay 4.6 cents; last year each paid a penny a pound.

Ben Crain, president of Gentry Tobacco warehouse and Fourth Street warehouse, said midway through morning sales at Gentry that "I don't think we've had a pile go to the pool."

"That's a good sign," he said.

The mood yesterday was "Much brighter" than a year ago, Steven Greathouse, co-owner of Anglin Avenue and New Deal Tobacco warehouses No. 1 in Lexington, said after watching morning sales at Golden Burley Tobacco warehouse next door. "Saw a lot of smiles, and you didn't see a lot of people hanging their heads," Greathouse said. "It's been a year of years since it's been that way."

Although farmers and warehousemen were upbeat after watching yesterday's sales, many were hesitant to declare the overall market a success.

"I don't think it can hold up like this throughout the season," said Leroy Wallace, a Scott County farmer who sold some carryover tobacco at Gentry for a price high enough to surprise him. "I just think they're showing off a little."

He was referring to buyers for the cigarette companies, who at Gentry followed auctioneer Page Roberts through the rows of tobacco and took turns raising their hands to purchase tobacco.

John Fritz Jr., a Fayette County tobacco farmer, said he saw several good signs as he watched the sales at Gentry. One was that A.C. Monk & Co. of Farmville, N.C., a primary buyer for R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., was more active than it had been in recent sales.

Forgy says tobacco still has a future

By: Richard Anderkin

Call it a premonition.

Call it insider information.

Call it whatever you like, but if Monday's results are any indication, Republican gubernatorial candidate Larry Forgy knew what he was talking about when he told Rockcastle County business people and farmers Friday night that tobacco was certainly not dead and that he was optimistic about its future.

Monday the average price of Kentucky burley was $1.85 a pound and virtually no tobacco went into the surplus pool.

Forgy's comments came during the annual Farmers - Business Banquet at the Rockcastle County Middle School.

Forgy, who announced his candidacy for Governor on Monday, told Rockcastle farmers that tobacco quotas would not be cut by 40 to 50 percent, a figure being thrown out by some experts. Forgy said that farmers could expect a ten to fifteen percent cut for next year, but that it was his feeling that tobacco farmers would be in business in this state for years to come.

The main reason, "the quality of tobacco grown by Kentucky farmers is so much more superior to foreign grown tobacco that the foreign leg does not even compare," he said.

Forgy also praised the efforts of Rockcastle countian Danny McKinney, who is Chief Executive Officer of the Kentucky Burley Growers Co-op, based in Lexington.

"Danny has done a yeoman's job to modernize the tobacco co-op and represent the tobacco farmers from the onslaught of attacks on tobacco from all sides," Forgy said.

The Lexington attorney and former trustee of the University of Kentucky, said that Kentucky farmers know they must diversify to survive and that he thought there was time for them to do that before the tobacco program was gutted completely.

The new policy will also affect 15

Most of the time when I'm up early and driving around by myself, I pack a little device activated tape recorder that I can speak my thoughts into. It's a cheap little device, not much bigger than a pack of cigarettes, that cost me less than seventy-five bucks and it's handier than pockets on a shirt. I can literally say "go" and a little red dot lights up to let me know it's recording, whereupon I expose marvelous bits of wisdom or vent my rage or make notes about the landscape.

I learned myself of letters I need to write, as I drive along, and things I might convey in the writing. Of calls I need to make and like that. If I go 30 seconds without saying anything it shuts off by itself and automatically rewinds to return where I left off. In which case I not only matter, "go," again, to resume recording of my wit.

Once or twice a week, on quiet evenings at my desk, I play back the tape with pen and paper close at hand so that I might write down those early morning revelations and turn them into more substantial arguments. And believe it or not, I sometimes find subjects on that tape that are just as important after dark as they were in the early morning dew. Heck, that's where a lot of these weekly columns come from and I would hope that all four of you faithful readers have come to realize just how important this piece is to the preservation of mankind.

On the other hand, I find that most of the things that arise and often anger me in the morning seem far less urgent when I'm reminded of them after dusk with a belly full of beans.

So for that reason I intend to eat Thanksgiving Dinner several times this Thursday. Instead of gulping down a quart of coffee at the break of dawn and rushing out into our mad, mad world, I plan on having egg-nog when I rise. Egg-nog with maybe just a snifter full of brandy thrown on top. And while I shake the sleep away, I intend to boil some apple cider in the pot where, normally, we brew coffee. To wake the dead and season it with spice and cinnamon so strong that little curley-ques of scent will rise above our roof and be visible to passers-by the way they are off brand new asphalt when the main road gets paved in mid-July.

Nearly never do I have eggs to start the day, but while the cider is brewing I intend to throw a couple of fresh hen berries on the skillet with a slice of thin pork shoulder and a piece or two of toast. I'll grab a jar of Loretta's strawberry jam from the refrigerator door and lather it atop my eggs and toast and roll up my sleeves without feeling a bit of pity for myself that I didn't also fry some taters and make a bowl of gravy and corn.

Then I'll throw the neck-bone and the liver and the gizzard and anything else lying loose around the turkey into a little kettle and turn the heat on high. I'll pour another cup of cider and maybe season it with just a smiter of that brandy and I'll commence chopping onions and celery and crunching crackers and sifting sage and breaking eggs and adding salt and pepper and tasting the mixture

You are getting this paper a day earlier because of the Thanksgiving Day.

