In Loving Memory of My Mommy and Daddy, John and Sara Pittman Submitted by Freda Warf

As children, we can't comprehend, Or fully realize, The meaning of our parents' love-How tender and how wise-Their patience and forgiveness That are part of every day, The unexpected little things They do in their dear way, Years go by before we know The depth of their concern, The love in their protectiveness-It takes so long to learn, But, as we grow, we understand, For we look back and see, Through older eyes and wiser hearts, Their love and loyalty.

In Loving Memory of Dexter Roberts

We long to see your smiling face and touch your loving hands. But God had other plans for you and He knows what's best for our man.

On April 3, your birthday, your life we celebrate and rest assured we'll meet again someday at Heaven's Gate. Your Family

Another murder trial ends in hung jury

For the second time in as many weeks a Rockcastle County murder trial has ended in a hung jury.

David Lindsey, 39, of Wolf Creek, went on trial in Rockcastle Circuit Court on Monday, accused of shooting I.B. Alexander, of Crooked Creek, to death in May of 1995.

However, after three hours of deliberations on Tuesday afternoon, jurors told Circuit Judge William Cain they could not reach a unanimous decision in the case.

Lindsey's attorney, William D. Gregory of Mt. Vernon, said after the trial that he was not surprised by the lack of a verdict.

The only thing that has surprised me about this entire case is the fact the Commonwealth insists on trying my client," he said.

Gregory said it was a simple matter of self-defense on Lindsey's part and that evidence showed that shots were fired by both parties.

A May 9th hearing date has been set in the case. Lindsey remains free on bond.

It was the third case this year that has been tried in Rockcastle Circuit Court and the third time that Commonwealth Attorney Ray Carmichael's office has come away without a guilty verdict.

February, Abe Harper was acquitted of assault and last week the murder trial of Junie Kirby ended in a hung jury as did Lindsey's.

Livingston to halt garbage collection

Residents of Livingston will no longer have garbage service provided to them by the city.

The Livingston city council voted on March 15 and again on March 22 to drop garbage collection in the city on April 26.

Mayor Ed Lile said the move was necessary because it was no longer feasible for the city to provide the service for $12 a month.

The $12 charge was added directly to water bills in the city, but that also will be changed when the $12 fee is removed.

"We simply were losing too much money on the garbage service, it was costing the city a lot more to dispose of the trash than we were collecting," the Mayor said.

Law suit dismissed

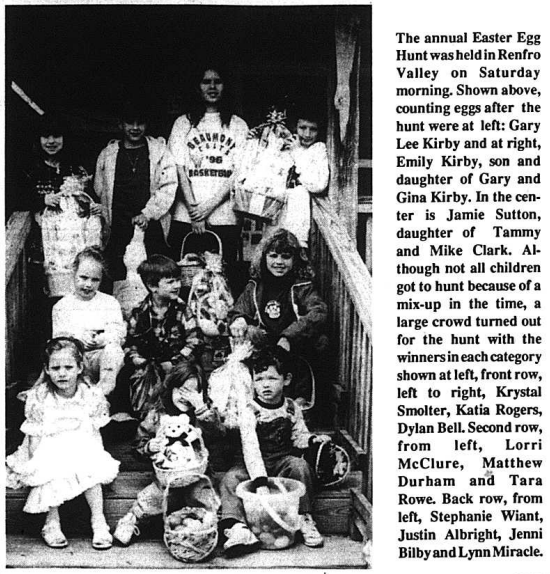

A lawsuit in federal court against a local state trooper has been dismissed.

United States District Court Judge Jennifer Coffman dismissed the suit against trooper Jimmy Silvers last Wednesday.

Coffman dismissed the suit which had been brought against Silvers by the family of Gary Shepherd, because of a delay in the time Silvers received notice of the Shepherd's claims and the time he was actually sued.

Shepherd was shot to death at his home on Furr Rigsby Road on August 8, 1993 by two members of the Kentucky State Police Special Response Team.

Renfro Easter Egg Hunt

Court orders garbage hauler out of county

By Richard Anderkin
The Rockcastle County Fiscal Court has denied a garbage hauler permit for United Waste Systems of Corbin and ordered them to remove their dumpsters from the county.

The court instructed to Solid Waste Coordinator Nancy Meadows to inform United Waste Systems to remove their eighteen commercial dumpsters from the county by May 1.

Mrs. Meadows told the court that United Waste Systems had been operating in the county for about two years without a permit.

"United Waste Systems bought H.S.I. who had a permit, but the permit is non-transferable and they have never made the proper application for a permit," she said.

Third District Magistrate Bill McKinney said that because United Waste Systems is such a large company and owns both landfills in Laurel County they would probably try to undercut everyone and run them out of business.

Currently Owen Mink, Linda McWhorter, Cassie Littrel and Bee Garbage Service are all permitted to haul garbage in Rockcastle.

"They will do what they did every where else, they'll come in and lower prices, run everybody else out of business and then raise prices two of three times higher than they were," McKinney said.

McKinney and Magistrate Donald Bullock voted in favor of denying United Waste Systems a permit. Magistrates John Holbrook (Cont. to A12)

Residents could be fined $5,000 for trash dumping

Local citizens caught dumping their trash illegally could face up to a $5,000 fine under a new initiative from the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet and the Rockcastle County Fiscal Court.

Rockcastle County Judge Executive Buzz Carlouff was briefed on the new illegal dumping initiative by Cabinet Secretary James E. Bickford.

Bickford said this new effort was intended to help counties fight the problem of illegal dumping in the state.

"We've got to stop illegal dumping, an activity that creates a health hazard, is detrimental to tourism and economic development efforts, and is just unsightly," Bickford said.

Bickford also reminded the judge-executives that local tax dollars needed for water, sewer and road projects are instead being used to clean up illegal dumps.

Bickford said some counties have made major strides in their efforts to catch violators and have them prosecuted, while efforts in other counties have met with mixed success. The new initiative will mean offenders will be given a notice of violation and will be scheduled to appear before an administrative hearing officer in Frankfort. The maximum penalty is a fine of up to $5,000 per day.

State inspectors will be monitoring and sifting through designated illegal dumps in Rockcastle County to find names and addresses. Those people will be sent notices of violation from Frankfort, according to Carlouff.

To report illegal dumping in Rockcastle County, call the solid waste coordinator, Mrs. Nancy Meadows at 256-5315 with license numbers, names or other identifying information. Thirty two violation notices have been issued by the county coordinator since the first of the year. The names of violators who do not respond within the allotted time are turned over to county attorney, Jeff Burdette.

Fiscal court wants Carmichael to speed up court proceedings

The Rockcastle County Fiscal Court voted unanimously Thursday to ask Commonwealth Attorney Ray Carmichael to speed up proceedings that involved Rockcastle County jail inmates.

