Female Alcoholism Is a Hidden Problem
"My wife has a problem," Sam reported to me in his first counseling

Rick and Zella Mullins of Richmond announce the birth of their son, Samuel Burgess Mullins, born March 5, 1998 at Patric A. Clay Hospital in Richmond. He weighed 8 lbs. 7 ozs. and was 20 3/4 inches long. His paternal grandparents are Burgess and Betty Mullins of Mt. Vernon, maternal grandparents are Cleo Burgess of Coal Run and Edward Burgess of Hurricane Creek. His paternal great grandmother is Vinna Spoonmore of Brodhead.

session, "but she doesn't see it that way. I think she is an alcoholic, but she says she just likes the taste of liquor. She refuses to get help and no one would ever suspect she has a problem. What can I do?" (All characters are fictitious.)

Female alcoholism is often a hidden problem. A woman who drinks alone at home may be able to hide her alcoholism for years. This fact leads some to believe that alcoholism among women is rare. Nothing could be further from the truth. Former

First Lady Betty Ford went public with her problems with alcohol and other drugs twenty years ago. She recently helped to introduce a new study on "Substance Abuse And The American Woman." Here are some of the conclusions of that study (published in U.S. News and World Report).

1. One out of five women abuses alcohol or drugs some point in her life (compared with one out of three men).
2. Almost seventy percent of women in drug treatment programs were sexually abused as children.
3. Female alcoholics "get drunk faster, become addicted sooner and develop related diseases earlier than men."
4. Women most likely that drink heavily are those with incomes above $75,000 and those with incomes below $15,000.

5. Working women are more likely than homemakers to abuse alcohol.
6. Today's teenage girls are fifteen times more likely to begin using illegal drugs than were their mothers.
7. Teenage girls who drink more than five times a month are five times more likely to have sex than those who do not drink.

8. "Today's small and female teens are equally likely to smoke, drink and try illicit drugs." There is no gender gap.

9. Only fourteen percent of women who need treatment get it. Sam and his in-laws decided to take the risky step of confronting Jean about her problem. With the help of a counselor they prepared for this carefully over the course of several months. Finally they were ready.

"It worked," Sam reported one day. "Jean agreed to go into a treatment center. I know this won't solve everything but at least it is a beginning."

There is help available for abusers of alcohol and other drugs. Betty Ford started her own rehabilitation center and there are many others centers, some of which are nearby.

If the alcoholic refuses to get help, then the family should. Al-Anon, Al-A-Ten and private counselors can provide that help for the families of alcoholics.

Board sets forum to discuss safety

Students shooting students, students assaulting teachers, students harassing each other and students acting upon school buses, are all topics that likely will be discussed during a public forum at the Rockcastle County High School.

The local board of education is hosting the forum on Tuesday, July 7, at 6 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

School safety and discipline has been discussed at length during the last few board meetings, with parents in attendance to voice their concern on more than one occasion.

Earlier this year, Mrs. Donna Hasty of Sand Springs even presented the board with a petition requesting that metal detectors be placed in each of the county schools.

Mrs. Hasty told the board that parents are concerned for their children's safety because of the number of shootings that have occurred in the U.S. during the past school year.

Mrs. Hasty said the metal detectors would help to keep guns out of schools.

The board of education has never voted on Mrs. Hasty's request, but the subject of metal detectors will likely be discussed along with many other subjects during the public forum.

Rockcastle County School Board Chairman Dr. G.W. Griffith and School Superintendent Larry Hammond have repeatedly told parents that school safety and discipline is a top priority for Rockcastle schools.

Seven inches of rainfall in 12 day period

And we thought that last June was wet, when 6.73 inches of rain fell in the first 20 days, but in a twelve day period June 3 through 14, 7.21 inches of rain has been recorded at the Cox Funeral Home weather station.

The wet weather is once again playing havoc with the local tobacco crop.

A Brunswick, Ohio woman died and six other people riding in the Astro van shown above were injured in a two car crash on I-75 Friday morning.

Two die in interstate crash

Two people were killed in an early morning wreck on Interstate 75 Friday.

According to Rockcastle County Coroner Bill Dowell, Bobby W. Coyle, 64, of Lexington, and Sandra L. Jelinek, 43, of Brunswick, Ohio died in the 3 a.m. crash at Conway.

Kentucky State Police said that the accident occurred after Coyle lost control of his 1994 Chevrolet van as he headed north on the interstate.

Police said Coyle's van crossed the median into the path of a 1994 Chevrolet Astro van driven Mary C. Collins, 44, of Cleveland, Ohio.

The full size van was hit in the passenger's side by the Astro Van. Rain and wet pavement may have contributed to the accident.

Coyle was the only person in the full size van, but the mini-van had five other passengers in it, besides Collins and Jelinek.

Coroner Dowell said both victims died instantly from blunt force trauma.

Members of the Mt. Vernon fire department, the Rockcastle County Ambulance Service, the Berea fire department and the Madison County Ambulance Service responded to the call.

Both fire departments used the Jaws-of-Life apparatus to free the

County passes on request to award insurance bid to another bidder

By: Richard Anderkin

The Rockcastle County Fiscal Court passed on an unusual request last week to change the agent of record for the county's insurance, although the court had awarded the bid to the lowest bidder the week before.

During a special called meeting on June 1, the court awarded the county's property, casualty, liability and worker's compensation bid to Sue Porter of Fritts-Million Insurance Inc., of Lexington.

The total bid, which was the lowest, was $55,250.04.

But last week, Ed Mullins, a local resident and an agent with Bowen and Martin Insurance of Lexington, asked the court to change the agent of record on the county's insurance and award the bid to him.