Rick Anderkin roused me out of a good, early morning snooze on Monday by the ringing of my telephone saying, "We have to have your copy of your column in the office by this afternoon because we'll be getting the paper out a day earlier."

He might as well have said, "Can you jump into a big hole of cold water right now?" He brought me awake instantly. I had meant to take my time in getting awake but you can imagine how she felt getting icy cold water all over you.

Well, I can tell you. I really had that experience Saturday when I rushed into Hair Plus to get my hair done by Teresa Singleton and heard her say, "We don't have any hot water. Our tank suddenly went from hot to cold and we can't get any hot water."
"Oh, cut out the joking and do my hair-- I'm in a big hurry to attend a Thanksgiving supper at church. Teresa said, no more, but tied the rubber cloth around me and the next thing I knew, which brought me almost out of that chair, was when the electric like shock of icy cold water hit my warm scalp. I yelled while everybody in there was laughing and Teresa said to me, "I told you we had no hot water," and she was tickled too.

Well, being daring by nature, I said, Take it easy and I'll try to bare it."

I heard a woman in the next chair say to her operator, "Just give me one rise as I can stand." You know we women will endure a lot to keep up our looks.

I told you readers about our church service at Galilee on the 17th when Mark McGuire filled in for Pastor Dodson who was on leave. This young man kept us in our seats by the very message he was bringing.

I told John and Mark that my last wish was to have Brother Mark say the last words at my funeral when I left the earth.

Brother Mark said, "I haven't been ordained yet. I'm waiting for the Lord to call me."

"Well, hurry up and get it done," I said. "Maybe you could be our preacher in the years to come!"

Then I told you how Lee Abney caused me to leave church last week. I don't mean he told me to take my body out, but my spirit simply went up high for the song request I had made of Lee to sing, "One Day at a Time" for me. I simply shut my eyes and drifted out of church as he sang.

To me, the singing is a great part of church especially in the choir. Kaye Abney and Barbara Spears joined the God's Messengers singers and it just made the music great!

I'm misspelling again. I wrote Kendrick when it should have been Kendrick. They can take one look at me and say, "She doesn't know any better!"

At this writing, Monday 20th, the mother of Philip Gatliff lies in her last sleep at a funeral home here in Berea. We went up after church thinking we had plenty of time but the Home was closed at 8 o'clock but I will go to the funeral at 1 p.m. and write about Phil and Ruth Gatliff next week.

John is still ranching with two young steers out on Clear creek. He simply stuffs them with good feed for them to get fat and he can sell them. I told my husband he should stuff me with food so that I could gain some of the weight I have lost.

He said, "It would cost a lot more to feed you than the steers, besides I

PRECIOUS SOULS, CHILDREN OF AN EVIL AGE, greetings and graduations from the off-city nexus of Wald, Spire, and Quail, where never-to-optimistic Junie Fust, local dispenser of Uncle Lester's Litter for barnyard cats, said last week to a benchload of time-killers in Shoop's Tonsorial Parlor, "Gratitude is a stupid word. Some idiot put it in the dictionary, but it's hard to find in a human heart."

Now, beloved, we Wabdiens have come to expect that kind of talk from Junie. His own mother declared more than once that he was "born in vinegar and put up in dull pickles." Nonetheless, Junie may not be as far off the mark as we'd like to think. It could be he's more realistic than pessimistic. Jesus, you recall, healed ten lepers, but only one returned to say "Thank you."

I can't speak for you, dear hearts. I have enough trouble discerning the meaning of my own heart. (Although I must admit that at times I think I know what other folks are thinking. What a flaw! And you?) I am close to the truth when I say that ingratitude has been and still is one of the weights that so easily beset me. So many did so much for me! Now that I'm a senior citizen, I realize that. But most whom I would thank have passed on.

We remember kindnesses. One in particular I recall often. On a Friday evening in May of '68, I was at the bedside of my mother in a Frankfort hospital. She would not last long. I was told. Her heart was worn out, and the "attack" earlier that day had done too much damage. Nancy was at home with our sons. I sat there... waiting... and alone in a real sense because Momma was unconscious.

Hours passed. I had arrived at four o'clock, and it was after nine. So many times I had "been there" for others whose loved ones were "putting out to sea." Now it was my turn again, and I needed someone to be there for me. In my solitude, I thought, The saying is so: a pastor has no power.

I had been taught that people who are unconscious might still hear what we say. So, I leaned over Momma's face, looked into her open but motionless, hazel eyes, and said, "Momma, I love you." No response, of course, but I have hope she heard.

I sat down in a big lounge chair, picked up a Gideon Bible, and turned to chapter twenty-eight of Genesis, the latter part of which tells of Jacob's first night away from home (and his mother). Having deceived his father and cheated his brother, he was fleeing for his life. He fell asleep with his head on a stone -- he was really tired to do that -- and dreamed of a staircase reaching to heaven. On its angels ascended and descended, i.e., going up to the throne of God and coming down with blessings for Jacob.

