Busy Bees News

Busy Bees held their monthly meeting April 11th in the Extension office basement. We had 10 in attendance and one visitor.

The meeting was called to order by Barbara Praier and the devotional was read by Cecilia Renner. The roll call was answered by "What Flower do you hope to grow this year?"

Carolyn Gilbert read minutes from last meeting. New business was discussed and this included a change of date for next month's meeting. We will be meeting the 16th of May. We still haven't decided where to go for an outing this summer but we'll come up with something. Fund-raiser ideas were candy bar sales and a yard sale.

We had two Easter crafts this month. Barbara Praier helped us make a cute little Bunny which we filled with jelly beans. Lydia McLemore brought plastic spoons for us to decorate as Easter eggs.

Remember to bring the activity packets to be given to the Red Cross in the month of May.

Carolyn Gilbert was our hostess for the month and she brought a nice vegetable, fruit and sandwich tray for us to indulge in and also a beautifully decorated Easter Bunny cake. Door prize was won by our visitor, Ruby Lawson's daughter whose name has escaped me.

Hope to see everyone at next month's meeting.

Two brothers preceded him in death.

Services were April 16 at Dawalt Funeral Home with Rev. Larry Dalton officiating. Burial followed in Winslow Cemetery, Salem.

$3.6 million spent on roads in fourth district

By Ray McClure

If one county district gets lots more money than another for roads, how come?

When asked, County Judge/Executive Buzz Carloufs had an answer. There are more miles in one district than in another.

District 1 got $15,723.81 expended on district roads July 1, 1994 to March 31, 1995. But District 4 got $53,620.37.

District 2 got $33,572.60. District 3 received $34,290.45 and District 5 got $34,415.78 for a total in all districts spent on roads $174,622.01 plus $14,366.47 that was expended in March and would be included in the total for $188,988.48.

Judge Carloufs explained, "It would be grossly unfair to allocate road money equally to all five districts, simply because the mileage in each district is different from the others."

The judge said, if the court divided money into five equal portions then District 1, which has about 38 miles, would be getting the same as Districts 4 and 5 which have about 150 miles each.

"You don't have to be a rocket scientist to realize the smaller district would have more money available per mile than the larger districts, which would mean the larger district roads would be in worse shape."

The judge said to be fair to each district, funds should be divided according to the mileage in each district, which is what he is trying to do.

"Obviously, District 4 has had the largest amount of money spent on its roads," the judge concluded. "This has not been because we favor District 4 over the others, but it is because District 4 has, without doubt, the very worst road conditions."

He noted it was due, in part, to the swampy condition around Conway. The roads literally sink in muck in that district. He said the road foreman is trying to rectify that with ditches and tile works.

"Although I do not want to spend more money per mile in one district over another, it would have been very short-sighted to allow roads to deteriorate even further, he stated.

He said eventually the roads would have to be repaired, and it is cheaper, in the long run, to fix things earlier than later.

"To be perfectly honest, we would need many times the amount we now have to put our roads in very good shape, but we will try to make certain that the money we do have to spend for repairs goes farther in the long run."

He reported the county is replacing wooden bridges with concrete. Where a wooden decked bridge lasts about 5 years, concrete should last 10 times that long, yet cost much more than timbers.

"Many of our county-built bridges have been constructed of coasts of less than $3,000 by the road crew," he related.

In another item the All American Club found at least 20 old tires on Flat Gap Road by the bridge.

The judge said old tires are reported to the state and EPA for removal.

He said the state will "come down on the land owner" if tires are found on their property.

Bus drivers say they are being treated unfairly

By Richard Anderkin

Most Rockcastle County bus drivers and mechanics are apparently not happy with the amount of reward money they will receive from former school staffs at Mt. Vernon, Brodhead and Livingston.

In a letter to the editor being published in this week's issue of the Signal bus drivers say they should receive more of the state reward money passed out to certified staff members at each school and central office personnel for their improved test scores.

The letter reads: "Bus drivers of Rockcastle County Schools feel that we are not being treated fairly and equally compared to other employees, we feel that we have had as much or more responsibility concerning the education of children in Rockcastle County as the cooks, janitors, aides, etc. We feel that we should be rewarded equally."

Mt. Vernon, Livingston and Brodhead certified staff members voted recently to give bus drivers each $100 or a total of $300 from their rewards.

At Mt. Vernon and Brodhead certified staff members gave instructional assistants $300 and Livingston staff members voted to give $400 to instructional assistants. Brodhead and Mt. Vernon voted to give $200 to cooks and janitors and Livingston voted to give them $100 each.

Brodhead and Livingston teachers were to receive $2,602 and Mt. Vernon $1,822. That amount will now be drastically reduced by the staff members' vote to give other employees part of the reward money.

John Hale, former Mt. Vernon principal and now principal at Rockcastle Middle School, said that the bus drivers' petition did not surprise him. "I've thought this was a mistake all along, the reward money from the state has caused a lot of problems for staffs throughout the state. I think the $250,000 this system received could have been used to a lot more productively," Hale said.

Rockcastle County School Superintendent Bige Towery, Jr., said this week that central office staff members had voted to spend their portion of the state reward money to buy computers for the central office to aid the staff members in their job.

Rockcastle County Director of Transportation Glen Vanwinkle, said that he did not understand the petition, because there is no one to petition to. "The way these staffs said the central office decide to spend the money is totally up to them, the law is very clear on the matter," Vanwinkle said.

One bus driver, who asked not to be identified said that it was his understanding that the petition would be presented to the board of education at the next monthly meeting.