During the called meeting, Mullins did not submit a bid on the property and casualty insurance and his bid on worker's compensation was about $6,000 higher.

Mullins told the court that the bid would be the same because his agency, Bowen and Martin, used the same underwriter as Fritts-Million. Mullins, agency owner, Andy Martin and a vice president of the underwriting company told the court that the underwriting company had made a mistake when giving price quotes to Mullins and that they would honor Fritts-Million's bid.

The three said the county would receive better service because Mullins is local and that he would receive the commission on the bid. Rockcastle County Judge-Executive Buzz Carlofitis told the court that changing the agent of record could be done and asked the court for their input.

After a somewhat lengthy discussion, the request was tabled.

Magistrate Jack Bradley said he wanted to vote on the matter because he was against it. Bradley said the bid had already been awarded and it wouldn't be fair to award it to someone else.

Magistrate Bill McKinney said he was concerned about the legal questions concerning the matter.

Carlofitis said the court could discuss the issue again at a later date, but it was his feeling that the court would probably stay with the low bidder.

Rockcastle County Attorney Jeff Burdette would not give the court any advice on the matter.

In other action, the court discussed two county roads—the Oscar Isaacs Road and the Dash Road.

The Oscar Isaacs Road off Sweet Water has not been worked by the county since February because one of the primary land owners, Denver O'Neil, had a survey done which showed the county only had a 15 foot right of way.

Judge Carlofitis said he had complaints from motorists, who said tacks had been placed in the road and they were getting flat tires.

Carlofitis said that in 1978, when the road was accepted into the county road plan, apparently only 15 feet of right of way was given. 30 feet is usually required by the state.

Because of the survey conducted and the fact that it is hard to get a road grader along the road, the county has stopped working the road.

County Attorney Burdette said he would file suit if need be, to solve the 30 foot right of way problem but that the ultimate decision would be left up to the Circuit Court.

About ten families live on the Oscar Isaacs road. Mr. Vernon had also requested that the court close a portion of Dash Road in Mt. Vernon because he owns on both sides of the road and wants it closed.

But after a lengthy discussion, the court voted to postpone such a vote for two months to give another landowner in the area, Doug Rowe, time to get a survey. Rowe was at the meeting to voice his opposition to the road closing. County Attorney Burdette said the court had the right to close the road, unless Rowe had a survey that showed differently.

The court also approved Darren Kirk, of Rt. 3, as a solid waste hauler in the county.

The county's Solid Waste Coordinator Nancy Meadows told the court that Kirk had bought the route of Mrs. Cassie Litteral.

Judge Carlofitis also appointed William Denny to the county's board of assessment and reapportioned Danny Settles, Shannon Osborne and Rebekkah Hammond to the Rockcastle County Tourist Commission. Mike Robbins was also appointed to take Mike Hansel's place on the commission.

Locals honor new Supreme Court Justice

Lambert not planning changes in direction of state's highest court

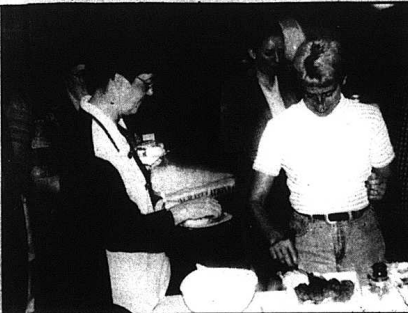

As a boy in the early 1950s, Joseph Earl Lambert often played in the state House of Representatives office while his father made law as a legislator from Rockcastle County.

On October 2, Lambert, now 50, will take the helm in a dignified court chamber just a floor below in the state Capitol, presiding as chief justice of the Kentucky Supreme Court.

The Mount Vernon resident will become the fourth head of the state's highest court since passage of a constitutional amendment in 1975 that revamped the judicial branch and created the seven-member state Supreme Court.

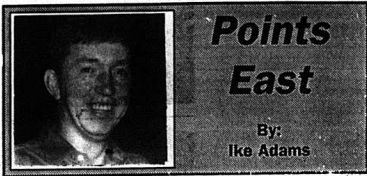

Friends, co-workers, colleagues and family members of newly-elected Chief Supreme Court Justice Joseph E. Lambert of Mt. Vernon, gathered at the Rockcastle County Courthouse on Monday to offer their congratulations on his election. Above, Lambert, left, talks with Circuit Judge Dan Venters and local defense attorney Jerry Cox during the reception.

Kathy Owens, a longtime employee of the Administrative Office of the Courts, helps June Coleman with some refreshments during the reception for newly-elected Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, Joe Lambert. Coleman has been a long time associate of the Lamberts.

Points East

By: Ike Adams

I enjoy watching storms at night. At least I used to. There are few things as awesome and mysterious to me as a thunder and lightning display.

But last Sunday night put a damper on things and my fascination turned into a sensation much more akin to terror.

At this writing a huge Maple tree and the only Chinese Elm I've ever seen, several tons of wood and leaves, are lying atop two vehicles in my front yard. Son Christopher's old Jeep Cherokee is minus most of its glass and has several large dents. His friend, Michael Leger's Ford Tempo is crushed beyond recognition to the point that it will have to be hauled off because I doubt it will ever roll again.

Another ten feet or our house would have been severely damaged, especially the bedroom upstairs where Jennifer was when the storm hit, and the one below where Loretta and I were nestled all snug in our bed. I tremble just thinking about it.