Earlier that day, I had studied that story in a Hebrew class at the seminary. My professor, "Red Top" Owens, had used the account as the basis for the hymn, Nearer, My God, to Thee. Sitting there, looking at Momma, looking back to the text, some words of that tune came to me:

*There let the way appear,
Steps unto heav'n;
Ah! that Thou sendest me,
In mercy giv'n;
Angels to beckon me
Nearer, my God, to Thee...
Then with my waking tho't
Bright with Thy praise,
Out of my stony grave,
BETH'N I'll raise;
So my woes to be
Nearer, my God, to Thee...*

The hymn's interpretation of Jacob's experience comforted me momentarily. Before long, however, alienness crept in again. The anguish of losing my mother was over-whelming, and I could do nothing to abate its assault. I talked to Momma. I talked to myself. How I needed someone to say something.

And then the door opened. In walked Frances Samples, a seventy-some, retired school teacher and a member of my church in Bagdad. She patted me on the back as we stood over Momma, but I don't recall a word she said. I do remember the cheesburger and Coke she brought, not so much because I was hungry, but because they were tokens of her concern. Not long after Frances left, Momma went away. But, oh, how Frances' presence helped! Never did

In Loving Memories

"In Loving Memories"

One year ago today,
When you were called away.

In Loving Memory of Thomas William Kirby Who passed away eight years ago on November 22, 1986

God forgive a sudden tear,
A silent wish that he was here,
Others are taken, yes I know,
But he was mine and I loved him so
His loneliness here without him
We miss him more each day,
Life doesn't seem the same,
Since he has gone away.

Loved and very sadly missed by wife Marian, daughter Vicki, sons Tommy, Junior and Shane, granddaughters, Jerrica, LeAnn and Bethany, mother Bessie, brother Paul, sisters Lois, Dot, Lacy, Villa, Lorene, Sue and Jenny

In loving memory of Andy Martin who passed away November 8, 1994

Grandpa

Your eyes were blue as the sky
Your hair was white as snow
Your skin was wrinkled and dry
Like bark from an old tree
You were just lying there in the nursing home suffering and wishing you were already gone
Now, Grandpa your wish has come true
You left us a couple weeks ago to go on to a better place

I know you are in heaven because when I came to see you, you would tell me you were prepared for heaven I miss you so much, but I know we'll see each other again someday

My last goodbye to you was very hard but I came to realize you are better off in heaven because you won't have to suffer anymore
Grandpa, everyone knew you lived a long, rough, hard life for ninety-two years I was hoping you would live forever -- but no one can live forever -- when it's their time to go, they must go
Grandpa, you were the greatest grandpa

Anyone could ever have I love you, miss you, and you better believe I'm never going to forget you!

Love,
Your granddaughter
Jeanette Wheat

Don't want to sell you for you are a pretty good cook! That's when I threw some newspapers at him. We Senior Citizens at Galilee Baptist Church were honored by the younger women members with a Thanksgiving supper on Saturday night, the 19th, in the recreation hall at church. That was the only time I didn't mind being a senior citizen (I usually claim to be 49) for when I looked at those long tables of food set out, I didn't mind at all.

Let no man say the women members of the church can't cook! As a strong witness (who ate served helpings), I'm here to say they can. John went for the big pan of chicken dumplings, Mike Gave didn't stop on one plate, and the only thing that did stop him was when it was time for the Messengers to sing back in the auditorium.

Eld and Geneva Gabbard were unable to attend so I saw Lee making up a plate of that good food to take home to them, or did he? He was gone out for awhile.

It takes the voices of women to round out a good choir so when Kaye Abney and Barbara Spears joined them we really had music.

I had a letter from my niece, who is a reader of the Signal. She tells me she is having a cataract operation next week. Her brother, Frank Payne, and my nephew too, is visiting her in Burbank, California and she's been planting flowers and some are blooming while I'm putting mine to bed and Frank from Washington state, have 28 degree weather at night.

Betty Bisbee in Texas is getting an early Christmas gift. Be watching, Betty.

John and I are invited to Sherrill Cornett and her father Burly Barger's for Thanksgiving for dinner Thursday. I'm going to the second meal, that I don't have to cook, on Thanksgiving.

I learned that Jeff Dondanville, reader from California, is getting older (may have to walk with a cane) and was 43 years old. His brother, Gary, chases girls and he ought to know better, they'll stop and be caught and he'll get married!

Till next week,
I would thank Geneva Gabbard for the canning jar of pepper relish that she sent John. I can't eat hot stuff and John loves it even if flames come out of his mouth.

Static Primary visited the Fire Department on Monday, November 14. They also asked questions on fire safety. This was a follow-up to a visit by the volunteer firemen to the Static classrooms during fire safety week.

The P.T.A. would like to thank everyone for their help in making the Fall Festival such a great success. A visit by Ronald McDonald was the highlight of the activities for the day. All students attended the festival between 1 and 3 p.m. in the gym while parent/teacher conferences were held in the classrooms. The festival continued after school until around 8:30 with a chili supper, cake walks and many other festivities. Anyone wanting to order t-shirts can contact the school or any PTA member. Deadline is Nov. 30th.

Don't forget, after school tutoring begins Tuesday, November 22.

There will be no school on Thursday, November 24 and 25, in observance of the Thanksgiving Holiday.

The G.E.D. course will not meet on Thursday due to the closing of school but will resume on December 1. Enjoy the holiday!

These committees were voted in at our Nov. 15th meeting. We would like to say "Thank You" to all the parents and teachers who attended and thanks to the kindergarten for a wonderful program.