Friend testifies McKinney killed wife, her children

Nearly two weeks after the bodies of his new wife and her two children were found in their bumed-out Pulaski County house, Gary McKinney confessed to killing all three, a friend testified Monday.

Daniel P. Owens said McKinney talked about shooting his family, then setting the house on fire, as the two men drove around Rockcastle County on April 13.

"He said he had something on his mind and he needed to get it off," Owens testified Monday at a preliminary hearing. "He said, 'I done it.' He said, 'I shot Shirley.'"

Shirley Faye Bowles McKinney, 29, and her children, Brian Bowles, 11, and Amy Bowles, 3, were found April 2 in the ruins of their rented house in northeast Pulaski County.

Pulaski Coroner Alan Stringer testified Monday that Shirley McKinney was shot four times, including once in the back of her head. Brian was shot three times, all in the back of his head. Amy was shot once, in the mouth.

Gary McKinney, 28, was named as a suspect early in the investigation. He was arrested and charged with three counts of murder April 13—several hours after a Rockcastle sheriff's deputy arrested him for suspected drunken driving while he was out with Owens, 30, of Brodhead.

Investigators have not said what motive McKinney, who married Shirley Bowles on March 1, had for allegedly killing his new family. Owens, distantly related to McKinney by marriage, did not offer much insight.

"He said he'd been having some problems with her," said Owens, who also testified that McKinney forced him to drive around with him that day and was carrying a gun.

But McKinney's public defender, James Cox, attacked Owens' credibility. Owens, who has a severe speech impediment, said in court that he receives a monthly check because of a mental disability. He also said he was drinking while he was out with McKinney.

Said Cox after Owens' testimony: "With all due respect to Mr. Owens, he draws a check for his mind, and the court can look at him and tell there are problems there."

Pulaski District Judge Michael Henry acknowledged that Owens' credibility probably will be an issue. But Henry ruled that Owens helped prosecutors establish probable cause for McKinney's arrest.

McKinney, who has pleaded not guilty, will go before a grand jury Tuesday or Wednesday, and an indictment could come before the end of the week, said Commonwealth's Attorney Ray Carmichael.

Republicans gubernatorial Larry Forgy and his running mate Tom Handy brought their campaign to Rockcastle County, again, last Friday night. Forgy and Handy spoke during the Rockcastle Republican Club's Lincoln Day Banquet. Forgy has been in Rockcastle three times since announcing his candidacy, his opponent Bob Gable has not been here.

Junie Kirby indicted for murder in connection with girlfriend's death

A Rockcastle County Grand Jury has indicted a Chestnut Ridge man for murder.

Junie Wally Kirby, 37, of Chestnut Ridge is accused of shooting his girlfriend, Tracy A. Caudill, on February 24 in the head with a pistol.

According to court records, Miss Caudill was pregnant at the time of her death and her baby had to be delivered by caesarian section at Rockcastle Hospital.

Kirby was also indicted on an offense of first degree wanton endangerment for endangering the infant child's life.

He is presently free on bond and due back in court on May 12.

Outie Kirby, 34, of Mt. Vernon was indicted on two counts of wanton endangerment. He is accused of shooting a rifle near a vehicle occupied by Jeffrey and Lois Barnett on April 1. Kirby is due back in court on April 28.

A break-in at Classy Closet on Main Street in Mt. Vernon has resulted in the indictment of three people.

Charged with receiving stolen property are Janet Adams, 28, of Mt.

Vernon, Gary Day, 29, of Brodhead and Tammy Johnson, 21, of Pine Hill.

How soon we forget. At least some of us. Three weeks ago I had several friends insisting they would never ever watch a professional baseball game or even become interested in the sport again. But already they're raving about some bonhead who just signed with Cincinnati and speculating on the Red's pennant chances. Not me.

I am trying, however to find out the names of companies who sponsor/advertise baseball on both radio and television because I will, in fact, boycott their products. I had several baseball caps from various teams but I used them to start fires in our wood-burner last winter.

You can soak baseball caps, particularly the wool ones, in used motor oil and they'll burn for fifteen minutes which is plenty long enough to get three or four oak logs going. But that's the only utility they have, so far as I can tell. I wouldn't even disagree a scare-crow in the garden by sticking a baseball cap with a major league logo on its noggin.

And those little foam rubber tomahawks that the Atlanta Braves have been peddling for the last several seasons also make good kindling. I don't know how they got here but a couple of those wound up in my house. One night when the wood got real wet I discovered that a tomahawk would hold nearly a quart of old motor oil. I put four logs in old Mama Bear, stuck one of the oil-saturated chop-chops right in the middle of the pile and touched a match to it. I've never seen such a fire and I wish I had a case of those tomahawks so I could $25,000 per year. And you would have me believe that they are worth less than a bunch of greasy crotch scratchers who believe that society owes them millions of dollars a year.

When my #5%!!
 Whom it looked like the American public might be just as interested in seeing professional teams staffed with anyone who was willing to play the game, you saw the so-called pickets swarming back to the stadiums with absolutely no agreement with management in sight. Name me one time in the history of the Labor Movement when that's ever happened. On the other hand, name me a so-called labor strike that was ever unhappy with its members earning upwards of two million dollars a year in salary.

I will probably watch a few little league games this year. I might even have stayed interested in professional baseball if the replacement players had been given a fair shake. And that's precisely what should have happened.

In the meantime, if you see a blue pick-up with a white topper in Berea with the aforementioned scab sign on the back, please put a copy of this paper under the windshield wiper. And if you know who owns it, please give me a call. I have some friends who are strong supporters of real unions and I'd simply like to put them in touch with that truck's owner.