Rockcastle County Judge-Executive Buzz Carlouff was authorized to write Carmichael a letter requesting that he attend the court's meeting on April 22 to discuss the matter.

Carlouff told the court that he did not understand why it took so long for cases to be handled in Rockcastle County. He said that Pulaski County was three times bigger than Rockcastle, but that court proceedings seemed to move much faster there, where Carmichael is also Commonwealth Attorney.

The request by the court came after a lengthy discussion about inmate Charles Mullins of Lexington.

Mullins was involved in a fatal crash in Rockcastle County on July 3 of last year, which killed three people from Ohio.

Mullins was later indicted for murder by a Rockcastle Grand Jury and has been unable to make bond since his indictment.

The nicest thing about living off the beaten path is that folks you haven't gotten acquainted with yet, what you already seem like old friends.

Our new place in the Lowell Branch suburb of Paint Lick is fronted by Charlie Brown Road and then a hundred feet over another road called Old Railroad Grade runs parallel to Charlie Brown. So, when we're outside, we spent a lot of time waving because four out of every five vehicles that drive past will honk their horns and the drivers will throw an arm-waved greeting out the window.

Not many people get on either road unless they live in the vicinity. I'd bet that at least 90% of the vehicles, (more pick-ups than cars) belong to residents. And while we haven't met nearly everybody yet, several neighbors have stopped by to compliment the job we've done on the old house.

Our place has, in fact, been here longer than many, if not most of our neighbors have been on the face of the earth. There probably aren't more than half a dozen houses on the four mile length of Old Railroad Grade older than our place, which by most local estimations, was built around 1920. In fact we found a 1914 calendar in the basement so who knows.

The folks who stop by universally show some sort of gratitude that the house didn't get torn down, a worry that I find a bit amusing because it's built like Alcázar and there's no sign that a termite has ever been close to it.

It would have been as hard to tear down as it was to fix up. I've found out the hard way that finding a stud to nail into is only half the battle. Sometimes getting a nail to sink is about like trying to pound it into an anvil because most of the framing lumber is chestnut and oak that just get harder with age.

We've added new siding, windows, doors, porch posts and a new roof that are visible from the exterior, but structurally the place looks like it always has except now it looks a bit newer. We've wired and plumbed and dry-walled and sanded till I'm so tired of the whole thing that I would advise anyone to talk to me before they begin remodeling. But saving the old place seems to be as important to the neighborhood as having a place to live is to us. We haven't felt so at home in a long long time. And the home itself doesn't have much to do with that feeling.

It's the folks who would and honk their horns and stop by to say welcome that are important. We're mighty proud to be the newest residents of Lowell Branch and we're just as proud of our neighbors. Come and see us when you can.

PRECIOUS SOULS, CHILDREN OF AN EVIL AGE, greetings and provocations from the cool-winded Plains of Wabdi, home of the late Worley "Doc" Goodie, longtime jockey veterinarian at Wabdi's Big and Little Critter Clinic, and part-time peddler of Lidlod toothpaste, who said, "The nobles of all animals is the dog, and the noblest of all dogs is the hot dog - it feeds the hand that bites it."

Bless Bess, beloved, the mail mounds, both material and electronic. I wanted to take up again the issue of cloning, but your questions beat answers.

First, however, I want to make one thing very clear. Please get this straight and inform your friends. Here it is: the Wabdi, extraterrestrial beings who have inhabited Wabdi since time immemorial, DID NOT have anything to do with that mass suicide in California.

As you likely have heard via CNN and other media outlets, authorities strongly suspect the deaths of thirty-nine couples at Rancho Santa Fe, California were "assisted by" the testimonies of the dearly departed, signs of "alien activity" can be spotted by the "trained eye," said Sgt. Buolo Lappez, a detective with the San Diego Police Department.

According to my translation of The Kuroynjak, the unearthed imbydium scroll from Dugoner's Cave on which is etched the deeds of the Wabdi's mission to Earth, the Wabdi clearly eschew suicide, assisted or otherwise. Furthermore, the scroll explains that the Wabdi came here to stay because Upsoah, their native planet in the solar system of Hapo, a star in constellation Putz, was on the verge of imploding.

On page 76 of The Kuroynjak, the Wabdi writer refers to Earth as "our home away from home." It is that not fact enough, dear hearts, to convince you that the Wabdi had nothing to do with the Heaven's Gate fiasco. Those poor, deluded souls wanted to escape Earth in a spaceship that supposedly is lurking behind Hale-Bopp. The Wabdi, however, came here to stay. They had already escaped.

By the way, beloved, I'm proud to report that my translation of The Kuroynjak is reliable. The scroll, now in the hands of the Smithsonian Institute, has been examined by linguists from Paris, Moscow, Jerusalem, and Bugusue. Their translations agree substantially with mine. A few minor points of disagreement have to do with a couple of punctuation points and whether or not a certain word is a participle or a gerund.

No, dear hearts, I do not have any information on the "alien activity" that authorities spotted in the videos. I'm sure we will be told in due time. It is not like our authorities to keep information from the public.

There is one interesting item I'll pass along before responding to my mail. I came across it on the WWW (World Wide WabdiNet), and I share it simply because you, my readership, have inquiring minds. It is possible, beloved, that there is a spaceship navigating hither and thither in our solar system. The craft, according to a scientific source whose identity I swore not to reveal, was spotted by the recently refurbished and refined Hubble telescope. The craft was headed due north of Neptune.

And some astronomers, I'm told, think the spaceship is actually Noah's Ark, upgraded from float to float-n-fly status. Another source thinks the "arkcraft" is the same ship-shaped object that a number of witnesses have observed hovering over auditoriums during the annual meetings of the Southern Baptist Convention. Such sightings have been reported every year since the fundamentalist coup that rescued the convention from the evil designs of liberal preachers and professors.

So... we await further word on the "arkcraft." And, while we also await enlightenment regarding the "alien activity" at the site of the mass suicide, let us be diligent in proclaiming that the Wabdi are our friends. They are extra-special extraterrestrials in the fullest sense of the word.

Now... to the mail.

Dear John Norman: My neighbor and I had a yard sale last week and we made over a hundred dollars. My friend says we should give a tenth of that to the Lord. I'm not sure. The Old Bible talks a lot about tithing, but it's a scarce subject in the New Bible. What do you think? (from Ida Bea Elzy, Brodhead)

Dear Ida: Jesus mentioned tithing during a confrontation with the Jewish leaders (Matt. 23:23) noting that it was something they should do and to

Sponsored by Key Club

Art Exhibit at RCHS May 12

The Rockcastle County High School Key Club will sponsor the 1st Annual Rockcastle County Artist Invitational Exhibit in the Rockcastle High School Gym on Monday, May 12, 1997. All artists and craft persons who live and work in Rockcastle County are invited to participate. Registration forms may be clipped from the Mt. Vernon Signal or may be picked up at the Bank of Mt. Vernon, The Citizens Bank of Broadhead or the Citizens Bank Branch, Mt. Vernon. All registration forms must be returned to Mr. Gary D. Tillery at Rockcastle County High School by April 24, 1997.

