Bills pile up as county jail remains closed

By: Richard Anderkin
How much can one fire door cost you. How about $12,000 or even $20,000 a month.
That seems to be the major thing standing in the way of the re-opening of the Rockcastle County jail.

About two months ago, the state department of corrections came to inspect the jail.
The jail, of course, failed.
Rockcastle County Judge-Executive Buzz Carlotis told the fiscal court that the jail was non-compliant in only two areas.

A problem with the design of some vent covers and the installing of a fire door, simple enough right, wrong.

When asked about the opening of the jail, Carlotis has very few answers for a project that was scheduled to be completed nearly a year ago.

He has repeatedly passed the buck to the architectural firm that headed the project since it began last fall.
And probably rightfully so. It appears to the average observer of this $800,000 plus project, Architecture Plus based in Lexington, has done a very poor job of getting this project completed.

He wouldn't even estimate the amount of debt and said only that with no income and all outgo it was becoming a major problem.
This fiscal year alone, the county has had to transfer in excess of $100,000 from the general fund to the jail fund.

Not only is Rockcastle County responsible for paying approximately $25 a day to other facilities to keep our prisoners they are also responsible for their medical bills and for the cost of transporting them back and forth to court.

They told the fiscal court last fall that if they would move the prisoners from the jail, they could work much faster and have the job completed by January 1. Of course they did not.

They are also their third project manager since the jail project began. All in all, Architecture Plus is probably to blame for the jail not being open.

The judge also told court members last week that it had been learned that the first site manager approved the removal of an exhaust fan from the old part of the jail because he said it wasn't needed. The state says it is.

Every month the jail isn't open the county falls farther and farther behind and one would think that the fiscal court would do whatever it took, even spending more money, to get it open. Without it open it will never begin to make money.
County Treasurer Joe Clontz said Wednesday that past due jail bills are in the thousands of dollars. He

They are also the salaries of Rockcastle Jailer James Miller and his deputies that must be paid.
Miller has done an excellent job of holding the line on costs since he took office, but until the jail opens there is very little he can really do.

On Wednesday Judge Carlotis said that he was as frustrated as everyone else about the situation, but until the state passed the jail, it could not be re-opened.

When will that be?
Again, no one knows for sure. What is for sure, if something is not done soon, the county will be so far in debt that next major project they undertake will be in 2050 because they are still paying off this debt.

Employees of the local State Highway Department have been busy the past two weeks working on Hwy. 70 at Ottawa. The crew is in the process of moving a bank back 70 feet where the Ottawa Road intersects with

Hwy. 70. Numerous accidents have occurred in the curve over the past several years, some fatal. The work should be completed in the next couple of weeks.

13 indicted by grand jury

The Rockcastle County Grand Jury handed down 13 indictments Friday, many for people who were arrested last week during a drug roundup in the county.
Debbie Lovell, 33, of Chestnut Ridge was indicted on four counts of selling illegal drugs including methamphetamine.

They were also handed down in three other cases.
Jimmy D. Robbins, 43, of Sand Springs, was indicted for a December 13th auto accident, in which he allegedly was driving drunk and hit a car head-on driven by Preston Soward, 41, of Berea.

Her boyfriend, Jeff Owens, 31, of Pine Hill, was also indicted on two counts of selling illegal drugs.
Other indictments include:
James Weaver, 28, of Brush Creek, one count of trafficking in marijuana and one count of being a persistent felony offender.

The accident happened on U.S. 25 at Brindle Ridge.
Jeffery W. Crawford, of Mt. Vernon, was indicted for allegedly making false statements about his wages to the Department of Employment Services in February and March of this year.

Timmy Denny, 35, of Chestnut Ridge, one count of selling cocaine and one count of selling a schedule II narcotic.
David Denny, 27, Chestnut Ridge, one count of selling cocaine.
David Alcorn, 35, of Negro Town Hill, Mt. Vernon, one count of selling marijuana within 1000 yards of a school.

Keith Wayne Hensley, 29, of Rt. 2 Livingston was indicted for violating a domestic violence order on Tammy Eversole in December of 1998.

Roy Price, 59, Pine Hill, one count of trafficking in a scheduled II controlled substance.
Crystal Childress, 19, Mt. Vernon, one second degree count of selling a schedule III narcotic and one first degree count of selling cocaine.

Dedication ceremony set for latest project in Renfro Valley

Freddy Denny, 29, of Chestnut Ridge, one count of trafficking in cocaine.
James Denny, 29, Brodhead, one count of trafficking in a schedule II non-narcotic.

A dedication ceremony has been scheduled for Friday, for Rockcastle County's newest tourist attraction in Renfro Valley.

The Pattons will then make the final decision on what the design will be after the Mint sends them its representations.

The 1 p.m. ceremony will be held for the Historical Cabins and Craft Village display, which will hold its official grand opening that day.

Local banks ready for Y2K

By: Richard Anderkin
When the calendar rolls around to the year 2000, many people think the country is in for a major confusion.
There are doomsayers that say that computers will crash and there will be no electricity, no water, no phones and you won't be able to get to your money in the banks.
And then there are those that think it's all a bunch of nonsense.
Nonsense or not, utility companies, banks and other businesses are making plans for such an outage.
The biggest thing for the banking industry is trying to make people, especially elderly people, understand that their money is safe," said Steve Owens of Marenburg, district manager for Kentucky's Department of Financial Institutions in the southern region.
"Our greatest fear is for the safety of people who may actually take their money out of the bank, before 2000 rolls around," Owens said.
"Con-artists will be out there in full force, calling people and telling them they will not be able to get to their money because the banks will be closed for a lengthy period of time," he said.

"Some people may actually take their money out of the bank in cash and take it home - when they do that they are in danger," he said.
"These con-artists are good and can be very convincing, so people should take note because there will absolutely be no problem," he said.
Mary Nita Thompson with The Bank of Mt. Vernon and Comic Graham with Citizen's Bank agree with Owens.

"We have been preparing for any Y2K problems for a very long period of time," said Thompson.
"If there should be no electricity, we have a very good business resumption plan - we will be open, people will be able to do all their banking just as always - maybe a little slower - but we will be open," Thompson said.
Graham agreed. "Our bank has been working for months to get ready and we have our contingency plans in place, which have all been tested and passed each time," she said.

"In the unlikely event that a computer failure does occur for whatever reason, we will be able to pick a beginning balance of any and all accounts and begin processing the very next day," she said.
Thompson said that state and federal

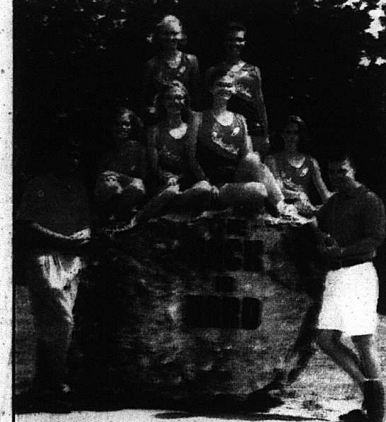

RCHS student finalist for state design of new quarter

First lady Judi Patton announced Tuesday the 11 finalists whose design concepts for the new Kentucky quarter are now on display for the public to vote on.
One of those finalist is from Rockcastle County, Joyce Hoover, a senior at RCCHS is a finalist with her design on a thoroughbred running on rail with jockey aboard. Miss Hoover is the daughter of Roger and Sheila Figg of Mt. Vernon.

