RCMS classes study economics with help of local guest speakers

Mrs. Meljssa Singleton's eighth grade social studies classes have completed a unit on Economics. Besides completing Partners in Prosperity, an educational unit focused on Georgetown and the Toyota plant. The students created imaginary businesses and determined costs and profits.

To end this unit, the students were given the opportunity to listen to guest speakers who explained their job to the classes.

One of the guest speakers was Steve Singleton, vice president and loan officer of the Bank of Mt. Vernon. He talked with the students about banking and his job responsibilities. He also helped the students fill out loan applications and explained the loan process.

Another guest speaker was Mayor Gary Cromer. Mayor Cromer described his duties as mayor of Mt. Vernon. He explained to the students the different councils and agencies he works with, as well as the different decisions he must make. He further explained the requirements a person must have in order to run for the office of mayor.

A third speaker was Willie Hines, owner and operator of Mt. Vernon Printing. He described his business, plus his education, to one class. He also brought with him samples of his work and told the students how he depended on people and businesses in Rockcastle County and how he was a part of the economic system.

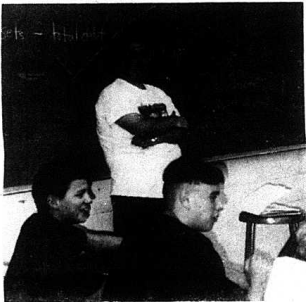

The final speaker was John Benson. He talked with the students about his work helping farmers. His office is one of many government offices operated for the benefit of the people.

Mrs. Singleton and her students would like to thank each of these gentlemen for the time and valuable information they gave to the students.

UK Mascot makes guest appearance at Bengals-Casey Co. football game

By Keith Bussell

The University of Kentucky's Mascot, the UK Wildcat, was nice enough to come down to the Rockcastle Co. football field Saturday, October 19th for the game between the Bengals of Broadhead and Casey County. Even though the Bengals lost, it was all fun for the mascot of the Bengals, Randy Bussell, and the Wildcat.

Randy has been getting teased by classmates for his cheering at the games with the cheerleaders as a mascot. He didn't want to play football, although he likes to watch it as well as play little league baseball and basketball. He was asked by the Bengals cheerleading manager, Tammy Halle, if he'd like to be the mascot. So, Randy said, "Sure!" After a few games, Randy was teased about it by his friends and classmates. Randy started letting it bother him and his dad told him to "keep his head up and be proud of being the Bengal's mascot." He told him "at least you're supporting your school spirit, and that's more than the ones who are teasing you are doing."

Randy's dad was a cheerleader at Cumberland College. Yet, at a younger age, kids can really be ridiculed by other kids at Randy's age (9). Randy's dad saw how it was affecting him, since Randy is a sensitive and caring individual. So, Randy's dad made an appointment to go see the UK Wildcat in an effort to lift Randy's spirits. Randy's sister, who is also a Bengal's cheerleader, got to meet the UK Wildcat, as well as all the UK cheerleaders. Arrangements were made later for the UK Wildcat, after the Wildcat got clearance from his parents, meaning the University, to come down and cheer along side of Randy, to show the other kids that it's cool, okay, hip, alright and fun to be a mascot. No matter your age or sex, "Supporting your school is what is important," says the UK Wildcat. Randy is doing just that.

Will Randy mascot next year? Sure! He says he'd love to! By the way, you kids that teased Randy, did you know college scholarships are given to mascots and cheerleaders as well as the players? Professionals are paid to do this also. So, think twice before you tease someone for what they're doing. Especially if they're supporting your school and you're not.

A special thanks and prayer to Gavin (the UK Wildcat) and thanks to the University of Kentucky for caring about their future students.

The Bengal's mascot, Randy Bussell; Randy's dad, Keith Bussell and the University of Ky. Mascot.

ROCKETTOWN launches a direct hit with teenagers

Booming speakers, flashy videos, a big-screen, local talent, a live band even a Rocket launch! It sounds like something you'd see in a Broadway production, but this and more is only part of a growing new event just for youth in Rockcastle County.

It's Rocketown! And last Saturday more than 125 Rockcastle County Middle and High School students gathered for an evening of non-stop action, music, and contemporary entertainment — all on the cutting edge of issues teens deal with in our area.

Bible Baptist Church hosts Rocketown every two months, and Youth Pastor, Scott Stayton says he's amazed at the response.

"When we started working on Rocketown back in June, we just wanted to provide something positive for local teens to do, along with an opportunity to hit some important topics in their language. I remember 'cruising' was one of the only forms of entertainment when I went to RCHS."

Since it's first event in July, Rocketown has grown at a rapid pace. RCHS/RCMS students provide most of the musical and acting talent. It's proven to hit kids right where they are.

"We're excited about the way kids are responding to this event, but most importantly, we're excited by the way kids are responding to God!" said Stayton. "We don't beat kids over the head with the Bible, but we talk about important issues they face and see what God says about them. The kids make the decision about what they think, and that's because their peers are the ones posing the answers."

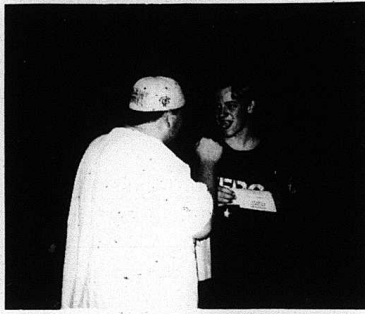

Rocketown uses all local talent on stage with a four-man band, music praise team, actors, and speakers from the Rockcastle County area.

The involvement has grown to include the Internet, where Rocketown has its own web site specifically for RCHS/RCMS students.

"Kids were surfing the net, so we dove in head-first and our praise leader (Jeff Boling) built a home page for the kids." Rocketown's Internet address is www.rocket-town.org.

Last Saturday, teens came in costume and hit the topic of faith (Beyond Belief).

The next Rocketown is Sat., Dec. 14th.

Rockcastle County Saddle Club news
By Bev Rockwell
The Rockcastle County Saddle Club held its second annual "Fall Round-Up Ride" Columbus Day weekend, with terrific weather for a pleasant get the entire time.

Thanks to the all night vigil of Everett French and Gene Chadwell, the firepit and coals were perfectly prepared to receive me for the "pig roast," served Saturday night. To compliment the tender main dish, guests brought some mighty tasty vittles to round out the meal. Adding to the Saturday evening festivities, live music was supplied by the Carl Doan Band.

By staying on main trails and seldom-used secondary gravel roads, riders were able to avoid yellow jacks, a real problem this fall. Everyone attending enjoyed the wonderful sunny days and cool temperatures, perfect for both horse and rider!