According to Mr. Tillery, Key Club faculty sponsor, "It's amazing the number of Artists and crafts people who live and work in Rockcastle County. Many of them are known outside of the county but are not recognized here. We think that the Rockcastle Community should know about the talent and the folks behind that talent here at home.

All those who wish to participate should note that all work should be appropriate for multi-age audiences. Rockcastle County High School will not be responsible for lost or damaged items and all Artists are requested to remain with their display throughout the exhibit day, if possible.

"This last request is very important," said Mr. Jim Cox, Rockcastle County High School Assistant Principal. "We want our students to appreciate the arts as more than just aesthetics. Other departments sponsor Career Day and it's appropriate for the Arts to be viewed as a career opportunity. If the Artists are visible School by April 24, 1997.

and available to the students then the Arts become a more authentic experience." In order for all residents of Rockcastle County to recognize and appreciate local artists, the May 12th schedule is as follows:

8:30 a.m. - 10:00 a.m. - Artists set-up in Rockcastle County High School Gym
10:00 a.m. - 3:00 p.m. - Student Viewing
6:00 p.m. - 8:00 p.m. - Public Viewing which they should add the more weighty practices of judgment, mercy, and faith. Other references in the New Testament have to do with the practice of tithing in Old Testament times.

Some interpreters think Jesus' command applies to both Jews and Christians. Others see the tithing as a ceremonial practice that was binding only on Jews. It's a difficult commandment to call. There would be quite a few changes in the way we worship if everything in the Old Testament were binding on Christians. And yet, it is for certain that the Ten Commandments are still in force. Is tithing still in force?

Personally, I'd like the tithing was a required of Jews only. But, while tithing is not demanded of a Christian, I'd think a Christian would at least want to give as much as people of the Old Testament gave. In fact, I side with those who say the tithing is only a beginning point for the Christian giving. Why don't you and your friend give half of your yard sale profits to the Lord? Speaking of yard sales, Iida, my wife and seven other feminine souls are having one this coming weekend in our yard here at Nod's Little Acre in Wadd. Why don't you drop by? We can talk some about tithing - and about why I think you ought not refer to the Old Testament as the "Old Bible." (See Nancy's ad in the classified section for the particulars.) Dear John Norman: Last summer I took my vacation time from work to attend the annual meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention. I had a glorious time. When I returned to work and told my boss how I'd spent my time, he said, "Hells-bells! I'd rather spend a week in hell than go to that charade."

His statement really hurt me. He continues to rib me about it. I'd like to tell him off, but I might lose my job. What do you think I should do? (from Ernestina Sallouffield, Cincinnati)

Dear Ernestina: Have you thought about food poisoning? I say that in light of a commandment in the inter-testamental Book of Hazzariah: "Thou shalt not kill, except for you heretic."

Then again, you might just pray for him and be content with the good time you had at the convention.

But your boss' statement put me to pondering. Is there reason for preferring hell to a SBC annual meeting? Think about it. For one thing if you were in hell, you'd know already that the music sucks. There would be no lingering odor of hair spray, and people wouldn't all look like they just came from an all-you-can-eat-pig-out-buffet.

People in hell don't vote on anything, and there would be no offerings. And there might just be some fun conversations with Jehovah's Witnesses and Church of Christ Scientists who can't believe they are there. There might be some fun conversations with tele-evangelists and Baptists who can't believe they are there!

Oops! It's 9:15 p.m., beloved. The Great Cat Fight is about to commence in the RCA Dome at Indy. Got' Big Blue! Trounce Zoni! I'll get to a couple of other letters after the game, dear hearts.

(11:40 p.m.) The game is over. The letters will have to wait. Something like hell just settled on my ole Kentucky home. And a line from the "Old Bible" comes to mind: "How art the mighty fallen!"

Local student receives Linsalata-Galietti Endowed Memorial Scholarship

Christiane Kelly, daughter of Burt and Phyllis Kelly, Fort Smith, Arkansas and granddaughter of Eula King of Rockcastle County, has again been selected as the recipient of the Linsalata-Galietti Endowed Memorial Scholarship at Cumberland College. Christiane also received this scholarship during her freshman and sophomore years at Cumberland.

The Linsalata-Galietti Endowed Memorial Scholarship Fund was established at Cumberland College to recognize scholastic and character excellence of students majoring in astronomy, English, history, philosophy, law, literature, mathematics or religion.

Christiane Kelly

Above, Amy Ford, daughter of Sam and Judy Ford, and below, Dee Reams, daughter of Roger and Norma Reams, both of Mt. Vernon, recently completed a ten-week Leadership Seminar at Cumberland College. The students were presented with a certificate by Dr. Michael Colegrove, Vice-President for Student Affairs, for successfully completing the class. The seminar is provided as part of a four-year leadership project required of all students at Cumberland, designed to assist student leaders to a better understanding of how leadership is effectively exercised.

Don't Let Peer Pressure Put Your Teen At Risk of Drug Use

The single best predictor of whether a teen will use drugs is whether the teen's friends use drugs, experts say.

So the key to lowering your child's risk or using drugs is to minimize his/her exposure to drug-using peers. Here are five ways to do this:

1. Know your teen's friends.
2. Meet their parents.
3. Know where your teen is. Make sure there is adult supervision.
4. Discuss the qualities you value in your friends.
5. Encourage your teen to develop positive relationships.

You are, as parents, invited to come by the high school at any time. Parents make the difference.

Dr. Robert W. Fields to speak at First Baptist Church April 13

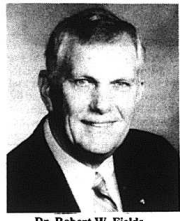

Dr. Robert W. Fields, a native of Rockcastle County and a former member of the First Baptist Church, will be guest speaker at First Baptist Church in Mt. Vernon on April 13 at 7:00 p.m.

Fields is a counselor with Cornerstone Christian Counseling and co-founder and co-director of ClearRok Retreat. He and his wife, Edwinna, were Southern Baptist missionaries in Israel from 1962 to 1972, where he was a camp and conference director, principal of Baptist Village Boarding High School, and manager of the Baptist Book Store. The Fields were also involved in student work in Jerusalem.

A graduate of Georgetown College, Fields holds the Master of Divinity in Theology from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary of Louisville and a Doctor of Ministry/Counseling in Marriage and Family from Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. In addition to his administrative and counseling responsibilities with Cornerstone Christian Counseling, Fields has led seminars on Interpersonal Relations in The Work Place, Conflict Management, Co-dependency and How it Affects Relationships, Strategy Planning and Stress Management.

