For ninety day period RAAP delays construction of shelter

By: Richard Anderkin

Concerned parents at Roundstone School have won at least the first round of a somewhat quiet dispute over the location of an animal shelter in Rockcastle County.

A local organization, the Rock-castle Adoption Agency for Pets (RAAP) has suspended a project to build an animal shelter at Roundstone.

The group was in the process of building the shelter on an acre lot next to Roundstone school, but have decided to suspend their project for the next 90 days, according to the group's president Terry Lunce.

Members of RAAP and a representative group of Roundstone parents met in an open meeting at Roundstone School on Monday night.

"We have some very concerned parents here at the school and I appreciate RAAP's willingness to listen to their concerns and to work with us on this matter," said Roundstone Principal David Penso.

"We had a very good meeting and we hope all this can be resolved to the satisfaction of both our parents and students and RAAP," Penso said. "I think the parents' main concern is the safety of our students," Penso said.

Body found at Tark Hill identified

Last Wednesday night the state medical examiner's office in Frankfort positively identified the body found at Tark Hill on Tuesday, as that of Charles "Toddy" Baker, 32, of Mt. Vernon.

Baker had been missing since May of 1997.

His body was found buried 13 feet below the earth's surface, after police received an anonymous tip as to his whereabouts.

State Medical Examiner, Dr. Barbara Weakly-Jones said Wednesday that Baker died of multiple gunshot wounds. "At least one bullet was found in his back and one in his head," she said.

Kentucky State Police Detective Gary Lane, who is investigating the murder case would not comment, saying only the case was still under investigation.

A complete obituary appears on page A-4 of this week's Signal.

Suit settled with former teacher

A federal lawsuit filed against the Rockcastle County Board of Education, School Superintendent Larry Hammond and former RCHS principal Ronnie Cash, by a former teacher, has been settled.

Tuesday night the local board of education approved a settlement agreement with Joyce Ponder, who taught home economics at the Rockcastle County High School for two years, from 1995 to 1997.

School Superintendent Larry Hammond said that under the terms of the agreement he could not discuss the case or the outcome.

When Ponder filed her suit in 1997 she claimed she was not re-hired because Cash and Hammond wanted to retaliate against her because she (Ponder) filed charges against them in 1996-97 with the Kentucky Educational Professional Standards Board.

All of those charges were dismissed by the Standards Board in 1997.

In her suit, Ponder had requested back pay, reinstatement to her teaching position and compensatory and punitive damages.

Although none of the details were revealed, a check of the personnel actions by Superintendent Hammond show that Ponder was not re-instated at RCHS.

Rockcastle County Judge/Executive Buzz Carlotts and Mayor Karen King, Mt. The Rockcastle Adoption Agency for Pets has put the building of an animal shelter at Roundstone on hold for 90 days after some parents at Roundstone School complained about it being too close to the school grounds. The proposed shelter was to have been built on an acre lot next to the school property. The X in the above photo shows approximately where the shelter was to have been placed. The building in the photo is on Roundstone school grounds and is used for storage, although the pre-school playground is next to the building.

Surveillance cameras, metal detectors recommended by safety committee

How safe are Rockcastle County Schools?

It's a question that has been on the minds of many parents following numerous widely-publicized and deadly incidents in schools across the country last year, including Kentucky. Loretta Powell, District Safety Coordinator for Rockcastle Schools, said she feels "Rockcastle County students have a "very safe environment in which to learn," but like anything else, there's always room for improvement.

Improving the safety at Rockcastle schools and schools across the Commonwealth was the goal the Kentucky Legislature had in mind when they passed House Bill 330 last year.

Part of that bill called for the formation of a District Safety Planning Team which along with each school analyzed safety and security information from the district and suggest improvements to the local board of education.

The 31-member team met several times over the past few months and came up with short term and long term recommendations.

Upon the final assessment of needs for safety in the schools, the plan will be sent to the School Safety Center, located on the campus of Eastern Kentucky University.

The Center will be responsible for handing out some $9 million in funds to local school districts once that money is made available by the state department of education.

The local safety committee is made up of individuals representing law enforcement, the court system, various community agencies, the local school district, individual schools and other community members.

Under HB 330, the local planning team was asked to review incident reports of disruptive behavior at schools, review behavior and discipline codes, look at school's responses to problem behavior, review staff training needs to minimize disruptive behavior, training needs of parents, and training students in anger reduction, review any facility needs and review other areas related to safety and behavior.

Powell said the goal of the team was not only to ensure the maximum safety of students, but to do so in a way that does not hinder education. "We wanted to try to create a safe learning environment," she said adding that the emphasis is not only safety alone, but on maintaining a proper atmosphere conducive to learning.

The short term safety plan approved by the board of education calls for the placing of surveillance cameras on buses and in buildings and the purchasing of two hand held metal detectors, one each for the high school and middle school.

Because funds are not yet available the board of education agreed to purchase those items from the system's general fund.

Powell said that neither the cameras nor the metal detectors would be in place until next school year and that the guidelines on how they would be used would be made available to

Fiscal Court to ask 911 board to move ahead with enhanced

By: Richard Anderkin
The Rockcastle County Fiscal Court voted Tuesday to send a letter to the local 911 board of directors requesting them to move on with a project to implement the enhanced version of 911 into the county.

Bob Ledbetter with Emerg Tech, Inc., the company hired to help with Rockcastle's 911 dispatch, told the court that the project to implement the enhanced version of 911 was extremely behind schedule and that no work had been done on the project since October of 1998.

When calls come into 911, Enhanced 911 would allow a dispatcher to access important information, such as the exact location, the number of people living at the residence, the types of illnesses they may suffer from and the types of medicines they may be allergic to, in a split second.

911 Coordinator Edwina Anglin told the court that she had begun to collect information for mapping and addressing the county in October when the board voted without explanation to stop the project.

"I think the board wanted to make sure that the basic 911 was running smoothly before they went ahead with the enhanced version," Anglin said.

"We have never interferred with the 911 board, but I certainly think they should proceed," said third district magistrate Bill McKinney.

"When we voted to implement the 911 system in this county it was the intentions of this fiscal court to have enhanced 911 in place as soon as possible," Carlotts said.

Ledbetter told the court that although the project was about 15 percent complete, it would never be complete until the court agreed on numerous road name changes.

Ledbetter and Anglin had pointed out at an earlier meeting this year, that many Rockcastle roads have the same name and many sound alike although they are spelled differently.

Carlotts said he wanted the mapping for enhanced 911 to begin as early as Monday.

Changing In My Life Chapter 3

One of the first things on Mat's list of necessary things to do was making a garden. Here is what I did. Mat and most of the garden should have already been coming up but ours hadn't even been plowed, much less planted. That was something else I had to learn, when to start planning and planting the garden.

This first year we had to hire someone to do the plowing for us. After turning the soil, it then had to be disced and laid off in rows. These rows were where the seeds were planted and according to what we were planting, how far apart we put the seeds. Carrots, beets and radishes, etc. were sown by hand on a ridge beside the furrow and came up in a solid green line of what looked like weeds to me. The beans, corn, peas, etc., were planted by hand but we dropped in the furrow, usually two or three seeds at a time, about two feet apart. Cucumbers and squash were planted in hills of soil made with the hoes, three or four seeds to a hill. I won't go into all the vegetables we raised and how they were planted but most of "you-all" know what I mean anyway. And for those who don't know, come by some time and I will tell you all about it. Gardening can be a pleasure for those who like digging in the dirt but it also can be a torture for those of us whose pleasures lie elsewhere. And mine lay elsewhere.

Now my husband, Mat, had not married a country girl, and I was not a farm wife. I was a city gal, trying my best to be his mate and a good mother to our little girl. I did not know how to plant a garden, how the plants when they came up, harvest them when they were ready nor can or dry them for future use when they were ready for it. This was a totally new way of life for me. And believe me when I say it was a rough way, and I was a slow learner. When the beans, corn, carrots, etc., came up and needed hoeing I didn't know where to start now what to cut down. But regardless of my lack of knowledge it had to be done, and one time was as good as another to get started. So, even though I scarcely knew the difference between a carrot top, bean sprouts and weeds I grabbed the hoe and took off for the garden.

And now, to add insult to injury, we had chosen the rockiest part of the area to use for our first garden. There were so many rocks in the part of the garden we had chosen to cultivate I am sure I could have loaded the truck with them and built our road easier than I learned how to avoid them without cutting down the plants! I was daydreaming about an angel in my arms. Really she was angel to me. And Mat asking about dinner that hadn't even been started yet. I guess I must have found some leftovers somewhere for I am sure Mat didn't go back to work on an empty stomach. I do remember he asked if I had finished hoeing the garden. Finished it? Why I had hardly begun it when I was interrupted by her crying. So once again he went to the garden with me and tried to show me how to hoe more efficiently. I tried, but I never did learn the trick he had of knocking the rocks away with the hoe while he pulled fresh dirt around the plants. He could hoe the whole garden in a couple of hours but his time was taken up with getting ready to start building our house. And since I was the woman of the house it was my duty to take care of the garden. I did learn this quickly, women had more to do in the country than cook, clean the house and have babies.