The storm struck at five minutes past midnight according to several clocks that stopped when the power failed for a few minutes. Lightning struck the big Maple whose trunk is more than 30 inches in diameter and literally lifted it out of the ground to fall on the elm which has a 20 inch trunk and snapped like a match stem. The lightning flash, thunder boom and crash of the trees was almost simultaneous.

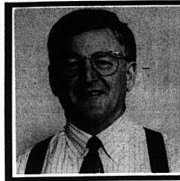

The storm had already awakened everybody in the house before the lightning struck our yard and rain was coming down in sheets so thick that it was impossible to see anything out the windows. It was impossible to tell what kind of damage had been done but I figured that my truck and the aforementioned vehicles were goners for sure and that the garage was demolished.

I will never figure out how my truck survived. I had a bed full of bark and pieces of limbs that the lightning had blasted in my truck's direction. However it only sustained a couple of small dents.

The amazing thing is that it would have taken a skilled lumberjack to knock the trees fall the way they did. Both were top-heavy and leaning in the opposite direction of the way they landed. And, again, both were very large trees. It's going to take a heck of a chain saw to get their trunks into movable pieces.

In the meantime, I'm going out to the hardware store, and get a gasoline powered pump before the day is out. Had the power failure lasted for more than five minutes our basement would have been filled. As it was, a 700 gallon per hour sump pump couldn't keep up with the deluge that came in. Our HVAC would have been destroyed in minutes. In other words we have much to be thankful for because things could have been much worse. I'll miss the trees for sure. The elm, especially was easily the most unusual and beautiful tree we've ever had in a yard and it was a favorite nesting place for robins and cat birds.

From The Just Us Files

By: Jerry Cox

Jerry J. Cox is the immediate past president of the Kentucky Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers and a partner of the law firm of Clontz & Cox, Mt. Vernon, Kentucky.

Enough is enough. It is time for independent counsel, Kenneth Starr to cease and desist. Regardless of the culpability of the first family, Mr. Starr has exceeded all bounds of decency and propriety.

Starr's most recent fiasco is his attack on the attorney-client privilege. This attack is more dangerous than the overreaching he accomplished when subpoenaing Ms. Lewinsky's mother and the records of a book store. These acts might even be proper in a serious (non-political) case.

It seems that anyone who might disagree with Starr is rewarded with a subpoena—no knows, maybe I'll get one.

The attack on the attorney-client privilege is more dangerous because it seeks to undermine one of the basic principles of the attorney-client privilege.

This privilege is one of the oldest and most cherished of all, but is certainly not the only privilege recognized in the law. In addition to the attorney-client privilege Kentucky and many other states recognize the husband-wife privilege, clergyman privilege, counselor-client privilege and psychotherapist-patient privilege.

While some of these privileges are of more recent vintage, the attorney-client privileges is one that has been cherished by citizens for many years. The right of a citizen to confide in his attorney about secrets, many of which do not involve wrongdoing but involve such issues as sickness, children, spouses, parents and many, many business matters, remain the lynchpin of the attorney-client relationship.

For Kenneth Starr to pursue this claim, even if he wins, is a farce. The confidence that clients have that their attorney will keep their secrets needs no shadow over it. Starr has spent millions of dollars with nothing to show for it except for the political embarrassment to himself and the politicians he has pursued.

Starr's attack on the privilege itself seems to focus on the fact that his witness is dead and that the privilege no longer applies. When this issue has been decided before, the law is clear that the privilege continues on after death and I know of no case holding otherwise.

I should point out that my criticism of Starr is not of his intelligence or legal skills, for he has a reputation as an excellent attorney. My criticism is he has used enough money and his activities appear exclusively political in nature and therefore should not be paid for by taxpayers. It was interesting to note that as important as this issue was, Mr. Starr chose not to argue it himself but sent one of his assistants before the Supreme Court of the United States.

In concluding I would point out that Congress, with the assistance of the courts, has allowed one inroad to the attorney-client privilege and that involves the payment of cash money in excess of $10,000.

The law requires any person, including banks, car dealerships and you, to report any cash transaction in excess of $10,000. What most people don't know is banks are encouraged to report cash deposits of as little as $5,000. This rule, too, is wrong.

The idea is to use this information to prevent money laundering. The effect of the law is to allow the government to delve into the privacy of the acts of its citizens and if wrongdoing is discovered, some prosecutors have even sought to recover the money from the recipient. The interesting part of this is that prosecutors have never sought to recover money from the grocery store, gas station, automobile dealer or other merchant where the same cash money was spent but has attempted to recover attorney fees.

The preceding paragraphs were written prior to Sunday, June 14, 1998. I mention this because another disaster befell the special prosecutor on Saturday, June 13, 1998, when it was reported in Bull's Content, a magazine on the press. Starr has admitted leaking stories on the investigation to Michael Skisoff of Newsweek, Susan Schmidt of the Washington Post and Jackie Judd of ABC News.

Britt's article is highly critical of much of the reporting on the Lewinsky matter and suggests the leaks were to pressure Lewinsky and her attorney to cooperate.

A motion to hold Starr in contempt filed in February remains pending.

NOTE: It is against the law to release Federal Grand Jury information.

For my next article I want to talk about who can be a witness and who can't.

He Only Takes The Best
God saw she was getting tired,
And a cure was not to be.
So he put his arms around her,
and whispered, "Come with me."

With tear-filled eyes we watched,
Her suffer and fade away,
Although we loved her deeply,
We could not make her stay.

A golden heart stopped beating,
Hard working hands put to rest.
God broke our hearts to prove,
To us he only takes the best.

