Storm brings needed rainfall

Some damage reported throughout the county

Rockcastle County residents got a much needed rainfall Tuesday evening, but in some cases, the storm that brought the rainfall did more harm than good.

Local weatherman Bud Cox said that he officially recorded 1.73 inches of rain for the 24 hour period that ended at 8 a.m. on Wednesday morning, but that some areas of the county likely got more, some less.

The 1.73 inches was 1.31 inches more of precipitation than had fallen the entire month of July so far.

Only .42 of an inch had been recorded in the first 20 days of July, while 4.77 inches fell in June.

The high in July has been 90 degrees, the low 58. In June, the high was 92, the low 55.

Tuesday night's storm brought wind gusts estimated as high as 70 miles per hour.

The high winds damaged trees, gardens and tobacco and as well as causing some flooding in low lying areas.

Billy Joe Shafer, local head of the highway department said crews worked about four hours clearing trees and debris from state highways, with most of the damage being on Hwy. 3275 in the Brindle Ridge area.

The county road department also worked for several hours Wednesday morning clearing debris from county roads.

Gloria Robbins with the local Farm Service Agency said her agency had received several calls on Wednesday morning concerning damage to local tobacco crops.

Mrs. Robbins said that most of the damage to the tobacco was also reported in the Brindle Ridge area.

Mrs. Robbins said that farmers that have damage should go to the Farm Service Agency office and fill out a 574 form for disaster credit, whether or not they have crop insurance or not.

Three Rockcastle teams advance to state tournament

The Rockcastle County Little League and Babe Ruth League baseball program has been very successful this season, so successful that three of the four league sponsored all-star teams are in the state tournament.

The 9-10 year old all stars will play in Pikeville at the Bob Ames Park, at 6 p.m. on Saturday night and the 11-12 year old all stars will play at the same complex at 8 p.m. Saturday night.

The 13 year old all-stars play in Campbellsville on Saturday night at 8:30 p.m.

The 11-12 year olds advanced to the state tournament by defeating South London, 8-4, Jackson County, 13-0 and Clay County, 5-2, in the sub-district.

The 11-12 year olds defeated Corbin, 8-1, Somerset, 2-1, lost to South London, 8-4 and defeated South London, 8-1 for the district championship.

Rockcastle's 9-10 year old All-Stars captured the District Championship and will travel to Pikeville for the State Tournament. Four teams vied for the district championship: Rockcastle County, Middlesboro, Somerset and Harlan.

Game 1—Rockcastle County played Middlesboro in the first round on Sunday, July 11 and marked up their first district win 8-4.

Game 2—In the second inning of the game, Somerset scored six runs while Rockcastle was scoreless. Rockcastle's seven run third inning extinguished Somerset's lead. Rockcastle added three additional runs during the game and held Somerset scoreless after the second inning. Win #2—10-6.

Injury accident . . . .

Brad Hunt, 22, of Spiro was critically injured in a single vehicle accident on Hwy. 1250 Monday afternoon. According to Hunt, he was traveling toward Spiro from Somerset and had fallen asleep. His S-10 Chevy truck left the roadway and traveled about 25 feet before striking a tree. Hunt received massive head and facial injuries. In the crash and was flown to the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington. He was to undergo about eight hours of surgery on Wednesday. Above, Veronica Robbins places a neck brace on Hunt before he was transported to the Rockcastle Hospital by ambulance. Also in the photo are Marvin Mink, Chuck Napier and Kay Shafer, the first person on the scene.

Amnesty program will help rid Rockcastle of old tires

The Rockcastle County Fiscal Court, in cooperation with the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet (NREPC), will be conducting a waste tire amnesty program for the citizens of Rockcastle County.

Program operations will be based at the state Department of Transportation garage located off U.S. 25 South behind County Sam's and the Central Baptist Church in Mt. Vernon. Hours of operation will begin at 8:00 a.m. Thursday, August 19, 1999 and end at 5:00 p.m. Saturday, August 21, 1999.

This program provides a one time opportunity for private citizens, farmers and some businesses to drop off their unwanted waste tires free of charge, according to Mrs. Nancy Meadows, Rockcastle County Solid Waste Coordinator.