The Fields are parents of three grown children. A daughter, Tamira is married to Dr. Joe Korn, a former Rockcastle County veterinarian. They now serve as Southern Baptist missionaries in Togo, West Africa. The church cordially invites the public to attend this meeting.

Dr. Robert W. Fields

Rockcastle Association of Missionary Baptist Church Semi-Annual meeting April 4

Bro. Rick Reynolds, pastor for the Poplar Grove Baptist Church and Moderator of the Rockcastle Baptist Association, has announced that the Brothead Baptist Church will host the Semi-Annual Meeting of the Rockcastle Association of Missionary Baptist Churches on Friday evening, April 4, 1997, at 7:00 p.m. The Messengers will hear the Nominating Committee report, elect Officers and Committee Members for the 1997-98 Church year, receive contributions toward the purchase of property for an Associational Building, and handle other business and reports.

Special guests at the meeting will be Charles and Carrie Hedrick. Bro. Hedrick, will be the keynote speaker. He is a former pastor of First Baptist Church in Mt. Vernon. Presently he is president of the Baptist Theological Seminary in Kaduna, Nigeria, serving with our Foreign Mission Board.

All Messengers and other members of our 22 Churches are urged to be present on Thursday, April 4th at 7:00 p.m. Also the church at large is invited to share in the blessing of Christian fellowship in this meeting.

RCMS students participate in KYA

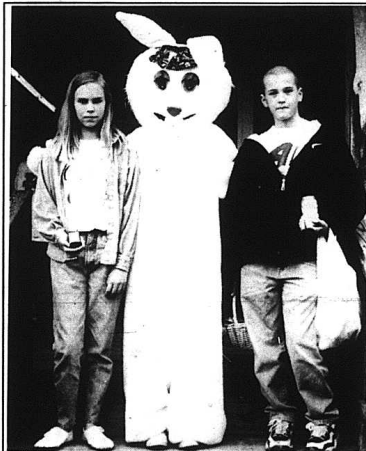

Mindy Bullock was recognized for her outstanding lobbying efforts by receiving the one "Outstanding Lobbyist" award presented annually at KYA. Josh Hale received one of only 10 "Outstanding Delegate" awards. Over 900 student delegates were eligible to receive these awards.

Several RCMS students served as members of the Kentucky Youth Assembly Governor's Cabinet. They are: Joseph Lambert, Clerk of the Senate; Mindy Bullock, Lobbyist; Chelsen Stratton, Executive Assistant to the Governor; Cathie Midkiff, Lobbyist; Cheyenne Carmack, Press Corps; and Tasha Vanzant, Chief Page.

Courtney Alexander and Brian Reynolds were elected to state offices at this year's Kentucky Youth Assembly. Both students were presented with engraved gavels which they will use as the 1997-98 Deputy Speaker of the House and Attorney General, respectively.

By Cheyenne Carmack

"Leaders are dreamers. They are not born, but are made. You are leaders today who will create the future." With those words of inspiration, Mr. Michael Haynes, Executive Director of the Kentucky Youth Assembly in Louisville. For the third year, RCMS students participated in the 3-day mock legislative and Model Supreme Court program. Once again, our students excelled.

Seventy-nine RCMS students took part at KYA as delegates. There were over 850 students in all at the East Regional Kentucky Youth Assembly. Several of our students served in specialty roles. Fourteen students authored legislation which they debated before the Senate and House of Representatives. Of the seven bills which RCMS took to Frankfort, five were passed and signed by the Youth Governor, Hunter Harper. Bill authors from RCMS were: Aaron Anderkin and Austin Miller, Jeremy Rowe and Clay Smith; Josh Hale and Courtney Alexander; Andrew Hammond and Blake Arnold; Rachelle Hammond and Ashley Coffey; Stephen Hopkins and Amber Falin; Gretchen Denney and Tiffany Daugherty. Serving the Assembly as lobbyists were Mindy Bullock and Cathie Midkiff. Chelsen Stratton fulfilled her duties as a member of the Governor's cabinet while Tasha Vanzant worked as a page. As a member of the Press Corps, I was assigned to cover and report on the Model Supreme Court, as well as prepare a news release for our local newspaper, Katy Powell and Melinda Coffey were our Youth Advocates, presenting an actual case before the Supreme Court.

One of the highlights at KYA each year is the election of a new Youth Governor and cabinet. For the first time, RCMS had two students who sought state offices. Courtney Alexander ran for Speaker of the House and Brian Reynolds for Attorney General. "Count on Court" and "Bring on Brian" were their selected campaign slogans. Both students presented campaign speeches before the General Assembly on Friday night during the Primary election. Having survived the run-offs, they again spoke to the Assembly during the Governor's Banquet on Saturday prior to the final voting. RCMS IS HONORED TO HAVE TWO STATE OFFICERS FOR THE 1997 KENTUCKY YOUTH ASSEMBLY. Brian Reynolds, the 1997 Attorney General and Courtney Alexander, the 1997 Deputy Speaker of the House. All the candidates for state office were reminded, "You are not here to win things; you are here to be committed to doing your best." Brian and Courtney did their best and their efforts were duly rewarded.

Other honors bestowed upon RCMS students went to Josh Hale, who received the Litchfield Memorial Award as one of only ten Outstanding Delegates. Mindy Bullock was chosen as the one Outstanding Lobbyist for her superb job in working for RCMS legislation. Both of these students were nominated by advisors from the other participating schools, the KYA staff and KYA officers.

An interesting fact about the Kentucky Youth Assembly is that we have over 400 laws currently in Kentucky that originated in Junior and Senior KYA. For me, this program is one in our school that definitely has a positive influence on the lives of students. It is a model for how government should be run. By my own personal participation in the Y-Club and Challenge program at RCMS, I have learned that by "Believing in yourself, you believe in the future."

Local Jr. Pro teams travel to Nationals

Both of the Rockcastle County Jr. Pro teams that competed in the National Jr. Pro Tournament in Knoxville, TN last weekend gave very good accountings of themselves and Rockcastle County. The JV All-Star team which won the Kentucky State Championship managed to claim one win before being beaten out of the Double Elimination style tourney. The Training League All-Star team, which qualified as an AI-Large entry after finishing 2nd in the State, was not able to claim a win at the Nationals, but came as close as possible without doing so. Both teams played extremely hard and demonstrated good sportsmanship. Rockcastle County has good reason to be very proud of both teams and their coaches. Below is a summary of how each team fared in their games at the Nationals.