Trophies awarded: Justin Bradshaw, youngest female rider, Joan French, youngest female rider, Irene Neeley, oldest female rider, Emmett Davis, oldest male rider. Kudos to Tony Bullock for a wonderful all day ride. All who attended last Saturday said it was terrific. Keith Smith hosted a scenic trail ride through the Wildlife area Sunday. Many thanks for the delicious chicken dinner afterwards.

Oct. 26, is the date set for Bub Leger to host his wagon ride. Please meet at the Hoover Bullock farm at Hwy. 461, 9:20 a.m. Bring your own lunch.

Oct. 27 marks the last ride of the scheduled season, with Jody French hosting the ride. This youngster is looking forward to the "biggest ever" gathering for his ride. We encourage all our members to attend if possible.

Thieves hit cars at RCHS

Six cars belonging to students were broken into on Monday during school hours at Rockcastle County High School.

The cars were parked before school around 8 a.m. and when students returned to their cars after school the break-ins were discovered, according to Mt. Vernon assistant police chief Eddie Delaney.

Three windows on three different cars were broken out and the other three cars showed no forced entry, Delaney said.

According to Delaney, Greg Lewis of Mt. Vernon lost a complete stereo from his car. Curtis Gatliff, of Mt. Vernon, lost a C.D. player, stereo, cellular telephone, tool box and sunglasses.

Jeffery Owens, of Moreburg, C.D. player and a set of golf clubs. Joey Daugherty of Mt. Vernon lost a C.D. player and sound system, Amanda McClure of Mt. Vernon lost a stereo and Dewayne Simpson of Copper Creek lost a complete stereo system.

RCHS principal Ronnie Cash said (Cont. to A2)

Car, bike wreck kills local man

A Livingston man was killed Monday morning in an accident on U.S. 25 near the Laurel-Corbin line.

According to Kentucky State Police at London, Russell Farms, was killed when the bicycle he was riding was hit by a car driven by a Brodhead teenager.

State Trooper John Yates said that Chad E. Bader was driving his 1983 Buick behind Farms, who was riding his bike on the edge of the highway when Farms apparently crossed in front of Bader.

When Bader hit Farms he was thrown from the bike up on the hood of the car and his body broke the windshield.

Family members said Farms had trouble hearing and probably did not know Bader was behind him.

Smith gets federal grant to help fight church arsons

U.S. Senator Wendell Ford announced Tuesday that the U.S. Department of Justice has awarded Rockcastle and 80 other Kentucky counties a $4,600 one-time award under the Church Arson Prevention Grant Program.

As Ford announced earlier this year, under the Church Arson Prevention Program, $6 million was available to county governments in the 13 states -- including Kentucky -- identified by the Federal Emergency Management Administration as having documented incidences of church arson.

In August The Lighthouse Assembly of God Church at Burr was completely destroyed by fire. State and federal investigators conducted extensive tests at the scene and are still awaiting results of those tests to see if the church was burned.

Each county in each of the states was automatically eligible to receive this one-time award by returning a one-page application form.

Items stolen from home in Mt. Vernon

A home rented by Jackie Halcomb in the Daniel Boone Housing Complex on Town Hill Court in Mt. Vernon, was entered over the weekend and personal items were taken, according to Mt. Vernon police.

The thieves took costume jewelry and a small amount of money. They also poured shoe polish on the carpet, police said.

During campaign rally

McConnell says Democrats have distorted truth about medicare

By: Richard Anderkin
Republican United States Senator Mitch McConnell was in Rockcastle on Friday telling a small group of supporters, headed by county chairman Juanita Davis, that the Democratic party would do anything to regain control of the United States Congress.

"They have completely misled the American people about what the Republican Congress did concerning social security, medicare and Medicaid," McConnell said during the rally at the Kastle Inn Restaurant.

"We didn't cut anything, but the trustees of the medicare program who are appointed by the President told us that if we didn't do something the program would be broke in six years," McConnell said. "Republicans may be a lot of things but we are not stupid," McConnell said.

"We know that if we did not do something to fix the problem there would be no medicare for our seniors so we simply slowed the rate of spending over a seven year period in order for medicare to heal itself," the two-term Senator said.

McConnell said that Republicans proposed a spending increase of 6.8 percent for medicare, while they only increased spending in the rest of the budget by 3%. "And they called that a cut, it is absolutely ridiculous, the lies they have been telling," he said.

The former Jefferson County Judge-Executive told the group that Republicans and the President finally agreed on a 7% spending increase or a difference of .2 of a percentage point.

McConnell also told the group that the President has said nothing about the 1994 tax increase on social security. "He fought hard to get that passed, but he wants you to believe he has always fought for those social programs when that simply isn't true either," the Senator said.

McConnell also touched on the $5 trillion dollar deficit now facing the country. "If we don't do something when our grandchildren are 75

Brodhead man stabbed, service station robbed

Bentley's service station in Brodhead was broken into Saturday night and the cash register was taken, according to Brodhead police officer Joe Bussell.

There was no money in the register which was found later on a side street in downtown Mt. Vernon by Mt. Vernon police officer Mike Peters.

Entrance to the station was made by kicking out the front window.

Other break-ins and robberies in Brodhead during the past few weeks included;

Dairy Delite where a game machine was broken into and quarters stolen.

Karen Cash reported someone entered her home through a back window and took about $1,000 in cash and credit cards.

Teddy Rose told police his billfold and his wife's purse were stolen by someone who entered his Albright Street home. There was no reported estimate of loss.

Brenda Hulker on West Street said someone came into her home and stole about $1,000 in fishing equipment.

Policeman Bussell also reported that Mark Spoonamore, 26, of Castle Village was stabbed early Saturday morning while in the Foodland parking lot.

Spoonamore was treated for wounds to the left, lower rib cage at the Rockcastle Hospital and released. No arrests have been made in the case.

Russell Farms, 63, of Livingston was killed Monday morning when the bicycle he was riding collided with a car driven by a Brodhead teenager on U.S. 25. Farms, in the above photo, was pronounced dead at the scene.

A Stanford teenager was critically injured in a single car wreck on Hwy. 1505 Tuesday afternoon. State Trooper Steve Long charged the driver of the car, Chuck Taylor Vanhook, 21, of Stanford with driving under the influence, expired operator's license, possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia. Vanhook was lodged in the Rockcastle County Jail. According to Long's report, Whitney Baughman, 19, of Stanford was critically injured when Vanhook lost control of the car as he came around a curve on 1505. The car hit several trees on the passenger side, tearing the top off the convertible. Miss Baughman was taken to Berea Hospital by the Rockcastle Ambulance Service and later flown to a Lexington hospital with massive head trauma. Members of the Mt. Vernon Fire Department are shown using the Jaws of Life apparatus to free Miss Baughman. According to Long's report, Vanhook told him he had been drinking whiskey before the accident and Long found a whiskey bottle in the vehicle.