Father's Day Memories
Written By: Lora Westerfield

Wonderful Father
Daddy passed away one summer day,
These beautiful words that he said.
Oh, look what I see?
Heaven is seen a pretty place.
I want to go home,
Dad, bring me back in this old world.
Don't grieve for me,
All my worries and troubles will be over.

As momma and the three daughters
sood by his bed.
Trying to revive him,
I never will forget all those beautiful words,
That were told to me.

They are all gone now to meet him,
There are two daughters living now,
But it won't be long until we will meet and have that great family reunion.
We will lay down the cross and put on the crown.

We cannot fall, Jesus will be there,
All been redeemed by the blood of the Lamb.
Oh, Daddy all your nice grandchildren and great great ones.

You have never seen. But you will know them.

In Memory of Warren Poynter, Jr.
By Jon Gilbert
When loved ones walk into the sunset,
And wave a last goodbye.
And sorrow's shadows deepen
And each smile becomes a sigh,
What a comfort and a solace
God's blessed words afford -
Though now 'absent in the body,
They are present with the Lord!"
They will know no disappointment,
When life's trails at last are done -
Eternal bliss and joy await them
Just beyond the setting sun!

This poem was written by Warren, Jr. himself and we found it in his Bible soon after he passed away...

Submitted By Nora Poynter
One night while I was
On my knees, I asked the Lord to bear
my plea.
There a sweet voice answered tenderly,
"Sweet Jesus knows our prayers."

"Sweet Jesus knows our prayers,"
For he knows our every care,
If we'll turn to him he will always be there,
"Sweet Jesus knows our prayers!"

BOARD OF EDUCATION HOSTS OPEN FORUM

Several events have occurred this school year that brought into focus the need to enact legislation seeking to make safety at school and on school buses a top priority. With the number of occurrences seeming to increase and the public being more aware of these problems, the timing is right for legislation that will allow us to address this area of concern.

Responding to these concerns, the 1998 Kentucky State Legislature has enacted House Bill (HB) 330 requiring state school districts to assess school safety and student discipline during the next school year. A district-level assessment of data, resources, policies, procedures and needs must be completed by May 15, 1999. From this assessment each Board of Education (BOE) must adopt a plan for immediate and long-term strategies to address school safety and discipline.

In order to comply with HB 330, the Rockcastle County BOE will host an open forum designed to seek input on public concerns regarding school safety. According to Superintendent Hammond, "From information gathered, the BOE will review the following areas: behavior and discipline codes for clarity and appropriate notice to students/parents, hierarchy of responses to discipline problems and actual disciplinary outcomes, existing policies relating to student discipline and student information, and student supervision plan."

The Rockcastle County BOE hosted Open Forum on school safety will be held July 7, 1998, at 6:00 p.m. in the Rockcastle County High School Auditorium.

Library News

By Pam Chaliff

Summer reading has begun. The bookmobile signups began as soon as school was out. The library began signups for their program the first of this week. We are looking forward to a great summer with lots of participants. The theme for this year's program is Readers of the Round Table. To go along with the theme Mrs. Betty is having a contest to design a castle. There is no age limit on this activity. The castle needs to be no larger than 36 inches square, and may be made from whatever material that you choose. Bring the castle to the library on June 29th for judging by secret ballot. Prizes will be awarded for this activity. We are naming Mr. Dragon on the bookmobile. The participants in summer reading are voting for Dennis, Dewey or Dudley for his name. I will let them know in a couple of weeks, the winning name. Last year the summer reading participants had their name put on a star, when they read five books. This year their names will be on a small dragon and will be displayed throughout the summer.

The "newer" bookmobile is here in the county. We are not sure at this time when the switch will be made, since there will be some minor changes to be made. The bookmobile has another county name on the side, so we want to have this taken care of, along with some other things, before the books are transferred and we go on the road.

Remember if you are not currently using the bookmobile service, call the library and leave a message so I can put you on a route. I will be glad to add your home to a route just for the summer, while the children are out of school. The phone number at the library is 256-2388.

Cadets attend Camp Challenge '98

The first person six Rockcastle County JROTC Cadets met when getting off the bus at Ft. Knox, was a very large Drill Sergeant. Needless to say, he immediately had their undivided attention.

So began an extremely long and strenuous week at 'Camp Challenge', JROTC's annual summer camp, where over 450 cadets from Kentucky and surrounding states push themselves to their physical limit. Cadets began each day by getting up at 5 a.m. and immediately fell out for 30-45 minutes of Physical Training. After eating breakfast in the mess hall and clean-up in the barracks, the cadets move out to their training area by bus or foot, where they received training in an assortment of areas, such as: Land Navigation, Multi-Science Class, Survival Training (ask some of them what they ate), Rappelling off a 37 foot tower, Stream Crossing (one, two and three rope bridges), Leadership/Reaction Course at Camp Sky High (climbing a 60-foot tower among other things), Water Survival, Rafting, Obstacle Course, Confidence Course and Armored Personnel Carrier rides.

Throughout the week, the cadets also dealt with the constant presence of active-duty Drill Sergeants, who seem to be everywhere and notice everything. The slightest infractions of rules or any suggestion of a lack of motivations results in push-ups or flutter kicks for any hapless cadet within the immediate area. These awesome, professional soldiers add immeasurably to the "experience" of each cadet who successfully completed camp.

The cadets from Rockcastle County attending camp were: Shaun Jones, Tabatha Doan, Julie Burdette, Tami Taylor, Joe Clark and Jeff Smith. Accompanying them were SGM Keith Taylor and Mrs. Jenny Taylor as chaperone. Each cadet will remember camp as a place where they found they could go a little further, climb a little higher and accomplish just a little more than they ever imagined.