The 12 entries can be viewed and votes cast June 17, today the final voting day, in the front lobby of the Capitol and on the internet at <http://www.state.ky.us/agencies/gov/qrvote.htm>. The public was also able to vote on Tuesday and Wednesday.
The Governor, Mrs. Patton and their granddaughter, 9-year-old Paige Johnson, voted together at the Capitol on the first day of voting.

The Kentucky Quarter Project Committee, headed by Mrs. Patton, received nearly 1800 design concept submissions from all over the state. The committee then narrowed the entries down to a smaller pool, from which Governor and Mrs. Patton chose the finalists.
"The entries we chose came from all over Kentucky, from different types of people. They truly reflect the diversity and beauty of the state," Mrs. Patton said. "Any one of these designs would make an excellent representation. We want to know which one the people like best."
In the first 12 hours of voting, the Web site received 10,000 hits. And during the first day of voting, there was a steady traffic of voters at the Capitol ballot box.

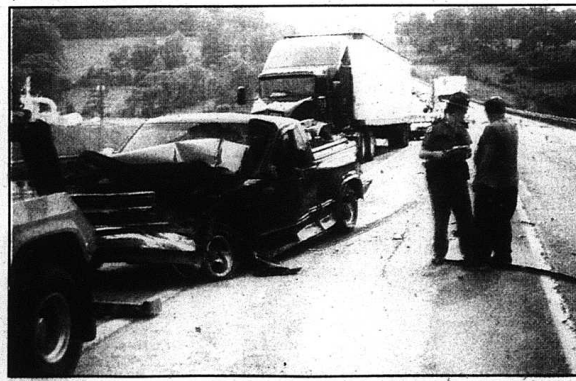

Each state will submit a design for the back of the coin for the "Fifty States Commemorative Coin Program," established by federal legislation in 1997. Kentucky's quarter will be released as the 15th of all states in October 2001, because Kentucky was the 15th state.

The RCCHS girls' track team finished their best ever at the state track and field championships. Qualifying members were top row, from left: Sheena Swinney and Tara Abney. Bottom row, from left: head coach Mark Brunetti, Theresa Chislum, Cheyenne Carnack, Mindy Bullock, Rachelle Hammond and asst. coach Robbie Phillips.

Marcia Cassidy, of Edmonson County, brought her two kids, Catherine, 15 and Drew, 9, and their friends, Aaron and Blake Renfro, 15 and 12, to the Capitol to vote.
"My husband is over in Lexington at a workshop and I saw this in the paper," Cassidy said. "So, we all came over to vote for the quarter."

As a result of the public's voting, the Pattons will make the final decision on which three to five design concepts will be submitted to the U.S. Mint on Monday, June 21.

Four people were injured Monday in a two-car collision on the Hwy. 461 by-pass in Mt. Vernon. According to Kentucky State Police Trooper Late Owens the accident occurred when Lewis Rowe, Jr., 43, was attempting to turn left in front of the blacktop plant. Owens said Rowe's vehicle was rear-ended by a Chevrolet pickup driven by Kelly Hughes, 20, of Mt. Vernon. Besides Rowe and Hughes, Crystal Moore, 21, of Brodhead and Stephanie McCauley, 25, of Mt. Vernon were taken to the Rockcastle Hospital. Everyone was treated and released. In the above photo, Trooper Owens speaks with Rowe about the wreck.

Sweet and Sour

By Zi Graves

It isn't always writers block that gets in my way when I sit down to write then don't know what to say. It is more often the utter confusion of current events happening faster than I can handle them. My brother, Ish, is in the hospital and when he is out enough to go there it is time for us to be concerned. Then the recent death of my very dear friend, Norma Mize French, so close to the death of Vada Graves, my sister-in-law, and the illness, some quite serious, of family and friends, have a vacancy for my ability to sort things out and write about happier days but I'll try.

Sickness and death has been with us since the beginning of time and the survival of the fittest has inhabited the earth. When we oldesters make our last move it leaves a vacuum for our offspring to move into and life goes on.

One of the first deaths I remember clearly after moving to Buffalo was the death of Norma's grandfather, "Wad" Mize. He lived on the banks of the Rockcastle River a few miles from us. To get there we had to walk down a narrow path winding around the hillside of a deep hollow then onto an old wagon road known as Eagle Creek Road. This was a county road and at that time it was the only way for those living in the area to get out. On meaning getting to the store, church, cemetery, school or town. It was a pretty road with two narrow rows, made by wagon wheels, meandering down the valley beside the small stream, Eagle Creek and passing by several houses inhabited by families with children playing and parents working close by. I have been told that at one time the road went all the way to Hazel Patch and was used to haul groceries by horse drawn wagon to furnish the small stores in the area with groceries. It had also been used to haul timber or lumber to the nearest market. But in 1936 it was only a remnant of what I had been told as at one time, a busy county road connecting Rockcastle County and Laurel County.

family stretched along the banks of the Rockcastle River and up the valley toward the hills in the distance and this narrow dirt road with its deep ruts identifying it as a wagon road would sometimes skirt the edge of a field and other times cross to follow the creek bed. Old fashioned mountain or country roads had a way of wandering around mountainsides and dipping into creekbeds as they sought to find the end of wherever it was leading to. And I don't know which was worse, going up and down a muddy hillside and over chug-holes and boulder size rocks or splashing down a creek after a rain and get the motor wet, brakes wet, and sometimes after these caused the car to stall and get our own feet when we would have to bail out and wade to shore. Anyway this was the kind of road that meandered down to the river where Wad Mize and his family lived.

The home was a pretty home place with large trees shading the house and flowers in the yard and the river close enough to fish or swim in when the notion struck to do so. A son, two grown daughters and a granddaughter still lived at home and three sons lived close by their families.

At one time this area had been a bustling community but time and progress in the outside world was changing it. And the death of Wad, without the benefit of a doctor or undertaker, and difficulty of getting his remains to the cemetery, was the beginning of united pressure being put on the road department to build better roads to these isolated areas.

When Wad was told "Wad" was critically ill he went to help in anyway he could. That was the custom of the time. When a neighbor was sick unto death other neighbors went to assist the family in the care of their loved one during his/her final hours. The visiting neighbor might be the only one to be with the dying person during his last moments or perhaps the whole family might be gathered around the bedside to say their final farewells. In either case, sooner after the last breath was drawn and it was known for sure the death angel had been there, the deceased had to be "laid out" before rigor mortis set in. It was just fear someone say, "laid out?" What in the world does she mean?" Well, back before morticians, or when people lived in isolated areas where a funeral director would have no way of getting to, it was the only way to taking care of the dead. A member of the family or the attendant helping the family through these trying hours would straighten the departed ones body close his eyes place the hands in front of his chest, bathe the body and dress it for the final rights of burial. Then the coffin would be laid on strong boards covered with a sheet which had been prepared for the occasion and placed in the coolest room in the house. If the coffin had not already been made some of the menfolk would now begin with the task of making it. Coffins were usually made of poplar because of their light weight and strength but sometimes oak, another strong wood that would last for years but was heavy.

There was usually a man in each community that specialized in making them. After the carpentry was finished the inside was lined with special material woven and designed for coffins. The desired color was chosen for the one being buried. Almost any color could be found, from black, for those who secluded few who never wore anything but black to white for the little babies. These coffins could be a thing of beauty when finished. Ruffles or pleats of another color being turned in the edge around the top and the handles for carrying it could be made of wood or fancy bronze ones could be bought. The lining was usually the women's job and they were also experts at it. (Really I would like to be closed in one of them being buried by people who knew what they were doing)

If I remember correctly Mat was at Wad's bedside when he died and these tasks fell on him. All but the making of the coffin. I think it was that closed his eyes and put little ticks on them and dressed the body readying it for viewing. Viewing began while he was still lying on the boards and placed in the next room while the coffin was being made. When Mat returned home and told me what he had done it was my turn to see what I could do. In the afternoon of the first day of the lay-out, back then people were laid out for two days and nights. I left Mat with Judy and took the path down the hollow to see if I could be of any help cooking or anything else needing to be done. People were already coming in to sit with the family or do chores the family couldn't find time for.