They will surely leave the scab baseball sign on the vehicle, but I'll bet any amount of money that they'll rip their off.
 Finally, if you need to get your kicks out of baseball, if you enjoy the game and the sport, please consider watching and supporting your local college and high school teams this spring. Get involved in the Little League and other youth leagues in your community this summer and spend the time and money you might have spent on the pros or watching them on television supporting the real sport. Believe me, there is no sport in professional baseball and if you are a fan of the Cincinnati Scum, for example, I sincerely feel pity for you for being such a nacker.

Fritsch serves on project to develop environmental issues

Al Fritsch of Appalachian Science in the Public Interest, Livingston, has been appointed by Gov. Brereton Jones as a member of the Public Advisory Committee of Kentucky's Comparative Risk Project.

Three committees appointed to work on the project have been attempting to identify environmental issues in the state and to research data on them. The project's Steering Committee provides overall guidance for the project and aids in setting goals and defining objectives. It also defines overall ground rules for the project and will participate in a final ranking of issues.

He serves as the primary liaison between government participants, the general public, and major interest groups. This committee assists the Steering Committee in communication between the committees and the public about risks and public values.

The Technical Advisory Committee assists in the collection of data relative to environmental issues identified by the Public Advisory Committee and analyzes the risks presented by the issues to human health, ecological health, and the quality of life of Kentuckians. This committee will perform a preliminary ranking of risks before presenting its findings to the Public Advisory Committee.

HERESAY
 By:
John Norman Meadows

Precious souls, do you have difficulty accepting what you cannot understand - especially those seemingly imponderable events labeled "the ways of God with man"? Such mysteries, of course, are nothing new. Why God? - history's most persistent question - has been around at least since Adam and Eve looked upon the lifeless face of Abel. An ancient Greek named Epicurus put the problem this way:
 (1) Is he (God) willing to prevent evil, but not able? Then he is impotent.

(2) Is he able, but not willing? Then he is malevolent.

(3) Is he both willing and able? Then whence this evil?

Dare we express Epicurus' dilemma in Oklahoma City terms? Was God willing to prevent last week's horror, but not able? Then He was powerless. Was God able to prevent that carnage, but not willing? Then he exhibited ill will. Was God both willing and able to prevent that bombing of innocent adults and children? Then, "Why, God?"

If you are a good Buddhist, you're probably content with Gautama's tenet: "All life is suffering." Or, if you're a good idealist, you just say "Eternity is untouched by our finite sufferings; ultimately evil is only an illusion of our ignorance."
 If, however, you are a good Christian you likely view that tragedy from a different perspective. You might be one of those who asks, "God, if your eye is on the sparrow, what about the sparrows" who were blown to pieces last Wednesday? Or, you may espouse the explanation offered by Oral Roberts, namely, that the Oklahoma City bombing was the "work of the devil." While that might be so, Roberts' summation only leads to another question for me, "God, why a devil? Or to put it another way, "God, why evil?"

Well, the standard (and probably correct) Christian answer to my question is: "Evil (sin, devil, etc.) came into being as a result of the freedom with which the Almighty endowed his creation." That is to say, God did not create evil, but He did allow the possibility of evil. In freedom, man turned from God to himself. He decided (and decides) to misuse his own powers and fashion his own pleasure. He left God's security and set himself up as his ultimate end and that's when he came to hate others rather than love them.

But, dear hearts, that last paragraph does not answer why the Almighty allowed evil in his "good" earth. Now, I've read or heard some mighty deep discussions that purport to answer that question, but I'm not convinced. I don't believe there is an answer that our finite minds could comprehend. Ultimately, we are left with only one answer: Evil is.

Thanks, precious souls, for reading today's Heresay, which might be nothing more than an exercise in futility. So, until next week, be Almighty and my bad back willig, test your Christianity (if you profess such). Ask yourself, "If I were the parent of one of those children who died in the Oklahoma City bomb blast, could I ever be 'merciful' to Timothy McVeigh and his accomplices?"

EKU small business development center serves Rockcastle County

Small Business Week is celebrated nationwide April 30 - May 6 this year, but for Eastern Kentucky University's South Central Small Business Development Center and Rockcastle County, it's a daily concern.

The South Central SBDC, based in Somerset, with offices in Corbin and on EKU's Richmond campus, is an outreach service of EKU's College of Business. At no charge or minimal cost, it provides guidance, consultation, training, information and other support to small businesses and prospective business owners in Rockcastle and 14 other central and southeastern Kentucky counties. Whether it's help with the initial business plan or a loan for expansion, the assistance provided by Center Director Don Snyder and Management Specialist Joan Sloan can make the difference between success and failure.

Mt. Vernon Mayor Gary Cromer and Rockcastle County Judge/Executive Buzz Carlotis signed a proclamination proclaiming Small Business Week locally.

While larger businesses and industries might grab most of the headlines, the 21 million small businesses in the U.S. employ 54 percent of the private work force and provide almost all of the new jobs being created today. Small businesses account for more than half of all sales in the nation and continue to be leading innovators with new products and services.

Since business education and training to small business owners are crucial to that success, the South Central SBDC provides, at no charge or minimal cost, a range of easily accessible education and training opportunities. Another major concern for today's small business owners is access to capital and credit. The Small Business Administration's loan guarantee programs provide a key source of financing for viable small businesses that have real potential, but can't qualify for loans from traditional sources.

The SBA also provides loan programs to borrowers with different financing needs. Programs such as LowDoc, the one-page application for loans of less than $100,000, allow lenders to use their own documentation and procedures without prior review from the SBA, thereby reducing red tape and paperwork.