JV All-Stars

Beaver Creek, Ohio 60

Rockcastle JV's 15

Rockcastle never had really much of a chance in this one as they had the misfortune of running into a buzz saw when they faced the defending National Champions in the first round. Beaver Creek came out like a true defending National Champion, totally unfazed at playing in the 15,000 seat Stokley Arena, and attacked a visibly tight and nervous Rockcastle team from the opening tip. Beaver Creek, State Champions of Ohio, just overwhelmed Rockcastle as they cruised to an easy first round win on the way to successfully defending their title. For Rockcastle: Devin Taylor led the way with 8 points, while Aaron Cash added 3 points. No other JV's scored.

Rockcastle JV's 43

Powell County, KY 28

After falling out of the winner's bracket the JV's, by bad luck of the bracket, had to face the team they beat for the KY State Championship. The Rockcastle coaching staff was concerned going into this one as they feared that it would be tough to beat the strong Powell County team again. However, the Rockcastle players came out fired up and ready to make amends for their first round loss. Powell County was just as determined to claim revenge though and a dog fight was on. Powell led Rockcastle by 2 at the break after a see-saw first half. However, Rockcastle used a vicious full court press to take the bigger, but slower Powell County team out of it in the second half by outscoring Powell 18-3 in the third quarter behind a team 18 steals. For Rockcastle: Devin Taylor led the way with 13 points and 8 steals in a superb performance. Aaron Cash fired in 9 points and pulled down 4 rebounds; Tim McIntosh shot in 6 points and pulled down 4 boards; Steven Coffey and Blake Roberts had 4 points each; Justin Rogers, Josh Sowder and Matthew Silcox all finished with 2 points and 3 rebounds each; Alex Martin scored 1 point and had 2 rebounds; Max Saylor, Josh Bray and Jarrad Burdette did not score, but hustled and played good defense.

Doraville, GA 43

Rockcastle JV's 41

Rockcastle faced off in their next game against a strong Doraville team that won the Georgia State Championship. This one was a barn burner that went all the way to the final horn until it was finished. Rockcastle took a 4 point lead after the end of the 1st quarter, but trailed by 1 at the half. In the second half, Rockcastle fell down by 7 by the end of the 3rd quarter as the much quicker Doraville team used their press to their advantage. Rockcastle turned the tables on Doraville in the 4th quarter though by using their own full court press to good advantage and managed to tie the game at 41 with about 13 seconds left. Doraville came down and missed on their attempt to tie and Rockcastle managed to get the ball headed back toward their end for a possible win as the closing seconds warmed off the clock. Destiny knocked Rockcastle in the stomach though as Doraville managed to steal the ball and sink a shot at the buzzer for the "W". For Rockcastle: Devin Taylor and Aaron Cash led the way with 18 points apiece. Steven Coffey added 3 points; and Alex Martin and Justin Rogers added 1 point each.

Training League All-Stars

Knoxville, TN 54

Rockcastle Training 22

The score of this game is extremely deceptive. Rockcastle trailed by one at the end of the 1st quarter, and although they were down by 10 at the half at the end of the 3rd quarter Rockcastle trailed by just 6. Knowville, however, just literally exploded in the 4th quarter by outscoring Rockcastle 28-2. A lid just seemed to appear on the hoop for Rockcastle and the hometown Knoxville team, playing in front of a large and supportive crowd in the same facility where they won the Tennessee State Championship, just kept pressing on towards the victory. Rockcastle had nothing to be ashamed of in this one though as they fought, scrapped and never quit; they accounted themselves well. For Rockcastle: Colby Brown led the way with 11 points and solid all-around play; Kyle Mullins popped in 4 points and provided good point play; Derreck Hurst scored 3 points and provided nice "D"; big men Brandon Griffin and Greg Watson each finished with 2 points and several rebounds each; Ricky Sandusy, Ronny Lee McClure, Jacob Taylor, Weston Riddle, Nick Williams, Phillip Boring and Tim Simpson all played and hustled for rebounds, steals and good defense.

Waverly, MI 51

Rockcastle Training 47

This was a dandy of a game to watch as Rockcastle went blow for blow all the way to the final buzzer against the Michigan State Champions. Rockcastle led by one at the end of the first quarter, trailed by one at the half, and the game was tied at the end of the 3rd quarter. Despite being smaller than the Waverly team, Rockcastle managed to outpace and outshout them for an advantage on the boards. Both teams shot the ball very well and the lead was exchanged numerous times. In the closing minute though, Waverly was able to get hold of a four point advantage that they managed to hang on to for the win. For Rockcastle: Derreck Hurst fired in 18 points and had several assists and steals; Kyle Mullins again led from the point with 13 points and a number of assists; Colby Brown had 9 points and some steals; Brandon Griffin had 3 points, while Jacob Taylor and Greg Watson each finished with 2 points, and all three of them combined for numerous rebounds; Ricky Sandusy, Ronny Lee McClure, Weston Riddle, Nick Williams, Phillip Boring and Tim Simpson, all contributed super defensive efforts and picked up some assists and steals as well.

LaVerne and Roy Dale Winstead of Appliance Service Center in Mt. Vernon recently attended the Key America Electronics and Major Appliance Regional Convention in Fort Mitchell, near Cincinnati.

The convention, sponsored for the members of Key America Buying Group, is held semi-annually to help local independent electronics and appliance dealers stay ahead of the ever-changing electronics and appliance industry.

Jerry Minnery, new director of merchandising for Key America of Southern Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana, was introduced to those attending the convention. Minnery, who has a strong background in the consumer appliance and electronics industry, spoke to the dealers about ways to improve their communication with their customers. He discussed how dealers can better communicate, that they provide customers with quality products, have knowledgeable staff members and offer the convenience of hometown shopping.

Those attending the convention also met with representatives of major manufacturing companies and looked at their new products. Through the combined buying power of its 3500 members, the Key America Buying Group gives independent dealers the ability to offer the best products in the industry from these manufacturers at very competitive prices. A truckload of appliances just arrived at Appliance Service Center. Now is the time to replace your old appliances at a really good buy.

MEDICAL MATTERS

Occupational Therapy: Helping Others Live Independently

Occupational therapists are trained professionals who help people affected by disease or illness regain their independence and manage the tasks of their everyday lives.

Simple tasks, such as buttoning a shirt, can be nearly impossible to those who have suffered a stroke or other debilitating illnesses. Occupational therapists help patients by evaluating their skills and teaching them to use those skills to perform everyday tasks, working in either an inpatient or outpatient setting.

"We are trained to help patients lead active, productive lives," said Carla Baker, an occupational therapist at Rockcastle. "We look at each patient's skills and devise ways for them to use those skills to care for themselves and live independently."

Baker says she continues to learn more about her field every day.

"Occupational therapy is evolving continually," said Baker. "We often take what we learn from one patient and apply it to another. There is nothing cut and dried about what we do. We have to treat each patient as an individual."