These people would usually stay the night and it was called "sitting up with the dead." Everyone expected to eat with the family and also have snacks while they sat up. This took a lot of cooking so any women present had her hands full of preparing the food. The house would also be full of kin folks, many with their children in tow, to be fed.

I stayed one night, probably the first, since I was already there, and helped with the care of keeping a cloth that had been dipped in a solution of soda and water on any of the exposed skin especially the face of the corpse. This was a must and had to be repeated every half hour or so. It was to keep deterioration from setting in which would turn the skin or the face dark. Embalming takes care of this now but remember, Wad, had not been embalmed, and he was being taken care of the way these people had been taught to do it. One of his daughters-in-law, Edna, volunteered to help and we chose the first half of the night with a cup of coffee in hand we entered the room to begin our vigil. ... It is kind of eerie to enter a room lit only by an oil lamp light and remove the cover from a corpse and apply wet clothes to his face then tuck it in closely around the chin and neck area. But it was a chore that someone had to do and the experience was one I will never forget.

In the meantime his coffin had been finished and he, dressed in new overalls and white shirt was laid to rest in it.

The morning of the second day of viewing and mourning for the departed one, things were readied for the burial. It was not there for that so only know by hearsay how it was handled. After the service at home a farm wagon, drawn by two mules was brought from the barn and his coffin was carried by several men. Wad had been a big man so the load was heavy, and placed in the jolt wagon to be hauled to the graveyard on a little trail a mile or so from their house. The family and friends walking behind watched as a couple of men in the wagon held the coffin to keep it from bouncing out when the going got rough and the team had to force the wagon up or down a steep bank. Again the men had to carry the coffin up a steep bank to bury him in the grave dug by neighbors. Later his wife, Hila Ann and son, Jessie and at least one grandchild was laid beside him in the little family plot in the shade of a tree on the bank of Eagle Creek Road.

believe that she deserves the best. But when she won't go fishing with me, I take the same attitude toward the fishing rod that I have about the camera. It would be a crying shame to let something that nice just lie around and collect dust. Besides that, I deserve the chance to use it once or twice a week, because after all, I'm the one that has to change the line on it every month or so.

Last month for her birthday, I did buy her set of those long tube silver wind-chimes that are hanging just outside the bedroom window and they both full of us to sleep every night, but at least, technically, they are all here.

In the meantime, Father's Day is coming up and I'm a little confused. I overheard Loretta on the phone with her sister, Helen and she was saying something about getting me a serge machine. Apparently she's found a good deal on one for under $300.00. I've asked around and as best I can tell it's something used to sew fancy seams and cuffs and edging on clothing and draperies and stuff like that.

I have no idea why she thinks I'd get any use of something like that. I can't even sew a button on a shirt.

Points East

By: Ike Adams

Except for bloomers at Christmas time every year, I'm awful bad about buying Loretta presents that I figure won't go totally to waste even if she doesn't get much use out of them.

For example, the state office at garden hoe that has some kind of European origin that I got her for Mother's Day. Instead of being flat, it looks sort of like a dinner plate cut in half and the hoe, itself is much thicker, sharper and heavier than your regular old hoe.

I found it at Bluegrass Hardware in Richmond for $25.00 and I figured that if Loretta liked it as much as I did I'd come back and get one for myself. I'd seen it advertised in one of these upscale gardening catalogues for nearly a hundred bucks, but for the life of me, I can't remember the fancy name they had for it. Needless to say they didn't call it a hoe even though it's supposed to accomplish the same job.

Anyway Loretta was impressed and actually hoed a couple of hills of cabbage with it. The next day, I headed for the garden to hoe the other thirty-cabbages and as I went out the door I hollered and asked her if she minded if I used her hoe and, of course, she said go right ahead, use it anytime you want to.

Still, to be polite, I asked to borrow it the first couple of times just to make sure that I wasn't taking too much for granted. It's gotten to the point now that I don't even bother asking cause I know she doesn't mind. The only time she ever picks it up is to show it off to a neighbor or relative anyway.

Course, I do the same thing. Every time somebody comes on the place I make sure and ask them if they've seen Loretta's newfangled hoe because it is, in fact, the best digging implement I've ever used in a garden. If you go to Bluegrass Hardware, or any other Ace Dealer, tell 'em I sent you and maybe they'll give me another one before I wear Loretta's out.

A few Christmases back, I bought her an expensive photography tripod that can almost walk by itself so she could steady her camera on those hard-to-position shots of violet stamens, crab-spiders, burlyfly antennae, and other micro miracles of nature shots that just blow peoples' minds when they see them projected on the screen. The year before that, I'd bought her the fanciest, auto-focus 35mm Minolta Camera on the market that came with a textbook full of technical photography terms and detailed instructions on the hundreds of functions the camera could perform.

As usual she only used the camera when the grandbaby came around even though I'd also purchased a couple of macro and telephoto lenses to go with it. Since she didn't use the camera that much, I tried to make sure that it didn't collect much dust cause I figured that was the responsible thing to do. I mean you should not let $3,000 worth of camera equipment just lay around. Am I right?

But I'll be darned if after I got her the tripod, she didn't start reading up on the stuff and now she uses it every time we go out in the woods. I have to confess to a bit of envy and every once in a while I get down-right jealous. Now when we go to photography contests, Loretta is the one who packs home the awards.

Last year on her birthday, I bought her a new, top-of-the-line Shimano spinning reel and a matching ultralight rod. She likes to go fishing once a year and I tell you folks, I really

Dear Editor,

On Friday, May 28, 1999 at 9:15 a.m. I called the Rockcastle County High School to inquire about summer school registration. My call was transferred to Mr. Ryan Riddle. Mr. Riddle informed me that summer school had started the previous day. When I asked if it was too late for my son to attend summer school, I was under the impression summer school started June 2. Mr. Riddle rudely and bluntly informed me that "HE" had registered my son for summer school and had told him when to be there. My questions are: How can he register my son, who is a minor, without informing his parent? And if he registered him why didn't the school bus arrive to pick him up? I asked Mr. Riddle why my son was at school and he said something in the newspaper about what is happening at the school so the parents would be informed? He stated, "We tell the students so we don't have to tell the parents." When I asked him if I could bring my son to school the next morning, Mr. Riddle stated, "Ma'am he can attend June 14 and get 1/2 credit. He then hung up."

This is the second incident this school year when I was talked to rudely when I had concerns about my son. (The first incident involved Mr. Barry Noble.) You always hear how the parents are involved in what your child is to become involved in when you treat like you are not wanted. Or you hear "We tell the students so we don't have to tell the parents." I want to be involved in my children's education, but it's hard when the school system won't give you a say to do so.