"Our mission is two-fold: counseling and training," Snyder said. "And we can provide that in all aspects."

Eastern's South Central SBDC features a staff with over 60 years of business experience. Snyder spent 22 years with the Begley Co. in Richmond as an executive vice president and treasurer, and has also been a bank examiner for the U.S. Treasury Department and operated several small businesses. Sloan has co-owned and operated a general merchandise and grocery store, served as vice president of operations for a chemical firm, and worked as an administrative assistant, including 15 year at Somerset College.

Sloan noted that the SBDC networks with various community leaders and existing service providers to first determine an area's needs before developing a plan of action. "Generally, they know what needs to be done better than we do," she said, "so we listen closely, then try to develop a plan of action to meet those needs."

In addition to free one-on-one consultation, either with prospective business owners or owners of existing businesses, the SBDC offers educational seminars, workshops and training sessions throughout the year. The Center can also provide business owners and entrepreneurs information on market and product research, various aspects of management, business plans, new technology, robotics, crafts, opportunities in home-based businesses, child care regulations, and much more.

The SBDC has also co-sponsored several small business development weeks in its service region communities. These special events allow the community's business leadership an opportunity to work together in providing seminars and workshops conducive to enhancing the business climate in that community.

Secretaries
By Preston Farret
April 26, 1995

The world's niftiest people
Draws some of the lowest pay,
But in my humble opinion
Without them the world would be in disarray.

They always greet visitors
With a big old smile,
Then stop their work
And chat for awhile.

They're always helpful
And point out the way,
To find stray children
Or a folder stashed away.

Without those brainy people
The bosses would be in dutch,
For when leaders need information
They always come through in the dutch.

They have a million records
At their agile fingertips
And confidential information
Never passes through their lips.

If a student needs a ticket
Or just a plain old safety pin,
A band-aid or a pencil
They're provided with a grin.

They're always in good spirits
And no one knows their true worth,
But without these humble people
There would be heck upon the earth.

Now I'm not writing about scientists
Politicians, governors, senators or a king
But secretaries the world over
Who really run everything.

So let's spread out the praise
Give credit where credit is due,
And honor the secretaries
For they're always true blue.

In Memory

In memory of Arnold
Allen Brown

Solomon 10 - 12
"The Winter is over, The flowers appear on the earth"
The time of the singing of birds has come

"Arise my fair one and come away."

"Day by Day!"

It's been three years since you've been gone

And left us here so all alone
Your warm sweet smile
Your loving ways
Are still with us from
"Day to Day."

We will never forget the good times we shared
And the laughter, joy and tears
And all of life's little fears.

We know you're with God
Embraced in His loving care
Knowing someday we will be there.

It's lonesome down here without you
But we must try to go on
But still we wish we could see
And hear you "Play Us A
"Beautiful song"

Much ado has been made about my illness. I am well on my way to recovery. I regret that I have been unable to visit with you during this campaign. I wish to thank all of you who have offered prayers on my behalf. I am able to perform the job as your next P.V.A.

I need the job. I humbly beg of you to elect me as your next P.V.A. and give me the opportunity to serve you. My opponents are employed. They will continue to be employed. I am not.

I am qualified to serve you with a wealth of experience. We don't need business as usual. We don't need more taxes but less. Taxes are too high already. My experience is that we are overloaded with taxes. Allow me to be your P.V.A. and have someone that cares about you. Someone that will listen to your concerns and work from there.

Gets third homer of season

Derek Tompkins' grand slam helps lift Rockets past Clay County Tigers 9-3

Following a dismal error-laden performance against Harlan Co. Saturday, the Rockets bounced back to average an earlier 3-2 loss to the Clay County Tigers Tuesday afternoon with a 9-3 win.

The third inning was the "big" inning for the Rockets with Derek Tompkins putting a Tiger pitch over the left field fence for a grand slam homer, his third homer of the season. The Rockets trailed 2-0 going into the home part of the third after Jon Pope had been touched up for a solo home run and two singles in the Tigers' second.

With one out in the bottom of the third, the top of the line-up came to the plate and they delivered. Shortstop Chris Bishop got a single, second baseman Travis Anderkin walked and third baseman Scottie Cotton was safe on an error on his counterpart. The designated hitter, Dee Thomas, then put one into center field, scoring Bishop and catcher Jared Singleton added to his team leading batting average with a single that scored Anderkin and Cotton and the Rockets led 3-2. But, they were not through as left fielder Jason Childress worked the pitcher for a walk and the bases were loaded for sophomore center-fielder Derek Tompkins who promptly unloaded into left field. The ball was just fair of the foul pole and four runs came home for the Rockets for a 7-2 edge.

After Pope set the Tigers down in the top of the fourth, the Rockets added two more runs in the bottom half. Bishop walked and Anderkin singled and both scored when Cotton was safe on an error on the left fielder.

Clay's only threat came in the top of the 5th when the first Tiger to the plate got a single and the second batter was safe on an infield throwing error. The next man singled to center and the runner tagged up from third to go home. An excellent throw from Childress to Cotton and Cotton's relay got the runner at home. The next batter hit a grounder which was fielded by Bishop. Bishop promptly threw to Anderkin covering second and Anderkin and Cotton got the second out in a run-down. The lead runner scored on the play to edge the Tigers one run closer at 9-3. The next batter got on when he was hit by a pitch but the third out came on a fly ball to Donnie Eversole in right field.

In all, the Rockets collected 9 hits in the game off three Clay pitchers and Pope pitched an excellent game, giving up only four hits, two walks and chalking up three strike-outs.