By now our new cooking stove had finally been delivered. It was a white range with a warming closet above the fire box and a water reservoir on the side away from the fire box. It certainly was a blessing to have a real stove to cook on but now I had another problem on my hands. I had never used a stove that had to be fed wood to keep it hot, nor how to use the various heating areas efficiently. In fact I don't think I ever did conquer it. I was always out of wood before I got a meal half cooked. I would try every method I could think of but it always turned out the same way, I needed more wood to finish cooking the meal. Mat would always bring in a big arm load of wood cut especially for the stove and kindling to start it with. So when I thought it was time to start the dinner I would build the fire, load it full of the wood, which was about half of what he brought in, then I would notice the empty water bucket and go the spring. When I got back to the kitchen the stove would be hot but there wouldn't be enough wood left to fill the fire box again. I would put what was left in the firebox, run and get some potatoes to peel and by the time I had them ready the fire would be out again. There was always a few wood chips in the wood yard so I would hastily gather enough of them to get the fire going again and call Mat to bring more in. Since I didn't know how to use an axe to chop wood for the stove he always had to do it. He scolded me quite often for not doing it the way his mother had. He said she could cook any meal with one arm load of wood. But "I wasn't his mother, I was the city girl he had chosen to be his wife."

Somehow I got through those trying times even though dinner, we call it lunch now, was often two hours late. I am sure I was the talk of the community for my lack of knowledge of country ways and Mat was pitted for having to put up with it.

One afternoon I decided to go to the post office which was a mile or so from our place, but seemed like five to me as I carried Judy, dressed in her finest white dress and sweater, for I was taking her visiting for the first time. The post office was in the home of Alice and Hamp Mize. The parents of Bill and granddaughters of Melvin, the two little boys who had been my first guests a few weeks before. They also had a small country store in a small building close by where they sold the bare necessities of groceries and a few luxuries such as candy, chewing gum and cigarettes. There was no such thing as a loaf of bread or bottle of milk. I think they did have canned milk and I know there was flour, salt, sugar, cornmeal and a variety of canned vegetables. It was things country folks used most for they raised most of their own food, even their meat, which was pork from their own hogs. I was nervous when I approached the house for this was my introduction to my new neighbor and neighborhood. There was no cause to worry for I was met by Alice, the friendly friend I have ever met. And a lasting friendship began on the spot.

HERESAY

By: John Norman Meadows

PRECIOUS SOULS, CHILDREN OF AN EVIL AGE, greetings and apologies for my having failed for a fortnight, two weeks, and seven days to compose my weekly missives to you, my beloved readership (no relationship to citizenship, penmanship, or H. M. S. Britannia - that I know of).

Is it not as though you had no commentary to read when perusing The Signal. After all, Zi Graves is back with her sagacious and sentimental strolls through yesteryear. (Keep it up, Silver Hair!) And Ike Adams never fails to ring the bell, especially when he describes big domestic tiff-tiffs and dilemmas.

And, thanks be, there is always It Is Written, that peerless proliferation of the non-sequitur and fearless censure of denominations, all of whom are bound for Perdition. Egad! That means even Southern Baptists are headed to the lake of fire. As soon as I finish this missive, I will e-mail my church and implore the clerk to erase my name from the membership roll at once, immediately, and forthwith.

Holy Judgment Day! Did you read what the Rev. Jerry (Jowis) Falwell said a couple of weeks ago? He declared that the Anti-Christ, a young male Jew, is alive on Earth! Furthermore, Falwell expects the Second Coming of Christ to take place within the next ten years!

Tremble not, precious souls. Taking seriously It Is Written's consistent denunciations of the hellfire, and noting that Falwell is a Baptist denominationalist, one has grounds to say: "To h--- with Falwell." That's not profanity, dear hearts. Just pure and simple logic based on an oracle from the Office of Providence.

But enough of that line of thought, worthy though it be, and on to the matter of my absence from the Point of View page of this venerable weekly publication, although I'm not sure I can justify my absence. Nonetheless, I shall try...

Would you believe I was abducted by aliens? (Some think I am an alien!)

Would you believe Southern Seminary hired me to teach during their January semester - and that I taught a course on the great women of the Bible?

Would you believe I was in seclusion writing a Broadway musical for senior citizens entitled Lullaby to Libido?

Would you believe I've been to Moscow to help the Russians with their ponderous Y2K problem and with their equally ponderous Y99B0 problem?

Would you believe the powerful prescription narcotics I take to mask my pain have dulled my concentration and creativity, making the writing of Heresay a burdensome chore rather than an enjoyable activity?

Would you believe - and I hope you will - I've been to Bogota for an International Symposium on Worship? After a general forum, we broke up into study groups. I wanted to go with the group that evaluated "shut-eyed solong," but I ended up with the group that scrutinized "the handkerchief in worship."

In pre-air-conditioning days, the handkerchief was invaluable to preacher and singers, especially road preachers who moved to and from the podium. I can even remember preachers using the handkerchief and a "funeral home" fans to combat the heat on breezy summer days and nights. Some brothers went at it hard and worked up a lather. But once their sweat was absorbed, the handkerchief went back in the preacher's hip pocket until he needed it again. If the first hanky was still wet, a preacher would go to his other hip pocket. A wise preacher carried at least three kerchiefs and as many as six.

In my childhood days revivals were held in August, during the "lull" before harvest. Thinking I might want to become a preacher, I attended a lot of those meetings, riding my bicycle or bunning a lull. I remember Brother Ismus "Big-un" Atherton. Now there was a preaching man if one ever existed! He took of his coat before he took his text, which after reading, was followed by a preaching fit. Brother Big-un carried seven red bandanas! One each in his hip pockets, two in his front pant pockets. Two in the pockets of his coat which he kept nearby. And one folded in the back of his Bible between the maps and Revelation.

It was not unusual, when a church was seeking a pastor or an evangelist to "carry on a meetin'," that someone would ask, "How many handkerchiefs does he use?"

And when I took up preaching at the age of fourteen, I packed four kerchiefs. One hot August night, while preaching in a youth revival at Cramped Creek Baptist Church about ten miles east of Perryville, I got my second wind and preached for thirty-some minutes at lickety split speed. Afterwards, I overheard someone say, "Did you count? He used three handkerchiefs! And he just fourteen! Why he'll be another 'Big-un' Atherton by the time he graduates from high school."

Before long, however, air-conditioning put an end to the use of the sweaty sermon and the handkerchief. Oh, we still had handkerchiefs, but they came in many colors and were folded several times and tucked in the coat pocket to stay in color concert with the tie and shirt.

Then, in the early eighties the old handkerchief came out again! When I taught at Mid-Continent Baptist College, the faculty's primary task was preparing young preachers for the ministry.

I taught a course in homiletics, the art of sermon preparation and delivery. Each student would preach his "class sermon" at chapel, which was held every day. I noticed that when my students stood up to preach, they had a handkerchief doubled up in one hand and kept it there throughout the sermon. One by one day after day that occurred. I was mystified but said nothing for fear I would discourage the student. But those handkerchiefs, never used to wipe a brow, began to distract my attention from what the student was saying.

Now I know most of the preacher boys were high on Jimmy Swaggert at the time (He had not yet fallen). So, I tuned in one Sunday afternoon to hear that "phenomenon."

There it was! Jimmy clutched a handkerchief! But it was obvious why he did so -- the heat from a hundred television lights overhead caused the man to sweat profusely. He could have used seventy times seven handkerchiefs!

So, I went back to the classroom and asked the preacher boys to explain why almost every one of them clutched a handkerchief while preaching. It didn't take much coaxing to get them to admit that they were emulating Swaggert.

Then I dropped a bombshell on them. I told them that their handkerchiefs distracted from their message and declared that Swaggert was a false prophet! One preacher boy, the younger brother of an influential fundy pastor in the area, tried to get me in hot water over that later statement.

It was when Swaggert pretended to be "learned" that he slipped up and gave glimpses of his jaded soul. And that pretense was as evident to me as his kerchief.

But the folly of all handkerchief follies happened one day when one of my students, who surely thought he knew more than the combined faculty, preached a funeral in Paducah, which I was obliged to attend.

Friends, why do preachers change their voices when they get up to preach? Rev. Swell did it that day. And he had that handkerchief in his hand there in that air-conditioned chapel.

Mid-way through his sermon (?), he paused to blow his nose. It was a hearty blow. If something was up his snout it surely came out. Perhaps that was his right. But then he slowly opened his handkerchief like the pages of a book and stared for what seemed an eternity at his "production." I wanted to go through the floor.

And then, rather than put the kerchief in his pocket, he wadded it methodically into his left hand, and continued waxing eloquent. The deceased was the only fortunate person in that room that day.

Oops! I've gone on too long. The Almighty willing, I'll take up this theme again next week and hoist my pintad at another group of hanky abusers -- singers.

I take care now, beloved! Until next week, give a measure of meditation to the wisdom of the late Alphaeus D. Krenkendadde, long-time yard manager for the L&N, and part-time collector of barber scissors, who said, "The surest sign a man was not great is when he strives to look great." Women, too, Alphaeus.

into the seam and dumped the contents into a used butter bucket.

She had a nearby quart of seeds, about half of which were heavily weighted and half as round and smooth as a ball bearing.

"The slick ones are salad peas, what you call snow peas, and the wrinkled ones are an old-fashioned tender hull that's been around as long as I can remember. They're so different that it's easier to separate them than it is to sew up two different bags."

She began shaking the bucket and within a few seconds most of the wrinkled seeds were on top of the round ones because the salad peas were obviously much heavier. I grabbed another butter bowl sitting on the kitchen table and it took no more than a minute to have the varieties separated.