Residents of Rockcastle County can be proud of the manner in which they all represented our school and county.

Our Readers Write

Dear Editor,

A few years ago, my wife and I moved from Marshall County to Breckinridge County, ending a 15+ year enjoyable employment at the Kentucky Sheriffs' Boys and Girls Ranch.

We have since re-visited the Ranch - at least twice a year. We are very grateful for the many friendships created with the other employees and many of Kentucky's Sheriffs.

In 1979, I retired from the manufacturing world. The pride one feels in helping make such products and seeing them on a store shelf!

The Ranch's finished product is not found on a store shelf, but found in a broad grin or a big smile from a happy child!

I have met many adult former counselors that remember their stay at camp. All are productive citizens and doing very well. I have even met former campers of the Ranch. One in particular, now a family man, brought his son to show him where he had attended camp. He marveled at the number of improvements that had been made since he had attended camp. I, also, am amazed at the abandoned farm of yesteryear to the now neatly landscaped view of 1998!

This being an election year, there will probably be some new Sheriffs taking office in Kentucky. If they wish to find something to look to with pride, they owe it to themselves to visit the Kentucky Sheriffs' Boys and Girls Ranch in Gilbertsville! Sincerely, Sherrill & Elaine Miller

JROTC places first in state

The Rockcastle County JROTC Rifle Team ended a great year by placing first in the state among U.S. Army JROTC programs in Kentucky in an 11-state regional championship postal match sponsored by the Second JROTC Region. Rockcastle placed sixth among the twenty-two teams representing schools from eleven states. These twenty-two schools were selected to shoot in the championship tournament based on their scores from a previous tournament fired by 158 teams from 12 states. Rockcastle County placed ninth overall in that match, second place in Kentucky behind Mulenburg North High School. The Rockcastle Rifle Team has been a huge success since the beginning of the JROTC program at Rockcastle County High School in 1995. At the end of just their second year they established a solid reputation by placing second in a major competition among well established teams from Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and Tennessee. They started this year by winning first place in another major competition in Clarksville, Tennessee. Throughout the year, it has been obvious that their most serious competition, among the 46 JROTC programs in Kentucky shooting in the Sporter category, has been Mulenburg North High School. Rockcastle has shot in two shoulder-to-shoulder matches with Mulenburg this year, with each team winning one time each. Both teams also fired in two postal matches this year with the same results.

SGM Taylor, the team coach, attributes the teams success to their attitude and commitment to their chosen sport. "Since we first started the team we have always stressed safety, sportsmanship, individual growth and commitment, in that order. Competitive Shooting is an activity that allows each individual to become as good as the amount of effort they are willing to invest. The best competition any shooter will ever have is themselves. No matter how we place in competition, each team member knows how well they did based on their past scores. Everyone on our shooters is committed to continuous personal improvement. As long as they continue that we will always be successful, no matter how we place in competition," SGM Taylor went on to say that many people don't realize that competitive shooting is unique in the fact that male and female shooters compete on the same level. In fact two of the top four shooters (all of which can out shoot their coach) on the Rockcastle team are females.

Members of this year's team are: Shaun Jones, Kristen Cobb, Tami Taylor, Chris Phillips, Eugene Robinson, Joe Gigold, Kenneth Begley, Joe Clark, William Lezer, Adrian Isaacs and John Abrams. The conduct and performance of all these students bring great credit to themselves, their team, and their school as they represent Rockcastle County throughout Kentucky and in Tennessee.

Bullock receives Ashland Inc. Golden Apple Achiever Award

Golden Apple Achiever certificates have been awarded to 124 outstanding Kentucky school teachers in connection with the 1998 Ashland Inc. Teacher Achievement Awards Program.

In May, Ashland presented $2,500 cash awards to the top ten contest entrants from each of the four states. Golden Apple Achiever certificates were awarded to the remaining teachers who scored at least 85 out of a possible 100 points in the judging process. Teachers were evaluated by a panel of education experts on high professional standards, teaching innovation and community service. A total of 424 Kentucky teachers were nominated this year, up from 1,540 last year.

Steve Bullock, seventh grade teacher from Rockcastle County Middle School was one of the 124 teachers recognized.

"The Golden Apple Achiever Award allows us to recognize outstanding, innovative teachers in four states," said Mac Zachem, Ashland's senior vice president of public affairs. "The difficulty that the judges have in choosing the top ten teachers prompted us to recognize other deserving teachers who ranked high in the selection process."

"Now more than ever before, business and education must join forces to ensure that today's students are prepared to become better and more productive citizens, and to enter tomorrow's workforce," Zachem added. "These Golden Apple Achiever recipients are dedicated to achieving this important goal."

The Golden Apple Achiever Awards are an integral element of the company's emphasis on improving education. Ashland has concentrated its corporate regional advertising ef-orts on promoting quality education and education awareness for 15 years.

David Eaton of Central Body Service and Marvin Mink of Town and Country clear debris from Interstate 75 after a two vehicle crash early Friday morning. Bobby W. Coyle, 64, of Lexington died when he lost control of the above Chevrolet van and crossed the median.

victims. A heavy downpour occurred during the removal of the victims, which slowed the process.

Mary Collins was taken to Rockcastle Hospital and later transferred to the University of Kentucky Medical Center where she is listed in serious condition.

Anthony Jelinek, 4, and Tammy Collins, 26, were both transported to Berea Hospital and later to U.K., also listed in serious condition. Kayla Collins, 10, and Pamela Hanzel, 17, were admitted to Berea Hospital.

According to family members, Mary Collins and Sandra Jelinek were sisters and the two families were traveling to Georgia on a family vacation when the wreck occurred.