The Rockets are now 6 and 8 on the season through 14 games and 1-1 in district play. Even though they have split with Clay in their two meetings, they lost the first one which is the game that counts in district play.

Jayvees remain undefeated

The Rocket Jayvee team continand their winning ways Tuesday, collecting their eighth win in as many outings with a 3-0 win over the Tigers.

Chris Bishop was on the mound for the Jayvees and struck out five Jayvees Tigers in the game, walked five and gave up only one hit with two men reaching on errors.

All the scoring for the Rockets came in their part of the third. Catcher Jason Dillingham broke the inning off with a single. Brooks Ingram went in to speed run and promptly stole his way to third then scored on a single by Andrew Hayes. Ronnie Vanzant walked, stole second and third and came home when Hayes was thrown out trying to steal second. The Rockets third run in the inning came after Bishop reached on a walk and wound up on third on a single by Dusty McClure. McClure stole second and Bishop scored on the throw and McClure was safe.

That ended the scoring for the Rockets but it was all they needed.

Bird watching bonanza

If you've ever been to the Minor Clark Fish Hatchery (MCFH) in Morehead, you may have seen Professor Fred Busroo and companions staring intently through binoculars. Prof. Busroo has been teaching at Morehead State University for 27 years and in charge of the ornithology class since 1977. He can be found on birding trips at MCFH one or two times a week. Some times he has his college class with him, sometimes he's giving a group tour and sometimes he's just following his passion alone. Busroo has recorded over 225 species of birds at MCFH and about 20-40 different species each trip. His list includes such sights as the Black Scorer, the Wood Stork, and the majestic Bald Eagle. Bird watching is a great hobby for little or no money. But you don't have to go looking for Bald Eagles to have a good bird watching experience. You can put up a bird house to attract species to your own yard. You won't even need binoculars!

WOMEN and CANCER:

What you don't know can kill you.

If you live by the adage "what I don't know won't hurt me," you're taking a big chance with your life when it comes to cancer. Yearly physician examinations and regular screenings are a woman's most effective means of detecting cancer in its earliest and most treatable stages.

Of the over 13,000 women diagnosed with cervical cancer each year, 6,000 will die.

Women over the age of 18 (and younger if sexually active) should have a PAP smear every year.

One in nine American women will develop breast cancer in her lifetime.

For women over the age of 40, regular mammograms can provide detection of tiny cancers, long before they are large enough to be felt. Monthly breast self examination and annual physician exams are also extremely important.

If you have a family history (mother, aunt, maternal grandmother, sister) of breast, cervical, uterine or ovarian cancer(s), your physician should be informed so a personal plan of cancer protection can be developed.

Protect your health and your peace of mind with regular physician exams and screenings. It could be a matter of life and death.

Migrant children get Even Start

About 150 migrant families move in and out of Rockcastle County each year, following the planting and harvesting of crops.

To help reach these adults and their approximately 300 children, Even Start is taking education to their temporary homes. Rockcastle County is part of the first Migrant Even Start program in the state and one of only 14 programs nationwide.

In addition to Rockcastle, the Kentucky program serves Madison and Garrard counties.

Pat Bryant of Rockcastle County recruits the families who participate in the program. She works with Peggy Kirby of the Rockcastle County Family Resources Center and Larry Hammond, local director of student services.

The program, founded in 1989, is federally funded.

To be eligible for Even Start, a family must have a child seven years old or younger; the parents must be in need of parenting skills; and a parent must need adult education, such as a GED or literacy tutoring.

Even Start is designed to raise the literacy skills of adults while helping parents work with their children to improve the educational opportunity for both, Mrs. Watson said.

In one family, for example, Even Start is providing adult education for the parents and tutoring and early childhood education for their four children.

The goal of Even Start is to enable parents to take charge of their own learning and decision making by setting up goals for them.

In their classroom on wheels, teacher Helen Seagraves and instructional aide/teacher Tina Cruise will visit families in Rockcastle County on Tuesdays.

"Our curriculum is family-based activities," Mrs. Seagraves said. "We have created units based on specific books. Each unit will be introduced by reading the story with parent and child together. The activities in each unit are then linked to the story."

Each of the units emphasizes a letter of the alphabet or a specific shape.

"A finger play, art project and math activity are also included," Seagraves said.

The teacher demonstrates the activity to the parent who in turn works with the child on the activity.

The program also helps provide activities to help parents learn more about health, hygiene and nutrition.

In addition to regular classroom materials, the van used by Seagraves and Cruise also has a shower area to help in teaching parents some basic hygiene and health information.

"Books will be left with the parent each week to continue reading and working with the child during the week," Seagraves said. "The parent and the child will be learning from each other."

Some districts adopting year-round

by Jason Proctor

Many Kentucky educators feel that one important point has been left out of the sweeping school reforms of recent years.

To these people, the current nine-month school calendar is an anachronism from the days of large-scale agriculture when children were needed during the summer to help with the crops.

A recent article in the Lexington Herald-Leader quoted an official from Simpson County, one of the Kentucky counties considering a new calendar.

Gary Pack, superintendent, said, "It (nine month school calendar) reflects a time when we had to get crops in." According to Pack, the nine month calendar is looked on with disapproval by Japanese businesspeople.

He says these people, who have brought nine foreign-owned companies to Simpson County say, "Do we not lose a lot of time, waste a lot of time over the summer?"

So, the question is, are these business people and others right? Should we consider spreading the 175 required instructional days over the entire year with 6 or 7 weeks for summer break and a three week break every nine weeks? Many Kentucky educators think so.