Recently seven MVES music students traveled to the University of Kentucky Singletary Center for the Arts for the Central Ky. Music Educator's Association Elementary Choral Festival. These 4th and 5th grade students spent a day filled with choral rehearsals which culminated with a performance that evening, November 4th. The students, along with music director Ms. Jamie Cornelius, would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank Mrs. Gina Nicely for helping to transport the students and for watching over them throughout our day. "Thanks Mrs. Nicely!" The students who attended the festival were: front row from left: Nicole Nicely, Crystal Chestnut. Second row from left: Austin Miller, Courtney Alexander, Andrew Hammond, Aaron Anderkin and Rachelle Riddle.

News from Mrs. Clark's Class
The holidays are coming up soon and we are getting into the right frame of mind. We are planning a Thanksgiving program and a Christmas Play. Mrs. Cornelius is helping us with music.

We have adopted a patient at the hospital as our community 4-H project. We will be going to visit our patient before Thanksgiving.

This past week we have been designing posters for the Jim Claypool Conservation Contest. The theme for this year's contest is Habitat: A Wild Hangout.

That's all for this week!

Musically Speaking
Ms. Cornelius would like to congratulate Mrs. Clark's 4th grade, Mrs. Cameron's 3rd level and Mrs. Cowan's 3rd level for earning 12 Superstars in music! These three classes are heading in our "Superstar behavior" contest.

The 1st level classes have all been learning about harvesting crops. We've been pantomiming to the song "Harvest Song" by Douglas Moore and viewing a Vincent Van Gogh painting entitled "Landscape with Cypresses." We completed our unit with "Old MacDonald."

Many of our classes at MVES are working hard preparing programs for the upcoming Christmas Season. Be on the lookout for "Coming Attractions" by our music students!

Seven of our 4th and 5th grade students successfully completed a day of rehearsals at U.K. on Nov. 4th. The annual C.K.M.E.A. Choral festival was a huge success as our own Aaron Anderkin, Nicole Nicely, Austin Miller, Rachelle Riddle, Courtney Alexander, Andrew Hammond and Crystal Chestnut performed for well over 1,000 anxious onlookers. Bravo to a job well done.

Friday afternoon the fourth and fifth grades enjoyed a high voltage demonstration presented by Kentucky Utilities. Jerry Jackson and Jimmy Morton from Kentucky Utilities in Lexington came to do the demonstration.

The demonstration showed the consequence of coming in contact with energized wires and was very good information for the students. They also gave the students a lot of safety tips concerning electricity and the dangers associated with it. The students and staff enjoyed the demonstration very much and would like to express their appreciation to Kentucky Utilities.

While the fourth and fifth grade classes viewed the demonstration, the other classes enjoyed a dental presentation given by Dr. John Parsons and his assistant, Missy Burton. Dr. Parsons gave the students some very good information on how to care for their teeth. The students were given a toothbrush and some toothpaste during the presentation. The students and staff would like to express their appreciation to Dr. Parsons and Ms. Burton.

Coach Darla Reams has had her students exercising their brains as well as their bodies in P.E. this week.

The assignment was to write a story about "The Day Three Athletes Came to Thanksgiving Dinner." Below are the stories of some of the winners from Ms. French's class.

A Cool Thanksgiving

By Jessica

It's that time a year again. When you eat dumplings, squash, pumpkin pie and turkey. Thanksgiving, of course.

I remember one cool Thanksgiving. It had my three favorite athletes in my house, eating with my family and me at my table.

They were Jane Torvill and Christopher Dean, usually known as Torvill and Dean, and the Ice Masters of Ice Dancing and Shaquill O'Neal, usually known as Shaq. He's an awesome basketball player.

Let me tell you how it went.

First I heard a knock at the door. My mom told me to answer it. When I opened it I saw them. There they were my three favorite athletes. I was standing, shocked, staring at them. After a while I invited them in. My mom made them a plate of food, such as turkey, mashed potatoes, stuffing, a McDonald's meal mean so much.

So... it's Thanksgiving. A time to voice our appreciation to God for his bounty and grace. A time to be grateful for what we have rather than regretful about what we don't have. And a time to thank the Almighty for his most excellent gift of friends - friends who, like Frances, are there when you need them.

Until next week, precious souls, when the lunacy of Christmas will have seized most of us, ponder a sermon point made last Sunday by Rev. Augustus D. Bushmyrtle, Bishop of Wab's Middle-Road Non-Denominational Baptist Church: There's always something to be thankful for. If you can't pay your bills, be thankful you're not one of your creditors!

"Points East"

until my lips and hands get raw until the giblets smell like they're done. I'll pour myself another cup of eggnog while the giblets cool and take a swig of brandy right out of the bottle. I'll pour the stock off the giblet stew into my dressing and chop up the giblets except for half the gizzard, which I'll chew up and chase with another shot of brandy to make sure I don't put too much in the dressing and then I'll empty the bottle into the mixture that goes inside and all around the bird just before I pop it into the oven.

About the time that Loretta gets out of bed I will have eaten twice. Two full meals if you call the gizzard lunch. And I will have absolutely no need whatever for my tape recorder. She will have a cup of cider and suggest to me that it might taste just a little better if it had a tablespoon full of brandy and I will explain that the brandy is in the turkey.

Loretta will spend the rest of the morning and early afternoon fixing Fall beans and sweet potatoes and cabbage and potatoes and cole slaw and corn bread and so forth while I mind the turkey. We'll eat about two o'clock and then again about eight.