Locals honor Lambert (Cont. from front)

Stephens, 70, of Lexington, who has served as chief justice for 16 years and did not seek re-election. Lambert will serve a four-year term as chief justice, a $103,800-a-year job.

"I'm really proud of my boy and I know his mother, who passed away in 1991, would be, too," said his father, James W. Lambert, 83. "Joe was a right-good kid. I know I'm biased, but I think he's a right-good judge."

Lambert, who sold Bibles door-to-door in the backwoods of Arkansas and the Carolinas during summer breaks as a Georgetown College student in the last 1960s, is hard to characterize as a jurist.

He said he will not try to initiate changes in the law. "Courts must wait until the law comes to them," he said. "An appellate judge should not have an agenda. I will not."

During his 12 years on the Supreme Court, Lambert, the only Republican on the bench, has gained a reputation as being more practical than ideological.

He has been conservative on social issues such as abortion and homosexuality but has helped overturn death sentences of several poor people who didn't get adequate legal counsel.

In 1992, Lambert dissented from the court's ruling that said Kentucky's sodomy law is unconstitutional because it unfairly singles out homosexuals for punishment. A year later, he argued that the court wrongly had ruled that a fetus is not a person.

Court watchers say that Lambert tends to be conservative on criminal issues but is a strong advocate for each person involved in a lawsuit to have his or her day in court.

"He has shown that he is energetic, aggressive in his beliefs and is committed to the court process," said Senate Judiciary Chairman Ernesto Scorsone, D-Lexington. Scorsone was on the opposite side from Lambert in the legal argument when he helped defend the man who successfully challenged Kentucky's sodomy law.

David E. Shipley, dean of the University of Kentucky law school, said it's "hard to put a label on" Lambert.

"I would call him a pragmatist who wants to do a good job," he said. Lambert said the public should not expect any change in the court's direction on major legal questions under his leadership.

Asked how aggressive he will be in trying to influence the court, Lambert said: "This is a collaborative body, with each justice getting one vote and I haven't found any justice here to do every other justice."

The chief justice also is the top officer in the state's court system, which has operations in every county, a two-year budget of $160 million and 2,400 employees. The public should not expect any major administrative changes under his watch, Lambert said.

Roots in law, politics
Lambert has been exposed to law and politics all his life.

Born in Berea on May 23, 1948, Lambert grew up in a comfortable, middle-class home. His dad was elected state representative from 1950 to 1956 and was Rockcastle County attorney for 25 years. Lambert's mother, Ruth Hilton Lambert, was a school teacher for 38 years and taught her son in the second, third and fourth grades.

House Minority Leader Danny Ford, of Mt. Vernon, said he's known Lambert all his life. Ford praised Lambert for his fairness.

"I'm glad that Joe Lambert is a Republican, but his party affiliation has never been and never will be a factor when he has to make legal decisions," Ford said.

After graduating from Mt. Vernon High School in 1966, Lambert set out for a career in law.

In 1970, he got a bachelor's degree in economics and business administration from Georgetown College. After college, Lambert landed a job with the Washington staff of Republican U.S. Sen. John Sherman Cooper of Somerset, who was a friend of Lambert's father.

Lambert received a law degree from the University of Louisville in 1974. After working for about a year as a law clerk for U.S. District Judge Rhodes Bratcher in Louisville, Lambert jumped into the political arena and was the Republican nominee for the now-defunct Office of the Clerk of the Court of Appeals. He lost to Democrat Martha Layne Collins, who later became governor in 1983.

Lambert then practiced "all kinds of law" with his father. After losing a race for the state House in 1978, he was elected to the state Supreme Court's Third District in 1986 and was re-elected in 1994.

At the age of 35 in 1983, Lambert married Debra Hembree of Greasy Creek in Bell County. He had met her a year earlier through friends when she was preparing for her senior year at Eastern Kentucky University. She is a lawyer in Mt. Vernon. They have two sons, Joseph Patrick, 13 and John Ryan, 7.

Debra Lambert said the family is trying to keep its perspective. A family tradition, she said, is to play during the Christmas season a tape of the judge reciting The Night Before Christmas as a 6-year-old at a Renfro Valley performance.

"It's the holiest thing," she said. "He sounds so country. We use it to keep his feet on the ground."

June rainfall

Agent Tom Mills said that only about half of the county's 4 million pounds of tobacco has been set and plants are getting much too large to go through the setter.

"Many growers are setting in wet fields because they have no choice, it is hard to believe that tobacco farmers are being hit hard for a second straight year," Mills said.

"There is likely to be another shortage of plants this year," Mills said. The only good news is that Blue Mold has not been reported in the county as of yet. The bad news - it has been reported in several surrounding counties.

"It is only a matter of time because of the hot humid weather we are experiencing," Mills said.

Lynns in Renfro Valley June 27

One of country music's hottest new duos is coming to the Renfro Valley stage for one big show Saturday, June 27.

The Lynns will take center stage in Renfro Valley's historic Old Barn Theater for one show at 7 p.m. Tickets are $15.00 and $17.00. For tickets and information call the Renfro Valley ticket office at 1-800-765-7464. This talented new duo will be a big hit with area fans, so call today.

Nominated for best new duo or country group by the Academy, the Lynns are making quiet a name for themselves in the country music business.

They are, of course, the twin daughters of country music legend, Loretta Lynn, but they are quickly becoming one of the most sought after duos in the country, on their very own merits.

When Patsy and Peggy Lynn decided to embark on a musical career, they did not want anyone to give them any breaks, just because of their lineage in country music. They were determined to stand on their own artistic merits.