However, others have raised questions as to how school in summer would effect the recreation and summer job opportunities of students.

While there is no definite decision yet, it looks as though year-round school is a clear possibility for some in Kentucky.

Rockcastle County School Superintendent Bige Towery says he is familiar with the concept and thinks it is sensible to expect that the school calendar will be expanded. He says, however, that it is not being considered at the present time for Rockcastle.

Dear Editor,

April is designated as National Child Abuse Prevention Month. It is that one month out of each year that we focus on child abuse which is a major social and legal problem in our state.

During 1994, there were over 59,000 cases of child abuse reported in Kentucky. This is more than an 80 percent increase from those reported 10 years ago in 1984.

There are many professionals in our communities who are working to help prevent the devastation of abused, exploited and missing children. I ask that your readers support this effort in their own community by donating as a volunteer with local organizations whose cause is to help prevent child abuse. Everyone can

The Caring Connection

An Early Childhood Information Team

The developmental sequence for standing and walking

Standing and walking require balance and coordination. Your baby will spend many hours learning and practicing the skills needed to stand erect and move forward at the same time.

Babies develop at different rates and they don't all do things in exactly the same way. Some babies are content to sit and play longer than others. Very active babies may want to get up on their feet and try to walk very early. These individual traits don't indicate how your baby will develop in other areas. But there are some general stages you can look for.

Standing
Newborn infants have a reflex for stepping. They will take a few steps forward when held under the arms in a standing position and leaned slightly forward. This reflex is strongest at 3 to 4 weeks of age and usually disappears by the time the baby is 2 months old. Most babies don't try to put weight on their legs again for some time as they develop the muscle control needed for balance. They must lift their heads and gain control of their bodies in other positions before they stand.

By 3 to 4 months, babies start to take some weight on their legs again but have difficulty keeping their hips in line with their shoulders and feet. Their buttocks will wobble until they develop more control of the muscles in the lower trunk and hips.

At 5 to 6 months, babies love to be held standing and may move their bodies up and down as they are held. They will begin to stamp one foot, then the other. They are exercising the muscles they will use much later.

Between 7 and 9 months, most babies begin to experiment with pulling themselves to a standing position. This takes much trial and error. They pull with their arms on crib rails or playpen, getting their knees under them. Their bottoms rise off the surface and they plop back down. One day they will put one hand above the other and climb overhand until they are standing! They often scream at that point, because they don't know where they are or how to get down.

In the next few months, babies perfect their ability to move up and down from standing. They creep to an object, get on their knees, and pull with their arms. They put one foot up, then the other. They push up from squatting to standing. They even learn to do this with a toy in one hand. Babies practice moving from standing to squatting until they can lower themselves to the floor easily.

Babies taster as they first stand alone, holding onto something for support. Some babies seem frightened, they cautiously develop standing control of their bodies. Other's seem to be fearless and may even try to lunge from one support to the next. There comes a time when they want to stand for everything—they will stand in their high chairs, strollers and shopping carts. They need to be watched carefully, as they will lean and topple over.

Most babies spend months holding onto things or leaning against furniture as they stand. This helps them to develop balance in an erect position. At first they hold on with both hands, then they lean and hold on with one hand. They might lean on their forearms and use their hands for play. They begin to twist their bodies sideways so they are learning on one hip. They turn completely around and lean their buttocks against the sofa. All of this helps them to eventually let go and stand by themselves at 12 to 14 months.

Walking
Walking is very different from standing. At 7 or 8 months, babies begin to take steps when someone holds their hands. The movements will not be as coordinated as their early, automatic steps. Now they lift one leg high and try to put it down. They begin to twist their bodies sideways to the side. With practice the steps will become more controlled and the feet will be closer together, as long as someone holds their hands.

As babies lean on furniture they will begin to take a step or two sideways. This early cruising is done with legs stiff. Then they learn to turn their bodies slightly and take a forward step. This becomes a very quick way of moving and soon they are walking from one piece of furniture to another.

At 11 or 12 months, some babies will begin to experiment with pushing things such as chairs and realize that they can make them move. Let your baby push a sturdy kitchen chair or wheeled toy to practice stepping and balance.

A baby's first unsupported steps are often accidental: You let go as the baby is walking, the baby takes a step or two, realizes what has happened, and plops to the floor. Or the baby steps from one piece of furniture to another that is just beyond reach.

Or the baby is leaning on something, turns the upper body around, and takes a step. The arms spread like wings and a leg swings out, and the baby takes a step or two before falling.

Some babies take unsupported steps before they can stand alone. Others got their standing balance and slowly move one leg forward, and the baby takes a step or two before falling. Within a week or so they are able to walk around a room. But walking takes all their concentration—to get somewhere quickly, they creep.

By 14 months, most babies walk independently. At first, they lift their legs high in the air. Their feet are wide apart and their arms are held up at their sides. As their balance improves, they will lower their arms and be able to carry a toy.

Some babies turn their feet out or in as they first try to combine balance with moving forward. They may walk on the inner edges of their feet or be up on their toes. Usually their legs and feet will look more normal when they have walked for a while. The pediatrician should evaluate your baby after a month or so of independent walking. Most doctors recommend that early walkers go barefoot or wear soft-soled shoes. This is good exercise for the feet and lets the baby use the toes for balance.

As walking becomes steadier, the feet come closer together and the steps even out. Babies get the control to squat to the floor and pick up a toy, and they learn to stop and start at will. They are on their way to exploring in an upright position. Toddlers need constant supervision, since their physical abilities are well beyond their understanding of danger.