Tire retailers and motor vehicle salvage yards may not participate in the program. Off The Road Tires (OTR) and solid tires with treaded rims will not be accepted.

Amnesty program personnel will be on site to accept passenger, light truck, truck and agricultural tires and provide program participants with educational materials that explain waste tire management standards required by House Bill 636, the new waste tire law. All waste tires will be managed and transported to beneficial end-use markets by transporters under contract with NREPC. Cont.

Tracks will be funded through the Waste Tire Trust Fund.

Eligible participants are homeowners, farmers and landowners, service stations that derive less than 10 percent of their revenue from the retail sale of new motor vehicle tires, auto body shops and trucking and (Cont. to A11)

East Bernstadt man killed in wreck on 490

An East Bernstadt man was killed Sunday morning when he apparently lost control of the motorcycle he was riding on Hwy. 490.

According to Rockcastle County Coroner Bill Dowell, Bobby R. McFarland, 35, of East Bernstadt, was traveling south on Hwy. 490 about three miles from Livingstone when the accident occurred.

Dowell said that McFarland apparently lost control of his Honda motorcycle, after a garment became entangled in his back wheel.

Dowell said the motorcycle hit the tree with such force that it broke the tree off.

An autopsy revealed that

McFarland died instantly from a massive internal injuries, including a broken spine and back.

Some hunters in the area spotted the motorcycle's light as they were hunting for one of their dogs.

The accident apparently occurred about 2:30 a.m. Dowell said that family told him that McFarland had purchased the motorcycle that day in Missouri and was apparently heading home to East Bernstadt.

Police said that McFarland also had $4,100 cash in his possession when he was discovered and he also had a Florida driver's license.

With the help of numbers saved on McFarland's cell phone, Dowell and KSP Trooper Lee Owens were able to locate the next of kin.

Local man found not guilty of exposure charge

An Orlando man was found not guilty last week in Lincoln district court on a charge of indecent exposure.

Last August, Frankie Sparks, 28, was accused of the lude act by Lisa Weesner, a female truck driver from Casey County, as the two traveled from Crab Orchard to Corbin.

Sparks, who was allegedly driving a Lincoln County bus of education vehicle at the time of the alleged incident, said Tuesday that he was totally stunned by the allegations last year.

Sparks said he hired attorney Jerome S. Fish and private investigator Greg Petersen who have worked on his case for the past 11 months.

The district court jury was out a very short time before reaching the not guilty verdict.

Sparks, who is still employed by the Lincoln County board of education, was never suspended from his job in anyway.

Little World's Fair begins Sat., July 31

The 104th Little World's Fair will begin on Saturday, July 31.

The annual gathering at the fairgrounds in Brodehead will run in conjunction with the Rockcastle County Agricultural Fair.

The annual Dairy Show will kick things off at 12 noon followed by the go-kart races at 7:30 p.m.

Sunday, August 1, a horseshoe pitching contest will be held at 1 p.m.

The mid-way will open on Monday night at 6 p.m. with Bull Mania at 8 p.m. Monday night will feature a cowgirl's barrel race.

Tuesday, exhibits can be entered beginning at 10 a.m., with the mid-way opening at 6 p.m. and Bull Mania again at 8 p.m. Exhibits will also be open nightly from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Wednesday and Thursday nights the ever popular demolition derby will be held at 8 p.m. and on Friday and Saturday nights the mud races are scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Thursday is special family day, with all rides costing .25, noon to 4 p.m.

Work begins on widening of U.S. 25, 461

Work has begun on a project to widen part of the Hwy. 461 by-pass and U.S. 25 leading to the Rentfro Valley Exit of interstate 75.

Elmo Greer and Sons of London is doing the work that will include the building of a third lane that will be designated as a turn lane with the top of the hill at Rite-Aid and McDonald's. Past that point the third lane will be designated as a truck lane until the road narrows back to two lanes near the black-top plant on the by-pass.