A concerned parent,
Renee Robinson

Dear Editor,

I'm concerned with the way your newspaper has been handling the problem about the man who was reportedly stealing flowers from the local graves. I know this man that some people call a flower thief and my opinion on this issue is that he did not steal flowers he only used those that were going to be thrown away and restored them. I think he was accused and judged before there was proof. Is it a crime for someone to use something that someone has thrown away? Maybe we shouldn't try to use things again. I mean why bother to recycle let's just throw everything in the dumps and fill them up faster. If someone wanted to use the old flowers at my family cemetery, I would not care because eventually they would be thrown in a dump. Also I didn't like a particular letter that was sent in by a lady who said that the entire crew of workers should be fired. First of all my husband works on that crew and I for one know that he did not steal any flowers. He did his job and never took flowers he only threw away the ones that were old, if someone had put new flowers on he would move them until he was finished and then put them back where they belonged. I'm sure if people have doubts about the quality of work that is being performed at the graveyard then they should go by and watch the men who do this job and see if they think it is being performed to their satisfaction. These workers do a good job and take a lot of criticism. I think that people should gather the facts before they start trouble for people who haven't did any thing wrong or illegal.

Dear Editor,
I read and received the piece in the paper written by former Principal Ronnie Cash. I decided to respond to Mr. Cash's article and inform him that we miss him just as much as he misses us. If you walk down the halls of RCHS you will always hear someone say, "Bring back RDC." They are referring to Ronnie Cash. Don't get me wrong, Ms. Allen tries her best to fill in as principal but we are all used to Mr. Cash's rules and privileges. Ms. Allen takes care of important matters and Barry Noble works on the discipline. When I started high school three years ago I thought that was the happiest time of my life. I was happy to get up and go every morning. Things are way different now and if I thought for a second it would not upset my parents had I would drop out. I am not talking about bomb threats and drug dogs. I am talking about the little things like bathroom breaks and assembly programs. You can't go to the restroom at RCHS without being interrogated. I don't feel 18 anymore. I feel like a prisoner. We do miss you, Ronnie Cash, because you made that high school what it was and it will never be the same without you. Just know that in my eyes you were the best principal that ever walked the halls of RCHS.

Thank you,
Sabrina Bowles

Dear Editor,
On Thursday, June 3, 1999, a young gentleman, Mr. Bright, driving a small dark colored pickup truck with a Rockcastle tag saved three men. The three were returning from a fishing trip driving home on the Houstonville Road a couple miles out of Stanford.

Mr. Bright alerted my husband of a fire under the rear of the truck, resulting in total loss of the vehicle and damage to the boat. Thankfully all three exited the truck a minute or two before it blew up and consumed.

On behalf of my husband, son and the other young man and their families, I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart for your alertness in saving their lives. I hope Mr. Bright sees this letter as I am unable to contact him in person.

Dear Editor,
I would like to express my deepest thanks to the Rockcastle County Sheriff's Department and the Mt. Vernon City Police Department. As most people are aware, Rockcastle County houses its jail inmates at Boyle County Detention Center in Danville. It is the responsibility for the Rockcastle County Jail and his deputies to transport any inmates to their scheduled court appearances. Any time that inmates are taken into custody during a weekend and are unable to make bond before the next scheduled court date, they will be transported to court on that date. For June 14, a total of 14 inmates were scheduled for court appearances in Rockcastle County District Court. It is extremely difficult for two deputy jailers to transport such a large number of inmates from Boyle County Detention to Rockcastle District Court by 9:30 a.m. in a safe manner. However, with the help of the Rockcastle County Sheriff Shirley Smith and Mt. Vernon City Police Assistance Chief Eddie Delaney and their respective departments, we transported all the 14 inmates to their court appearances and back to Boyle County Detention, without any undue difficulty.

Respectfully,
Ruth Coffey,
Deputy Jailor Rockcastle County

In Loving Memory

In Memory of Roy E. McCollum
This story was written by his grandson, not only was he a great husband and father, but also a great Papaw. He is greatly missed by everyone.

"Papaw"

In life you wish for many things. You like to have a nice car, house, girl friend. But one thing I wish for that my Papaw was still here.

This spring break, I was on my way to Florida to play baseball with the school. It was a nice trip. When I got there I found out that my Papaw had died. I was heart broken. So I had to ride back to Kentucky with my mom and dad.

I knew my Papaw since I could see. I would spend time with him all the time. He was like a second father to me. When I spent the night with him he would tell me stories about him when he was a kid. We would sit on his front porch and talk for hours about nothing.

When I got older, we moved right in front of them. So I didn't have to spend the night any more. The only thing I had to do was walk over to see him. Almost every day I would walk over to talk to him about how I was doing in school and about our ball games.

When I had a ball game, he loved to watch me play. When I knew he was there, I would try my best to play. Sometimes I would try so hard and run out of breath or get too tired. When I'm in my backyard playing ball, he would be sitting on his front porch watching me and my brother play.

When he needed help I was there to help him. He was often a horse trader. Sometimes he wanted me to feed them, go with him to get a horse or look at one, or sometimes feed the dogs. I would do no matter what anyone said to me.

On Saturdays my dad, my brother, my papaw so many, but our family to horse sale. We would spend all day there. We would sit and watch horses sale and talk about them. When it was over, we would stop and get something to eat.

Now I don't have him no more. I miss him so much, but our family. I will get to see him and we will be together forever.

Carmack places fourth at state championship; Bullock sixth Several members of Rockcastle's varsity track and field teams competed in the 1999 State Track and Field Championships at the University of Kentucky in Lexington. Both boys' and girls' teams sought to improve upon last year's individual and team finishes.

Qualifiers for the girls' team included sophomore Cheyenne Carmack who qualified in the 200 meter and 400 meter dashes for the second straight season. Cheyenne placed ninth in the 200 and nearly won the 400 during last year's state championships finishing fourth. Cheyenne also qualified in the 800 meter relay for the third time in four years, but wisely concentrated her efforts on her two best events in hopes of stronger finishes in both.

Sophomore Rachelle Hammond qualified in long jump for the first time. Last season, Rachelle competed at the state level in triple jump and the 1600 meter relay. Rachelle also qualified this year in the 800 meter relay, her third appearance in the event over the last four seasons.

Sophomore Mindy Bullock qualified in high jump, her first appearance at the state championships in an individual event.

Tara Abney and Theresa Chislum, both sophomores, qualified as members of the 800 meter relay team. Both girls ran in the 1600 meter relay at last year's state championships.

Seventh grader Sheena Swinney also qualified in the 800 meter relay. This marked the first of what should become many appearances for Sheena at the state championships.

Preliminaries for most events were held on Friday with finals being contested on Saturday.

Rachelle Hammond competed first for Rockcastle in the long jump competition. Facing the best competition the state had to offer, Rachelle did exceptionally well. She placed an incredible 15'4.25" and leaped 14th overall, a very impressive finish for her first ever appearance in the event.

Next for the girls' team came the 800 meter relay, which has become an event the team seems to qualify for nearly every year. This marked the third time in the last four years that Rockcastle's girls have competed at state in this event. Their best finish came in 1996 when the team placed eighth overall. The team of Theresa Chislum, Tara Abney, Rachelle Hammond and Sheena Swinney ran a spectacular race against some very tough teams. They finished 12th overall with a time of 1:56.96. Remarkably, the girls were the only team in the top twelve without any juniors or seniors.

Cheyenne Carmack competed in the last two events of the day for the girls. In the 400 meter dash preliminaries, Cheyenne ran in the third heat alongside seven other favorites. Nicole Henderson of West Jessamine, Cheyenne hoped to send a message with a strong preliminary race. She did just that, running a 1:00.61 and easily winning her heat. She defeated Carter by more than a second. It was apparent that both girls weren't concentrating all of their efforts on the race since both had other events to follow. Cheyenne finished with the second fastest qualifying time of the preliminaries and easily made Saturday's finals.

Cheyenne also ran in the 200 meter dash preliminaries on Friday. She ran a great race against some fast competition. She finished with a time of 27.8 which easily qualified her for the finals on Saturday.