And I'll bet any amount of money that I won't even think about my little recorder all day long. In fact, I doubt that I'll have any need for it on Friday.

Happy Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving, the day we pause in gratitude for a bountiful Mother Nature and the blessings of America.

And a day to add a special "thanks" to you who have added so much to the pleasure of our lives with your friendship.

FHA attends national meeting in Colorado off of the plane among the Rocky Mountains of the Mile High City in Denver, Colorado on the recent FHA trip. Eight officers and three adult chaperones from the Rockcastle County Chapter of the Future Homemakers of America, recently flew into Denver, Colorado for a weekend of learning and fun.

This year's National Cluster Meeting was held from November 4-6. At the Cluster Meetings, FHA members learn to build their own personal growth, to encourage others to join FHA and to motivate their own clubs with great and exciting ideas.

On Friday night, none of us lacked school spirit. Most listened as Mr. Cash reported the game from a pay phone. Spirits were definitely brightened when we learned that our home team had defeated Anderson.

Even after the wonderful meetings that we attended, the fun didn't stop there. We began yet another journey into Taos, (where we visited an original Indian Pueblo) Santa Fe, (where we visited a church that has once been on "Unsolved Mysteries") and Albuquerque (where we went through Old Town and shopped).

By November 9, the officers were homesick. Everybody's wishes were to just be home, but they were soon fulfilled when we arrived back in Louisville and saw all of those loving Rockcastle County faces.

This sixth year hat the FHA officers have been fortunate enough to attend the National Cluster Meetings, which prepared the club for a great year in FHA.

ham, pumpkin pie and rolls. When we ate we talked about gold medals and such. You know that Torvill and Dean won a gold medal in the 1984 Olympics in Sarajevo. They left spectators and judges breathless with the power, beauty and drama of their skating. Skating their free program too.

Maurice Reveals Bolero. They earned perfect 6.0 scores. Shee chatters glass when he does a slam dunk.

Over all it was a cool evening.

When My Three Favorite athletes came to Thanksgiving Dinner

By Brently

We were at my grandmother's house watching the Thanksgiving Parade.

On the floats were movie stars, people dressed up as cartoon characters and sports stars.

On the sports float was Alonzo Mourning, Anfennee Hardaway and Chris Webber. I blinked my eye and there they were sitting on my couch. They said that they wanted to eat Thanksgiving dinner with us. I got up and went into the kitchen where mom and granny were preparing the dinner. I asked them if the three athletes could stay for the dinner. At first she did not believe me till I showed her. She said, "That it was an honor to have the athletes stay for the dinner."

While we were waiting to eat dinner we decided to watch the game between the Indiana Pacers and the Chicago Bulls. The Bulls won by 12 points then we were ready to eat the dinner. The athletes took little bit of everything. After we were done eating we went into my room and played NBA Jam on Sega Genesis. Alonzo Mourning and I beat Chris Webber and Anfennee Hardaway. At night the athletes left but I won't forget the day they came.

The Slumber Party on Thanksgiving

By Kelly Croucher

One night I was going to have a slumber party on Thanksgiving. I was going to invite some of my friends. I decided to have a little bit of fun. I said, "What I want to do is to make us girls so crazy is to invite three of my favorite basketball players." So I called Michael Jordan, Travis Ford and Shaquille O'Neal. They all said "That they would come." When the basketball players arrived all the girls went crazy even my mom was going crazy. Then my dad came home he was speechless. Then he started to ask the basketball players questions like how many three pointers he you made. How many points have you made in your career? When we got done asking questions. We ate turkey dumplings, pie and all that other good stuff. After we got done eating, Michael said, "Let's go shoot some hoops." We shot three pointers. I shot first, I shot five and hit three. Then Michael shot fifteen and hit fourteen, then Travis. Next Travis rebounded for Shaquille and Shaquille rebounded for Michael. Then all of my friends took turns shooting they were so excited about seeing the boys they could not even hit a hoop. After we all got done shooting hoops my friends and I went to get the key to the golf cart, and we all rode around for a while. We went up the road to the second tunnel. Then we went a mile or two down the road. We came back to my house because Michael had to go watch the Chicago Bulls practice. Then Travis had to go play a Kentucky Wild Cat's game. Then Shaquille had to leave to go practice also. So after they all left. All of us girls started talking about Michael, Travis and Shaquille. Who they talked and liked the most was Travis. They said, "that he was the best looking hunk that they had ever seen. But the only reason I like him is that he was the best at three pointers, the best at jump shots, and he was the best at layups too." "I'll put it this way, Travis was the best at basketball! But the girls just couldn't get over his actions, looks and his smile. They went on all night talking about him while I went to sleep and dreamed about playing basketball and guess who was on my team. I'll never forget that Thanksgiving slumber party. I have already started to plan my Thanksgiving slumber party next year. Who knows who will show up there next year. They could be anyone. I mean anyone, maybe even you!

Third Annual Community Thanksgiving Service

Thanksgiving has rolled around again and the Rockcastle County Ministerial Association is planning to have their third annual Community Thanksgiving program at First Baptist Church of Mt. Vernon on Wednesday, November 23, at 7 p.m.

This program has become a tradition for our community and many people in the area have said how much they enjoy having this service. All religions are invited to join in giving thanks to our Lord for His blessings this past year and to ask His blessings on us in the coming year. We have many things that most of us can be thankful for and during the recent hazardous material chemical spill we were very fortunate that we had no deaths, or serious injuries or illnesses from this accident. We can be very thankful for the many people who were involved in helping our community and the many hours that they served.