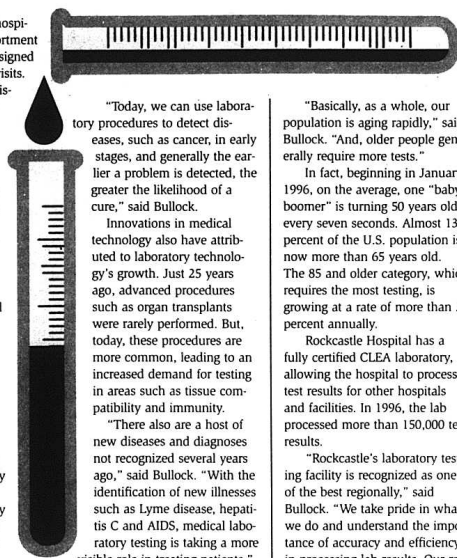

NATIONAL LABORATORY WEEK

April 13-19

When patients enter a hospital, they meet an assortment of medical professionals assigned to help them during their visits. A doctor. A nurse. An admissions officer. At least once during their stay, patients meet these valued members of their medical team. But, there are other members, like medical laboratory professionals, who function behind the scenes, playing an equally important role in diagnosing and treating patients.

Currently, there are more than 250,000 medical lab professionals in the United States. In 1995, those professionals performed more than 10 billion tests, helping determine medical diagnoses and savings thousands of lives.

Laboratory technology is becoming an increasingly vital part of treating patients. According to Larry Bullock, director of laboratory services at Rockcastle Hospital and Respiratory Care Center, there are a number of reasons that have led to this boom.

"Today, we can use laboratory procedures to detect diseases, such as cancer, in early stages, and generally the earlier a problem is detected, the greater the likelihood of a cure," said Bullock.

Innovations in medical technology also have attributed to laboratory technology's growth. Just 25 years ago, advanced procedures such as organ transplants were rarely performed. But, today, these procedures are more common, leading to an increased demand for testing in areas such as tissue compatibility and immunity.

"There also are a host of new diseases and diagnoses not recognized several years ago," said Bullock. "With the identification of new illnesses such as Lyme disease, hepatitis C and AIDS, medical laboratory testing is taking a more visible role in treating patients."

Bullock also notes that changing populations have an impact on laboratory testing.

"Basically, as a whole, our population is aging rapidly," said Bullock. "And, older people generally require more tests."

In fact, beginning in January 1996, on the average, one "baby boomer" is turning 50 years old every seven seconds. Almost 13 percent of the U.S. population is now more than 65 years old. The 85 and older category, which requires the most testing, is growing at a rate of more than 3 percent annually.

Rockcastle Hospital has a fully certified CLEA laboratory, allowing the hospital to process test results for other hospitals and facilities. In 1996, the lab processed more than 150,000 test results.

"Rockcastle's laboratory testing facility is recognized as one of the best regionally," said Bullock. "We take pride in what we do and understand the importance of accuracy and efficiency in processing lab results. Our role may be behind the scenes, but it is definitely front and center in helping patients."

CONFLICT RESOLUTION TIPS

For many families, loving and caring relationships come naturally. But for others, conflict is a way of life. During April, which is National Child Abuse Prevention Month, the Kentucky Council on Child Abuse offers these suggestions for families dealing with conflict.

1. Stop and think. Give yourself some time to think clearly about the situation and avoid making hasty comments or decisions.
2. Listen to others when they are talking and try to understand their point of view.
3. Communicate by saying exactly what you mean in a clear way.
4. Move away fast if someone has a weapon, or has been using alcohol or other drugs. Find another time to deal with that person when he or she is more rational.
5. Avoid people who threaten or menace you in any way. Friends like that are not friends at all.
7. Remember, belonging to a group is fun, but be yourself. Don't give in to peer pressure.
8. Walk away when you are too angry to be reasonable. Give yourself time to cool down and then try talking.
9. Ask a friend or trusted adult to help solve the problem.
10. Respect yourself and others, too.

CAREERS AS A MEDICAL LABORATORY PROFESSIONAL

In today's medical laboratory, revolutionary changes in medicine and technology have increased the demand for well-trained medical laboratory professionals. The role of these professionals is similar to that of detectives. They look at clues, usually taken from blood or tissue samples and determine the presence of disease.

According to the American Association of Clinical Pathologists, working in a medical laboratory creates an unlimited career path. "It is amazing how many clinical pathologists begin their careers as technicians," said Suzanne Stock, spokeswoman for the association. "The experience they gain in the lab lends itself to learning more and advancing their careers."

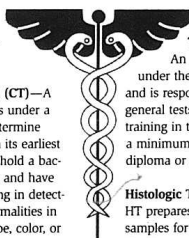

Here is a sampling of some of the roles shared by medical laboratory professionals:

Pathologist—A pathologist is a physician who reads and interprets the results of laboratory tests or examines tissues under a microscope to diagnose and monitor disease. They are licensed medical doctors who are experts in diagnosing diseases such as cancer and diabetes. To become a pathologist, physicians must complete five years of advanced medical training in pathology.

Medical Technologist (MT)—An MT is responsible for performing a full range of laboratory tests, confirming the accuracy of test results, and reporting laboratory findings to the pathologist and other physicians. MTs, who must have at minimum a bachelor's degree, usually work in five major areas of the laboratories: blood banking, chemistry, hematology, immunology and microbiology.

Cytotechnologist (CT)—A CT examines cells under a microscope to determine signs of cancer in its earliest stages. CTs must hold a baccalaureate degree and have specialized training in detecting minute abnormalities in tissue or cell shape, color, or size.

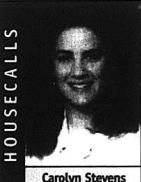

Medical Laboratory Technician (MLT)

—An MLT works directly under the supervision of an MT and is responsible for performing general tests. MLTs have special training in this area, in addition to a minimum of a high school diploma or an associate degree.

Histologic Technician (HT)—An HT prepares body tissues and samples for microscopic examination by a pathologist. These highly skilled professionals freeze, cut, mount and stain tissue, often while the patient is in surgery, playing a major role in the diagnosis of cancer. Generally, this job requires an associate degree with specialized training or training within a special program sponsored by a facility.

Plebotomy Technician (PBT)—PBTs, sometimes referred to as phlebotomists, collect blood samples from patients to be used in laboratory tests to detect the presence of disease and monitor treatment. Generally, phlebotomists are required to have at least a high school degree and nine to 18 months of training through a specialty program.

Dear Editor:
 Last Saturday I took my child to the Easter Egg Hunt in Renfro Valley and for some reason they started the hunt early and my child and many others were not allowed to hunt eggs. As a matter of fact when we arrived at 11 a.m. the hunt was already over.
 This certainly was a let down to all of the children who were looking forward to a fulfilled Saturday morning.
 Members of our family were involved in a terrible traffic accident the weekend before and we rearranged everything so our children could attend. Better planning should take place in the future.