Should my baby use a walker? That's up to you. A walker can give an active baby lots of exercise, but it won't help your baby walk any sooner. It also keeps your baby from exploring by feeling and picking up things—your baby needs to get down to the floor to play and then get back up again. If you decide to use a walker, supervise your baby carefully—stairs can be dangerous, even ones with closed doors.

Today In Banking

Some "Straight Talk" On Banking Today... That Can Make Banking Better For You...

IRA — You Can Start Small

Usually when Individual Retirement Accounts are advertised, the main point of the ad is the fact that you can invest $2,000 annually ($2,250 if your spouse doesn't work). This is the maximum contribution allowed each year.

Because of the fact that the ads on IRA's always emphasize the maximum contribution, many people have been left with the feeling that you have to contribute $2,000 annually. This is not true. You can contribute whatever amount you want as long as it doesn't exceed the maximum.

The important thing is that you get started with an IRA even if you can only contribute $200 a year initially. Come in and see us about an IRA. Substantial penalty for early withdrawal.

Safety News

By: Hazel Jackson
County Extension Agent

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) and Coville Incorporated are announcing the recall of dangerously flammable garments made from a fleecy-type fabric. An estimated 160,000 garments ranging from sweatshirts to skirts are involved in the recall.

The fabric, which fails to meet federal mandatory standards of fabric flammability, presents a serious risk or burn injuries and violates the 1953 Federal Flammable Fabrics Act. Fabrics that do not comply with the standard typically burn faster than newspaper.

Neither CPSC nor Coville has received any reports of injuries involving garments made from the fabric. However, there have been 4 reported incidents where garments made from the fabric "flashed" or surface-burned very quickly.

The fabric is a polyester-cotton blend material with a raised fiber surface. Its fleecy texture closely mimics that of an inside-out sweatshirt.

The fabric was used to manufacture clothing under 45 different brand names. CPSC and Coville, Inc. are working with manufacturers and retailers to recall garments made from the fabric and sold across the country after May 1, 1984.

Most of the garments - an estimated 70% - are sweatshirts, hooded pullovers, casual shirts and other types of tops. Pants, shorts, vests, dresses, robes and skirts that contain the fabric were also sold. About 12% of the items are children's wear, excluding children's sleepwear.

Ann Brown, CPSC Chairman, states that fleecy garments are extremely popular today, and most of them are in full compliance with the law. But those that aren't must be taken off the market. Coville's cooperative effort with CPSC is another fine example of industry working voluntarily with government.

Thousands of retailers who sold garments made from the fabric have posted signs in their stores urging customers to return the garments for a full refund. Macy's Express Inc. (a division of The Limited), Capezio, Kohl's, Marianne, Jean Nicole and Sinar's are among the retailers cooperating in the recall. Other retailers include specialized boutiques, surf shops and some hotel gift shops.

CPSC urges consumers who suspect they may have purchased a garment made from the fleecy fabric to immediately stop wearing it and contact or visit their retailer to see if the garment is subject to the recall. Retailers should know whether the garments are a part of the recall and should then provide a refund.

In addition, consumers who have questions about the recall can call CPSC's toll-free hotline at (800)638-2772. The hearing and speech impaired can call (800)638-8270. You may contact the Extension Office at 256-2403 for further brand names involved.

affiliate divisions. She placed second in presentation of papers on dairy production with her report on heat stress in dairy cattle. Additionally, she received a scholarship.

"I enjoy these meetings because they allow you to meet other people interested in the dairy industry," said Larissa. "Besides the competitions, you can learn more about current dairy related topics."

An officer in UK's Dairy Club since her sophomore year, Larissa currently serves as vice president of the organization. Last year she was chosen outstanding member of UK's chapter, making her eligible to compete for outstanding national member at a competition in Madison, Wisconsin.

"We also do a lot of community service in the Dairy Club," said Larissa. "We bring cows and calves to Shriners' Hospital and let the children come out and milk the cows and pet the calves. We also operate a dairy products booth at the Kentucky State Fair each year to raise money."

Along with the Dairy Club, Larissa belongs to the Block and Bridle Club and is treasurer of Alpha Zeta, an honorary agricultural fraternity.

Larissa has received several scholarships from the College of Agriculture, including the John A. Moser Scholarship.

Following graduation, she is considering a career as an agricultural extension agent, working with 4-H clubs. Last summer, Larissa interned with an extension agent in Pulaski County.

"One reason I chose UK is that I was very active in 4-H in high school and often came here to compete in a lot of 4-H activities," she said. "I got to meet a lot of professors, and they talked me into coming here."

Larissa now works as a part-time staff assistant for the dairy section of the Animal Science Department. In her spare time, she enjoys showing registered gurneys at state and local fairs. She raises them on her family's farm in Brodhead.

"I like working with cattle, training them and taking part in the whole competition" said Larissa. "It gives me a good feeling to walk in and say this is something I raised that comes from my farm. It's a big achievement to do that."

Pasture Fly Control

Horn flies and face flies are the major pests of pastured cattle. The species are similar in that the maggots or larval stages of both flies develop in cattle manure deposited in the field and the adults feed primarily on cattle. However, there are a number of fundamental differences that have a major impact upon control strategies.

Horn flies are blood feeders that spend most of their time on the animals. Horn flies sit on the back or sides of cattle and use their piercing mouthparts frequently to ingest blood. The large amount of time spent on the animals, as well as their exposed position on the easily-treated sides and back, make horn fly control relatively straightforward.

In contrast, face flies use sponge-like mouthparts to blot up secretions around the eyes and face. The rough surface of the mouthpart pad stimulates tear flow and provides more liquid food. Face flies are confined primarily to the face and head, areas that are difficult to treat or to keep treated. In addition, face flies do not spend much time on the animals; they visit only briefly to feed. This behavior makes effective control difficult.