Ministers of several faiths and local churches will be a part of the program, and we would like to have a full house to show our neighbors the true meaning of fellowship and brotherhood in the name of our precious Lord and Savior.

Revival

There will be a revival at the Full Gospel Outreach Church on Liberty Ave. on U.S. 25 south of Berea, Nov. 21 - 25. On the 21st Rev. James Moonenham will speak. Nov. 22 through 25, Rev. Alan Hensley will speak. Special singing nightly. Services begin at 7 p.m. Pastor Donald Wilson and congregation invite everyone to attend.

Studies on the Home

In the Adult Bible Class at the Providence church of Christ, we are having a special series of studies on the home on Wednesday nights at 7 p.m. We would like to extend a special invitation for everyone to come.

Benefit Sing

There will be a Benefit Sing for Denise Harding Graves, December 2nd at 7 p.m. at Scaffold Cane Baptist Church. For more information call 256-9658 or 256-2895.

There will be a Benefit Sing for Peggy French's mother, who is terminally ill with cancer, to be held at the Maple Grove Baptist Church on Saturday night, Nov. 26 at 7 p.m. featuring the Chapel Tones and the old Singing Renners.

Hunt Master Conservationist

Hal Hunt, who along with his wife Carolyn operates a Grade A Dairy on a 140 acre farm near Brodhead was chosen as this year's recipient of the Rockcastle County Master Conservationist Award. The Hunts were honored last Friday night at the annual Farmers - Business Banquet at the Rockcastle County Middle School. They are shown above with Roy Brown, at left, chairman of the local soil conservation board.

Lile, Jones concerned about Livingston school

The only visitors present for the November meeting of the Rockcastle County Board of Education were from Livingston, Elsie Jones, a resident, and Ed Lile, newly elected mayor.

The two were interested in talking with the board about what would become of the old Livingston school building and what the procedure would be for the building to be turned over to the community for use as a center for different activities.

Supt. Towery told Mrs. Jones and Mayor Lile that the first order of business would be for the board of education to find out how to declare the building surplus property and then to work with a coalition committee from Livingston area clubs and civic groups to come up with a way to transfer the property to them.

However, the coalition committee will have to have a plan as to how the building will be used and maintained.

The city has been working with the Cumberland Valley Area Development District (CVADD) to come up with a plan for use of the property for the betterment of the community," Lile told the board.

Some of the uses the city might pursue for the building, the mayor and Mrs. Jones told the board, included: extension classes for community college; drama club; GED program; tutoring sessions; the gym for basketball games especially on week ends with supervision set up by the committee; day care center and vocational classes.

Speaking of the children in the area, Mrs. Jones said, "No one's every tried to help them or guide them in the right direction."

The Livingston School Alumni Association has also expressed an interest in helping organize uses for the facility, Mayor Lile said and he also said he did not "feel it would be a problem to swing what we need to do things since the city will work with the alumni association and have already been talking to CVADD."

The discussion was ended with Supt. Bige Towery assuring the two that there was "no rigid time schedule" for disposal of the property. "We have to come up with a plan where those building are benefiting someone and we will table the matter until you (Livingston residents) have a chance to form a committee and come up with a plan," Towery said.

School Board

During the meeting, it was also explained that board member Dr. G.W. Griffith had been named to the advisory council to the State Department of Education formed by Dr. Thomas Boysen to get input into the program from local board members.

Dr. Griffith said the council will be asked to advise on three areas in particular - KERAS Testing, school councils (SBDM) and Tech Prep (Networking).

Griffith told the board that one district had not yet instituted a school based decision-making council (SBDM) and this would be mandatory next school year. Also, he pointed out that in schools which have surpassed their threshold level on test scores the council then could vote for a repeal of the SBDM process. Supt. Towery said he assumed that at that time the direction of the school would revert to the board of education as in the past.

Dr. Griffith also said that several members of the advisory council had told the state department of education that one problem area they felt connected with KERAS was the terminology not understood by the general public. Thereby hampering good communication. He said the recommendation was made that the state make a big public relations attempt to explain these terms, i.e., portfolio, etc., so the general public would have a better grasp of what they mean.

Supt. Towery took the time to comment Dr. Griffith for his service on this council.

Towery also told the board that he understood that some district were asking for restructuring of the councils although he did not elaborate on the subject.

In other action, the board:

- Approved student bus monitor contracts for Jason Iamb, Charity Sowler and Stephanie Loutan;
- Approved the issuance of GED certificates for Helen Amburgey, Jane L. Bradley, Marshall A. Traugott, Tina R. Tueti, Lisa Sylvor and Angela R. Vance;
- Approved application for emergency substitute teaching certificate for Dwight Alan Hensley;
- Approved Memorandum of Agreement with Cumberland Valley Health Occupations Center to allow practical nursing students to observe kindergarten program upon approval of principal/SBDM Council.
- Approved an initial offer of assistance from the School Facilities Construction Commission (SFC) in the amount of $56,487 and the additional offer of $6,834 for education technology (1994-95 school year). Board must commit equal matching funds;
- Approved the designation of Guidance Counselor Deborah Cummings as chairperson of MVES School Based Admissions and Release Committee (SBARC).