Dear Editor:
 Did Bill Clinton sell the presidency of the United States to Communist China? The biggest scandal in the history of the United States is now unfolding. It is a scandal that this nation has ever seen.
 Nothing less than the fact that the evidence is now very strong that Bill Clinton may have sold out the Chinese government.
 The evidence is overwhelming that Clinton has sold out - but there are many other problems most Americans know nothing about.
 Many of Clinton's closest friends and business partners are either in prison, or on their way to prison. Yet Clinton remains unscathed because the liberal news media has refused to do its job.
 President Clinton appointed a man named John Huang to a highly sensitive top position in the U.S. Department of Commerce with responsibility of overseeing overseas trade policy for the United States.
 Prior to taking his post at Commerce,

Huang had been a senior executive with the Lippo Group -- $12 billion Indonesian financial conglomerate owned and run by the billionaire Moestopo Risydy. Lippo gave Huang a $780,000 bonus when he left Lippo for his job at Commerce.
 In January 1993, also prior to applying for his Commerce Department position, John Huang and Lippo colleague James Risdya gave a joint $100,000 contribution to the Clinton inaugural fund, and they began a series of Oval Office visits with the President.
 Right around the time of Bill Clinton's election to the Presidency in 1992, the Lippo Group formed an extensive and powerful business partnership with China Resources Holding Company, which is owned and operated by China's communist government and staffed by Chinese military intelligence officials.
 Huang then took a job as senior fundraiser at the Democratic National Committee. Huang raised $5 million for the Clinton-Gore campaign, including a $450,000 contribution to the DNC from a mysterious Indonesian couple. The Lippo Group also gave $475,000 to the DNC and its candidates.
 Since 1989, John Huang and his wife have donated about $280,000 to Democratic politicians.
 Congress is now looking into a possible $250,000 payment from the Lippo Group to Web Hubbell (Clinton's former Deputy Attorney General and convicted felon who served time in prison) - whether this alleged payment was designed to prevent Hubbell from implicating the Clintons in criminal wrongdoing.
 Huang was given extraordinary access to the Oval Office. Telephone records reveal that Huang phoned the Lippo Group's offices in Los Angeles at least 70 times while in his post at Commerce. He also visited the White House 90 times, met President Clinton 15 times, traveled to Taiwan three times, and was receiving almost weekly intelligence briefings from the CIA.
 And now the big question is: What did John Huang, the Lippo Group and their Communist Chinese government business partners get in return for all the money they funneled to the Clintons and their political allies?

 Well, for one thing, we know that Bill Clinton did an amazing flip-flop when he agreed to maintain Communist China as Most Favored Nation Trading Status, worth billions of dollars to China - despite continuing gross human rights abuses in China!
 We also know that the Clinton Administration ignored human rights abuses and granted trade concessions to Indonesia - worth hundreds of millions of dollars to large Indonesian financial interests... such as the Lippo Group.
 What else did the Clinton Administration give Red China and Indonesia in exchange for campaign contributions?
 So far Clinton's Attorney General, Janet Reno, has refused to name an Independent Counsel to investigate this scandal... even though it is a criminal offense for an employee of the U.S. government to knowingly give a foreign government access to America's sensitive national security secrets.
 Congress should not wait for Reno to appoint an Independent Counsel. Instead, Congress should appoint its own Independent Counsel or Special Prosecutor to begin an aggressive investigation.
 Other questions that demand answers include:
 Did John Huang use his position at the Commerce Department to reward or benefit the Lippo Group and its business partner, the Communist Chinese government?
 Why was John Huang given a "top secret" security clearance by the U.S. government without a proper FBI background check?
 Was the Communist Chinese government able to gain access to sensitive U.S. national security information through John Huang?
 Did Bill Clinton (or his top aides) know about John Huang's close ties with the Communist Chinese government?
 Congress has already announced that it will begin hearings on the "China-Indagate" scandal... that's a good start. But we need much more than just hearings. We need a full fledged investigation conducted by a skilled Special Prosecutor.
 Sincerely yours,
 William H. Wren

"Court meeting"
 and Amos Burdette abstained and Magistrate Jack Bradley voted no. According to state law, abstaining votes are counted with the majority.
 "You are going to have a lot of people mad when they find out their dumpsters have to be taken out," Bradley said.
 Amos Burdette said that United Waste Systems may also try to raise the price Boe pays to dump at the Lily landfill because of the court's action.
 The court did renew the permit of Owen Mink with the stipulation that he stop parking loaded garbage trucks on the roadside in Renfro Valley and leaving them sit for two to three days at a time.
 The court also amended their garbage hauler application to require that applicants show proof of worker's compensation insurance.
 The court designated April as Spring Clean-up month in Rockcastle County.
 The County Judge also told the court that the county had received $1,300 from Falcon Cable T.V. since he informed them they would pay the county's franchise fee or their privilege license would be revoked.
 Carlottis said a Falcon Representative had told him that Falcon was sending the fee of every customer $80,000 of unpaid medical bills while incarcerated in the county lock-up.

 The Judge said he had asked one of Carmichael's assistants to speed up the process because the county could not afford to hold so many prisoners waiting to be tried. Carlottis said his request must have fallen on deaf ears.
 As of Thursday, 41 prisoners were being held in the county jail, most of whom are awaiting court proceedings in Circuit Court.
 Mullins' trial date is set for next Wednesday, April 9.

with a Mt. Vernon address to the city, even if they lived in the city or not.
 Carlottis told the court he expected more money once Falcon had determined where all of their customers located.
 Magistrate McKinney told Carlottis he should also make sure that other Cable companies in the county, namely Wilcop and Lewis, pay their fair share of the franchise fee.
 "It is not fair for one to pay and the rest not pay," McKinney said.
 "We need to make sure they pay or send them a letter that they will revoke their license too," he said.

"It is Written"

"Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cause?" The answer to this question to many today would be yes. Many people divorce for various reasons, can't (actually won't) get along, in-law problems, wife too fat, he hunts too much, she burned the toast, etc. This question was asked to Jesus in Matt. 19:3, he answers in vs. 4-6, showing from the creation of Adam and Eve, that God intended one man and one woman to be married for life. "And he answered and said unto them, Have ye not read, that he which made them at the beginning made them male and female. And said, For this cause shall a man leave father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife: and they twain shall be one flesh. Wherefore they are no more twain, but one flesh. What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder." Notice they should cleave together, be one flesh, be joined or yoke together, and not let man cause divorce. They ask why Moses suffered (allowed) or permitted divorce, verse 7. He said it was because of the hardness of your hearts he permitted it, verse 8. But in verse 9 Jesus said, "And I say unto you, Whosoever shall put away his wife, except it be for fornication, and shall marry another, committeth adultery: and whoso marrieth her which is put away doth commit adultery." Thus Jesus sets forth his rule on the matter: to divorce and remarry is adultery, except in the case of fornication, which is sexual unfaithfulness of one spouse. I am fearful many people are living in adulterous marriages, because they divorced over every reason but the one exception allowed by Jesus. The only way to gain God's forgiveness is to REPENT; Acts 17:30, Acts 2:38, Acts 8:22. Jesus set forth the law on divorce and remarriage, not me or anyone else. He is our Lawgiver. James 4:12. Young people need to understand that marriage is for life "Til death do us part." Before you say "I do" be committed that this is a lifetime agreement. Call us if we can help in these matters.