"Are you planting any beside peas today?"

"Let's see if we have any space left," she said.

"If I had some onion sets we'd stick'em right in with the peas. Seems like they both do better when you plant them like that than they do by themselves."

Outside in the garden which was easily a quarter of an acre, a patch about six feet wide and 50 feet long had been filled to perfection with two furrows as straight as arrows down the middle.

"My neighbor tills it up for me and I let him borrow my Troybilt," she said. "I may be 83 years old but I can still run the tiller. It just hurts my shoulder to try and get it started. My Grandson says he's gonna rig me up an electric starter. Once you get it started it'll just about plow by itself."

"I was gonna try them hoops you talk about growing your stuff on, but I don't have any wire and neither of these really need staking if you plant them in rows pretty close to each other -- just barely wide enough for the tiller to get through."

We planned half the salad peas side by side in the first half of the two rows and the snap peas went on the other half. Exactly enough seed to complete both rows without any left over. She had two five gallon bags of dried chicken manure which I broadcast over the seed while she followed behind and kicked the loose black soil over that. We're talking a garden soil to die for here.

"I usually plant the same amount of everything from year to year so I know about how much to save of everything."

I don't buy much seed except for lettuce and sweet corn. I sure do love that candy corn and you can't save the seed because it's hybrid, but turnips and mustard are real easy to save."

"You come back about the middle of March and I might let you help me hoe these out," she said. "Bring Loretta and maybe me and her will fix a good dinner while you do the hoeing." She threw back her head and laughed at the sky.

It was a good day and the peas were in the ground.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED, BUT NOT COX SERVICE

Some things never go out of style, things like integrity, kindness, compassion, understanding and a willingness to serve. Because we have been serving families in Rockcastle County since 1907, we have never forgotten the way service used to be...when people gave that extra effort and when service went far beyond the expected.

Although we continually work to meet the changing needs of today's families, we remember that quality funeral service, professional assistance and a genuine, sincere concern for anyone's funeral needs has maintained our reputation throughout four generations of our family.

We are committed to continuing that same philosophy of service—because some things should never change.

Our Readers Write

Dear Editor,
I am a citizen of Rockcastle and have been most of my life. I have seen a lot of county officials come and go in my 53 years of life. Some good and some bad, but I'm beginning to think we have some in office now that cares very little about the citizens of our county.

I found out Monday about our water advisory and this had been going on for three days then. The way I heard it was from another person, using the water all along not knowing it wasn't suppose to have been drunk. A lot of people voted for you people in office now and trusted you, but looks like they trusted the wrong people.

Now, I'm not saying all of our people in office, but a few. Karen King, you or our mayor now. Looks like you could have got the word about our water situation on TV. It probably was on WRVK but I can't pick up WRVK so good where I live and there are other places in our county that WRVK just doesn't come in good.

I called the radio station and I was told that the water personnel just didn't seem to want to give out much information about what was going on.

I called Channel 26 TV, and a lady told me that she had been in Rockcastle County all day, Tuesday, February 2, and heard nothing about a boil water advisory, but she would check into it and she did.

When something like this happens the citizens of our county have the right to know about it and not from hearsay.

The prices we pay for water a month is so high that there ought to be enough money to keep someone on the job that knows enough to try and keep these things from happening.

You people have your jobs now, but there will be the time for you to be re-elected and many more tricks like this water deal and everyone might think twice before re-electing you again. I could write more, but if I wrote all I wanted to say the paper would be full!

Imogene Hurd,
Brookhead, KY

P.S. You all said you put this in the paper. Well, I read the Lexington Herald every day and it wasn't in there. The Mt. Vernon Signal wasn't again for six days after the water advisory.

animal shelter will filter through? Or should a teacher have to keep her window closed in the spring in order to teach effectively without the distraction of yelping dogs in the background? I think...NOT!

I hope the county community members and parents will take time to research this project. I am certain that my fears are justified and I believe that you will find that the risks far outweigh the benefit of locating R.A.A.P., Inc. next door to our beloved children. As much as I love my own pets, I love my children more... can you say the same?

on for the President's Water 2000 Initiative to bring clean, safe, and reliable water to rural areas. It is hard to believe that there are still hundreds of thousands of families in remote areas of our nation who don't have any water. This Administration is committed to solving this problem. In addition to a budget request that will bring water service to an additional 2 million rural residents, 41,000 new construction-sector jobs will be created.

At the same time, the budget follows up on Vice President Gore's goal of creating additional on-ramps to the Information Superhighway through USDA's Distance Learning and Telemedicine program (an increase from $12 million to $20 million), allowing thousands of school children the ability to obtain high quality education even in some of the most remote areas of the nation. The same goes for providing rural doctors, nurses and patients with the ability to work with medical specialists hundreds of miles away — which is actually saving lives.

Last year, the U.S. reached an other milestone - the highest homeownership rate in our nation's history (66.8%). In America's smaller cities and towns, USDA's 2000 housing budget would create an additional 30,000 new homeowners and improve over 11,000 existing homes. The budget proposes modest increases for most of the rural housing programs, including the "Self-Help Program," where residents actually build their own homes with the help of neighbors in their community.

Finally, the budget continues to strongly support USDA's rural business programs and calls for funding which will create or save approximately 100,000 jobs. And the funds that support our nation's small rural businesses are leveraged to a great extent by other public and private dollars.

The Clinton-Gore budget does all this, in addition to other critical rural actions items like new investments to preserve farmland and open spaces, intensifies our fight against foodborne illness, and helps feed America's hungry."

Dear Editor,
"A Long Thompson Under Secretary USDA Rural Development" Having spent most of my life in rural America, it seemed to me that many of our Federal government's programs and policies were designed for the urban centers and their suburbs. Our smaller communities, where 60 million of us make our homes, have historically had to struggle to be recognized for the challenges we face and for the strength we add to our country. We had to work in rural America to get lost in the shadow of our urban neighbors. Two Sons of Rural America - President Bill Clinton from Hope, Arkansas and Vice President Al Gore from Carthage, Tennessee - have worked to change all that. They have made investing in rural America a priority for their Administration.

The budget President Clinton and Vice President Gore submitted to Congress this week continues to build upon their fiscal responsibility and rural commitment that will lead to a stronger nation as we move toward the next century. Their budget for fiscal year 2000 is not only balanced, it has a surplus that helps to keep interest rates and inflation low in the private sector. It is also balanced in its priorities and contains funding that will help rural communities help themselves to grow in strength and sustainability.

On key policies areas that impact rural families, the budget is stronger and smarter than ever. For example, it calls for adding funds ($153 mil-

Dear Editor & Roundstone Community,
I am a concerned parent and member of the Roundstone community and I am writing in regards to the facility in which Rockcastle Adoption Agency for Pets, Inc. (RAAP, Inc) is planning to build adjacent to Roundstone Elementary School.

While I sympathize with the growing need for shelter and care for the neglected animals of our county, I strongly oppose the plan of building such a shelter within the very reach of our children. As a parent, I like to feel that my child is safe at school as she would be at home and up to this point I have not had any reason to believe otherwise. However, I can not believe that her safety will not be jeopardized with the placement of the animal shelter within an arms reach.

Not only is safety a factor, but the noise level, smell and unsupervised dropping of animals in the evenings will also affect the environment in which our children spend five days of the week. Do you really want your child to play on a playground or eat in a cafeteria in which the odors of an

Fairview News

By Mrs. Hubert Chasteen

Hello to all.
Hope you are well and happy.
I hear of a number of folks having the flu. That is a bad illness, but I hope (if you have it) you will be better soon.
We have for the past few days had some beautiful weather. Temperatures have been near 70 degrees at times. The blessed bright sunshine makes us feel better and lifts our spirits. We can't even thank God enough for His wonderful blessings.

We, at the Fairview Baptist Church enjoyed a wonderful weekend, good attendance Sunday morning and a good message by our Pastor, Rev. Harvey Pensol, and our Sunday School attendance was 149. On Sunday night a Baptism service was conducted. And also we had a baptizing Sunday night, January 31st. We welcome these young boys into our fellowship. They have our love and prayers.

My mother, Liddie Reppert, passed away February 6, 1975 and my sister, Berna Vaughn died January 27, 1980. I miss her so much but I have that wonderful hope of meeting them both again some day. (Thanks to my sister for the poem she had printed in the Signal last week.)

We extend our heart-felt sympathy to all those who have lost loved ones recently, including A.J. Barrett of Berea. The Reppert and Barrett families have been friends for many years and we love them. They have many friends in and around the Scafold Cana area. May God bless and comfort them in our prayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gabbard of Berea visited Mrs. Hallie Alexander one day last week.
Mr. and Mrs. Bluford Seals of Berea visited Mrs. Mary Cope on Sunday.

Mrs. Jewell Davidson celebrated her birthday Friday at the home of her mother, Mrs. Hallie Alexander.
On Sunday night, Jenia Davidson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Davidson celebrated her birthday at her home with relatives and friends attending. Besides her family, others present for the celebration were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Isaacs and sons, Mrs. Hallie Alexander and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Alexander and family of Mareburg. Pizza and refreshments were served and the evening was enjoyed very much.

Mr. Mary Cope spent three days last week with her son and his wife, William and Joyce Cope of Eaubank.
Some of our recent guests have been Joyce Seals and daughter Kim, Wayne and Carolyn Chasteen, Ricky Adams and Tip Reppert.