Because of the project, Wendy's was forced to relocate their restaurant, which is now Wendy's City Service Center, but not other businesses will be affected, except for losing some of their property in front of their buildings, according to Lee (Cont. to A11)

As left, heavy equipment operators were busy Tuesday moving back a cliff on the 461 by-pass in Mt. Vernon. Elmo Greer and Sons has the contract on the $3.4 million project that will widen U.S. 25 and a portion of the by-pass to three lanes. Estimates are that it will take about three months to move back the cliff far enough for the third lane.

By: Ike Adams

I watched it for nearly two weeks as it grew from about the size of a golf ball to somewhat larger than a baseball. Then, when it stopped growing and began changing color from emerald green to almost white, I began planning the meal that I would build around the first ripe tomato from my garden.

Green onions, mustard, spinach, cabbage, peas and kohlrabi are cause enough for joy when they debut but the first ripe tomato from the garden is a spiritual experience for me.

My brother, Steve, has been staying with me for several weeks and in all truth the garden is as much a result of his effort as mine. And I confess, he has patiently helped plant and tend several different kinds of peppers, squash and eggplant while I vowed that none of it would ever enter his mouth.

He comes home dead tired from work or in the evening and spends an hour or so in the garden with me most days while insisting that he wouldn't give a time for this but that the other Steve is focused principally on cucumbers, beans and new potatoes. He's not even had them on tomatoes except that the vines have over-er five feet tall and loaded down so they've become something of a source of grower's pride to him.

I don't know whether it's because we don't put much pickle on the table or whether his sense of adventure has begun to kick in, but over the last couple of weeks Steve has actually been bragging on an eggplant-summer squash concoction that involved tomato sauce, fresh basil and oregano, chopped green onions and some salt and pepper topped with whatever cheese that happens to be handy. And just tonight he went back for seconds on fried banana peppers while grudgingly admitting "this stuff ain't it" that had it a body knows how to fix it.

All of which, of course, has nothing much to do with that first ripe tomato.

One evening last week, we were trying to figure where to plant some late fall beans, when Steve noticed the aforementioned fruit.

"We gotta make it here ripe enough to suit me," he allowed and stooped over to give it a closer examination.

I darn near fainting because I thought he was going to pick it off the vine and take a big bite out of it.

But he straightened up and noted that, "It wouldn't hurt to hang there another day or two. You feel alright?"

He asked, "You look sort of pale."

"Steve," I said, "We ain't picking that matter till we have a mess of beans to go with it."

Friday afternoon I gave Molly Helton several cabbage heads that were still left standing after the sour kraut extravaganza and she gave me over a gallon of fresh picked white half runners from her garden. Saturday afternoon I broke the beans, threw in a chunk of seasoned fat-back and set them to simmering in Dutch ovens while I headed to the garden. I gouged out a dozen new potatoes, found a huge bulb pepper, pulled some green onions, Roma eggplant and picked several small cucumbers. I cleaned the veggies and made some cole slaw to chill in the frig. Then I made a big pone of cornbread.

Young Roma eggplant grows long and slender like zucchini instead of round like you normally think of eggplant. Dipped in batter and fried, it has the consistency of newly melted mozzarella cheese. And folks, you can't buy new potatoes out of a store. When a potato has been out of the ground for more than an hour, it is no longer in my opinion. I know it begins to lose taste. Fifteen minutes after digging mine, they were in with the half runners.

Steve came home about 7:00 p.m. and all that was left to be done before setting the table was to pick the main attraction.

He watched as I picked it and brought it in the house, wondering, I'm sure, why anybody in their right mind could be taking such pains with a tomato. I cut it into half a dozen slices and put it on a plate by itself. When Louisa, Steve and I sat down to eat the tomato was just a condiment to them. But to me it was by far, the main course as well as the highlight of my gardening season to date.

As the old song goes, "There's only two things that money can't buy and that's true love and home grown tomatoes."

Community Action Chapter 23

When we moved to the Buffalo area it wasn't my idea of a close knit community, but as the months and years passed and we became more involved with local people, I realized, distance between kin folk and neighbors didn't hinder them from being a community that cared about the problems, and shared the joys of their neighbors.