Points East

Last week end I attended a photography conference at Pine Mountain State Park. And, as late as noon on Friday, I was dreading it because the rain had been steady for several hours and the forecast called for more of the same.

Sitting around conference rooms at any of Kentucky's State Parks and not being able to get out and enjoy nature, especially this time of year and even more especially at Pine Mountain, is not my idea of fun. I don't even like to be indoors on weekends anywhere.

But, by mid-afternoon, the sun came streaming through the clouds and by dark, when I arrived at the park, the skies were clear and the forecast had been revised to heavy frost and crisp Autumn weather for Saturday. And I've literally been praying for a frost that would wipe out the pollen for the last couple of weeks.

I was at an overlook just around the corner from Chained Rock well before daybreak on Saturday morning along with several other photographers from Cincinnati, Lexington, Louisville, Atlanta, Nashville, and parts unknown. Sniffing coffee and talking shop. Comparing equipment, discussing the relative merits of one brand of film over another and waiting for the sunrise.

I love these conferences. Pine Mountain has one every year. Normally at least 100 photographers come from all over to unselfishly share tricks of the trade and I always come away a better photographer than I was before I got there. If you work for a newspaper or if photography is part of your livelihood or even if you just love it as a hobby, attending the weekend photography sessions at Cumberland Falls State Park in the Spring and Pine Mountain State Park in the Fall is the best money you will ever spend. Lodging is the most expensive part of the deal and don't worry about food because you don't have time to eat between Friday evening and noon on Sunday. I don't have future dates handy but you can call the parks for information.

Because of the season, the weekends offer multiple sensory blessings. The sweet scents of Wildflowers in the Spring and the earthy aroma of brilliant leaves in the fall. The smell of wood-smoke from homes around the parks. You'll catch glimpses of deer, wild turkeys, and dozens of species of birds and butterflies. And you will meet friendly people which this world has too few of.

Last Saturday morning, after the frost had melted away, I was hiking back to the lodge and suddenly I caught the wonderful smell of ripe apples. I started turning around very slowly to see if I could tell where it was coming from and my mouth was watering because I hadn't had breakfast. I made two or three 360 degree turns and I was still clueless. So I started walking a wide circle around the spot where the smell was strongest.

In a matter of minutes, I found an old, old apple tree with numerous dead branches and one last living limb near the top that was loaded with w/mesap apples. It was in the middle of a hardwood forest in approximately the last place on earth you'd expect to find an apple tree.

I climbed up a limb or two and took hold of the main trunk and shook for all there was in me. About a dozen big ripe apples fell into the leaves and that's all I wanted. In fact I left a couple or three that busted for the deer.

When I got back to the lodge I had two or three apples left and someone yelled to see if I wanted to have breakfast with them.

"I've already eaten," I yelled back. And little did they know I had just finished a breakfast that isn't for sale at any price.

Best of all, it didn't cost me a dime.

At the time, I did not fully understand the gravity of the situation. But Nancy's father died. He had seen cows carry and deliver lifeless calves. They all died! Yes, dear hearts, mothers' lives are threatened in the third trimester of pregnancy. But Nancy had no choice. That, however, doesn't seem to matter to some most vocal folks.

It was in October that I sat down before four professors at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary to defend the "Sunday observance" I had written and presented to them. They put me to the test, but I survived. Each professor gave me an "A." I was rightfully proud that I could "cut the mustard" academically. My dissertation was to do with King David, the Old Testament's greatest figure - and greatest sinner.

So much for October's past. This October is especially delightful. Last Sunday, at my door, stood an elegant lady, who is eighty, named Elinor. (Kinda Poethic, don't you think?) What a lovely name! In my years here below I have known three gracious souls named Elinor. Quality seems to have attached itself to that name.

The Elinor at my door was Elinor Denney from Lexington, Kentucky, formerly of Mt. Vernon, the widow of the late Ed Denney, an attorney who once ran a gubernatorial race against Happy Chandler. Unfortunately, like most Republicans in Kentucky, Ed lost. Elinor would have graced the Governor's mansion.

I was a teenager when the Denneys left Mt. Vernon for Lexington. I have fond memories of them.

Ed heard me preach my first sermon at twelve minutes of it, at First Baptist's mission on Chesnut Ridge. (But that was better than my second when I got the "shakes" and shut down after four minutes!) Ed often taught the Sunday School lesson at "the Ridge" on Sunday afternoons.

Ed was also an adept fund-raiser. One Sunday morning he took the floor and solicited enough pledges to purchase FBC's first church bus. So persuasively was he that some of the church's most notorious skinflints chipped in!

I also remember that Ed was our annual Santa Claus at First Baptist. I knew who was inside that costume, but I was still "Santa." It's a tad ironic that his daughter, Suzanne, never believed in Santa Claus.

I also remember Elinor. It was she who taught me to play the new Hammond organ at First Baptist. She taught me to "slide" my fingers from key to key, avoiding a staccato effect. She explained the stops and showed me the best setting for congregational singing. And she showed me how to use the bass pedals in consonance with the chords.

And last Sunday, on a beautiful October afternoon, Elinor drove all over Greater Wabbd before she finally located Nod's Little Acre. (Can you believe that some of our denizens have never heard of "Wabbd"? Alack and alack! Forsooth and forshame event!)

Elinor, Nancy, and I talked for quite some time, telling each other, of course, about our children, and our children's children. I learned that she had served as President of Lexington's Women's Club. (Women's Club?) And that she recently plastered a wall in her home by herself! Just hearing that hurt my back!

Elinor told me how she met Ed while she was a student at Berea College, and about her home in South Dakota, and about her Lutheran background - and how she had to get used to "Baptist ways" before eventually becoming one herself.

She has a beloved cat whom she declares was "sent" to her after Ed passed away. I understand that, animal friend that I am, Nancy declares that I think more of animals than I do people. And that might be so, with the exception of a few beautiful people - like Elinor.

This October is special for another reason. Adam Daniel Meadows, age 20, is spending the week with Nancy and me. His mother, father, and two older brothers are in Disney World. (They aren't Southern Baptists.)

A-mercy! As my late mother-in-law was wont to say, What a child! Talks in complete sentences. Full of questions. Loves books. Good for him!

With my hearing-aid in the shop, I don't always understand him. But Nancy hears him just for me. He is having a good visit. Just loves ringing the old farm bell in our back yard.