Remember Church and Sunday School. Let's pray for one another, we never outgrow the need of prayer.
Mrs. Jewell Davidson and daughter, Jenia enjoyed a nice lunch at a Richmond restaurant Sunday.

In Memory of Bonnie Rader

See Me I'm There

I ask you now why do you cry?
I'm not in the ground,
I did not die.
Look up in the stars in the sky
Shining so bright at night
Ever so bright.
See the puffy clouds so high?
See me, I'm there.

The sparkling of the new fallen snow
The gentle breeze that blows and sways
The tree waving their leaves
Dancing together in the soft breeze.
See me, I'm there.

The gentle rain that comes in the Spring
And brings new life to all things.
The flowers, raising above the ground,
To kiss the sky and dance around.
See me, I'm there.

Listen to the music as it quiets the soul.
Flowing gently upward from a church below.
Can you hear the voices singing of praise
See me, I'm there.

Now I asked of you, why do you cry?
I am not in the grave, I did not die.
I live in the beauty of you Here and see and forever I'll keep you close to me

See me, I'm there.
We'll love you forever.
Your family
Your wife, Sue;
Children, Benny, Connie, Ashley & Grandchildren, Joey and Cody

In Loving Memory of Pauline Hammond
I would rather be ashes than dust. I would rather that my spark should burn out in a brilliant blaze than it should be stifled by dry rot. I would rather be a superb meteor, every atom of me in magnificent glow than a sleepy and permanent planet. The proper function of man is to live, not to exist. I shall not waste my days in trying to prolong them. I shall use my time. Sadly missed by family, friends and grandchildren

Girls lose to Generals; fall to third in region

The Jackson Co. Lady Generals won the battle last Friday night but lost the war.

The Generals needed to defeat the Lady Rockets by more than the 12 point loss they suffered in the two team's first meeting at Rockcastle to get the first seed in the district. They managed only a 78-71 win Friday night on their home court.

The loss dropped the Rockets to third in the region, behind Jackson County in first and Harlan in second, although the power points are very close between the three teams.

A balanced scoring attack by the Rockets in the first quarter, gave them a 19-15 lead at the end of that period. But, only a four point output in the second quarter put the Rockets behind 29-23 at half-time. The Generals moved out to their biggest lead of the game 53-39 early in the third quarter and everytime the Rockets would come up with the big plays to cut into the lead, the Generals would respond with a mini-run of their own to regain a comfortable margin.

With the lead at 71-62 and 1:10 to go in the game, the Rockets began their parade to the free throw line where they hit 9 of 12 to keep the margin under 12 at 78-71 and the first seed in the district tournament intact.

After only a 5 point output in the first half, Suzanne Brown came back in the second half to tie the Tiffany McClure for game scoring honors with 18. McClure, who re-injured her ankle very early in the first quarter but re-entered the game about two minutes later, was 9 for 11 from the free throw line while the team as a whole was 29 for 42. Brooke Roberts was the only other Lady Rocket in double figures with 14; Brandy Reynolds got 9; Jessie Rickles 8 and Jessica Cobb 4.

The Rockets are scheduled to take on Bell County Thursday night (tonight) and will play a doubleheader with the boys Feb. 19 at home against Williamsburg

14-10 on season

Rockets beat North Laurel, lose to Jackson and Harlan.

The Rockcastle Rockets lost two heart-breaking games last Friday and Saturday nights by a total of four points.

The Friday night loss came at the hands of district rival Jackson County at Jackson County, a hard place to win.

The Rockets lost by two, 65-63, as Jackson County hit two free throws with 13.3 seconds to go and Rockcastle could not get the shot to fall before time ran out.

The Rockets gave up two possessions in the first quarter and got down by two before Andrew Cash got the jumper to even the score.

The Rockets and Generals traded two rounds of turnovers before Matthew Brown stole the ball and went in for the score.

Brown and Cash scored the Rockets next four points to give the Rockets the 8-4 lead, but it would not last as Jackson County scored their own four unanswered points.

Brown and Cash scored Rockcastle's final four points of the quarter to go up 12-10 to end the first quarter.

The second quarter saw the Rockets Cash and Stevie Bradley score to give Rockcastle a 16-10 lead before Jackson County scored a free throw.

Layne Nicely added two more points to the Rockets lead as did Brown and Cash, giving Rockcastle their biggest lead of the game, 23-13.

Rockcastle would not score again in the second quarter, however, and gave up four points to the Generals.

The Rockets went into the locker room at half time up six, 23-17.

Rockcastle had a bad third quarter, being outscored by the General by nine, 26-17.

Cash scored the first five points of the second half for the Rockets and a steal and a score by Nicely kept Rockcastle in the lead, 30-24.

A Jackson County General was called for an intentional foul on a Nicely three, sending him to the line where he connected for two free throws.

Jackson County went on a 7-0 run thereafter to cut the Rocket lead to one 32-31 before Bradley connected on a three to stop the General run.

Brown got a three the old fashioned way, scoring the bucket and hitting the free throw after a foul.

The Rockets did not score again, while giving up nine points to the Generals, until Blake Calhoun scored at the buzzer and cutting the General lead to three, 43-40.

The Rockets outscored the Generals 23-22 in the fourth quarter, but it was not enough as they lost their ninth game of the season, 65-63.

The Rockets kept the score close during the first minutes of the fourth with scores by Cash, Brown and Bradley, but could not gain the lead.

Good defense by Bradley, who blocked a shot out of bounds and then a steal by Brown gave the ball back to Rockcastle and Cash hit a three to finally give the Rockets the one points lead, 51-50.

Two baskets by Bradley and a made free throw by Cash gave the Rockets the 56-52 lead.

Brown scored the next four points for Rockcastle, giving them their biggest lead of the quarter, 60-54.

Jackson County hit a three to cut the lead in half but Nicely hit the layup to go up 62-57.

Jackson County score the next four points to come within one, 62-61, and Cash hit a free throw to put the Rockets back up two, 63-61.

Jackson tied the game at 63-63 with 35 seconds to go and Rockcastle rushed a shot to win but did not make the basket and fouled Jackson County on the rebound to send them to the line with 13.3 seconds to go.

Jackson County hit both free throws and Rockcastle got a shot off but could not score.

Rockcastle, now 13-10, met up with the Harlan Green Dragons on Saturday for the two point loss, 57-55.

Harlan, 21-4, and ranked #1 in 13th region won the hard-fought battle but it took them the wire to do so.

Rockcastle played their best game of the new year, finally playing team basketball, working for good shots and looking for the big men.

Rockcastle got down 5-0 but Matthew Brown hit a three to get his evening off to a roaring start.

Stevie Bradley hit a three on Rockcastle's next possession, going up 6-5 and causing Harlan to take a time out.

Harlan scored on their next two possessions and Rockcastle did not, but Andrew Cash finally connected for a two to cut the Dragon lead to two, 10-8.

The Rockets got down by seven,

15-8 before Brown hit a basket to put the Rockets in double digits.

Harlan did not score again the first quarter and Cash scored to cut the Dragon lead to three, 15-12.

Brown, who had his best game of the season, scored the first three points of the second quarter to tie the game at 15-15.

Harlan scored, but Brown scored again to tie the game at 17-17 and cause another Harlan time out.

Harlan scored a three to go up 20-17 but Jacob Burdette answered with a three of his own to tie the score 20-20.

A bad run for Rockcastle thereafter resulted in an 8-0 run for the Dragons before Cash scored to stop Harlan's run.

Rockcastle and Harlan traded possession, four for the Rockets and three for the Dragons, without a score, with Brown blocking a Harlan shot on their last possession before they finally put it in the hole to go back up eight.

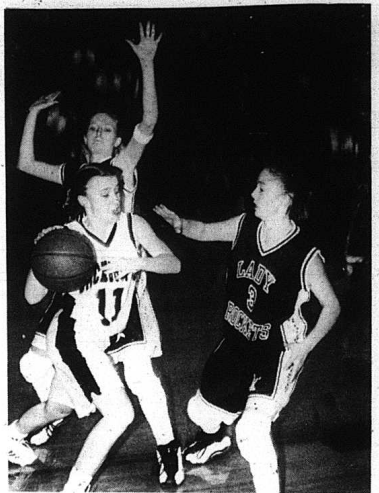

Bradley sank a three at the end of the half to pull the Rockets back to within five, 30-25.

Rockcastle came out roaring after half time, outscoring the Dragons 17-13 in the third.

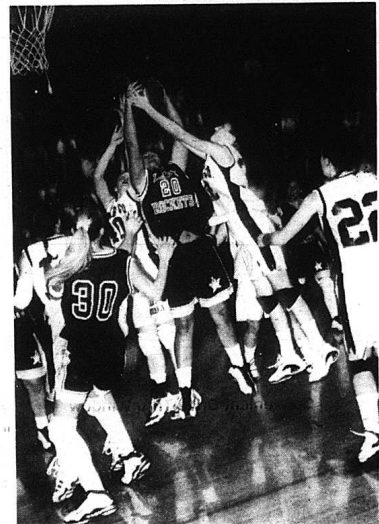

Nicely and Brown scored, a three and a two respectively, to keep the Rockets within five, 35-30.

Nicely and Brown scored again, the next four Rockcastle points, giving the Rockets the momentum.

Local business changes names

The Kentucky Stone Company announced last week that their name has been changed to Hanson Aggregates Midwest, reflecting the name of their parent company, Hanson Building Materials America (HBMA).