The birth of a baby, whether it was the first or twelfth was an occasion for two or three close friends or kin of the expecting woman to be present from the time she went into labor till the ordeal was over and she had a brand new baby in her arms. Most women sent her other children to relatives or neighbors' houses when she went into labor for in those days children were protected from the realities of life and child bearing. When the child arrived with the message, "mommy sent the woman over to tell you she needs you and I am to stay till you get back, the woman grabbed a clean apron and perhaps a couple towels and went to join the other woman chosen to sit with her during her labor." Upon arrival the coffee pot was put on and everyone settled down to catch up on the latest gossip of the area. They took turns at the patients bedside holding onto her hand while she pushed, and encouraged her to try a little harder. Then the cry of the newborn, a sign of relief from the mama, and the baby was handed over to a woman in attendance to be bathed and dressed in warm flannel clothes and put in her mama's arms. The Daddy was usually on the porch or yard waiting for the cry before he stopped back in to brag about what a fine baby it was, or say, "dry," "well another mouth to feed."

Mid-wives, self-trained by experience, was usually called if the first sign of labor pains, and if she lived a distance away it may be hours before she arrived. But that didn't seem to bother the expectant mother nor the woman sitting around telling of their own experiences "having a baby." They seemed to know she would be there in time to make the delivery. So, each one took her turn and walked with the woman around the room or if possible around the yard. Walking was, and still is, used to help promote a quicker and easier birth. Some of the midwives used all kinds of tea, "hickory bark," "reed pepper," "catnip" and once, when a young woman was having trouble and her labor stopped I remember the midwife sending the father to the woods in the middle of the night to find some mistle-toe to use. She swore it would start up the labor again and all would be well. These teas were used to bring the baby faster, slower, relax the mother, etc. But none of them worked for the case I was just talking about. I finally arrived the girl's father, who lived across the road, and told him he had better get a doctor if he valued his daughter's life. Of course he did. After a quick check up on her I heard the roar of a motor and his truck took off for Somerset, over an hour drive away. Three hours later he was back with a kind doctor in tow. A quick exam, a shot of pain killer and with a flip of the baby to release it from its lodging on the pelvis and the beautiful cry of a fat baby boy was heard throughout the house. When I sent for the doctor over the objections of the midwife, she picked up her bag and left. This was the first time I was a preacher and once thanked me now he was visiting the church I was attending for saving his and his mother's life.

"Aunt Mary Ann Mink" was the local midwife in the Buffalo-Pongo area. She usually rode a mule the several miles she had to travel to see her patient. She was a tall gaunt woman with a memory of hers that she always wore long black dresses and could out-talk any of today's T.V. Talk Show Hosts. She could, and often would, talk all night long to anyone interested in her tales of the past or of the latest gossip. She was loved and respected by the women she attended and loved to brag about her many successful deliveries. The first birth I ever attended was one where the woman in labor waited too long to see for Aunt Mary Ann and since I was the only adult present I had to catch the baby, a little girl, and place her safely in a dry spot and wait for the midwife to arrive and attend to her. She was bathed before she could be bathed and dressed. By this time her sister-in-law had arrived and took over the baby's care as well as tending to the two little boys I had been dividing my time between caring for and helping their mama deliver a little girl child. That was my first experience at the birthing of someone else's baby wasn't the last. It was after midnight before I could borrow a lantern and head up the hollow for home. It was close to a two mile walk, the night was dark and the narrow path rough and filled with pitfalls, but I don't remember being afraid. I had just performed my good deed for the day and a new life was just beginning.

Aunt Mary Ann was not the midwife I told about using tea, I had not mentioned that one name when she will I. She did her job the way she thought was best and had been taught to do by old wives tales. Ignorance may be bliss, but it can also kill.

Now there were other things going on in the community besides birth and death. I know those are the two most important events in our life but a lot of living goes on between the two happenings. Going to school is one of them.

I also know I have written much about that subject but there is a lot more to write about. Those who attended one room school could probably tell you things about learning, playing, fighting, working together to accomplish the simple things others take for granted and putting up with having two or three teachers in one year that you wouldn't believe. The school house and little church house beside it was the meeting places of us for the whole community.