Insecticide ear tags have become a relatively popular means of fly control. Naturally, there are strengths and weaknesses. Ear tags work best against horn flies because these pests have such a close association with the animal. Insecticide rubs off of the ear tags onto the shoulder and sides and is distributed even more as animals rub together. Even though the entire surface of the animal is not treated, the flying and resettling of horn flies will soon bring them into contact with a treated area and they will be killed.

Most of the insecticide ear tags will provide 12 to 16 weeks of horn fly control, usually in the 90% range. Some problems can arise. Use of tags containing the synthetic pyrethroid permethrin in consecutive years can result in insecticide resistance in the horn fly population. This means that after a season of satisfactory performance, control may drop off greatly the following year. Rotation of insecticide classes is a means of slowing the process and many ear tag companies provide two types of tags which allow rotation between synthetic pyrethroid and organophosphate insecticides as active ingredients.

Ear tags can provide some reduction in face fly numbers on animals but the degree of control is no where near that seen against horn flies. 1993 ear tag tests results from the University of Kentucky veterinary entomology

THE LOVE OF GOD ENCHANTS US WITH THE COLORS OF SPRING

With the snows of the winter beginning to melt
At the last of the storm and the gale,
Then the season's awakening soon will be felt,
As the gentler breezes prevail.
Now the branches of trees will no longer be bare,
but imbued with a delicate green;
And the perfume of flowers will sweeten the air,
While the birds will enliven the scene.
As religion reminds us, the love of the Lord
Brings this pleasure we all can derive,
For the calendar offers its greatest reward
In the spring, when the earth comes alive.

—Gloria Novak

"The snow from heaven
resteth on earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud
—Isaiah 55: 10

And to my faith,
That every flower
Enjoys the air it breathes.

—William Wordsworth

"It shall blossom abundantly,
and increase,
even with eye and singing."

County Executive Director
Consolidated Farm Service Agency
(Formerly ASCS)

Friday, April 28 is the last day applications can be taken for 1995 wheat and feed grain program. Don't delay, come in today!

What crop insurance covers? Crop insurance is provided only against the following causes of loss which occur within the insurance period: (1) adverse weather conditions; (2) fire; (3) insects, but not damage due to insufficient or improper application of pest control measures; (4) wildlife; (5) plant disease, but no damage due to insufficient or improper application of disease control; (6) earthquake; (7) volcanic eruption; or (8) failure of the irrigation water supply, if applicable. In case of damage to any insured crop, you should notify the CFSA office within 72 hours of your initial discovery of damage (but no later than 15 days after the end of the insurance period), do not take action on the damaged crop before notifying CFSA.

Production Reporting - FCIR reform Act of '94 and program considerations require that Actual Production History (APH) yields must be established on all policies. Producers should complete production reporting as soon as practical and take advantage of the flexibility provided by the certification process.

FCIR Actual Production History - In order to improve crop insurance coverage, producers should be keeping production records on all insurable crops. Under the new provisions, with four or more years of records, Transitional Yields (known as T yields) will no longer affect a farmer's APH approved yield. T yields are adjusted FCIR Actual Production History yields used by FCIS to compute a farmer's yield in the absence of production records. Even 1, 2, or 3 years of records can have a positive result. Producers may also request to have measurement services for wheat, corn, soybeans before harvest to establish actual production history for the farm.

Crop Acreage Reporting - Crop acreage reports are now being taken on farms which are producing wheat, hay, and pasture only. Farms producing corn, burley, etc., should report after crops have been planted. To be eligible for this year's Non-insurable Assistance Program (NAP) producers should make sure that crop report is in file. NAP covers non-insurable crops including hay and pasture. For more information contact CFSA-A. ACP practices available include: ponds, critical areas, soil waterways, diversion, forestry practices less than ten acres.

Circuit clerk and deputy clerks attend regional training

Circuit Clerk Denver Miller and Deputy Clerks Teresa Amis, Joyce Houk, Brenda McKnight and Teresa Vanzant, representing Rockcastle County, attended the 1995 Circuit and Deputy Clerks' Regional Training held in Lexington.

reporting of circuit court sentencing; and a review of SUSTAIN, the computerized case processing system. In addition, attendees were informed about the new federal IRS reporting requirements for circuit clerks regarding cash bail bonds received in excess of $10,000.

The 1995 regional training was sponsored by the Kentucky Court of Justice and conducted by the Administrative Office of the Courts' Education Services Division.

"Pasture Fly Control"

(Cost. from B5)

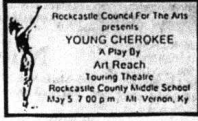

program showed Python (zeta-cypermethrin) and Saber Extra (cyhalothrin) to provide an average reduction in face flies per head of about 60%, as compared to untreated controls, during a 16 week study. In contrast, tags containing the active ingredient diazinon reduced face flies by about 40%. Single tagging gave only a 20% reduction.

Research has shown that it is best to tag animals for horn fly control in late May or early June. Tagging 2 to 3 weeks early uses up some of the tag life before flies are really active and can aggravate resistance problems. If face flies are the major concern in a herd, then it is hard to beat a forced-used dust bag that is placed where animals must use it daily. When properly positioned, dust bags can distribute the insecticide over the area where face flies land to feed. Dust is also distributed along the animal's back and will provide good horn fly control. Check dust bags regularly to make sure that the dust has not caked, that the bag is in good repair, and replenish the supply as needed.