Saturday's events began with boys' long jump. Rockcastle's only boy qualifier senior Jeremy Saylor, sought to improve upon his performance from the last two state championships. Jeremy performed exceptionally well. He leaped his best ever at the state championships, 20'0.25" and placed 10th overall. Jeremy missed qualifying for the finals by less than five inches. Nevertheless, Jeremy has solidified his place as one of the state's best over the last three years.

Sophomore Mindy Bullock competed in high jump on Saturday. Mindy has been ranked in the top ten in class 2A for most of the season. Mindy jumped exceptionally well and cleared 4'10" for her best jump of the year. Amazingly, she placed sixth overall and earned 2.5 points for her team. Mindy was only four inches away from 10 time indoor and outdoor state champion senior Janet Crawford, who currently ranks in the top ten in the nation in the event. Mindy's personal best mark of 5'0" would have placed her second in the state had she been able to attain it. At the beginning of next season, Mindy will be a favorite for the state championship and will be in the tie for first in the pre-season rankings.

Once again, Cheyenne closed competition for the girls with the 400 meter and 200 meter dash finals. After narrowly missing a state championship in the 400 last season, Cheyenne has worked to improve her technique and conditioning. Before state, Cheyenne ranked third overall in the final regular season rankings and was a definite leading contender for the 400 meter title. Cheyenne's qualifying time was second only to Fort Campbell's Angelina Gracian last year's runner-up and this season's indoor state champion.

Cheyenne had an excellent race strategy which she hoped would put her in position to win coming down the last 100 meter stretch. Her strategy worked very well as she led for the first two hundred meters. Fort Campbell's Gracian came on strong after the 200 and eventually overtook Cheyenne. Coming down the last 100 meter stretch, Cheyenne was in position to win; however, her legs became fatigued allowing two stronger competitors to pass her. She maintained good technique and stayed very close. Overall, Cheyenne finished fourth with a time of 1:00.11, her best time ever at state and just slightly off her personal best of 59.76. Gracian from Fort Campbell placed first. Cheyenne's performances during the season and during the state championships should give her an excellent opportunity to make the all-state track and field team in the 400.

In the 200 meter finals, Cheyenne hoped to improve on last year's fifth place finish at state. Cheyenne had a great start and ran a very fast race. She finished an incredible seventh place overall with a time of 27.71. Cheyenne ranked in the top 10 in the 200 meter dash for the entire season with her personal best of 26.89. Cheyenne scored two points in the 200 to go along with five points for the 400. Her total of seven points was her highest ever at the state championships and the most ever scored by a Rockcastle County participant.

The girls' team finished with a total of 9.5 points, their highest output ever at the state championships. The team placed 22nd overall out of 39 teams that scored points and out of 95 schools that participated in class 2A track and field. This was an awesome accomplishment despite the team's youth and the loss of personnel from last season. The team was only half a point away from finishing in the top twenty. Also of note, sophomore Cheyenne Carmack defeated 14 teams with her own individual performances. Rockcastle also avenged their regional loss to Boyle County who finished 24th overall.

Many members of Rockcastle's team were nominated for academic all-state based on their grade point average and top rankings in their event. Those nominated include: Rachelle Hammond, 4.0; Cheyenne Carmack, 4.0; Mindy Bullock, 4.0; Nathaniel Bullock, 4.0; Tara Abney, Charissa Hubbard; Theresa Chislum and Jeremy Saylor.

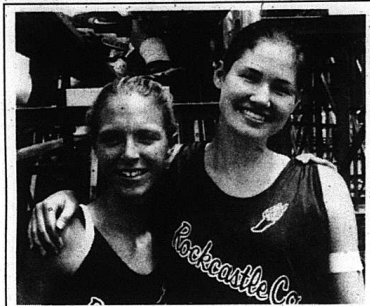

Those athletes picked for the all-state team or the all-state academic team will be notified upon selection. This marks the end of another great track season for Rockcastle. Many records were broken and several outstanding performances were witnessed throughout the year. Both boys' and girls' teams showed continuous improvement, from both an individual and a team standpoint. Both teams remain youthful and should experience tremendous success next season.

Special thanks to seniors Nathaniel Bullock and Jeremy Saylor for their many contributions over the years. Their hardwork and performances showed through their many accomplishments. The entire track team and coaching staff wishes to express their deepest appreciation for your diligent efforts both on and off the track. They wish you nothing but the best in all of your endeavors, academic or otherwise.

Thank you to the parents, assistant coaches, and volunteers which made this entire track season so successful. Also, thank you to Mr. Middleton for his safe transportation to and from the meets and for his loyal support of the team. Without these people, the team's success would not have been possible.

Most importantly, thanks to the athletes who have worked extremely hard to represent Rockcastle County in the best way possible. With their efforts, this season has proven to be both successful and very enjoyable. Once again, thank you.

Cheyenne Carmack and Mindy Bullock scored a total of 9.5 points for Rockcastle.

Cheyenne easily wins her preliminary heat in her quest for a state championship. She placed fourth in Saturday's finals.

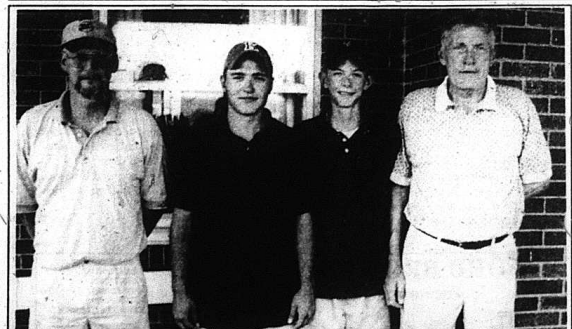

Members of the 800 meter relay team that qualified for state were from left: Rachelle Hammond, Tara Abney, Theresa Chislum, Sheena Swinney.

Helton wins 6th Title

Local golfer Donnie Helton, won his sixth Men's Club Championship title at Cedar Rapids Country Club last weekend. Helton shot a two day total of 143, one under par. Placing second was Trent Clark with a total of 147, Jeffery Owens was third at 148 and Alan Hammond finished fourth with a score of 149. The four are shown above, from left, Clark, Helton, Owens and Hammond.

RES reports to State Education Board

At the recent monthly Kentucky Board of Education meeting in Frankfort, David Pensol, principal of Roundstone Elementary School and Jean Gabbard, fourth grade (intermediate) instructor at Roundstone delivered a report of Results and Continuous Improvements Efforts. Roundstone was one of only two elementary schools in the state to make a presentation and is one of only twenty-five schools meeting the criteria to be classified as a "high performing school."

Mary Ann Miller, Kentucky State Board Advocate, delivered the invitation to Roundstone after first looking at KIRIS Test Data, the CTBS Average Objective Performance Index, the focus for professional development at Roundstone and critical issues for Roundstone Elementary regarding the 1999-2000 school year.

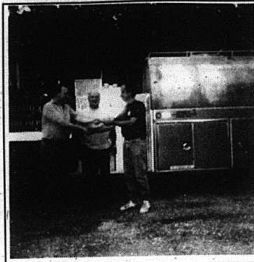

As part of the presentation, Mrs. Gabbard discussed the delivery of instruction and the high expectations for all students. According to Mrs. Gabbard, "Remember that we're talking school-wide. The entire staff and faculty work together in realizing appropriate learning strategies to enhance student ability."