Can't get enough of throwing rocks in the creek below our house, or petting my Chow, or singing the "A-B-C" song, or counting my toes when I stick them out of the hot tub, or riding a battery-powered four-wheeler that Betty Carter loaned us.

A-mercy again! Keeping up with Adam makes me appreciate my father who was sixty-six years old when I was born. Makes me marvel that he made it to eighty-eight, considering my childhood capriciousness, of which Elinor reminded me with a smile.

Omg! I must go entertain Adam and relieve Nancy. Until next week, dear beloved, keep your powder dry, don't eat peas with a knife, and keep telling yourself that there is life after a presidential election.

PRECIOUS SOULS, CHILDREN OF AN EVIL AGE, greedings and gratifications from Nod's Little Acre in the heart of dear ole Wabbd, native soil of the late Alicia T. Stedwilly, long-time miller for Shalino's of Wabbd, and part-time peddler of New Woman Wigs, who said, "You know you're getting old when, while bending over to tie your shoe, you look around to see if anything else needs to be done while you're down there."

I'm old enough to identify with Alicia's perspective. Although I don't like to admit it, I am a senior citizen. Yeawaise, age fifty-nine is not "old." But bonowise, beloved, I'm over the hill (Let the congregation now stand and sing the first and last stanzas of Poor Ole John's Almost Gone!)

Bad back and other infirmities not withstanding, I like to think of myself as being in the "October of life." What a marvelous day! October it is! In October the Almighty does his masterpiece in leaf and blade . . . fire-orange maples . . . fuschia-hued black gums . . . and here and there a brilliantly tinted tree that seems to shout, "Look at me! Look at me!"

The tenth month led Helen Hunt Jackson to say,

O sun and skies and clouds of June, And flowers of June together, Ye cannot rival for one hour October's bright blue weather. And surely Christina Rossetti had written in mind when she wrote,

And all the winds go fighting, For sweet things dying. October at Nod's Little Acre means apples from Mason's Orchard out Maple Grove way. Nancy bakes an impeccably delicious apple-pie. She also preserves enough apples to last the winter. How better to start a winter day than with a cup of Folgers and toast topped with butter-melting, cooked apples!

When our children lived with us, October was the "Great Pumpkin" month. And we did Halloween to the hilt, never fearing it would lead to Satanism and such. And it didn't!

When I was a pastor, October was the month our choir commenced practice for the Christmas cantata. So it is at the church where Nancy and I are members. This year our Christmas choir will present a cantata that is interspersed by three venedictio vignettes, brief theatrical asides that amplify the musical theme. (I've seen that work well. I've also seen it otherwise, like the time "Grandma's" rocking chair broke, or the time "Joseph" stared into a black light, passed out, and crashed the manger scene.)

October at our place also means leaves, leaves, leaves! But we don't burn them. We mulch them. Dear hearts, do the earth a favor. Mulch! But whatever you do, please, don't ship those precious nutrients off to fill up our fast-filling landfills. Use the money you spend on fertilizer to buy a mulching blade and keep your leaves - and grass - at home. Or mulch and put them in a compost pile.

October is memorable in the Meadows family because of particular events that occurred in this month. Some I recall with joy and thankfulness; others are couched in sadness or tinged with regret.

It was forty-two years ago on a lovely Sunday afternoon in early October that I was ordained to the Gospel ministry by First Baptist Church of Mt. Vernon.

It was thirty-eight years ago on a Friday night in October that Nancy and I became one at Freedom Baptist Church.

It was thirty-seven years ago on a Friday night in October that my father passed away.

It was in October that Nancy delivered a stillborn son in the third trimester of her pregnancy. Several weeks prior, doctors failed to detect a heartbeat. But, because abortion was illegal, she had to "carry" on.

years old their share of the federal deficit will be $187,000," he said. "We put a balanced budget on the President's desk for the first time in 26 years and he wouldn't sign it!" the Senator said.

"The Democrats have had control of Congress for 40 years and when Republicans gained control last year we tried to do something about the deficit, but the President wouldn't go along with it," he said. "He wouldn't sign a balanced budget amendment, but he gave you the biggest tax increase in history in 1994," McConnell said.

"We are making progress on the budget and if we can maintain control of Congress we will have a balanced budget, but things move slowly in a country of 260 million and it will take time," McConnell said.

McConnell also told the group that President Clinton was "flexible to say the least," and had hurt the federal government's efforts to control illegal drugs.

"Since he went into office the use of hormone cocaine has increased and he cut the drug czar's office by 83 percent," McConnell said. "We were making real progress with the use of drug prevention programs, but now we have taken a step back," McConnell said.

McConnell told the group that just about everyone's economic situation in Kentucky was affected by something like the tobacco tax in that mind in Kentucky could not vote for Clinton or any Democrat.

"He wants the federal drug agency to regulate your tobacco patch and label the tobacco farmer as a drug dealer," McConnell said. "Certainly no one wants teenagers to smoke, but adults should have a right to make that choice," he said. "We make decisions like that everyday and we don't need the federal government telling us we can't grow tobacco - that too is ridiculous," he said.

"The FDA is dreadfully slow in testing and approving life-saving drugs and shouldn't be involved in something like the regulation of tobacco," McConnell said.

McConnell told the group that his high ranking in Congress would help Kentucky. He said that he would have one of the five leadership positions in the Senate and that he would use his power to see that Kentucky got a fair shake in Congress.

The veteran politician told the group to get the vote out in November and to "beat them like a drum, send them a message," he said.

Disabled Children's Program available

By Brenda Smith Lawson
If you have a Disabled Child you probably feel helpless at times, this article is about a program to help your child.
There is a federally funded program operated by the Commission for Children with Special Health Care Needs called the Disabled Children's Program (DCP). This program provides care coordination and a variety of services for infants, toddlers and preschool children who meet certain criteria. The programs purpose is to provide support to improve the child's ability to benefit from subsequent education or training or otherwise improve the child's opportunities for self-sufficiency or self-support as an adult.

Eligibility is based on the determination of eligibility for Social Security Insurance (SSI) and the child must be between ages birth through six and not have entered Kindergarten. Most children exit the program at age 5.

Services are delivered through the Cumberland River Comprehensive Care Centers. A Case Manager is assigned to each child and is responsible for contacting the child's family or guardian and meeting with the family to determine their concerns and to assist with determining the child's needs. The Case Manager is also responsible for writing an Individual Service Plan (ISP) for each child which is submitted to the DCP coordinator for approval.