This was the social center for all ages. On church days, which was once a month, everyone that was interested in going put on their best boots and new overalls, the little girls dressed in frilly little dresses, the boys in overalls and went to church. Worship! Maybe, but they were there at least to do homage to God. There were revivals occasionally by the people closer together and hopefully to change their ways.

This gave the young folks a chance to meet with others and giggles were often heard from the back of the room when a cute young miss caught the eye of a handsome young sir and a relation was begun.

The little one room school beside it had other uses for the community. One of them being pie suppers to make money for things needed by the children. All the people turned out for these. Old women, young wives, teenage girls and sometimes even young girls made pies of every description to take and be sold at auction to the highest bidder. The girl taking the pie would then have to eat it with the high bidder. Sometimes one man would bid off several pies and I'm sure had a belly full by the time he ate a title with each girl owning the pie for it would have been rude to slight one.

And when pie came up for bid made by one of the popular girls each young man wanted the honor of eating with her so the bid kept getting higher until most of them felt they could not afford it and the one who was wanting all along to get it did so. All kinds of games were played to make a little more money. Prettiest girl, ugliest man, the cake walk, guess what was hidden under a cake or what was in the mystery pie. There are many ways to get a little more money from folks lacking a good cause. And pie suppers were usually for that. The Buffalo school needed play ground equipment. These kids had never played with a brand new baseball and bat nor basketball equipment. I can't remember exactly what all was bought with the money but I do know it was spent for things the kids wanted and used and the government had nothing to do with it. This was a community working together for a worthy cause and having fun while doing it.

In Loving Memory

In Loving Memory of Our Dearest Parents Harrison Ramsey, who passed away Jan. 30, 1957 and Grace Hines Ramsey, who passed away July 12, 1991

Gone But Not Forgotten Oh how precious are the memories that take us back in time when we were all together and had such peace of mind.

Now even though you've left us, we still remember you, your loving hearts and smiling faces are always in our view.

We never knew of hunger or ever short of love. And we'll always remember you told us of God's precious love. So we'll just keep right on praying until we meet you some sweet day up there in that beautiful land called heaven, in that glory land way.

So rest sweet ones until we meet again to laugh, to love, to kiss, to hug, like we did way back then.

Sadly missed by their children, Frank Ramsey, Thomas Ramsey, Billy Ray Ramsey, Glenna French, Christine Blackburn, Irene Penner and Sadie Pittman and all of their grandchildren and great grandchildren and Hazel Hines and Buddy, Anna Rose and Emily Mullins.

"WHAT SAITH THE SCRIPTURES"

Jesus said to Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Matt 28:19 Again, And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. Mark 16:15 Our goal as a local congregation of God's people is to seek every opportunity to spread the gospel message. One of the methods to reach out to people is through the Internet. We are happy to announce that our web page is back online. We hope that we will make contacts with people around the world as we have in time past. We never know, through the Providence of God who may be directed our way, a door of opportunity to teach the gospel message. Paul said, "For after that in the wisdom of God the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe." 1 Cor 1:21 Yes, our prayers are, that we may be an instrument in the hand of God to speak forth his word, to show a lost and dying world the Saviour

Our Readers Write

Dear Editor,

What a sick and perverted world we live in, where a human being receives a letter of termination from his job... on the front page of the local newspaper! Even more twisted, is when the entire ordeal takes place while the individual is vacationing in another state!

In last week's Signal, we saw the brutal cowardice and heartlessness of Brodhead's City Council and its Chief of Police, being directed toward Officer Greg Richards. Without a doubt, this is one of the most unwise decisions this city has made for many reasons. First of all, I see the city having a major lawsuit on their hands, and a very messy one at that. Secondly, the safety and security of this town has just dropped to rock bottom.

You see, the city council was obviously basing their decision on tradition and good old fashioned word-of-mouth. How judicially-correct is it when the leaders of the community take the word of the hoodlum, the vandal and the thief over the word of the law-abiding citizen? Just because some woman makes an erroneous allegation against Officer Richards to protect her son that is in trouble with the law already, doesn't mean our superiors should take her word at face value.

