Dear Editor,

Dear Editor,

National service is a program which has enjoyed and should continue to enjoy bipartisan support in these times when the size of government needs to be reduced. National service is built upon initiative and collaboration at the local level. In addition, it provides an incentive and a structure to elicit community involvement from citzens young and old.

An excellent example of a local national service program is the AmenCorps/Student Service Consortium which is coordinated by Eastern Kentucky University's College of Education.

AmenCorps/Student Service Consortium, a regional collaborative sortium, a regional collaborative partnership of 20 Southeastern and Central Kentucky school districts and Berea and Cumberland College has Berea and Cumberland College has all armendous service impactupon this region in its first five months. Consider the following: A midyear, the Student Service Consortium has already accomplished its objectives for the year and then some. If the student service Consortium has already accomplished in some to the year and then some 15 first objective was involved 5.704 students, the Student Service Consortium has arready involved 5.734 students, Postsecond way in service-learning projects. The Student Service Consortium's second objective was for students to perform 12,500 service hours in their community. A midyear, the students have performed 30,536 hours of service.

(serve) at least 5,000 communi members. At midyear, 11,523 cor munity members have been served

A fourth objective was to Lifuse service-learning into 100 classes. At midyear, service-learning has been infused into 226 classes.

Though the AmeriCorpa/Student Service Consortium - students, knostecondary, throughout Southeastern and Central Kentucky are learning the joy of serving their communities and that they can make a difference in their community that one person, committed to service for hisy for community may, through individual action, begin a process which will produce positive community changes. That that person's service action can be envisioned as a pebble, which upon impact upon the surface of a pool, produces ripples which multiply and expand until the surface of the pool is changed.

Nancy Thames
Director, AmeriCorps/Student Service Consortium

Dear Editor,
In response to John C. Curtis' letter last week in the Mt. Vernon Signal, let me make some observations.
Mr. Curtis assures us that "no true member of The Catholic Church" has member of The Catholic Church has ever made a statement that "God did not give a Book (The Bible) that could be understood and reach every-onel" Let me quote from the book The Faith of Millions by John A. O'Brien, Onga, 139 he said 'from all of which it must be abundantly clear that that the Bible alone is not a safe and competent guide because it is not now and has never been accessible to all, and because it does not contain all and competent guide because it is not now and has never been accessible to all, and because it does not contain all the truths of the Christian Religion.

Notice he said it is not clear and intelligible, and it's not accessible to all. Does that not sound a whole to all. Does that not sound a whole to all. Does that not sound a whole to the the statement I made above? In the book The Faith of Our Fathers do ng. 73. "We must, therefore, conclude that the Seriptures alone cannot be a sufficient guide and rule of faith because they cannot, at any time, be within the reach of every inquirer, because they are not of themselves clear and intelligible contained the truth the cause they cannot, and because they cannot, and the cause they cannot, and because they do not contain all the ruths concessary (or all salvation. "Notice he said the properties of the highest Does that not sound a whole lot like the statement I made above? Do these quotes by these Catholic authors, sound like I was making "false statements and accustions?" No, I believe in honessy and fairness in describing another's belief.

Let me focus on three points from the above two authors, they both made: 1. The Bible is not understandable or intelligible.

2. The Bible does not contain all

2. The Bible does not contain alt ruth necessary for salvation.
3. The Bible is not accessible or within reach for all. Yet we are told that the New Catechism of the Catbolic Church can:
1. Clarify the true teachings of the church, be a beacon to prevent us from moral and spiritual shipwreck.
2. It fulfills the needs for a com-

That is the point that amazes me, a book written by men can do what the book written by God cannot do (as affirmed above).

The truth is that the Bible is an understandable, complete book for ery man! 1. "As I wrote afore in few words.

whereby when ye read, ye may un-derstand my knowledge in the mys-tery of Christ." Eph. 3:3-4. 2. "Howbeit when he the Spirit of Howbett when he the Spirit of ruth, is come, he will guide you into all truth." In. 16:13a

 To ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.

Mk. 16:15. So will our Catholic friends stop their rebellion and dissent from these authentic Bible teach-

DEAR REV. JON: My reading of your recent column regarding your visit to that nether world church in another state certainly disappointed me. Surely you did not partake of the refreshments offered you there and drink from the fruit of the vine. You did imply that you might have partaken. I know you did as all righteous baptist (sic) do and drink grape juice like lesus taught us to do. Whenever good baptist (sic again) have their Communion' or as you say, "The Lord's Supper," I am sure you know he proper way to do is have the bread and grape juice just like you were taught it should be done. What we want to know is when or what time he got there. Anyhow Betty said he and her daughter, Diane may buy it to keep the property in the family.