After the ISP is approved, a child can begin to receive services for his or her developmental needs. Available services include adaptive equipment, developmental day care, early intervention, educational toys, infant stimulation, medical devices, medication, occupational therapy, orthopedic shoes, parent training, physical therapy, physicians services, respite care, speech therapy and transportation. DCP funding is contingent upon federal grant monies. Referrals on newly appointed SSI recipients are sent directly to the DCP coordinator's office by the Social Security Administration. Any concerned person may refer a child whom they believe will qualify for DCP. Referrals may be made by calling the office of the state coordinator at (502)588-3264 or by calling the local Cumberland River Comprehensive Care Center and ask for the DCP contact person.

Rockets blast Cardinals 38-6

By: Richard Anderkin
The Rockcastle County Rockets won their seventh game of the '96 season Friday night with an easy 38-6 win over the Wayne County Cardinals. It was also Rocket head coach Tom Larkey's 100th win as head of the Rocket program.

The Rockets offense got an unexpected boost from sophomore Andy Hale who caught five passes for 81 yards and rushed for another 42 on five carries.

Two of five five catches were for touchdowns in the second quarter that capped off a first half that saw the Rockets take a 35-0 lead.

Senior Jon Cromer also turned in another great running performance gaining 138 yards on just 13 carries. Cromer also scored two touchdowns and one two point conversion.

Quarterback Malcolm Shepherd scored the first touchdown of the game on a five yard run. Shepherd had 25 yards on the ground in three carries and 90 yards through the air on six completions.

On defense senior linebacker Jason Dillingham stepped in for an injured Brooks Ingram and played very well.

Dillingham had seven tackles and assists, a fumble recovery and two and half quarterback sacks.

"He stepped up and played well for us," said defensive coach Tony Saylor. "He will see a lot of playing time the rest of the season."

Ingram, who has been nursing a sore ankle most of the season also suffered a slight concussion in the Corbin game and was only released to play in the Wayne County game on Thursday. Saylor said that Ingram, and offensive guard Kevin Bradley, will both see some action Friday night, but both are still injured. Bradley is healing from a shoulder injury.

Anthony King also played well on defense with six tackles and assists and he also had two fumble recoveries.

Shepherd also helped a lot on defense with ten tackles and assists and one pass interception.

Dennis Miller had eight tackles and assists and two quarterback sacks.

Others getting tackles and assists were Slade Calhoun, 3, David Coffey, 6, Mike Muncy, 5, Andrew Gislener, 4, Chris Bishop, 3, John LaFavers, 3, Dusty McClure, 2, and Andy Hale, Brooks Ingram and Jon Cromer each one tackle.

Besides Cromer's and Hale's efforts on offense, junior Dusty McClure had 80 yards on seven carries and caught one pass for nine yards.

Henry Bryant gained 47 yards on two carries, Brad Powell had three yards on two carries and Josh Hendrickson had two yards on a carry.

Chris Bishop had 24 yards on six carries and an extra point conversion.

Placekicker Raymond Blackburn set a school record with his third field goal in as many games with a 37 yarder in the third quarter. Blackburn also added an extra point, although he missed two others.

The Rocket defense allowed only 95 yards while their offense rolled up 450 yards.

The Rockets have outscored their opponents 244 to 75 this season. Their offense has racked up 2424 of rushing yards compared to opponents 1015. The Rocket opponent have gotten 462 yards in the air, while the Rockets have passed for only 194.

The Rockets face one of their toughest opponents of the season Friday night when they travel to Berea to take on Madison Southern.

The Eagles have never beaten the Rockets although last year they jumped out to a 21-0 lead only to lose 28-27.

"This is one of our toughest opponents we will face this season," Head Coach Tom Larkey said.

"Nobody has been able to stop them this season, they have an excellent offensive team, both in the air and on the ground," he said.

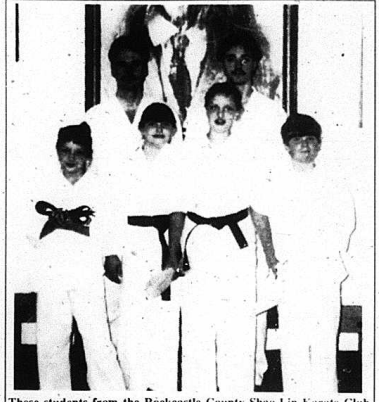

Southern has a 6-2 record and has lost only to Garrard County and to a team from West Virginia. They are perfect in conference play with wins over Somerset, Wayne County and Estill County.

"We will have to play a great game to win on their field," Larkey said.

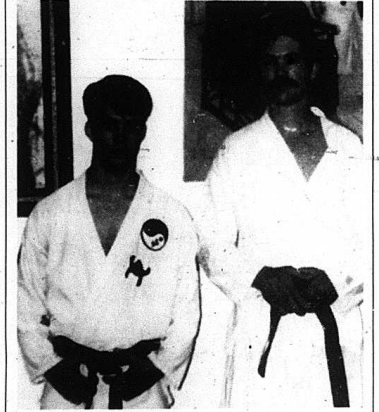

Game time at Gilliam Field is set for 8 p.m.

As for Larkey's 100th win, he said he was proud of the effort his coaching staff has always given since he came to Rockcastle twelve years ago.

'Tis the season for safe hunting

During Kentucky's hunting season last year, nine hunting-related accidents were reported, one that was fatal. That's a 50 percent increase over the six accidents reported in 1994, and nine accidents too many. Every one of these accidents could have been prevented had the hunters exercised more caution in the field.

All hunters need to know and follow the ten commandments of hunting safety each time they hunt. Using the following rules with common sense will reduce the chances of a hunting accident:

- 1) Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun. This is the cardinal rule of safety.
- 2) Carry only empty guns, taken down or with the action open, into your automobile, camp and home.

- 3) Always be sure that the barrel and action of the gun are clear of obstructions.
- 4) Always carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle if you stumble.
- 5) Identify your target before you pull the trigger.
- 6) Never point a gun at anything you do not intend to shoot.
- 7) Never leave your gun unattended, unless you unload it first.
- 8) Never climb a tree or fence with a loaded gun.
- 9) Do not shoot at a flat, hard surface or at the surface of water - the bullets may ricochet.
- 10) Do not mix gunpowder and alcohol.

Steve Sears says roles in Fire Down Below, a "real experience"

Playing two roles as diverse as a bartender and a coal miner, Steve Sears, a 1985 graduate of Rockcastle County High School, called his acting debut in Fire Down Below a "real experience."

Sears was sent to an audition in Hazard by Images, a modeling and talent agency in Lexington, where he won the roles over 750 other hopefuls who answered the casting call.