"When Patsy and I started performing we went under the band name, 'The Honk-A-Billies.' We didn't tell anyone who our family was, really because it wasn't an issue, it was about our music. Will it stand up on its own?" states Peggy. "I would wear Momma's old stage boots and dress, but it was my secret. Our momma had shared with Patsy and me the gift of music, but you have to work to make your own way of life. Patsy and I had to play our music and pay our dues.

This began two years of steady gigs every other Thursday night at the historic Nashville Honky Tonk Toosties. Over time, word began to spread about this new band and soon they were playing to capacity crowds.

Of the ten songs of their self-titled debut, eight were written or co-written by The Lynns, including such standout tracks like "Woman To Woman," a sassy warning to stay away from my man. The haunting melody of "It Hurts Me" and the sweet groove of "Somebody" also belong to The Lynns.

"As sisters you have that sibling rivalry stuff from the very start, so you have to stay on your toes," states Peggy. "One night Patsy will be in charge and the other night I will be. We have learned to give and take as sisters and as partners. I could not imagine not having her in my life. Not to say sometimes I wouldn't like to duct tape her mouth shut!" Peggy laughs.

"When we write together there is only one thing that matters, and that's the song. Who sings lead on it or who plays what doesn't matter; it's what is best for the song," adds Peggy.

"Peggy and I grew up with a really good foundation under our feet, our mother once said to us, 'never forget where you came from - that way you'll always know where you're going, and if need be, you'll always find your way home,'" said Patsy.

No truer words can be said, for The Lynns do know where they came from. And wherever they go, they bring with them their own fresh style of music. True to their roots, they are a testament that country music is a tradition.

To see one of the brightest new acts in country music today, in a historic setting on the stage in the Old Barn Theater, call 1-800-765-7464 or visit us at our web site, www.renfrovalley.com. Renfro Valley is located on U.S. 25 just off exit 62 at I-75, south of Mt. Vernon. Remember for the best seats, in a setting next to none in country music entertainment, call today, 1-800-765-7464.

The Lynns, Patsy and Peggy, daughters of Loretta Lynn will perform in Renfro Valley on June 27.

At left:

Country music superstar Patty Loveless brought her wonderful talents and brilliant smile to Renfro Valley on Saturday night. Loveless performed to two capacity crowds in the new barn theater. The Oak Ridge Boys will perform there on Saturday and the Lynns will follow on June 27.

Drawings for door prizes will follow the business session and then it's time for an evening of family entertainment, featuring the music of Exile, led by singers Les Taylor and J.P. Pennington.

The well-known country music group will take to the stage for a set of their hit songs, such as "Kiss You All Over," "Woke Up In Love," "She's A Miracle" and "I Can't Get Close Enough."

And best of all, the evening is free.

Variety Not Only Price of Life--It's Good For Your Health, Too

By: Hazel Jackson
County Extension Agent
for Home Economics

Eating a variety of leafy green and orange vegetables adds to mealtime, gives us many vitamins and minerals and maybe even provides some disease-preventing substances.

Most of these vegetables are high in vitamins A and C as well as calcium and iron and other nutrients necessary for good health. The darker the leaves of green vegetables, the more nutrients they contain. Equally important, many vegetables contain substances called "phytochemicals," that research indicates might reduce the risk of certain cancers, high blood pressure and heart disease.

Certain vegetables are especially high in phytochemicals and should be eaten at least two to three times a week. These vegetables include all types of cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, brussels sprouts, kale and broccoflower. Spinach and turnip greens, among other vegetables, also contain phytochemicals.

Cooked green like spinach, mustard greens, Bok choy (Chinese cabbage) or Swiss chard are best when their bright green colors are maintained so cook them for the shortest time possible and as close to mealtime as possible to prevent over-cooking. Use as little cooking liquid as possible to prevent nutrients from leaching out and provide a superior texture, flavor and color.

Many vegetables also add variety to meals because they can be served in many ways, including fresh, steamed, wilted, braised, poached or stuffed.

When preparing a tossed salad, use a variety of mixed greens, especially dark green variety, because they provide more vitamins and minerals. For more variety, add reddish-orange vegetables such as carrots, butternut squash, sweet potatoes or beets.

For more information you can call me the Rockcastle County Extension Office at 256-2403.

Rotational grazing means more money

By Tom Mills
Co. Ext. Agent for Agriculture

Rotating livestock on pastures improves a grazing system and increases income. Rotating can be as simple as closing gates. The manager should determine when animals graze a field instead of running over the entire farm. All grass needs a recovery time, and rotating between fields allows grass to re-grow between grazing cycles.

The cheapest feed on a livestock farm is the feed animals harvest for themselves. Nutrients harvested by grazing cost less than hay as much as nutrients harvested and fed as stored feed like hay or grain.

Improving a grazing system increases pasture utilization and fertility, as well as forage quality and supply. Rotational grazing can increase pasture utilization by at least 10%. Depending on the forage, rotating results in pasture use of 60% or more, compared to use of 50% or less when pasture is continuously grazed.

Nutrient cycling reduces the need for fertilizer on grazed pastures. Less than 10% of the forages' phosphorus and potassium are removed by livestock; they return most of it as dung and urine. Phosphorus and potassium levels tend to rise near shade, water, and gate areas.

Nutrient removal is much less when pasture is grazed than when it is used to make hay. Thus, starting a good rotational system reduces fertilizer topdressing needed compared to making hay.

Forage quality improves when pasture areas rest between grazings. Animals allowed continuous access to a pasture trample and defecate on significant amounts of forage. These areas often grow up, becoming more mature and lower in quality.