Hanson Aggregates Midwest operates 31 crushed stone and five hot mix asphalt plants in a four-state area including one operation in the Mt. Vernon area. The Mt. Vernon Quarry on U.S. 150 has been part of the Hanson group since 1991, but had continued to operate under the Kentucky Stone name until January 19, 1999.

According to John Lawson, President of Hanson Aggregates Midwest, the name change is the result of structural changes and a new focus at the HBMA level.

"Hanson is the third largest supplier of aggregates in the United States, but has not been recognized as such because our locations have operated under different names. This change clarifies our ownership and unifies our company," he said.

Lawson hopes that the new entrance signs to the locations and the way the telephones are now being answered with the Hanson name will not confuse any customers. "We want our customers, our vendors and our neighbors in the community to know that we are still the same company that we were before," he said. "We have the same owner and the same employees, and most importantly we have the same commitment to the quality of our products and services that has been the hallmark of our business for many years."

Hanson is an international building company with more than 15,000 people working primarily in the United States, the United Kingdom and continental Europe. In addition to being the third largest producer of construction aggregates in the U.S., Hanson is the second largest producer of concrete pipes in the U.S., the second largest aggregate producer and the largest producer of concrete pipes and blocks in the UK, and the leading European facing brick manufacturing company.

Cash took a charge for Rockcastle, and the Rockets went on a 6-0 run, with a basket by Brown and two by Christopher Parsons, who came into the game to give the Rockets the spark they needed to end the quarter only down one, 43-42.

Brown, who was hot, came out in the fourth quarter to hit a three and put the Rockets up by two, 45-43. Nicely scored to keep the Rockets up three, 47-44, but it was not to be as Harlan fired back with five unanswered points to regain the lead 49-47.

Brown tied the score at the 5:09 mark and then Cash hit the Rocket again, 51-51 at the 5:00 mark. Nicely hit a layup to give the Rockets the two point lead, but Harlan tied the game again at 53-53.

Cash tied the game again, 55-55, at the 1:37 mark, and Harlan was sent to the line where they hit the one and bonus to go to two, 57-55. Rockcastle had a chance to either tie or win the game, holding the ball for the last second shot but it was blocked out of bounds.

Rocketcastle got the ball back with 4.9 seconds to go but could not get the shot off for the win.

FSA Director ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY INCENTIVE PROGRAM (EQIP)
 The FSA office will be holding an EQIP sign-up February 1st through February 26, 1999. EQIP funds conservation practices on cost sharing basis for approved technical practices which include but are not restricted to: Waste Utilization, Conservation Crop Rotation, Forage Harvest Management, Prescribed Grazing, Hayland Management and Stripcropping. All practices available will be cost shared up to 75% by the FSA Agency. For more information please contact the FSA office by the deadline of February 26, 1999.

MARKETING CARDS
 Producers are reminded to return marketing cards to the FSA office immediately after sales.

Producers who had marketing cards at the London Tobacco Warehouse, London, which burned are reminded of the following:

1. furnish the local FSA with tobacco sale bills for report of marketings (sales bills include pounds sold and amount received)
2. request the issuance of another card for additional sales as necessary.

DISASTER LEASING
 As a condition for approving a burley tobacco disaster lease, the producer must file an application for disaster credit. For those who suffered a 20% loss due to a natural disaster and are approved the disaster leasing program is available through February 16, 1999. A listing is made public with the use of bulletin board space.

If you are a producer with extra tobacco wishing to market shall provide to the FSA office evidence of additional tobacco to market above the 105%. Producers shall provide FSA a factual estimate as to the extra pounds or copy of the tobacco weight sheet for those pounds. These extra pounds determine the amount of poundage which a producer may lease into the farm under disaster provisions.

NEW BURLEY TOBACCO FARM QUOTAS
 The Rockcastle County Farm Service Agency wishes to announce it is once again time to accept applications for new burley tobacco farm quotas. These applications will be taken through February 16th.

Before an allotment or quota is recommended it must be determined that each applicant meets all eligibility requirements as set forth in the guidelines for burley tobacco. Eligibility requirements include: Producer has NO burley tobacco quota, has land suitable for tobacco production, has 2 of 5 years marketing history of burley tobacco and 50% of all household income is received from farming.

Any person wishing to make an application for a new burley tobacco farm allotment should contact the FSA office in the county where the farm is located NO later than February 16th.

SMALL HOG OPERATION PROGRAM (SHOP)
 Vice President Gore announced Friday, January 8, 1999, that the Department of Agriculture (USDA) will make approximately $50 million in direct cash payments to small hog producers to help them weather the current economic crisis.

Producers will qualify for direct cash payments if they (1) marketed fewer than 1,000 hogs during the last six months of 1998, and (2) are still in operation. Two restrictions apply. First, producers are not eligible for payments on hogs marketed under fixed-price or cost-plus contracts.

Second, any operation whose gross income for 1998 was greater than 2.5 million dollars will not be eligible for payments, as is true for USDA's crop disaster assistance programs.

Eligibility is based on marketing during the last six months of 1998 to avoid distorting current marketings. The six month period also accommodates the marketing practices of small producers who may not market hogs every week or month, but who need help to weather current economic crisis.

Payments will be made through USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) local offices. From February 1, 1999 to February 12, 1999, FSA will conduct a sign-up for the payment program. During this sign-up period, producers will be required to apply for the program at their local FSA office.

Payments will be made about two or three weeks after the end of the sign-up period.

FSA programs are open to all regardless of race, color, religion, national origin, age, sex, marital status or disability.

Conservation District Cost Share Program announced

FSA programs are open to all regardless of race, color, religion, national origin, age, sex, marital status or disability. Producers will be required to apply for the program at their local FSA office. Payments will be made about two or three weeks after the end of the sign-up period. FSA programs are open to all regardless of race, color, religion, national origin, age, sex, marital status or disability.

animal waste related problems and agricultural district participants where pollution problems have been identified. Funding for the program is provided by the Kentucky Department of Agriculture as a result of an increase in the pesticide products registration fee and several fund appropriations to both the Department of Agriculture and the Division of Conservation by the General Assembly. Practices eligible for cost share:

INCENTIVE TO BUY CROP INSURANCE

Up to $400 million will be used as an incentive for farmers to buy higher levels of crop insurance in the 1999 crop year. All farmers purchasing Federal Crop Insurance (FCIC) will get a one time special 25-25 percent premium discount on purchasing buy up coverage. Farmers having purchased FCIC in 1998 buy up protection will automatically receive the premium discount, however, farmers choosing not to insure crops with FCIC in last September will have the same opportunity to apply for coverage until March 15, 1999. Farmers may also obtain the catastrophic level of protection (CAT). Limited-revenue farmers do not have to pay the $60 fee for CAT protection if they fill out a waiver that may be obtained from a crop insurance agent. To obtain a listing of approved FCIC agents contact your local FSA office.

County Attorney Jeff Burdette said that the 911 ordinance passed by the court in 1996 required by law that the board move ahead with the enhanced version of 911.

"Everybody just needs to get on the phone page and get this done," Burdette said.

Gary Wade Mink of Mt. Vernon is the acting chairman of the 911 board. The board will meet in the old Circuit Courtroom on third floor of the courthouse, Thursday at 6 p.m.

Enhanced 911 will likely be discussed. The meeting is open to the public.

In other action the court agreed to purchase a police cruiser from the City of Broadhead for $1,000, to haul prisoners to other jails in the state and to fix the transport car wreck last year.

Jail still not open

The court also was told that it would be at least 30 and possibly 60 more days before the Rockcastle County Jail re-opened, although only minor letters are left to be completed.

Magistrate Bill McKinney and Judge Carolotis told project manager Charles Rawlings to get the project completed now.

"Get whomever is supposed to be down there, down there and get this done, enough time has been wasted," McKinney said.

Jailer James Miller reminded the court that for every month the jail is not open the county loses approximately $130,000 in revenue.

"When the facility finally opens, it will have the capacity to hold 60 full-time prisoners."

Hall of Fame Project

The court also voted to request that the county be paid $100 a month to do the paperwork on the County Music Hall of Fame project, citing extra man hours by the county required to do the necessary work on the $2 million project. The court also pointed out that they would be required to bare the expense of an audit and its publication, without reimbursement.

Judge Carolotis told project director Judy Duerson he would not sign an agreement with Cumberland Valley Area Development District to continue with the project until her board agreed to pay the $100. Duerson said she would take the matter before her board as soon as possible.

Library Contract

The court agreed to a new four year contract with the Rockcastle County Library board, in which they will lease the present building to the board for $5.00 per year for five more years.

The court also requested that the board pay half of the utilities with the court would continue to pay the insurance on the building, half of the utilities and the maintenance on the building.

Board chairman Allen Pensol told the court that was agreeable.

Pensol also told the court that 76,904 people had visited the library in the past two years.

The court also appointed Corey Craig to the library board.

Settlements accepted

The court also accepted the settlements of County Clerk Norma Houk and Sheriff Shirley Smith. Houk's office took in nearly $1.7 million in 1998 and had excess fees of $37,178.

Smith's office operated on a budget of $133,127 with excess receipts of $745.

The court also tabled a request by Smith to set his deputies salaries at a combined $120,000 a year. That is a figure not to exceed. The court will discuss it next month.

Appointments

With the approval of the court, Judge Carolotis appointed Roy Reynolds and Millie Eaton to the Extension Board and Doug Mullins as County Surveyor.