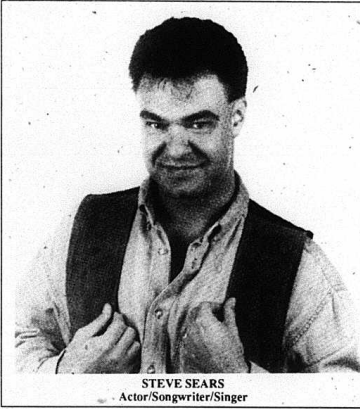

"It was such a cool experience," Sears said, "getting a casting call from an actual Hollywood producer at my home."

Jackson spent eight days all together filming the two roles, one of a bartender in a Jackson Ky. pool hall where a fight begins and the other as a coal miner who Seagal "actually carried down a hill." Seagal carried Sears and one other miner to safety following a coal mine accident.

Seagal plays an environmental agent who comes to Kentucky because someone is illegally dumping toxic waste material and children are getting sick. The setting for the movie is in a fictional town in Kentucky called Jackson and even though part of the filming was in Jackson, Ky. it was purely coincidental.

Sears, who has received recognition for his songwriting talent, is putting together a demo now with six songs that he hopes to have completed by January. "I'm in the process of looking for a manager, someone who knows how to help me," Sears said.

He also said that for the last two years, he has had to put his career on a back-burner somewhat because of illness in his family. Both brothers, Chris Robbins (a stage name), who performs at Renton Valley, and Ronnie, a Kentucky State Trooper, underwent serious surgery in that period.

Prior to that, in 1993 in a songwriting contest in Los Angeles, Sears was one of 20 picked up by a publishing company meaning they optioned some of his songs and have rights to them. And, in 1994, he was one of 30 chosen out of 500 by the Nashville Songwriters Association International to attend an advance songwriters workshop with five major songwriters.

About his experience in Fire Down Below, Sears said, "I was so lucky. I was one of very few in the area that got to do this (an acting part)." And, "I was also lucky to have the kind of job I have, where they worked with me to allow me the time off to do this," Sears said. After high school, Sears went to work for Berea College Food Services Department and has been there ever since. But, even with their cooperation, he had to turn down two days of filming on the movie simply because he couldn't get the additional time off.

Primarily, Sears said, the acting experience had "opened up a new avenue for me and given me a new option in this business."

And, Sears cautioned that there is a possibility his roles could wind up on the cutting room floor (as the picture is edited). He doesn't think this will happen but, "It's a possibility," Sears said.

While Sears obviously enjoyed the experience, it is obvious from talking with him that his first love is his songwriting, singing talent.

"I'm not a traditional singer, more in the cross-over area," he said, "but, mainly, I want to be a positive artist, the kind that once you hear one of my songs you feel good about it and can get it out of your mind." He said one of the songwriters in the workshop complimented him on his song "Shadow on the Wall," by saying it was the one the other writers in the workshop kept singing because they couldn't help it.

Whatever the outcome of this latest achievement by Steve, it is obvious that this is a man who is in love with his craft and has the talent and the tenacity to pursue his chosen career to the top.

Our Readers Write

Dear Editor,
This letter is to all you folks that gave money to the Red Hill Cemetery Fund.
When you get a chance, go out to the cemetery, and see what you have done.
There are still things that need to be done. The ditch along the road on the Rt. 1955 side needs to be lined with rocks to keep from washing out. We think it would be good to have another sign, to be placed at the new entrance.

I would like to plant trees "maybe White Pine seedlings" on the property line, so in years to come everyone will know just where the property lines are. When we sawed the grass seed we did not spread, any fertilizer, so we need to save enough money to buy it next spring.

Right now we have a balance of $1,027.90 in the account.
Recent donors have been:
Livingston Pentecostal Church $50.00, Lil's Restaurant $100, Arley Allen, $20, Jesse Allen, $20, Bill Bryant, $50, Mt. Vernon Scrap, $100, Kenneth Ponder, $100.

Thanks to all of you. And thanks to Mr. Larry Hammond for allowing us to make the road on his property there on the east side of the old section of the Cemetery.
Yours truly,
Dell F. Ponder

Former Ohio resident hosts relatives from the Bluegrass

Reprinted from a column (Appalachian Yesterdays) by Ercel Eaton in the Hamilton Journal

Vada (Shell) Stanley sits down with the likes of Prince Charles, Shirley Temple-Black, Henry Kissinger and heads of state from around the world, but she does not forget her roots in Rockcastle County.

Born in a small log cabin on Crooked Creek, she recalled in an interview that after her family came north to Ohio she continued to go back in summers to visit "both sets of grandparents."

"I feel," she said, "that my soul is from Kentucky. When I was there I felt so free in the beautiful hills and hollows."

A letter from her uncle, Delmer Shell, told us a bit about Stanley's 60th birthday. He and more than two dozen other relatives went to her New York City home for the celebration.

"When my husband (Ted Stanley, owner of Danbury Mint, Easton Publishing and several other concerns) said he wanted to do something special for that birthday, that's what I requested - that my relatives be here.

"You know I never forget what a college professor said once: that relationships are the key to happiness. I was thinking about all my wonderful Kentucky folks. They are the most nurturing people in the world. They have their values in place.

"Ted has said of them that they have an inherent natural dignity."

She went to work at Proctor and Gamble: "It was in the 50's. I was one of three women among 150 men in the brand's division."

It was there she met Ted Stanley. The two travel everywhere, attending an annual event hosted by Britain's former prime minister, Margaret Thatcher, meeting with United States' ambassadors in various foreign cities and making business trips.

The Stanleys rented a museum of arcade games for the official birthday party and invited their New York and Paris friends to meet the relatives.

"I was concerned that people might not have enough to do," she said, "but I was wrong. When I requested that some of the relatives sing some of the old gospel songs, they moved right into it."

Shell recalled that they sang "I'll Fly Away," "Amazing Grace" and other old country hymns.

"My friends later wrote to say how much they enjoyed the singing," Vada Stanley said. "The mountain people send such good energy, you're just infused with good feeling when you're around them."

Shell said the week-long event included dinner on a yacht while viewing the Statue of Liberty and the "Big Apple" skyline. We ate at the best restaurants, from the Culinary Institute of America to the Tavern on the Green and we had a delicious dinner at the Stanley's Frank Lloyd Wright home.

But all Vada Stanley wanted to talk about were her people whose background matched hers in the mountains: "Their hearts are so open. They are so gentle and careful of others' feelings."

"one of my friends, who has lived in New York City all her life, called my people 'natural aristocrats.' She was overcome by what she termed their goodness, simplicity and elegance."

"I am very fortunate," she said, "to be from the hills of Kentucky."

In honor of Mrs. Stanley's parents, Bill and Zora Shell, Vada and her husband, bought the machinery for Berea College's new woodwork shop.

Lena Cope visited Mr. and Mrs. Jim Bowles in Danville and Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Cope of Mt. Vernon.