Lady Rocket 6th graders win tourney

Rock J.V. undefeated in 2 seasons

By Angie Brown
Special to the Signal

After going undefeated as freshmen the J.V. team began the 1994 season on Labor Day with a win over Lexington Catholic 34-0. The offense was led by J.B. King with two touchdown runs. The Rockcastle defense was equally hard not allowing Lexington Catholic inside the 30 yard line.

In the next game the defense forced two first quarter Whitley County turnovers which set up touchdown passes from Malcomb Shepherd. The first pass was caught by Jarrod Singleton, the second by Chris Bullock. Once again the Rockcastle defense did not allow its opponent inside the 30 yard line. The highlight of the game was the 32 yard field goal by Raymond Blackburn making the final score 16-0.

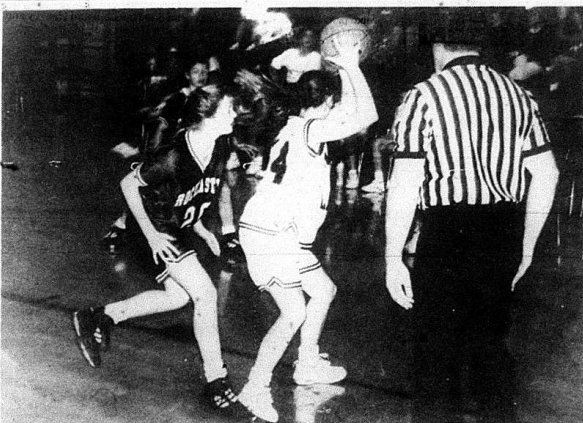

After having the next two teams on the schedule cancel games the Rockcastle JV's finally returned to action as they traveled to North Laurel. Again the defense dominated the game allowing an undefeated North Laurel to cross the 30 yard line only once. An interception return by J.B. King for a touchdown and long touchdown runs by Singleton and Jason Brown made the final score 25-0.

In game four, at Southwestern Pulaski, the Rock jumped out to an early lead but turnovers and penalties kept the Rockets from scoring twice more in the first half. Southwestern was able to tie the game but in the second half the Rock defense did not allow the Warriors to cross midfield. The Rockets won 14-6 and was led in scoring by Singleton as he scored all 14 points.

The Rockets soundly defeated Casey County 32-0 as five different running backs scored. With the outside blocking of ends Andrew Gistler and Eric Powell, Jody Carter was able to lead the way with touchdown runs of 80 and 65 yards. Ronnie Vanzant was equally impressive with his power running and a 45 yard touchdown run.

In game 6 the Rockets defeated Somerset 44-0 in a game that could have been much worse. Shepherd went to work early by throwing touchdown passes to Brown and Powell. Touchdown runs by Brown, Carter, and Singleton and another strong defensive showing proved too much for the Briar Jumpers.

Casey County asked for a rematch and visited the Rock with many new faces. After the rebels scored on the first play of the game the Rockets settled down and were able to take a 14-6 half time lead. The second half started off with Brown returning the kickoff 90 yards for a touchdown and the Rock led 22-6. But an early fourth quarter score by Casey County made the score 22-14. Casey was able to score again but on the two point conversion the defense held and with three minutes left in the game the Rock held on to a two point lead. The Rock was unable to run out the clock and Casey had time for four more plays. Outstanding pass coverage by freshmen cornerbacks Travis Anderkin and Dusty McClure stopped the Rebels short of the goal.

Owens and Slade Calhoun along with linebacker David Coffey, shut out five opponents and allowed only 3.7 point per game. While the offense, with solid line play by Jason Brock and Jason Durham, averaged scoring 27.7 points per game.

Our Readers Write

Dear Editor,
As we sit down to enjoy our Thanksgiving dinner and give thanks to God for our many blessings, let's not forget those who are less fortunate than us. There are families in our community, many of them with young children, who will go to bed hungry tonight.
In cooperation with the Rockcastle Emergency Assistance Program (REAP), Cub Scout Pack 263 has organized a food drive to help feed the hungry. As Cub Scouts, and as good citizens, these boys feel it is their duty to help other people. In the next few weeks a Cub Scout will be knocking on your door, asking for food donations for the needy. Please don't send him away empty-handed. Help us feed the hungry in our community.

In order to help with the collection of food, the following grocery stores have generously agreed to provide a shopping cart for donations: Morfor-Less, Superior, Carter's, and Super Save. Simply buy a little something extra when you do your grocery shopping and drop it in the cart on your way out of the store.

Thank you,
Vickie Lambert

KET's Torvill and Dean: Facing the Music follows the famous ice dancers as they return to Olympic ranks

Ice dancing was never the same after Torvill and Dean won gold in Sarajevo. Their precedent-shattering routine, choreographed to Ravel's Bolero, thrilled and amazed those who saw their 1984 Olympic achievement and put ice dancing on a new path. When changes in Olympic rules allowed professionals to compete in the 1994 winter games, Jayne Torvill and Christopher Dean resolved to go for the gold again. The question in their minds - and in others' - was, could they still do it after 10 years?

Torvill and Dean: Facing the Music, airing on KET at 8 p.m. Monday, November 28, chronicles the preparations for the British duo's return to Olympic ice dancing competition.