"Attendance"

"We think it is leveling off and we probably won't call school off this week because of the sickness," Hammond said.

At three of the county's five schools attendance was higher on Wednesday than it was on Tuesday, but overall, one more student was absent on Wednesday than was on Tuesday.

The Rockcastle County Middle School had the most students absent, Wednesday 123 did not show up for school and many more were sent home after they got there. On Tuesday 103 were absent at RCMMS.

At Rockcastle County High School attendance was better on Wednesday with only 83 students absent compared to 109 on Tuesday.

At Broadhead 38 students were absent on Wednesday, compared to 45 on Tuesday.

At Roundstone, 26 were absent Wednesday with 32 absent on Tuesday.

At the county's largest elementary school about 65 students of the 815 enrolled were absent Wednesday, up from 41 on Tuesday.

parents, staff and students. Other short term recommendations for a better, safer learning environment included: increasing the number of adult bus monitors, providing more professional development on the matter of safety for all staff and volunteers, implementing a dress code and limiting the things students can carry in their backpacks.

Some of the long term recommendations for safer schools called for an alternative schools, the hiring of more guidance counselors, smaller class sizes and security guards. The local board approved the committee's recommendation earlier this year.

Powell said the local safety committee would meet again in March.

The CVADD serves Bell, Clay, Harlan, Jackson, Knox, Laurel, Rockcastle and Whitley counties, and provides economic development services to the eight counties. The agency contracts out the senior citizen programs to each of the local county committees, and provides budgeting and personnel services to the cities and counties located within the District. Program details were provided to the newly elected officials for these and other programs currently operated by the agency. Additionally, information on the day-to-day administrative operations of CVADD District office were provided by the Executive Director, Mr. John L. Bruner II, of London.

Lunce and other members of RAAP have worked diligently in the past several months to establish an animal shelter in Rockcastle County and they are a non-profit organization that operates strictly on dollars they have raised themselves.

Lunce said that her group was somewhat disappointed that the project had to be put on hold, but that parents who met with her group Monday night said they would help look for another location.

Lunce said the group wanted property that was just as good or better as the one they now own. The property they now own was donated to the group by Hobert and Virginia Branscum.

Lunce said the parents voiced concern on five issues: noise, odor, safety, unwanted animals and what the group would do with euthanized animals.

"I thought we answered all their concerns satisfactorily, but we still agreed to hold off on our project until May 12," Lunce said.

The RAAP president said their group would keep a very clean shelter, so as to have no odor, they would put barking dogs inside during school hours, put up a six-foot high fence, possibly topped with barbed wire around the entire shelter and lock animals that had to be put to sleep into a deep freeze until they could be taken to the Lexington Disease and Diagnostic Center.

Lunce also said that the dog run and exercise area would also be fenced into the outer fence.

Lunce said the parents were also concerned about people dropping off animals after hours and not using the drop off cages.

"They thought some dogs may be running loose in the shelter when students arrived at school, but we told them all they had to do was call us and we would come immediately and put them up," Lunce said.

"It would take us about 15 minutes to get to the shelter and I don't think they liked our time frame," she said.

Lunce said that if the parents were unable to find another suitable place for the shelter in 90 days her group plans to continue with the project.

"I thought we had a perfect place, it was also 1,200 feet from the school building," Lunce said.

Pensol said that although the shelter was 1,200 feet from the main school building, it would sit a lot closer than 1,200 feet from the preschool playground at Roundstone.

"I think that really concerned parents," he said.

Thursday afternoon will be our Spring Parent-Teacher Conference Day. Teachers and staff will be available from 3-6:00 p.m. Don't miss this opportunity to communicate with your child's teachers. No report cards will be mailed until after the conference day. After-school tutoring will be cancelled for Thursday due to the conferences.

Remember that Monday, February 15th is President's Day and school will not be in session. We wish a quick recovery to all of those students and teachers who have been stricken with the flu during the past few days. We are having several absences but hope that this flu season is almost at an end.

The RCMS Academic Team competed in Governor's Cup District Competition on Saturday. Congratulations go out to the following winners: Shaina Lewis, 2nd place in Science written assessment; Anna Guilfoil, 3rd in Language Arts; Zach Taylor, 3rd in General Knowledge; Josh Bray, 4th in Math. Excellent performances were also turned in by Doug French, Beth Coleman, Ross McClure, and Daniel Dobbs. Congratulations also to Written Composition finalists: Travis Burton, 1st place; Shaina Lewis, 2nd place; and Ashley Cottrell, 4th place. The Future Problem Solving Team also placed first. Members of that team were Travis Burton, Ashley Cottrell, Shaina Lewis, Jerred Stevens, Justin Rogers, and Beth Coleman. Overall the team placed second in the district and will compete at the regionals on February 20 at Estill County.

The 7th and 8th grade Rockets both began tournament play with wins over the weekend. However, the 8th graders season ended Monday night with a overtime loss to Northern Pulaski. The RCMS Cheerleaders are also competing at the tournaments. Thanks to the Dance Team, Cheerleaders, and RCMS Emcee Travis Burton for boosting our team with a pep rally on Friday. The 6th grade team will play in the Lions Club Tournament beginning next Tuesday.

Next Friday, Mrs. Sizemore will be taking several Choir members to represent RCMS in the Central Kentucky Music Education Association Honor's Choir. Those members include: Melissa Jones, Stacey Purcell, Kasey Scoggin, Heather Adams, Allison Anderkin, Rachel Childress, Ashlee Bowles, Traci Parsons, Jamie Weaver, Jessie Blevins, Jennifer Brown, Tachia Chesnut, Christina Amyx, Daniel Dobbs, and Matthew Mullins.

We will be conducting competition for a school-wide Spelling Bee this week. A winner has been selected from each of the six teams. Among those competing are Michelle Harrison, Beth Coleman, Robert Sandusky, and Anna Guilfoil. There will be a Valentine's Dance this Friday after school from 3-5:00 sponsored by the 4-H clubs. Students must have notes from parents and permission from their teachers to stay for the dance.

Very often, students have problems focusing on reading textbooks. Here are some tips for being sure your child is concentrating on the material he/she is reading. 1) Take notes when reading. This will ensure that the assignment is being read and will give the student a way to review the material before the class. 2) Keep a dictionary nearby to look up unfamiliar words. The meaning of the passage cannot be understood if the word meanings are not known. 3) Stop periodically to ask questions as you go along. What was that passage about? What were the main ideas and how do they fit in with my prior knowledge of the subject. Remember that reading is a very important tool in learning.

Local student receives honors

Mary Beth Browning, a senior at RCHS, was recently named to the Lake Cumberland Academic League All Conference team for the 1998-99 school year. Mary Beth has been a member of the academic team all four of her high school years.

Miss Browning was the first place winner at RCHS in the 1998-99 Voice of Democracy national audio essay contest sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States and its Ladies Auxiliary. Mary Beth's essay about cancer research also won third place in District 11 of the Department of Kentucky Veterans of Foreign Wars. The 1998-99 contest theme was "My Service to America." The VFW's Voice of Democracy Program is now in its 52nd year and currently offers more than $130,000 in scholarships. Students can check the web site vfw.com for information regarding this national essay contest.

Annual Kiwanis radio auction huge success

The Kiwanis Club of Rockcastle County and WRVK was again very successful in their annual radio auction held on January 30th and 31st. The response from the radio audience and the community was simply overwhelming. The phones never stopped ringing which made it hard for some to get through to bid, but overall the Kiwanis Club was very pleased and hopeful that this annual tradition will continue.

The Kiwanis Club of Rockcastle has thirty members who are very active in the community contributing money and supporting the youth in sponsoring the Key Club at the High School and the Builders Club at the Middle School. They have made donations to the Circle K Club at Transy and to the Iodine Deficiency Fund. The club gives a $1,000.00 scholarship annually to a graduating senior at RCHS and sponsors students to 4-H camps and Indian Summer Camps. Last year they helped with special project for the JROTC and made donations to the county library for books, toys and furniture for pre-schoolers. They have purchased items to donate to "terrific kids" program at the schools and donated to Transylvania University Circle K Club who work with inner city children. They have purchased flowers for our city park and provided hanging baskets filled with flowers for the three towns in our county. They sponsor Christmas in the Park with tree lighting ceremony and entertainment. They pay the cost of several prepared meals for needy families and elderly during the holidays. They have a yearly luncheon for our county clergy in recognition of national prayer week. They also recognize a local citizen and award them with the Spiritual Aims Award for the ethical and moral leadership.

Each year the Kiwanis presents the Everett C. Brown Award to a local citizen who provides exceptional contribution towards the betterment and improvement of Rockcastle County. They also send a student each year to Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership Conference. In the past they have raised funds for victims of Oklahoma City Bombing, contributed floats to Christmas parade, contributed to Kuhar Family tragedy, contributed to REAP and sponsored home decorating contest and rummage sales with funds raised going to service projects, sponsored billboards to encourage child immunizations. The members have volunteered for Literacy and educational tutoring, hospice, respiratory care unit at Local Hospital and childrens crusade roadblocks.