Tip Reppert and Elmer Hale recently visited Lovell Clinton of Mt. Vernon and enjoyed so much seeing him again. He is in poor health and needs the prayers of Christian people. Tip later had dinner with Elmer and wife, Edith. They are such good friends and enjoy each other. Tip is my brother and he really enjoys visiting the sick. I admire him for his interest in others.

Visiting at the home of Mrs. Hallie Alexander in the past few days were Mr. and Mrs. Gillis Gregory, Woody Gabbard, Frances Wyatt, Clyde Horn, Anna Rose Allen, Nellie Blackburn, Edd Gabbard, Kay Ab-ney and Mr. and Mrs. Robbie Gregory. Hallie is doing well, but is very lonely since the death of her husband, Eugene, Sept. 20th. But she is a good Christian lady and has many friends who love her.

Visiting in our home recently have been Wayne and Carolyn Chasteen, James, Joyce and Kim Seals and Tip Reppert.

I've enjoyed phone calls from my sister, Dorothy and my sister-in-law, Berdine Reppert recently.

Cletus Peters and Buddy Gabbard attended the associational meetings Friday night and Saturday of last week.

Eddie Spencer of Maryland attended worship services at Fairview last Sunday. We are always glad to have him and all other visitors.

Recent guests of Mrs. Mary Cope were Ernest and Lena Cope, John and Alice Shupe, Christine Barnett, Helen Powell, Jean Hayes, William and Joyce Cope and Buddy Cope.

Tip Reppert recently visited Mrs. Cope and was so pleased to get to see Ernest Cope whom he hasn't seen for many years.

Well, winter time is fast approaching and the snows will be here soon. But God has been good to us down through the years, and we must trust him to continue to care for us. Try to be in Sunday School and Church next Sunday please. Love your neighbor and pray for all people. Just remember that God loves everyone. God bless you all.

War against tobacco will be costly for Kentucky

Burley farmers take it on the chin

By Larry Forgy
The following article, concerning the tobacco struggle, needs to be published:

First, no one - farmers included - wants teenagers and children to smoke. Fifty states have laws prohibiting sale to minors. They need to be enforced.

Second, no one quarrels with the United States government's campaign to inform the public of any health risks associated with smoking, including labeling. These are legitimate and honorable functions of government. But, the administration's proposal of Food and Drug Administration regulation of tobacco products unfairly singles out Kentucky tobacco to fulfill a "politically correct" agenda.

Since his first day in office, when he signed an executive order banning smoking in the White House, President Clinton has been in a state of undeclared war against Kentucky farmers.

He seriously floated a $2-a-pack tax on cigarettes - later scaled back to 75 cents-a-pack to pay for his social health reform.

He ordered his labor secretary to seek a smoking ban in all indoor areas of the country.

He ordered the U.S. Department of Agriculture to suspend all activities to promote the export of tobacco.

Now, he has proposed FDA regulation, a truly draconian approach, if you read the entire proposal. For example, can any reasonable person conclude that cigarette and leaf tobacco are "medical devices" FDA has the authority to regulate tobacco. If the administration can simply order the FDA into a regulatory role, how long will it be before it destroys the price-support program by executive order or requires a doctor's prescription to buy cigarettes? Such regulation restricts free speech and adult freedoms, violating the First Amendment of the Constitution. It is also radicalism.

The United States is losing the war on drugs. Teen-age drug use doubled in the last three years. Yet the attention of the country, is being diverted from this failure to tobacco, the economic backbone of our farmers. Politically correct? Clearly, Kentucky tobacco farmers should not be treated like drug dealers. There is no comparison. Our people are raising a legal crop and have for generations.

Last year, Kentuckians sold almost $700 million worth of burley tobacco. This does not include hundreds of millions of dollars from dark-fired and dark air-cured tobacco in other sections of Kentucky. Lexington is the largest burley market in the world - more than $50 million annually. Fayette and Bourbon counties are two of the top three burley-producing counties year after year, surrounding counties are high on the list. All this money finds its way into our economy and is multiplied seven times.

More than 100,000 burley farm families receive a significant portion of their income from tobacco. When you multiply that by four members in each household, the figure approaches 500,000 Kentuckians. When you add to that tobacco manufacturing workers and tradesmen, it can be reasonably estimated that 1 million Kentuckians are in the tobacco business. A dramatic reduction in tobacco sales, suddenly, would be a Bluegrass catastrophe.

Tobacco crops have been shoe money, Christmas money and school money for almost 200 years. "All right kids, we've got to get this tobacco struck: Christmas is coming," has been heard by thousands. Now, overnight, this entire way of life is being attacked.

Our people are frightened, confused and demoralized. They do not want to be on welfare. They do not want to be despised. They are simply doing what they know to do and have been doing as religious, tax-paying, law-abiding citizens since they first came "beyond the mountains."

Tobacco is the "humble man's" crop. The average base in Kentucky yields less than $9,000 a year. In agriculture, everybody is doing it. But it is the small farmer on poor, rock-infested land in counties such as Bath or Rockcastle or Owen who will be hurt the most.

Kentucky's organs of public opinion do their readers no service by siding with anti-tobacco movement. Tobacco farmers have enough enemies; where are their friends? Every medical or quasinomedical foundation in the country is now springing into action with strong, often poorly supported, claims that tobacco is responsible for every disease known to man. The trial lawyers are also going to try to extract their multibillion-dollar pound of flesh.

Who will counsel reason? Who will make the counter-arguments on small farms in Kentucky, will millions cease using it, or will it be grown overseas? Will prohibition work any better with tobacco products than it did with alcohol? How will the enormous tax revenue derived by the states from the sale of tobacco be replaced? And foremost, how are our people expected to make a living?

Fleas don't suggest growing kumquats and cucumbers; it simply won't work on a 60-acre mountain farm in Wolfe County.

Answer this: Who is going to pay 50 cents for your newspaper when all our farmers are broke? Who will patronize the stores and professionals of Lexington and Louisville when our rural people are on welfare or have moved to Atlanta or Nashville? Are not most of the cars in Fayette Mall's parking lot, on most days, licensed in outlying counties? Finally, what will be the assessed value of rural land in Kentucky with tobacco gone? How does this affect our bank and school revenues?

All of us have a very serious problem - more so than is being recognized. But people will smoke worldwide, no matter what is done. This should be a serious, long-term effort, not a campaign issue. What we need is accommodation, no prohibition in the United States.

The Bible teaches moderation in all things. We could all learn from that in the tobacco struggle. The Hearld-Leader could help. Don't just join the other side. The newspaper could do much by pointing out the seriousness of the problem for our people: Don't ignore our side of the argument.