One example that sets Roundstone apart from other state schools is consistently high scores in state assessment and national assessment. Roundstone has shown continuous improvement since the beginning of the 1990 implementation of reform. Exit level primary CTBS (Test of Basic Skills) scores were rated seventh in the state for the 1997-98 testing period while science scores were rated third in the state for the KIRIS assessment during the same testing period. "We were very honored to be recognized by the State School Board for our academic achievements," said Pensol, "however, building a quality education program is a long term endeavor and a gradual process. Through the efforts of our staff, students and Roundstone parents, we will continue to reach for success."

Upon completion of the Roundstone presentation, Gene Wilhoit, Deputy Commissioner, Kentucky Department of Education commented, "It is obvious why the students at Roundstone are achieving."

Child Abuse - A Matter of Fact

By Peter O. Samples, State Chairman Educate Your Children About Sexual Abuse

Unless you are clinically trained and given the opportunity for diagnostic assessment, it is unlikely that you can identify a child sexual abuser. She usually does not suffer from pathological mental illness. She is likely to engage in ordinary work or social activities, and she appears normal. It is difficult to "avoid" the child sexual abuser. Even the most cautious and vigilant of parents cannot, nor would they want to, keep a 24-hour watch on their child. Besides, the adult who is prone to sexually abuse children often chooses work or activities which bring him/her into contact with the children. The best line of defense against sexual abuse is education. The second is communication. Parents are primary teachers of children and are responsible for showing them how to survive and how to cope with life. The first thing parents can do to protect their children is to teach them to protect themselves by communicating their fears and by talking about their daily activities. To obtain more information about child abuse and neglect, call our hotline number at 1-800-468-8920.

KSP offers safety tips for the 100 Days of Summer

In an effort to make the 1999 summer season the safest possible, the Kentucky State Police will begin their 100 Days of Summer campaign. This effort will provide weekly safety tips geared specifically towards making this a safe and crime-free summer.

This is the first in the 14-week series.

Memorial Day weekend is generally known as the beginning of the summer travel season. With better weather conditions and children out of school, many families plan summer road trips that have them traveling long distances in their automobiles.

As you pack your sunscreen and bathing suits for these vacations, the KSP would like to remind you of some other items you may find handy.

Always keep the following items in your car, in case of emergency:

- Gallon of water - in case your car becomes overheated or to drink in an emergency situation
- Quart of oil - in case your vehicle develops an oil leak
- Flashlight with fresh batteries - useful to find items in the dark or in the dark corners of your trunk

- Jumper cables - hot weather drains batteries
- Tow rope - to help a stranded motorist or to help another motorist help YOU if you're stranded
- Gloves - useful in changing tires
- Spare tire - make sure tire is inflated with proper pressure
- Jack - check your owner's manual and know where it is and how to use it
- Flares - alert other vehicles to your presence
- Fire extinguisher - should your car catch fire, this could be a lifesaver.

Also remember to keep at least a quarter of a tank of gasoline in your automobile. It is also a good idea to have a cellular phone or CB radio in case you break down or are stranded. Remember, advance preparations can deter problems along the way!

Also, if you need assistance or to alert the state police of hazards on the state's roadways, call the KSP's emergency, toll-free hotline at 1-800-222-3555.

Next week look for tips on home security, as the KSP continues The 100 Days of Summer series.

Pet Pointers

From Rockcastle Adoption Agency for Pets, Inc.

It's a beautiful day! You decide to take Fluffy for a ride. While out, why not stop at the grocery store? IS THIS STOP NECESSARY? On an 85 degree day, the temperature inside a car, with windows slightly open, can reach 102 degrees within 10 minutes; 120 degrees in 30 minutes.

A dog or cat can withstand these high temperatures for only a very short time before suffering irreparable brain damage or death.

Signs of heat stress include: heavy panting, glazed eyes, rapid pulse rate, dizziness, vomiting or a deep red or purple tongue. If your pet exhibits these symptoms, move him into shade, spray him with cool (NOT COLD) water, offer him a small amount of water. Then, take him to the veterinarian to determine if emergency care is needed.

A better idea is to leave Fluffy home, with plenty of shade and fresh water available!

Each of the recipients logged at least 100 hours of volunteer service to their schools and communities over the past year. Many of these service hours were earned through the participation in their school's Y Club.

County received a $1,000 scholarship. Since 1980, the Kentucky YMCA Youth Association has encouraged the spiritual, intellectual, social and physical development of young people through community service, government awareness and leadership training. eral regulators have required all banks to be prepared for Y2K.

"This is not something that we started working on last week, we have been preparing for this for a very long time and we have been examined time and again by the state and federal regulators," Thompson said.

As with Citizens Bank, Thompson said that each time a test has been conducted the Bank of Mt. Vernon has passed.

Recapture the historical charm of Appalachia with a tour through an authentic log cabin village. Opening in June, with guided and self-guided tours. Tours are available Thursday through Sunday. Experienced first-hand the life-style of early settlers who established communities, and devised ways to manufacture and supply the necessities of daily life. Local artisans will display their arts and crafts and on certain days demonstrate their talents by creating their "special" craft.

Third grade students of Roundstone Elementary School, Mt. Vernon took a big leap into learning about their state government during a recent trip to the State Capitol in Frankfort. Pictured here on the front steps of the Capitol Building, the students gathered for a photograph before touring noted offices and Chambers inside the Capitol. Kentucky Capitol is the fourth permanent building to serve in this capacity since the Commonwealth was given statehood in 1792. After a 1904 groundbreaking and six years of construction, the first session of the legislature was held in the new Capitol's chambers in January, 1910. With session every other year, the students learned that the General Assembly will next meet in session January, 2000. The students were interested in how bills become laws and received information about the legislative process from their State Representative Danny Ford.

Step back into an era when the General Store was the Barber Shop, Post Office, and local meeting place. It carried everything that a family would need. You'll want to visit each cabin and reminisce about the life-style of the people of Appalachia back in the 1800's. From blacksmith tools to old looms, it was a more simple time in life. When you know your neighbor and you helped on another.

Come enjoy the southern hospitality and spend some quiet time, at Rockcastle County Historical Cabins and Craft Village. Located off I-75 at Exit 62 near Renfro Valley.

Kiwanis Garden Tour and Tea huge success

By Martha Cox, Rookcastle Kiwanis
The Rookcastle Kiwanis Club was thrilled and surprised when over three hundred people showed up for their first Garden Tour and Tea on Saturday and Sunday, June 12th and 13th. Many came from Lexington, Richmond, Berea, Pikeville, Corbin, Barbourville, Manchester, London, Irvine, Mt. Sterling, Somerset, Winchester, and Monticello. Along with local folks, there were several from North Carolina, West Virginia and three from Finland, all sampling good old country homes and all gaining new insight into what our county has to offer. The ten homes of the tour were so gracious to give up their weekend, not to mention weeks of hard work preparing for this special event. Most all were on hand standing in the hot sun offering cool refreshments and welcoming friends and strangers to their homes and yards. The Kiwanis Club can not possibly thank them enough. Our tour directors, Gertha Mink, Jamie Cornelius and Jennifer Mattingly did an outstanding job showing folks around that rode the buses to the homes. Tammy Cox, at Cox Florist along with several Kiwanis members helped to get the tour off to a great start with a warm welcome and with directions. (Cont. to B12)

Mable Burdette and daughter Delores Albright admiring some hostas on the garden tour and enjoying spending the afternoon together.

Susan Coffey relaxed in the shade at the home of Jim and Martha Cox during the afternoon of touring.

The large crowd gathered under the tent to enjoy the entertaining talk by Jon Carolfus at the Kiwanis Garden Tour and Tea.