Brodhead's City Council certainly didn't think about the future ramifications that will result from their actions. I work at Dairy Mart until midnight each night; the type of place where I often worry about my safety, for fear of some lowlife bursting in with a gun and putting my life in jeopardy. I never had to worry about that kind of thing when Officer Richards was on duty. If he wasn't already within arm's reach, give the man ten seconds and he would be there to do his job—something he took very seriously. But it's not all simple anymore. How safe will I, or anyone else be when our Chief of Police is parked behind a carwash, reading the National Enquirer?

Parents lock up your children? Curfew is now 9:00. No one is safe! And why? Because the city council thought it was in our best interest that one of Brodhead's finest be fired.

The icing on the cake was the cowardly act of holding a meeting to discuss the matter, firing the man, and printing the story in the newspaper, all while Officer Richards was away, unable to represent and defend himself. The council and our Chief of Police was hoping to add a little insult to injury, and pour a little salt on the wound.

As for the Brodhead City Council and Bazooka Joe, I salute you with sarcasm dripping from my pen. You've made the drunks, punks, thieves, hoodlums, murderers, and scum of Brodhead very happy.

Sincerely,
Joshua McKibben
Rt. 4
Mt. Vernon, KY

Editor's Note: The Brodhead City Council in no way solicited or provided the story that appeared in last week's Signal. Mr. McKibben should have chosen his words better when he insinuates that the council had anything put in the newspaper, when the fact of the matter is that the council did not in any way ask for a story to be printed. However, the minutes of the meeting, which are public record, were checked by this author and the story written on my own.

Burley Tobacco Disaster Leasing

Burley tobacco producers are being reminded that once again disaster leasing is available. Producers who feel they will have a 20% shortage on the current effective quota and wish to disaster lease may file an application for disaster credit as soon as the disaster occurs and up to the time the crop is harvested. In order to file for the disaster leasing the following conditions must be met:

1. The crop must have been affected by a natural disaster while still in the field.
2. For natural disasters occurring before harvest, a farm visit must find the crop was cared for in a workman-like manner—losses resulting from poor management practices will not be eligible.
3. Sufficient acreage must be planted to produce the farms effective quota.
4. COC must approve the application.

Producers who have a tobacco loss and think they may want to disaster lease should contact the Rockcastle Co. FSA Office BEFORE destroying the tobacco.

Marketing Cards

The FSA Office will soon be ordering the marketing cards for the current crop. All producers who will receive a check at the tobacco warehouse must have required paperwork signed and on file in the office prior to receiving the marketing card for price support. The required paperwork includes: and AD-1026 (sodbuster), FSA-570 (insurance waiver) and the MQ-38 (pesticide form). If you as a producer have an address change—please notify our office as soon as possible so the marketing card will reflect the correct address.

Additional Cash Payments For Hog Farmers

CEA, Warden Alexander, stated Vice President Gore has announced that struggling small and medium sized hog farmers will begin to receive about $100 million in additional cash assistance as early as mid-August.

Sign-up for the new round of assistance is slated to begin August 9, 1999. Hog farmers who received the earlier payments will automatically receive the new payment in August, and are not required to reapply or fill out additional paperwork. Farmers seeking payments for the first time must apply and will receive checks within a few weeks of their sign-up.

Eligible producers will receive $10 per slaughter-weight hogs marketed during the last six months of 1998 on up to 500 market hogs (or an equivalent number of feeder pigs or other swine). Hog farm operators who received payments under the earlier disbursement would receive a prorated amount to bring their total payment amount to $10 per slaughter-weight hog or equivalent. Payments would be limited to hog operations that produced hogs in the US and sold less than 2,500 hogs during the specified marketing period. Further information will be released as available.

Agri-Business tour visits four states

The Rockcastle County Agri-Business Tour of 1999 left Mt. Vernon, July 5, 1999 at 7:00 a.m. for a tour of four southeastern states under the direction of Roy G. Brown.