Grandparents Raising Grandchildren

By: Hazel Jackson County Extension Agent
for Home Economics

The number of grandparents raising their grandchildren has increased dramatically in recent years. Leaders of national support groups for grandparents raising grandchildren estimate that their numbers exceed 7 million. Some of these grandparents have full custody of their grandchildren while others parent on a more restricted basis.

Of grandparent caregivers, 60% are grandmothers and 40% are grandfathers; 75% are married; and more than 75% are between 45 and 64 years of age. According to the U.S. Bureau of the Census, 12% of African-American youth, 6% of Hispanic children and 3.6% of white youth are raised by grandparents.

Raising grandchildren often brings unexpected and long-lasting lifestyle changes. It's not an easy job, but along with the challenges come rewards. The following is a survival guide for grandparents raising grandchildren. Many of these suggestions were adapted from Sylvie deTolledo and Deborah Brown's book, "Grandparents as Parents".

- Prioritize; handle important things first.
- Take one thing at a time. Give your full attention to what you are doing.
- Make life easy. You don't have to have a "perfect home" or cook a meal every night. Be creative in keeping your home responsibilities simple and enjoyable.

- Accept and listen to feelings. Both you and your grandchildren are likely to experience a roller coaster of feelings. Give yourself and your grandchild an extra measure of understanding. Allow feelings, listen to them, learn from them.

- Set limits with your grandchildren. It's good training for them and will help bring a healthy measure of structure and order to your life.

- Reach out to help. Look for people support, including good friends and understanding family members. Don't hesitate to ask for advice and assistance.

- Let yourself off the hook. Stop blaming yourself for your child's circumstances. Your adult child is responsible for the choices he or she has made.

- Feed yourself spiritually. Take time to nurture your spiritual life in whatever way works best for you.

- Plan family fun time. Build in times of relaxation and fun for you and your loved ones.

- Make time for you. As a full-time grandparent, you'll feel better when you regularly take time to nurture yourself.

- Keep a light heart. A healthy sense of humor eases tensions, nourishes family relations, and promotes physical well-being.

with either method, the weed must be destroyed before it sets seed. Mowing at or after bloom may mean that the seeds produced will be scattered to a larger area.

Chemical control is the best means in eliminating seed production. The Department of Agriculture and local Extension Service will be conducting 5-acre Demonstrations on April 10th. If you have pasture or hay fields infested with nodding thistle and would like to participate, call Tom Mills at 256-2403. The Department of Agriculture supplies the chemical and sprayer. The farmer supplies the water and applies the chemical with his farm tractor.

Nodding Thistle
Robbing Farmers of Pasture Land

A controllable weed is robbing Kentucky farmers of pasture production. The weed, called nodding thistle, can be controlled by attacking them at the right time. The weed produces thousands of seeds each year, capable of producing thousands of new plants.

The key to controlling the weed is to take measures to control it before it sets seed, which is usually in late May and early June. Once seed has set, it is difficult to control the spread of the seed and farmers will need to wait until fall or next spring to obtain control of even more weeds.

The nodding thistle emerges as a rosette which is a circular cluster of leaves with the growing point close to the ground. The dark green rosette is 6 to 8 inches in diameter. Rosettes appearing in the spring can be sprayed and killed. Herbicides such as 2,4-D and Banvel are more effective when the rosette is small and actively growing. They can be sprayed in the spring as long as daytime temperatures are above 50 degrees. Timing is critical for good control. The weed must be attacked when it is small if the sprays are to be most effective. This means late April will be the last chance for farmers to get an effective chemical control this spring.

If spraying is delayed until the plant is older, it can be controlled by either mowing the plants or hoeing it out by hand. However,

God Turns Up In The Strangest Places

I found God in a most unusual place this week: on the cover of TV Guide. According to this magazine, God does not show up on television nearly as often as he does in real life. America is one of the most religious countries in the world (along with Ireland, Poland and India), but while 95% of Americans say they believe in God, producers and directors of prime time TV seem to shy away from the subject of religion.

God is getting more coverage on TV these days. "Homicide," the best show on television, recently featured two of the principal characters, one Jewish and the other Catholic, as they struggled with their relationships to God. Obviously, shows such as "Touched By An Angel," are looking at the subject of faith more closely. Even in the movies the recent hit "Michael" is another example of God getting more attention.

I found God somewhere else this week: on the covers of Newsweek and U.S. News and World Report. The latter looked at beliefs about heaven and at NDEs (Near Death Experiences) for what these might say about the afterlife.

God seems to be all over the news these days. The Line Reader, fascinating little magazine that goes un-noticed most of the time, recently included an article that looked at the effect belief in God has on healing and health. David Larson, the author of the article, did research on people in one Georgia county and found that "smokers who went to church regularly were four times less likely to have high blood pressure than those who didn't, and had about the same blood pressure as a nonchurchgoing nonsmoker."

Larson does not equate church attendance with being spiritual. He agrees with Garrison Keillor who says that, "If you think going to church makes you a Christian, you probably think sitting in a garage will make you a car." What matters is not the external show of faith but the internal spirituality of the person. Larson also concludes that praying for God's will be done rather than for specific requests seem more conducive to health.

Larson criticizes those doctors who ignore the fact of belief in God in the lives of their patients. According to his research, 60 percent of the population would like to discuss spiritual issues with their doctors, and forty percent would like their doctors to pray with them.

Unfortunately some counselors, psychologists and psychiatrists see personal spirituality as a distraction at best, or at worst as a sign of emotional disturbance. Some counselors were taught in training never to talk with their clients about God. Thankfully, this is changing. These days those who do counseling are becoming much more open to discussing matters of religion and faith with their clients, recognizing that faith can be an important part of the healing process.

A glance at the bestseller aisle in a bookstore will turn up even more books about spiritual matters. Conversations With God is currently one of the top ten bestselling books in the country and authors such as Deepak Chopra and Bernie Siegel have been writing bestsellers on spiritual topics for the past several years.

Health care and mental health professionals have recognized for some time that the mental, emotional and physical facets of our lives are interconnected. We are now being reminded that there is another important part of our lives, the spiritual dimension, which also cannot be ignored.