Rotating puts livestock on pasture when the forage is at or near its peak nutritive value. Rotated pastures have higher digestibility because forage is kept in a vegetative and growing stage with less dead and over-mature material, compared to continuously grazed pastures. Animals tend to select only the best and leave the worst.

Rotational grazing systems also allow use of species that are more productive and responsive to management including alfalfa, native warm season grasses, and red clover. Different species enable farmers to improve the seasonal supply of forage, grow more forage and grow better quality forage. Using these species also can reduce hay harvest costs.

Thistle control in pastures

Musk thistle, also known as nodding thistle, can be a serious weed problem in pastures, hayfield and also roadsides. This plant interferes with grazing and limits the amount of available forage to livestock.

Seed is the only method by which musk thistle reproduces. Therefore, limiting seed production is the key to successful control of this plant pest. Mature thistle plants are capable of producing an abundant amount of seed. If uncontrolled, one mature plant can be capable of producing over 40,000 new seeds. These seeds can then be transported or spread to other areas by wind, contaminated hay, or farm equipment.

As previously indicated, the primary step in an effective thistle control program is to prevent or reduce seed production. This can be accomplished by using chemical, mechanical or biological control methods.

Chemical control of musk thistle can be utilized in permanent grass pastures and non-cropland areas. An important aspect when using a herbicide for control is choosing the proper time for the application. Best results are obtained when thistle plants are in the rosette stage of growth, generally in early spring. The rosette stage is when the plant is growing close to the ground in a circular pattern.

Best chemical control occurs when herbicides are applied during March and April. Herbicides which can be used on permanent grass pastures and non-cropland areas include: 2,4-D, Banvel and Crossbow. For early spring applications, wait until thistle plants are actively growing and air temperatures are above 55 degrees Fahrenheit for 2 to 3 days. Complete spray coverage of the plant's rosette is also important. When herbicides are applied after flower stalks elongate, control will be inconsistent and less effective.

When using a herbicide for control, read and understand the label directions for proper use and any precautionary statements. Avoid spraying on windy days or days with high temperature and humidity. Also, avoid spraying when sensitive crops such as tobacco and home gardens are growing nearby.

Mechanical controls, such as mowing or hand-hoeing, should be done before flowers begin to open in the early spring. Some regrowth and production of flowers may occur after mowing; however, seed production will be noticeably less than if plants had not been mowed or hand-hoed. Thistle plants mowed or removed after flowers bloom contain enough stored energy reserves in the stalk to produce viable seed that will germinate into new plants.

Chemicals such as 2,4-D, Banvel and Crossbow will kill broadleaf plants like red and white clover. For this reason, farmers will need to plan on working thistle control into their rotation when replacing clover.

A look back at Rockcastle County

Editor's Note: Instead of running from our files for the next several weeks, we will be running excerpts from the 1992 Rockcastle History Book which was published by the Rockcastle County Historical Society.

On March 17, 1775, over twelve hundred Cherokee warriors and two hundred settlers gathered at Sycamore

Shoals on the Watauga River in Tennessee. They met in order to sell the rights of their land to the Transylvania Company. All the lands that were located between the Cumberland and Ohio Rivers were purchased from the Cherokees for about $50,000.00, but the Cherokees later insisted, they had not been at the meeting and yielded nothing. Later, it was said that Henderson, of the Transylvania Company, had acquired land by Sycamore Shoals, he had no right to buy from Indians, who had no right to sell.

That was during the spring of 1775 and the runners were sent at once to Daniel Boone, who was waiting with thirty people at the Blockhouse in Holston county. At Boone's orders, they swung their axes and began to hack their way through the woods. They crossed the Clinch and the Powell Rivers, passing through the Cumberland Gap and then on to Rockcastle River. They journeyed through a spot, which they named Hazel Patch and pressed on to another place, which later came to be called, Boone's Gap. This was the beginning of the famous Wilderness Trail. They traveled the Rockcastle River to a spot now known as, Trace Branch. Here they left the river and traveled up Trace Branch. Signs of the road can still be found in this area. The Wilderness Road ended in Rockcastle at Boone's Gap.

Near the point, Horse Lick Creek empties into Rockcastle River, in the southeastern edge of the county, the trail crossed Rockcastle River at the Crews' Ferry. The Crews' had a tavern, which served as a rest stop for stage coach travelers, serving meals and providing lodgings for drivers, who were expected to stop and house their animals for the night. Provisions were made on the ground to take care of the animals. Of course, people riding through on horseback found it inviting to take shelter and meals here. One such famous traveler was, General U.S. Grant, who rode through during the Civil War, on what was to become known as the Old State Road. The road was once kept up by money collected from toll gates at various points.

"It is Written"

Today we would like to consider the words of James chap 1:2-5. "My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations; knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience. But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing. If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him." How in the world can we count it joy to fall into the various trials? The joy is not the trial itself, but what it produces in us, that is what we can rejoice in. Trials makes us stronger if we let them. Just as we have different exercises for the different parts of the body so we can be strong all over, even so in the spiritual. Trials develops spiritual muscles, that can make us perfect and entire wanting nothing. The trials are various, thus they work various muscles of the spiritual man. If we lack the wisdom to see what we can learn and gain from our trials, we can pray to wisdom. The wisdom to how to handle these trials, the wisdom to have the insight of what we can gain from them. How can I make me grow? What can I learn from these problems? How can I make these trials stepping stones instead of stumbling stones. Now we must ask in faith, nothing wavering, and God will hear the prayers of the righteous. But the doubtingminded man is unstable in all his ways.