The Kiwanis Club members have committed themselves to give primacy to the human and spiritual, to

Library News

By Geraldine Robbins

The initial announcement was made in February, 1998, by Micro-soft CEO Bill Gates and his wife, Melinda. French Gates, that Kentucky's public libraries would be awarded a grant of $2 million for bringing computer and Internet access to their patrons. A year later, it has been announced by James A. Nelson, State Librarian and Commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Libraries and Archives (KDLA) that Kentucky's public libraries have begun to receive their checks from the Gates Library Initiative (GLI), and the statewide roll out is under way. I am pleased to say that Rockcastle County Public Library has received our check and we are now just waiting for the computers to arrive. This will probably not be until late March or April but we are getting prepared by having some new electrical work done and having computer drops placed where the new computers will be placed. This must all be completed before the computers arrive.

While the total cash grant to Kentucky's public libraries totals more than $2 million, the Gates Technology Initiative is also providing technical assistance and training through, the Gates Center for Technology Access and Microsoft Corporation is donating the equivalent dollar amount in software. GCTA is now conducting training workshops throughout the state and further training will be offered with the cooperation of KDLA.

We were very fortunate to have had the local donations, two years ago, that allows us to have the three computers for public access. I was in a workshop recently with about eleven or twelve other library directors and with the exception of one other library, we were the only one to have more than one computer for public access and most of the other libraries were in larger counties than Rockcastle County. Again, I say THANKS to those organizations in our county for helping our library to be a step ahead.

I also want to say thanks to Carol, Linda and Pam for helping me with the articles that you read each week. They are able to give you information on other facets of library work such as the bookmobile, the children's services and Carol has great things to tell you about and other things that are going on in the library.

The library has a new reference book that I would like to make our patrons aware of especially students of architecture. The title is AMERICAN ARCHITECTS by a Rockcastle County lady, Joanne Guilfoif. Joanne was in compiling this book, it was her intent to: 1. Bring as much of the essence of each architect's ideas as students can appreciate in a true story line that makes sense to them. 2. Tell true stories about real places students can visit, and make the places and people come alive. 3. Unfold the legacy of all we have as a community of users. 4. Provide design experiences which demand art skills and ideas that are recorded in a journal.

As always we do have new books for your reading pleasure. Some of them are:

1. OTHER WORLDS by Barbara Michaels... Three masters of mystery put their minds to a pair of gripping stories of families beset by poltergeisty pranks and bewitched by inexplicable horrors.

In the hollows of Tennessee, a family is threatened by a dire spirit whose predictions of despair and death come frightening true.

In a small Connecticut town, a newly married widow and her children move into her second husband's home to find their lives possessed by an unimaginable demon.

Were these villains phantoms from beyond or evildoers of flesh and blood? Each expert has a theory. Which of them is correct?

2. THE TESTAMENT by John Grisham... Tony Phelan is a self made billionaire, one of the richest men in the United States. He is also eccentric, reclusive, confined to a wheelchair, and looking for a way to die. His heirs, to no one's surprise especially Troy, are circling like vultures.

Nate O'Riley is a high-octane Washington litigator who's lived too hard, too fast, for too long. His second marriage in shambles, he is emerging from his fourth stay in rehab armed with little more than his fragile sobriety, good intentions and a resilient sense of humor. Returning to the real world is always difficult, but this time it's going to be murder.

Rachel Lane is a young woman who chooses to give her life to God, who walked away from the modern world with its strivings and trappings and encumbrances, and went to live and work with a primitive tribe of Indians in the deepest jungles of Brazil.

In a story that mixes legal suspense with a remarkable adventure, their lives are forever altered by the startling secret of The Testament.

3. THE DESERT CROPP by Catherine Cookson... Shocking tragedy unexpectedly frees a young man to pursue the love and happiness that were unattainable in this family saga. Money was tight in the farming community around Felburn, England, in the 1880's, so when Hector Stewart, only two years after the death of his wife, announces to his children, Daniel and Patty, that he is going to marry Moira Copecley, a distant wealthy relative, it is easy to discern his motive. As for Moira, who had never been entirely honest about her background or finances, it is with some surprise when she arrives and realizes she is now the mistress of a ramshackle farm without any servants.

The children leave home soon after to escape the difficulties that lay before them with their new stepmother. And then a horrifying act of violence produces an even more shocking act of retribution in the family. Catherine Cookson, who remains, even after her death in 1998, one of the world's best loved historical novelists.

4. THE RESOLUTION DIET by Dr. David Heber... In the Resolution Diet you will learn: 1. The basic principles behind losing weight. 2. The Trigger Food Strategy. 3. The use of meal replacements. 4. The secret of portion control. 5. Every-day eating strategies. More new books are available at the library.

The Family Room

By Dr. Don Whitehead

The Elderly Have A High Rate of Depression

John's family rushed him to the hospital when they found him unconscious on the living room floor. (All characters are fictitious.) John was 72 and lived alone, and one of his children checked on him everyday. As they waited in the emergency room, his family speculated about what could be wrong with Dad. He had seemed in good health for a man his age.

Finally the doctor came to talk with the family. "Your father took too much of his medication," he told them, "and came very close to dying. I think he probably tried to end his life."

The family was shocked, to say the least. "Dad would never do such a thing!" his oldest son protested. "Dad's always been such a happy-go-lucky kind of person."

John's family has run head-on into the problem of depression in the elderly. An increasing number of persons 65 and older are suffering from depression and John is one of them.

Since their mother died two years ago, John's children had noticed that he was quieter than usual. They also realized that he sometimes had trouble remembering things and grew agitated more easily. Occasionally there was some confusion.

His family attributed these changes in John to his advancing age. "Every body forgets a little as they get older," one of his daughters had said. They even speculated that John might be developing Alzheimer's disease. (Symptoms of depression in the elderly are sometimes misdiagnosed as being caused by some type of dementia, such as Alzheimer's.)

While people over the age of 65 make up only 13% of the population, they account for 25% of all suicides. (Statistics are from the National Alliance for Research on Schizophrenia and Depression.) Each year more than 6,300 older adults take their own lives.

Much is heard about teenage suicide, but white males over the age of 80 have the highest suicide rate of all Americans. Older people who attempt suicide succeed more often than teenagers, too. Over the age of 65, one in four suicide attempts results in death. In young people (15-24) there is one death for every 100-200 attempts.

Depression can be a fatal disease, and it nearly was for John. After his family thought about it for awhile, they began to realize that John had been depressed for some time. His physical complaints (headaches, constipation, fatigue) had been increasing over the past two years. They also realized that he had been isolating himself, spending more time at home alone.

What caused John's depression? With most depression, John's had more than one cause. The death of his wife two years ago was the trigger for the depression. After being married for 53 years, John found it hard to adjust to life alone. His marriage had not always been a happy one, but John missed his wife's companionship.

There was also a chemical component to John's depression. His father and two of his uncles had suffered from depression and John had probably inherited the chemical imbalance that makes depression possible. As his family looked back over the years, they could recognize other times when John had been depressed, even before this last episode.

Is there help for John? Certainly. The doctor prescribed an antidepressant medication to help John feel better and assured the family that this medication was not addictive. The family took greater pains to get John out of the house. He loved spending time with his grandchildren, so they planned activities when he could do just that. In just a few weeks they began to see an improvement in his mood.

Home heating safety

Although residents of the region were spoiled by the mild temperatures in November and early December, chilly temperatures have returned to the area and with them, the need to heat homes safely.

Kosair Children's Hospital offers the following tips for keeping your home safe and warm this winter season.

Heating Apparatus Safety

Fireplaces should be checked for closed or blocked flues and accumulated soot or debris in the chimney. In addition, check all flues and chimneys for cracks, corrosion, holes, debris and blockages. Do not use fireplaces to burn evergreens or wreaths as a means of disposal after the holidays. They are likely to flare out of control and send flames and smoke into the room. Also, do not burn wrapping paper because it often contains metallic materials which can be toxic if burned.

Portable radiant heaters are for use in outdoor activities only and should never be used for heating enclosed spaces.

Space heaters should be vented properly and should never be placed on or near flammable items.

Furnaces must be installed by professionals and inspected annually to assure that they are in good working order and that exhaust gases can escape from the home properly.

Carbon Monoxide Warnings

Children are at greatest risk for carbon monoxide poisoning. Every year more than 1,700 children age five and under are hospitalized due to preventable exposure to carbon monoxide. During the winter months, increased use of heating equipment adds to the risk of such incidents.

"It is important to be cautious when using your heating appliances during the winter months," warns Sharon Rengers, R.N., Kosair Children's Hospital Office of Child Advocacy. "Infants and children are at higher risk of being poisoned by carbon monoxide because they have higher oxygen requirements and carbon monoxide directly interferes with oxygen delivery to vital organs."

Detecting carbon monoxide can be difficult without the use of a detector designed to sound an alarm before dangerous levels of the gas accumulate. Carbon monoxide poisoning resembles flu-like or food-poisoning symptoms, including headache, nausea, fatigue, dizziness and diarrhea. If you believe that someone in your household has been exposed to carbon monoxide gas, the following precautions should be taken:

• Ventilate the home by opening windows, doors and turning on ventilation fans.

• Turn off any fuel-burning appliances, including fireplaces and gas stoves.

• Evacuate the area and contact the fire department, utility company or emergency services from a neighbor's phone. Remain outside the home until it has been cleared by response personnel.

The Kentuckiana Regional Poison Control Center can answer additional questions about carbon monoxide poisoning and safety and help determine if you have been exposed to dangerous levels of carbon monoxide by calling (502)589-8222 or 1-800-722-5725. A free poison center sticker is available by calling Kosair Children's Hospital at (502)629-KIDS or 1-800-852-1770.