We visited a farmers market. There seemed to be plenty of vegetables and fruits available. We visited an Angus farm in Louisville, North Carolina. The name of the farm was "Springlake Angus Farm." It got its name because seven springs filled the lake. The owner had a third interest in one Angus bull at a cost of $33,000.

Another interesting type of farming was the Shackleford's flu cured tobacco farm. They are in the process of harvesting the tobacco. Besides tobacco, the Shackleford's bought and packed for market: sweet potatoes, bell peppers, cantaloupes, hogs, turkeys and cotton. (Greene Gin and Cotton) The cotton seeds were used for feed and replanted.

Mr. Shackleford and wife, his son, Jerry and family roasted a pig, made pork barbecue, also fixed chicken, baked beans, corn-on-the-cob, slaw, seasoned cucumbers, special corn bread, pie, cake, watermelon and ice tea and soft drinks.

Mr. Shackleford has ties with Kentucky. He owns 1/2 interest in a tobacco warehouse in Danville.

Other places of interest visited were Dollywood, Tennessee; Mt. Airy, Norton Carolina (Andy Griffith's home); Myrtle Beach, South Carolina; toured Old Savannah, Georgia; there was over 100 points of interest at Savannah. Two movies have recently been made at Savannah, one was "Midnight in the Garden of God and Evil." We also visited the Coca Cola Museum at Atlanta, Georgia, the Tennessee Aquarium in Chattanooga, Tennessee and we shopped at a couple of malls.

Everyone seemed to have had a good time. We arrived back in Mt. Vernon at 5:00 p.m. Saturday, July 10, 1999.

One of the areas in which entries can be made is "Fruits & Vegetables." Items such as beans, potatoes, onions, tomatoes, sweet corn, bell peppers, okra, beets, cucumbers, cabbage, pumpkin, squash, watermelon, garden displays and more. Please check the Fair Catalog for details on number to display.

In the Floral Department, some of the categories include; red rose, pink rose, other roses, dwarf marigold, giant marigold, dwarf zinnia, giant zinnia, dahlias and gladioli, all displayed in pop bottles.

Agronomy has three sections open for 4-H and FFA, as well as both youth and adults. Entries can be made in Stuck Burley Tobacco (4 stalks), with premiums being Blue $10; Red $5, and White $3. All other Agronomy exhibit premiums are Blue $5, Red $3, and White $1. Hay entries should be 109 bales. Entries can be made in alfalfa hay, alfalfa with grass hay, red clover with grass hay and mixed grass hay. Other agronomy exhibits include corn silage and field corn.

For more information about rules and procedures for displaying exhibits, consult a Fair Catalog or call the Rockcastle County Extension Office at 256-2403.

Invest In A Car Safety Seat Now

By: Hazel Jackson County Extension Agent for Family and Consumer Science

Automobile accidents are the number one killer and crippler of children after the critical early weeks of life. Make riding in a car as safe as possible for your baby.

By Kentucky law, children under 40 inches tall must be properly secured in an approved child restraint system when riding in a car, van or truck. Violators may be fined for failure to comply.

Worse than the fine, violators expose their children to the risk of serious injuries or even death in the event of an accident. Ninety percent of these deaths as well as 80 percent of these injuries could be avoided if parents would take the time to buckle their children into proper child restraints.

The most dangerous way to secure the infant to an adult's lap.

A sudden stop of the car can throw a baby against the dashboard or through a car window. If the adult is not belted in, the child will be crushed between the adult's body and the windshield or dashboard.

At 30 miles per hour, a 120 pound adult moves with the force of 2,400 pounds. Car seats, when properly installed and used, greatly reduce the likelihood of death or serious injury from a car accident.

Children weighing less than 20 pounds should be placed in seats especially designed for infants. These seats face the rear of the vehicle and should be used in the back seat of a vehicle. In an accident, the back - the strongest part of the baby's body - absorbs the shock rather than the chest or abdomen. The seat should be equipped with a 5-point harness - a pair of straps over the shoulders, a lap belt and a crotch strap - to secure the infant to the safety seat.