Library News

By Pam Chaliff,

Bookmobile Librarian

Summer is here! I know the calendar says summer doesn't begin until June 21st, but if you have been outside during the past week or so, it sure feels like summer. The summer reading program has begun on the bookmobile and in the library. If your child hasn't signed up at the library or on the bookmobile, now is the time.

It is difficult to do summer reading on the road, due to vacations, camps, summer school and other activities. I do try to encourage all the bookmobile kids to at least register, take a book log and jot down the books that they are able to complete around their other interests and activities. Most of the kids and parents look forward to participating in summer reading. If a child reads just five books during the reading program they will receive a small prize. We encourage reading and families reading together. This will help your child when he or she returns to school next year. I am sure that some of you have received information packets from your child's teacher and that they have asked you to read with your child during the time they are out of school. The public library and the bookmobile are great ways to do this, without any cost. We have lots of books on lots on subjects. During the past couple of years I have noticed an increased interest in the non-fiction books, especially animals, snakes and dinosaurs. We have easy books and the "chapter" books if your child needs something a little more challenging. Most folks are pleasantly surprised when they realize how many books that the bookmobile can carry.

I usually have a few extras stashed somewhere, so there will be enough to go around for the summer. The bookmobile is not just for children. I have adult books, fiction and non-fiction. The bookmobile even carries best sellers. It usually doesn't look that way, if you just look at the shelves, but ask some of the bookmobile patrons, and they will assure you that the bookmobile carries these, they just manage to stay checked out. You may have to go on a waiting list for a particular title, but you will get it eventually, if the library has the item you are looking for. For bookmobile service, call the library at 256-2388 and leave a message for the bookmobile librarian.

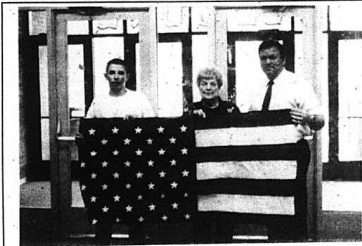

Mrs. Lynda has lots of activities planned for the library. The regular story hour will still be on Tuesday at 1:00. There will be a special program on Wednesday during the month of June. Pre-school to age 8 will be at 1. Eight and up will be at 3. Please call the library at 256-2388 and register your child for these exciting activities.

The following first appeared in the Mt. Vernon Signal on February 8, 1907. It was recently transcribed from microfilm of that issue of the Signal. With these submissions, I am sharing these gleanings with the Signal's present readers.

SOME ROCKCASTLE HISTORY

One of the Signal's valued subscribers, W.H. Williams, of Aztec, New Mexico, in a recent letter to his brother, D.N. Williams, of this place, after expressing his appreciation of the articles on above subject, which have been published in this paper, says: "Tell Mr. Maret in giving the early history of Mt. Vernon and Rockcastle county, not to forget that James McCall had a large tanyard just below the bridge. (Griffins mill) working 15 to 20 negro men, all hosed by a Mr. Albright and that Lance Smith had a horse flouring mill 200 yards west of the railroad depot, and J.T. Hyronomous had a carding machine that was run by tread wheel power, just about where M.J. Martin's store building now is. [Mr. Williams only missed the location 40 feet. Ed.] that George Houk & Sons had a wagon shop just about where Fish's store is. (Here is where Mr. Williams missed it, this space was occupied by Elkin Tavern, later run by Thomas Smith up to about 1870. Ed.) and Stephen Langford ran a hotel just above the court house on the next street. Reuben H. Elkins ran a hotel on Main Street that was afterward ran by Thos. J. Smith, that Dr. Josephine Joplin, where Miller Hotel now stands, started the first drug store in Mt. Vernon; that Dr. Bryant, from Crab Orchard, practiced in Mt. Vernon in 1851 and a part of 1852, but the county was so healthy that Dr. Joplin was able to attend to all the patients and take care of the drugstore. In the fall of 1850 some of the best citizens of Rockcastle county moved to Buchanan county, Missouri, among them were Jonathan, James and Logan Dycott, Judge William Carson and sons, James, Jonathan and William; Larkin Kirtley and James Kirtley, brother of W.H. Kirtley, father of Mrs. W.H. Poynter. These are just a few of many early recollections." Speaking of McCall's tanyard, there is yet in existence, after some 60 years, pieces in position of the old works in the old tanyard in the bottom near the residence of D.N. Williams. E.A. Herin first introduced the "tanner's cornice" finish in this county about 1888. This finish suspended the old styled "box cornice" which had been in use since Noah combed his ark. Logic caught the idea in Illinois. R.S. Martin took the prize at the St. Louis world's fair on manufacture product. R.S. Martin was the first man in Rockcastle to use and introduce commercial fertilizer within our borders.

SOME STATISTICS BY J.M.

Rockcastle has a population of 15,000. Counting five to the family would make 3000 families. Supporting each family passes two dozen fish jars averaging 12 inches in height. By placing these jars end to end it would form a line reaching from Livingston to Brodhead, a distance of 16 miles. Counting old and new brooms, each family is supposed to have three or more on their premises, making in all about ten thousand. These brooms placed end to end would reach from Mt. Vernon to Junction City, a distance of 35 miles. If all the empty oyster, peach, tomato and other cans used twelve months in the county were gathered up and placed end to end in a line, the line would extend almost across the county from East to West, or starting at Wildie would make a solid line to Hazel Patch. If these cans were attached singly by a string or cord to as many dogs and allowing one foot for can and string and three feet for dog and starting them howling along in one direction, following each other, there would be a string of dogs and cans reaching from Mt. Vernon to Danville, not to mention runaway horses, etc. If this novel proposition should ever be carried out, it is suggested that this pack should route its trip through Lancaster so as to give our good friend Louis Landrum the benefit of the "musical" yelping of the pups (original speed of 100 hours to travel a given point of the flour, meal and shipment) brought to the county every twelve months, a path could be made by laying down the sacks end to end that would reach from Mt. Vernon to Stanford, a distance of 25 miles. During the year 1906, there passed through Mt. Vernon 91,250 railroad cars. These cars if put into one train, would reach from Knoxville to St. Louis and have a fifty mile string of cars to spare. It would require 4562 locomotives to move this big train; and it would require 30 miles per hour; it making 60 hours to travel a given point.

Brisco spent Sunday in Winchester. Cassie Sutton was very sick a few days this week. Jasper Rickles continues in a very feeble condition. Morris Brown came down from Farmington to spend Sunday. Mrs. Zack Hansel shows little change in her condition. Wm. Dillon was here yesterday looking for some hogs. J. Fish will spend next week in Cincinnati buying goods. Miss Susie Thompson is with her sister, Mrs. Hughes at Stanford, M.L. Denham, L.A. Brakeman, was with home folks Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Hansel visited the former's parents here this week. Mrs. James Dolan, of Pine Hill spent several days with her daughter, Mrs. R.A. Welch. We are glad to note that Mr. H.C. Gentry is slightly improved from his attack of rheumatism. Alice Fortune has recovered sufficiently from his attack to grip to return to his home in Madison. J.A. Wood and H.L. Smith will go to Louisville Sunday night to buy their spring line of goods. Nath Welch, one of the most popular salesmen on the road, was calling on our merchants this week. Alfred Reynolds, a son of T.G. Reynolds, is one of the operators at Sinks. He boards with Mrs. Butler, Mr. and Mrs. A.E. Albright, of Brodhead, spent Sunday until Monday with Jailer and Mrs. O.V. Jarrett. M.J. Miller has moved from the W.J. Sparks property on North Main into the residence with his father. J.A. Wood, the Orlando merchant, was one of the few who had enough courage to face the cold and come to town. S.J. Conn writes from Connecticut that the temperature is just a little too severe for one accustomed to a more southern climate. Dan Roach and bride arrived Sunday and for the present are stopping at the home of C.C. Williams, in whose office Mr. Roach will work. Judge J.B. Fish has returned from Hot Springs to his home in Williamsburg. While we have no report from him, we hope that this short stay was of much benefit to him. "Smiling" Dave Jackson, who can claim as many friends as any man in the state, was here Wednesday. Mr. Jackson has been appointed Grand Inspector for the Royal Arch Masons for this and several other lodges in the state. S.N. Davis expects to leave some time this month for New Mexico, where he will make his future home. While we regret to lose him from our number, yet we trust the change will prove a rich harvest for him, as no one is more deserving of success than he. The law partnership of C.C. Williams recently formed with Elmer Evans, a young attorney of London, is proving a very successful venture for him, in that splendid and thriving town. Mr. Williams is thoroughly delighted with his associate and the tribute which he plays to him is that of which any young man could justly be proud.