The snow was still on the ground when we drove by Joe Abney's house. Joe was out walking the road in front of his house, tired of staying in the house during this kind of weather. John pulled in off the road and talked awhile.

Cattle Farms Need To Be Aware of Grass Tetany

Adult beef cows nursing young calves while grazing grass or small grain pastures in late winter or early spring are especially susceptible to an extremely acute and advantage of the suspension of the suspension be factors. Grass tetany occurs when soil temperature is between 40 and 60 degrees and often during changeable weather. High levels of nitrogen, potassium and moisture in the soil increase the incidence, because they apparently decrease the level of magnesium found in plants naturally.

plants naturally.

Symptoms of the disorder usually begin with nervousness and ther progress to a stilted gait, staggering, convulsions, coma and death. It always requires immediate veterinary treatment.

About 2/3 of cows treated travenously with magnesium and intravenously with magnesium and calcium compounds recover. However, to prevent relapses, treated cows should be removed from the pasture. They should be fed hay and grain plus 2 ounces of magnesium oxide daily for at least a week.

Because animals do not store up magnesium, their dietary requirements have to be supplied on a day-to-day basis. The only way to prevent grass tetary is to supplement the diet with additional magnesium. This can be done with commercial mineral mixes containing magnesium or with part magnesium or with a supplement the diet with additional magnesium or with part magnesium oxide, I part frace mineral salt and I part distiller diet with the cattle sonly source of salt.

Recently, Mrs. Carter's Primary I ass asked Mrs. McQueary's fifth rade class to help them with a crea-ve writing project called "Cereal citing"

Writing."
In this project, the Primary 1 class was asked to bring in a cereal box from home to write about.
The children then had to write about their favorite story using as many descriptive words as possible. They were to tell why they liked the cereal, and why they chose this particular cereal.

The fifth grade class used their experience in writing to help the primary I class enhance their stories. When their stories when their stories were finished, the children cutout their crear hose and used the front and back of the box for covers for their story.

This project turned out to be a great learning experience for both primary I and fifth grade!

More areas open for spring squirrel hunting

All wildlife management areas (WMAs) owned or managed by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources will open to squirel hunting this spring.
These are the only areas open to squirel hunting during the June 1-15, 1995 season.
Last spring the fish and wildlife department opened four of its WMAs to squirrel hunting on an experimental basis. Opening more areas in 1995 gives hunters more opportunity without harming the resource.

Limits, shooting hours and legal hunting equipment are the same as for the fall squirred hunting season. For more details contact the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, I&E Division, I Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY 40601; phone 502-564-4336.

Disease control for landscape plantings

Kentucky gardeners often seek solutions to health care problems for their landscape plantings during the summer growing season.

Summer is the wrong inne to take care of their plant's disease problems.

For some diseases, "said John Harman, Estension plant pathologist for the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture," we have little choice but to explain that if preventive measures had only been done earlier, the gardener would not be in he mess he finds himself in." earlier, the gardener would no the mess he finds himself in.

Farmland prices to rise 13 percent next year?

Larly in February, a chief analyst at a large Wall Street firm predicted in attending the street of tural economist.

The problem with Biggs' prediction is that it assumes that land values follow a cycle similar to some other commodities. That is, they can become undervalued overtime and then rise sharply to compensate for their undervaluation.

"Land prices follow basic economic principles which base market value on projected income potential. When the farm economy is strengthening, farm land values tend to rise. When the farme conomy looks less promising, they drop," Infanger said.

The latest U.S. Department of Agriculture survey of farmiand values aboved an increase of 6.4 percent nationally, and 5.5 percent for Kentucky, both figures just slightly ahead of inflation, he said.

"Most ceredible amajor she best when the next survey, stated for June, will show only imodest land value of the said.

"Most ceredible amajor she will show only imodest than value of the said." A change in defend lax policy, Infanger said, could also mean a substantial change in land values a downward.

"If the capital gains tax is eliminated in the Congressional tax cutting this year, older land owners may be enticed to sell their land. The rebe enticed to sell their land. The re-sult could be a drop in land values in the short run, if many farms actually go up for sale. In the long run, how-ever, the dropping of capital gains taxes may make farm land a more attractive investment," Infanger said.

CRP program providing much needed habitat for growth

Across the country, land put into the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) has provided much needed habitat to promote wildlife growth. That success has not been duplicated in Kentucky, however, according to a wildlife specialist with the University of Kentucky. The CRP program was implemented by the U.S. Department of Agriculture in 1981 to pay farmers to retire highly erodible and other lands for 10 years and to establish perennial vegetation on those lands. Although the main objectives were to promote soil and water conservation, benefits to wildlife have been widely recognized —especially in the Great Plains area. But not in Kentucky, said Tom Barnes, Extension wildlife specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. That's because the CRP lands in Kentucky were seeded mostly with all fescue, Barnes said. Fescue cover is not good for providing cover or qualis, rabbits and other wild-life.