Library News

By Geraldine Robbins

Happy Thanksgiving!!! We her at the library are wishing for everyone a happy and enjoyable holiday. To me this is one of the best holidays of the year, a time when families are able to get together and share their many blessings also, just to enjoy visiting with the family members that we don't get to see very often. Hopefully my three sons and their families will be with us for the first time in a few years on Thanksgiving Day.

The library will be closed Thursday but will be open again Friday. The Rockcastle County Library Board of Trustees welcomes a new member, Ken Mattingly. Ken is replacing Gatliff Craig who has resigned from the board. Ken is married to Jennifer Cox and they have one small daughter. We feel fortunate to have a young man with Ken's expertise to join with the other library trustees in promoting the Rockcastle County Library.

The Adult Reading Group will be meeting Monday, Nov. 28th at 10:30 a.m. They will be discussing the new biography of Barbara Bush. Mrs. Bush is a very interesting and down-to-earth lady and I'm sure this will be an informative session. Anyone that's interested in reading and discussing good books is welcome to join this group. They are encouraged by having new people meet with them and they always welcome suggestions on topics for later meetings.

Also the Craft Class will be meeting Nov. 30th at 1 p.m. This class is meeting every two weeks. Several crafts have already been taught and we plan to continue through the winter. We are asking that anyone that has an interesting craft to share this with the class.

I am going to share some new non-fiction books with you this week. Not everyone likes fiction books and we do have a wide variety of books on different subjects available.

1. Reckless Disregard by James S. Kunen. Shannon Fair was one of the twenty-four children and three adults who died in history's worst drunk driving accident, the infamous Kentucky school bus crash. On May 14, 1988, Larry Mahoney drove his pickup truck down the wrong side of Interstate 71, head-on into a church bus loaded with children returning from a church outing. The bus burst into flames, trapping the screaming, terrified passengers inside.

Propelled by an urgent need to know exactly why Shannon died, her parents began a search for reasons. To their horror, the Fairs found evidence and vowed to prove in court that the design of the school bus, whose chassis was built by Ford Motor Company, was responsible for the deaths as the drunk driver.

Readers will be shocked to learn that most school buses have polyurethane seat cushions which burn like gasoline and emit lethal fumes; that school buses with just one emergency exit are still on the road; that thousands of school buses have fuel tanks that are vulnerable in a crash.

James S. Kunen tells the inside story of the David-versus-Goliath battle this courageous American family waged against one of the world's mightiest corporations.

2. Color Echoes: Harmonizing Color in the Garden by Pamela J. Harper. The author begins with a critical look at standard color theory and explains why it doesn't work when transferred to the living garden. She then explores the particulars of how color echoes can be employed to blend mixed colors, tone down harsh colors, or unify an entire scheme. Hundreds of specific plant combinations are suggested in sections on individual colors, in addition to advice on the best design uses of those colors. Color Echoes concludes with a unique pictorial chronicle of two echoes borders, showing them over several years' time and highlighting both their successes and failures.

3. Not All Of Us Are Saints: A doctor's journey with the poor by David Hilffker, M.D. In 1983, Dr. Hilffker took on the greatest challenge of his career; he left his practice in rural Minnesota, moved with his wife and three young children to an inter-city neighborhood in Washington, D.C., and entered the world of poverty medicine. Not All Of Us Are Saints vividly depicts what it means for a physician to confront the health problems of ravaged ghetto communities, for a middle-class white man to face the stark contrasts between poverty and privilege, and for a human being to admit his own spiritual limitations.

Through dramatic accounts of his own cases, Dr. Hilffker shows us a medical universe in which doctors are as lost as powerless as their patients, where even the most commonplace medical solutions—bed rest, dietary dosages, diet—are of little use to people without homes or family or food.

4. Appalachia's Path to Dependency by Paul Salsstrom. The debate over the source of Appalachia's economic problems have been going strong since Harry Caudill's Night

Comes to the Cumberlands appeared in 1963. Now a new study illuminates the regions plight, making a vital contribution to the understanding of this area's critical economic dilemma.

In Appalachia's Path to Dependency, Paul Salsstrom examines the evolution of economic life over time in southern Appalachia. Moving away from the colonial model to an analysis based on dependency, he exposes the complex web of factors—regulation of credit, industrialization, population growth, cultural values, federal intervention—that has worked against the region.

Covering the entire span of Appalachia's economic history, from early white settlement to the end of the New Deal, this work is not simply an economic interpretation but draws as well on the other areas of history. Salsstrom compares Appalachia with the Midwest at mid-nineteenth century, today's Appalachia with the Third World countries, and the region with Japan.

AAA expects record volume for Thanksgiving travel

A record number of Americans will travel 100 miles or more during the Thanksgiving holiday, according to AAA Blue Grass/Kentucky.

AAA estimates 30.4 million Americans will travel this holiday, up three percent from 1993. More than 25 million will travel by motor vehicle, while another 5 million will travel by plane, train or bus.

Motor vehicle travel will be heaviest in the Southeast with 6.5 million motorists on the roads, followed by the Midwest with 5.5 million travelers.

Motorists will pay nearly a nickel per gallon more to drive this Thanksgiving than they did in 1993. AAA's latest Fuel Gauge survey shows the nationwide average price of self-serve regular unleaded is $1.165. In Kentucky, the average is $1.116 and locally, it's $1.095. The Lexington area survey of 43 service stations shows a range in price of $1.06 to $1.12. AAA reports nearly 64 percent of the stations surveyed will be open during the holiday and 34 percent will operate 24 hours.