"What Saith The Scriptures"

Our Lord Jesus said: "And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil. For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved. But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest, that they are wrought in God." John 3:19-21

When folks are wanting to do what is right, they will want to come to the light. When men love darkness, they will not come to the light, for the light will reprove them. You see truth has nothing to fear from an open investigation. When men want to do the right thing, they will be seeking the Lord's will. Even though they may have thorns anis in their lives, they want the truth to set them straight. Now people who are not truly, whole-heartedly committed to doing what is right, will shy away from the truth. A lot of folks in religious error, who think that they are doing right, when confronted with the truth of God's word, soon have no defense for their doctrine, and quit studying, how sad! You don't see the early Christians who were in the truth, and were committed to truth, quit discussing with folks in error. No, we see folks were converted, or these ones in darkness quit discussing the matter with the Christians, cf. Ac 17:15, 32-34, 19:8-10, etc. What is your attitude toward the truth???

The Family Room

By Dr. Don Whitehead

Bobby Is the Classmate I Admire the Most

I have not seen Bobby since high school. I wonder how he is getting along in life.

Bobby is the high school classmate that I admire the most. No, he was not a big sports star - nor was he the valedictorian of our class and no, he did not get elected class president. He was not a member of the "in crowd" that seemed to include most of the popular kids at school.

He worked hard at his studies, and he was a good student, but I do not think the word came easily for him. He was quiet and not one to stand out in a crowd. He dressed neatly, though it was obvious from his clothes that his family did not have much money. His FFA jacket was his coat of matter how cold the weather.

Sadly, it was his economic status that marked him as an outsider. We were very conscious of "status" in my class. There was a certain pecking order, and one of the qualifications for making it to the top was apparently economic success. Without that, one could never quite make it to popularity.

Economic success was important because that meant "good clothes," which in those days consisted mainly of jeans, tee-shirts and penny loafers. Bobby's clothes were definitely not up to par. Both he and his sister reflected the family's lack of income.

That is an indictment of me and my classmates that we sometimes laughed at Bobby and his sister. That is not something I am proud to report.

I do not remember making fun of them myself (or have I conveniently forgotten?), but I did nothing to stop it. Bobby did not seem bothered by all this, but it must have hurt him at times. I do not believe I ever saw him get upset at someone for the way he was treated. He did not fight back with his fists but with his mind and his achievements.

My feelings about what is important have changed quite a bit since high school (thank goodness). As I remember Bobby now, I do not think of him as someone who did not have the right clothes. Instead I admire him for fighting to make it in a sometimes hostile world.

I know nothing about his home life. There may have been alcohol or abuse, and there certainly was poverty. Any one of those is enough to break the spirit of a child. But Bobby didn't break. While home may not have been a good place, one would never know that from what he said or how he acted. He always was the same calm person no matter what.

I wonder what he is doing today. Did he make it even without a lot of help? Is he working? Does he have a career? Is he still as strong as I remember him? Is he still fighting to make it in a hostile world? Does he have a family? What kind of father is he to his children? What kind of husband is he?

I remember the page in our high school yearbook that featured the "most popular" students. Bobby's picture was not among those favored ones. For what it's worth, Bobby, I think we did you an injustice by not including you in that group. And not for what you missed, but for what we missed. There was a lot you could have taught us about life if we had only stopped to see and listen.

If you are out there, Bobby, I would love to hear from you.

Fire Blight

Fire Blight is a bacterial disease affecting apple, pear, and flowering crab apple trees, to name a few of the more common trees. Home gardeners take notice this time of year when blossoms and leaves of infected limbs wilt suddenly and then turn dark brown to black as if scorched by fire.

Where does Fire Blight come from? Bacteria over-winters on infected trees in cankers formed during the previous year. Primary spread is accomplished by insects, wind, rain and movement of bacteria within the plant tissue. The year of initial infection may see only a few scorched limbs, however the bacteria may be building up for a much larger infection the following year. Bacterial infections are generally favored by high humidity and temperatures between 65-70 degrees F. Bacteria gain access to trees through wound sites, or natural openings such as flower parts, leaves and shoots.

How do you control Fire Blight on affected trees? Best control will occur during the dormant season. When possible, prune out blighted twigs by pruning at least 4 inches below infected areas and destroying the clippings. Completely cover the dormant tree with a copper sulfate spray. Use 4 -5 pounds copper sulfate per 100 gallons of water. This should help reduce over-wintering bacteria.

For home gardeners who wish to do something as they see the effect of Fire Blight, two things may help. When possible, prune out blighted limbs. Prune at least 6-12 inches below effected areas and clean pruning tools between cuts. Sterilize tools between cuts by using 70% alcohol or 10% chlorine bleach solution. The second step, when possible, is to spray trees with antibiotic streptomycin (Agricultural Streptomycin at farm stores). Use 4 oz. of 21% streptomycin sulfate per 100 gallons water at 4 -5 day intervals during bloom and again weekly during post bloom period as long as shoots continue to elongate. Streptomycin is best applied just before sundown due to the sun's ability to break this product down.

Pruning and spraying large trees may be impractical for some home owners. In this case, seek out qualified helpers who understand that Fire Blight can inadvertently be spread if proper pruning and sterilizing tools are not used.

Shirley Cox of the Rockcastle Kiwanis Club is shown giving the welcome to those who gathered under the tent for the talk by Jon Carlifolis.

Margie Wilcop is showing some of that southern hospitality she is famous for.

Roles and Nancy Mullins kept busy directing visitors to different areas in their yard during the tour.

Janet Carter and Janice Davidson are shown taking a rest break in the pine tree shade garden at the home of Garland and Rachel Cummins.

Garden Tour & Tea

The two fun days ended with a tea catered by Barbara Bennett of Exquisite Cuisine at the home of Lucille Carlifolis at Livingston. Lucille's son, Jon Carlifolis, did a fantastic job of entertaining the large crowd with a slide presentation and talk mingled with humorous stories of his gardening jobs in the big cities. The Kiwanis Club will be forever grateful to Jon and his mother, for sharing his knowledge and experiences and for opening their beautiful home for us all to enjoy.

All in all, it was a weekend to remember, for those involved and for those who worked so hard to make this a success for our community. We often take so much for granted-like the beauty of our area, to the friendliness of our people, and the talent that lies hidden under the rush, rush of our lives. It is the hope of the Kiwanis Club that this effort has brought our community a little closer together and made us realize how very important it is to all work together as one—how very important it is to visit our neighbors and to feel welcome—how every important it is to create a little beauty in our own yards to enjoy and for our neighbors to enjoy and in our community so that we can feel proud to be a citizen of Rockcastle County.

Thanks to all who gave of their time and to all who came...