Fescue is a dense, sod-forming grass which doesn't provide a favorable habitat for animals to take cover, said. In addition, fescue doesn't et the nutritional requirements for st wildlife such as quail and rabpecter install and ragweed, "Barnes said."

If quall are in a position where they can eat only feacue seeds, they die."

A chemical in the feacue apparently disrupts the birds' mental characteristics and causes them to attack each other, pecking them until they die.

each other, pecking them until they die.

The 10-year CRP program begins to expire in 1995, and landowners who would like to convert their CRP lands to more suitable habitats for wildlifted on have options, Barnes said.

The state has a program to help farmers convert by paying a portion of the costs, "he said. "Parmers can check with their county Extension agent for details on that program. Barnes agreed that the CRP program has been very beneficial for wildlife in other parts of the country. So successful, in fact, that many vidilife organizations are lobbying wildlife organizations are lobbying wildlife organizations are lobbying to continue the program in the future

"Pheasants are up 400 percent in the Great Plains," he said. "Water-une Great Plains," he said. "Water-fowl are up tremendously there. It could have been more effective in Kentucky if the cover had been something other than fescue." Fescue cover did help the primary objectives of soil and water conser-vation in highly erodible areas how-ever.

"Our Special Care Unit is a very warm place where the staff becomes a link between the patient and the family. These patients do require intensive care, and that care means nurses that are very skilled in not only the medical and technical aspects, but the psycho/ social needs too.

Anxiety levels are high for the patients families....visitation is limited, so we try to update them as often as possible. Plus, we explain the 'whats and whys' of all the equipment. This alleviates a lot of anxiety, especially when there's suddenly something 'different' on a loved one's monitor.

I'm very proud of our unit. Beyond the sophisticated support technology, there's real 'feeling' care here. This is a special place."

YOUR HOUSE OF WORSHIP CAN LEAD YOU OUT OF TEMPTATION

You are basically a good person, but being a so-called "normal" human being, you have fallen into the trap of temptation somewhere along the way. Perhaps you are a worried but confirmed smoker, or the pressures of your job have caused you to drink too much or become involved with drugs. By now you may be addicted to the extent that it will take more than will power to overcome your habit, but don't give up. Try one of those treatment centers if you like, but also adopt a positive atti-tude. Think not how much fun your habit is, but instead, how nice it would be not to have to depend on it. For some real help, talk to the clergyman at your House of Worship. He will understand and not criti-cize or condemn. He knows you are sincere about it, or you wouldn't be there; and he can help you if you will let him

What Saith the Scriptures'

"Highest Seatish the Scriphures"

I Jee. 1:3-5 we read, "Blessed be the God and father of our Lord Insus Christ, which according to his abundant mere's hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ, from the dad, to an inheritance incorruptible, and undeflied, and that fatcht not away, reserved in heaven for you, who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time." Let's look at these verses and see if we can learn some great lessons. First, I want to notice the inheritance that the children of God have. Peter says that the inheritance is incorruptible, i.e. it never grows old or wags out. He said it is undeflied, i.e. cannot be polluted or deflied, made dirty in some way. And he said if fadeth not away, it never ceases. Now beloved, everything we can think about in this world is corruptible, can be deflied or fades aways. Either it rots, rusts, or can be stolen, Mt. 620. This inheritance is reserved in heaven for you Peter says. Heaven is the place where God lives, and shall be the place where the rodeemed shall live, who serve the Lord Jesus Christ, Notice Peter says it's reserved, but it is only reserved for those who are making the symplectic place is the server of the sew hou are making the Symplectic place is the server of the sew hou are making the Symplectic place in the family of God. Only children of God shall have any inheritance in Christ Jesus. Children of Evel shall not have an inheritance from God the father. One is born again, when one is taught the truth, and one believes and obsess the first principles of the oncles of God. By in Christ Jesus. Children of Devil shall not have an inheritance from God the father. One is born again, when one is taught the truth, and one believes and obeys the first principles of the oracles of God. By believing in Jesus Christ, Jn. 3:16, Repenting Ac. 17:30, by confessing fath in Christ, Rm. 10:9-10, by being baptized Ac. 2:38, the one who obeys from the heart these steps, one shall become a child of God. Then one must be faithful until death, Rev. 2:10, God's power will rest upon every child of God who by faith, continues to look to him. Yes, the true, faithful Christian has much to look forward to, a the living hope in Christ Jesus.