Valentine's Day Wish: Be Sweet To Your Heart

By: Hazel Jackson County Extension Agent for Family and Consumer Science

Many Kentuckians think of gifts for their sweethearts as Valentine's Day approaches. One of the best gifts is to be sweet to your heart by recognizing risk factors for coronary heart disease, a leading cause of death in Kentucky and nationwide.

Information from university medical sources and national health agencies gives insight into the severity of coronary diseases.

Kentucky, a part of the "coronary valley", has the fifth worst rate of coronary disease in the nation, according to information from the University of Kentucky Chandler Medical Center. Heart disease is the leading cause of death for adults in the United States, according to the American Heart Association. Cardiovascular disease accounts for 40 percent of all deaths in the U.S., according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. This disease creates an economic burden of nearly $260 million in the costs of health care and lost work productivity.

We can't change some risk factors for heart disease, such as family history, but we do have control over lifestyle behaviors, notably poor nutrition and physical inactivity.

From a dietary standpoint, it's important to decrease fat intake, especially saturated fat, and consume sufficient amounts of fiber and folic acid. Excessive amounts of saturated fat in the diet can raise blood cholesterol levels, which are a high risk factor for heart disease. Eating foods high in saturated fat increases the blood cholesterol level more than eating foods high in vegetables will help ensure that you consume enough fiber, as well as certain vitamins that play a role in preventing heart disease. Folic acid is one of these B vitamins. Most people need about 400 micrograms of folic acid a day.

Some people might be surprised at the varied sources of folic acid in the diet. These can include foods with fortified wheat flour and grain products made with this flour, fortified cereals and dark green foods such as spinach, various kinds of dark green lettuce and broccoli. Orange juice is another natural source of folic acid.

Physical inactivity is another high risk factor for heart disease. A sedentary lifestyle doubles the risk for this disease. Yet it's easy to reduce this risk. Just 30 minutes of moderate physical activity like walking briskly five or more days a week gives substantial health benefits.

Take Good Soil Samples For Reliable Test Results

The saying, "garbage in, garbage out" often is associated with computers. This adage applies to taking soil samples too.

The result of a soil analysis is no better than the sample collected. Since a pound of soil can represent several acres, take samples that depict the area on which you want fertility data.

Take random core samples at a uniform depth throughout the area. Mix cores together well in a clean, dry plastic bucket; then fill the sample bag and take it to the County Extension Office. Analyses will be done at a University of Kentucky soil test laboratory. You will receive a research-based recommendations on lime and fertilizer requirements for the crop or land use.

How many cores should you take for a soil sample? If you are sampling a 5 acre area, take at least 10 cores; 10 acre area, take 15 cores; 20 acre area, take 20 cores. No single sample should represent more than 20 acres.

When sampling a large field, divide it into smaller areas based on soil type, cropping history, or problem areas. Label each area with a letter or number to make record keeping easier.

When collecting soil samples for a home garden or lawn, separate samples according to land use. Take separate samples for a garden, lawn, fruit trees, ornamental shrubs and azaleas, because each may have different fertility, acidity or alkalinity requirements. Take at least 10 cores for each separate area and mix them together well.

How deep you go to take cores depends on the tillage system used. Cores from tilled areas should be taken to plow depth, usually 6-8 inches. Take cores 4 inches deep in no-till fields and pastures.

In home lawns, collect cores at a depth of 4 inches. Take cores 6 inches deep for gardens, ornamentals and fruit trees.

Collect cores at the same time each year so you can compare results from year to year. Although you can take samples through much of the year, fall and spring are the best times to take them. Don't take cores when soil is too wet because it is difficult to mix them well and they are hard to handle. The soil should be dry enough to till when you take samples.

"It Is Written"
We continue our study of Col 3:18-21 as we talk about the home. Today we shall be talking about children.
In verse 20 we read, "Children, obey your parents in the Lord; for this is the will of the Lord." Notice also in Eph 6:1-3, "Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right. Honor thy father and mother, which is the first commandment with promise. That it may be well with thee, and thou mayest live long on the earth." It is a right thing that children obey their parents. Parents are due the honor, respect, and obedience that should be given them. God is well pleased by children who obey their parents. Obedience must first be learned at home, for they must follow the rules of their lives. They will have to obey at school. They will have to obey in society. They will have to obey at the work place. And they must learn to obey God in life. The general promise of a long life will follow those who are obedient. When children are in rebellion at home, there is a good chance that it will spill over into the other areas of life as they grow up. Also let me mention that honoring parents includes taking care of them in their old age. Mk 7:9-13 Paul said it this way, "But if any widow have children or nephews, let them learn first to show piety at home, and to requite their parents: for that is good and acceptable before God." Requite means to repay. Children need to repay the love and care they received growing up back toward their parents in their old age.

KU offers safety advice during power outages

During the winter season, severe weather — from snow and ice to wind and thunderstorms — can lead to downed trees and power lines. Kentucky Utilities Company (KU) encourages customers to "Think Safety" and to be prepared for potential power outages that may result from ice or snow.

When KU receives the first reports of a power outage, service crews spring in to action, working around the clock to restore service as quickly and as safely as possible. During severe weather, KU urges customers to:

- Keep a radio and flashlight nearby. Make sure fresh batteries are available for both.
- Check to see if other parts of the house still have power. A fuse may be blown or a circuit breaker tripped inside your home. If the whole house is without power, see if your neighbors still have lights. If the trouble is confined to your home, you may need the services of an electrician.
- If it is indeed a power outage, call the KU 24-Hour Emergency Service number at 1-800-981-0600. Your calls help the company locate the trouble. Your assistance will help alert KU crews to any dangerous situations, such as fallen lines or poles.
- You can report your outages quickly and easily by using KU's Automated Outage Reporting System. By responding to a series of telephone prompts, you can leave a recorded message about your outage. It will be picked up by one of customer service agents and one of our service crews will be dispatched immediately.
- After you've reported the outage, you can track the progress of service restoration by listening to the radio for updates.
- Turn off major appliances to lessen the load when power is restored. You can leave a single light on to let you know when the outage is over.

After the outage, avoid turning everything back on at once. And...

• Never use camp stoves, barbecue grills and gas lanterns indoors. They give off deadly fumes.

Here are some other guidelines to follow if an outage occurs.

- Consider all fallen wires as potentially dangerous. Stay away from them and from anything — such as a tree limb — that may be touching the wires. Keep others away, too, and call KU's 1-800 number to report the wire's location.

- Avoid touching metal fences or guard rails during or after a storm. A power line could have fallen across it quite a distance away, causing it to be energized.

Avoid hooking a portable generator — or your motor home's generator directly — to house wiring. Improper hook-up can cause electricity to feed from your home to the KU system, energizing supposedly "dead" power lines with thousands of volts of electricity, which would endanger the company's service crews as they work to restore service.

If you buy a permanently installed emergency generator, notify your local KU office. You should have the generator installed by a qualified electrician, making sure the house wiring is isolated from electric utility lines when the generator is in use.

Kentucky Utilities Company, based in Lexington is committed to serving its customers by producing reliable, low-cost electric energy. The company provides electricity to more than 475,000 customers in 77 Kentucky counties and five counties in southwestern Virginia. KU is a subsidiary of G&E Energy Corp., head quartered in Louisville.

The Difference Between Abuse & Neglect

The difference between abuse and neglect is that abuse represents an action against a child while neglect represents a lack of action for the child. In other words, abuse may be thought of as an act of commission while neglect is an act of omission. In abuse, a physical or mental injury is inflicted upon a child. In neglect, there is a failure to meet the minimum needs of the child such as the need for adequate food, supervision, shelter, guidance, education, clothing or medical care. It will be mentioned at this point that abuse may be directed toward only one child in the family while neglect usually involves all the children in the family.

Lori Ferguson, front, second from left; Donna Bullock, front third from left and Michel Nielsen, front right, are working in the Rockcastle County School District this year as AmeriCorps/Student Service Consortium coordinators. AmeriCorps/SSC, headquartered in Eastern Kentucky University's College of Education, institutes service learning, literacy/tutoring and other educational enrichment programs in 23 central and southeastern Kentucky school districts and at other partner sites. In addition, EKV last fall became the first institution of higher education in the Commonwealth and only the 11th nationwide to be named a University of Promise, a new category in the America's Promise program, which emphasizes volunteerism in improving the lives of at-risk youth. All AmeriCorps/SSC coordinators receive a living stipend, as well as an educational award that can be applied toward past or future college expenses, free health care, child care benefits when eligible, and forbearance on education loans during their service period, with AmeriCorps paying the interest on the loans. Others pictured, from left, are Claudina Cash, site supervisor; Nancy Thames, project director; Ruth Billings, KCCCVS grants officer and Anne Jones, program supervisor.

Rockcastle County High School Agriculture teacher Jeff Hayes, of Mt. Vernon, was named one of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture's Outstanding young alumni at the College's Alumni Association's winter meeting. "Outstanding young alumni awards are presented to College of Agriculture graduates whose achievements since graduation have been exemplary," said Grace Gorrell, director of alumni affairs with the UK College of Agriculture. Hayes holds a B.S. degree in agricultural education from the University of Kentucky. He currently operates a farm raising dairy, beef, horses, hay corn and tobacco. Hayes has been active in a variety of organizations, including the Kentucky FFA Alumni and the Kentucky Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association.