Also, at least don't appear to be enjoying our plight, with continuous negative cartoons and articles. Right now, Kentucky farmers have a right to feel they are being "bit by their own dog."

Larry Forgy is former special counsel to the Burley tobacco Growers Cooperative Association, Lexington. He was the Republican candidate for governor in 1995.

Corn Dipodia Ear Rot

Dipodia ear rot is sometimes discovered in corn fields during harvesting. This ear rot appears as white rot between the kernels, progressing from the ear shank upward and from the cob outward. Severely affected ears can be obvious from a distance, as they can turn brown and dry down well before the rest of the plant. Laboratory confirmation is recommended if there are any uncertainties as to ear rot present, since several ear rot diseases can be associated with high levels of mycotoxins.

Dipodia ear rot appears to be increasing in importance in several regions. Based on published research on this disease, the increase in prevalence is most likely related to increasing use of conservation tillage.

Based on samples received in the UK Plant Disease Diagnostic Labs thus far, there appears to be few fields with severe outbreaks. In white corn growers producing no-till corn should scout fields as they approach maturity. Growers who discover any level above a few percent of the ears in no-till fields should strongly consider the following management suggestions: THIS SEASON: Fields with significant levels of Dipodia ear rot should be harvested as soon as possible and dried with heat to below 15.5% moisture. Store dried, affected corn away from healthy corn, to avoid contamination of the whole bin. Dipodia-affected corn in this country does not contain mycotoxins, and is not regarded as a feeding risk to livestock. However, the nutritive value may be reduced, and some animals refuse the feed. Dipodia-affected corn may not store well, so market that grain as soon as possible.

away from corn for the least a year, and preferably 2-3 years, is the best management approach at this time. No crop in Kentucky other than corn is susceptible. Moldboard plowing to completely bury corn residue would reduce spore levels

Extension Home Economics

Be careful of pathogens in many foods

By: Hazel Jackson
County Extension Agent
for Home Economics

Consumers have learned a new vocabulary recently. Words unknown to them just 10 years ago are now common. Words such as Salmonella and E. coli O157:H7 are now part of many people's vocabularies.

While awareness of these food pathogens is helpful, consumers mistakenly tend to associate these pathogens with specific foods. E. coli O157:H7, for example, is often associated with ground beef; Salmonella with chicken and Trichinella spiralis with pork. Although these pathogens are more prevalent in these food products, consumers need to understand that any food can be a vehicle for a variety of bacteria.

Safe food handling practices are always important.

A good example is trichinosis from pork. Although it is now a very rare problem, some people assume that it is safe to serve pork rare. WRONG. Cooking to a safe internal temperature is necessary to destroy any pathogens that might be present, from trichinae to salmonellae to toxoplasma gondii.

Some illnesses associated with specific foodborne pathogens can be transmitted from person to person, not just through food. And the consequences can be serious. One of the four children who died as a result of the 1993 E. Coli O157:H7 outbreak never ate a contaminated hamburger, but contracted the pathogen from another child at his day care center.

To prevent fecal or oral contamination, careful handwashing, safe diaper changing and good personal hygiene are essential.

Although it is true that thorough cooking destroys many of the bacteria that causes illness, other factors can come into play to compromise the safety of cooked foods.

If cooked food is mishandled, such as being left at room temperature too long, dangerous toxins can form. Some toxins are extremely heat resistant and may not be destroyed no matter how much you reheat the food. Cooked foods also can be contaminated by exposure to bacteria through poor personal hygiene.

Many consumers believe that spoiled food causes foodborne diseases. The organisms that cause a food to spoil aren't the same organisms that cause foodborne diseases. On the other hand, dangerous bacteria that can make you sick might be in foods that look unspoiled. Any food, fresh or frozen, can contain dangerous factors if it has been mishandled.

The Industry Council on Food Safety is distributing a consumer publication, "Chef CookSmart's Guide to Safe Food Preparation and Handling," available free by calling 1-800-COOKSMART.

Poet's Corner

Winter Storms of '94

We had a huge snowfall
The roads were soon glazed with ice,
And anyone venturing out
Would surely pay the price.

Snowy tree limbs looked ghostly
In the pale moonlight,
And the crispy crunchy frozen snow
Was sparkling in the night.

The temperature dropped down
Until it was thirty three below,
And Governor Jones issued a proclamation
That only four wheelers and E.V.'s could go.

When the electricity went off
I fired up the fireplace there,
And I'm telling the facts folks
The flames froze in the air.

I broke off a piece to show
That I wasn't the fibber of the land,
But it thawed out and I had no proof
Except a burned place on my hand.

The house was cracking and popping
And making a strange sound,
We thought the extreme cold
Would bring it to the ground.

I thought I saw two polar bears
Just at the close of day,
But it was only Johnny B and Dr. K
Towing their kids on a sleigh.

We survived the snow and cold
By coping and making do,
And then settled back to warm and rest
While the cold wind blew.

Then an ice storm hit Rockcastle
And it showed us its wrath,
Water lines broke and the kids were happy
Because they didn't have to take a bath.

The storm coated boughs and trees
And brought limbs tumbling down,
Breaking lines and cutting off power
All over the county and town.

I got out my possum lantern
And lit a couple of lamps for light,
Then I wondered how we used to see
When they were used to illuminate the night.

I turned on my battery powered radio
And I tossed on another log,
While I listened to some folk artist singing
"I ain't nothing but a hound dog."

Newscasters said, "That we're going to crack
And that we're in a state of shock,"
But they don't know us old hillbillies
For we're harder than a rock.

We heard the whine of chainsaws
As utility crews and volunteers worked full speed,
To restore power and open roads
And to take care of those in need.

A hearty thanks to those brave men

Who make our community a better place to live,
For they take time from their own families
To provide service and to give.

I can hear the whine of the grand-children
About the winter of ninety four,
With each telling the snow gets deeper
And the temperature drops ten degrees more.

In Memory

In Memory of Floyd Miller. Sept. 19, 1936 - Oct. 23, 1994 God saw you getting weaker and a cure was not to be So he took you in His arms and whispered "Come with me" Through tearful eyes we watched you suffer and saw you slowly fade away No matter how much we loved you we couldn't make you stay. Your golden heart stopped beating. Your toiling hands were laid to rest God broke our hearts to prove to us He only takes the best. They say times heals all sorrow and helps us to forget, But time so far has only proved how much we miss you yet.

We do not need a special day to bring you to our minds The day we do not think of you is very hard to find. God gave us strength to bear it, and courage to take the blow,

But what it meant to lose you no one will ever know. Sadly missed by Dorothy, Karen, Renee, Kristie, Stephen & Meredith