Larger children (up to 5 years old) should be placed in a front-facing toddler seat. Children too large for a car seat should use the vehicle's lap belts.

For more information on car seat safety, call the Extension Office at 256-2403.

Burdette Family Reunion

Written By
Wanda Burdette Burton
To those who were there we saw you
To those who wasn't "we missed you"
To all "We love you,
To God be the Glory.

Most lived near, some drove far.

There was a hundred and some.
Some old, some young.
Some were just learning.
Their legs would run.

If I had of been there.
We couldn't have counted them all.
Over many states our relatives grow and roam.

We are so thankful.
For those who came.
It was good to see you.
Hope all will come again.

A few unborn, yet to see.
Keeping generations plentifully.
Burdettes, Burdettes everywhere.

God has richly blessed this family.
To him I give praise.
And he blessed us with such A beautiful Reunion Day.

Playing Bridge...Could it help improve my memory?

Where are my car keys? I can't remember my brother's phone number! What was I supposed to get at the grocery store? Or fear that our memory is slipping or fading is on the minds of most of us. I have two choices. I can live with that fear every day or I can choose to fight it at every opportunity.

The speed with which your brain processes information slows down with age. However, Professor Marian Diamond, Director of Lawrence Hall of Science at Berkeley University, in a major discovery, believes that "with proper stimulation, the brain can continue to develop at any age - has revolutionized our thinking about aging by emphasizing the importance of growth and learning throughout life."

I asked Professor Diamond whether she thought that learning to play bridge would constitute stimulation. "Absolutely," she replied. "Learning any new hobby and continuing the education process will stimulate the brain and the game of bridge would be a fun way to do it." For many years, Diamond has been enthusiastically promoting her "use it or lose it" theory, encouraging her students to remain active, mentally as well as physically, for the rest of their lives.

Your first line of attack should be to let your doctor determine that you are physically healthy. A poor memory could be the result of a recent illness or even depression which sometimes can be treated medicinally. The next key step to improving your memory is to pick out certain activity that involves learning. My own search led me to the fascinating game of bridge.

Bridge has proven to increase memory and concentration skills and helps to develop improved judgment and logic. It is low in cost and will help increase your social opportunities, providing you with the chance to meet other people, travel and much more! You will have so much fun you won't even remember that it's actually good for you. Painless memory therapy - what a concept!

The Bennett Center in London, by offering six FREE Easybridge lessons to introduce you to this fabulous pastime. The lessons are especially for beginners and will be held Tuesday nights, starting July 27, 1999 from 7:00 to 9:30 p.m.

Textbooks are provided for free. You'll be playing bridge on your first night and meeting other new players in the community. These lessons are open to everyone so bring all your friends with you and learn together. Partners are provided if you need one and fun is guaranteed every week! There is also free parking. The Bennett Center is located on West 5th Street in London. To register or for more information call 606-864-5010 or Y.M.C.A. 606-878-8333.

Cumberland recognizes Bert T. Combs Grant recipients

Cumberland College announces that the following students are recipients of Bert T. Combs Leadership Grants.

Jennifer Michelle Cromer, daughter of Troy and Verla Cromer of Mt. Vernon. She is a 1999 graduate of Rockcastle County High School and plans to major in Pre-Med.

Shaun Jones, son of Rhonda McFerron and Mark Jones of Odessa. He is a 1999 graduate of Rockcastle County High School and is currently undecided as to his major.

Mrs. Sara Walter Combs, wife of the late Gov. Bert T. Combs, presented each recipient with a certificate and a pin. Combs challenged the recipients who worked hard toward realizing their dreams just as her husband did while attending Cumberland College. Gov. Bert T. Combs graduated from Cumberland College in 1930.

Bert T. Combs Leadership Grants are available for qualifying students from Bell, Clay, Floyd, Knott, Knox, Harlan, Jackson, Laurel, Leslie, Leitcher, Lincoln, Magoffin, Martin, McCreary, Owsley, Perry, Pike, Pulaski, Rockcastle, Wayne, Whitley or Wolfe Counties in Kentucky. Students who maintain the grants academic standards are eligible to receive the grant for up to four years of enrollment.

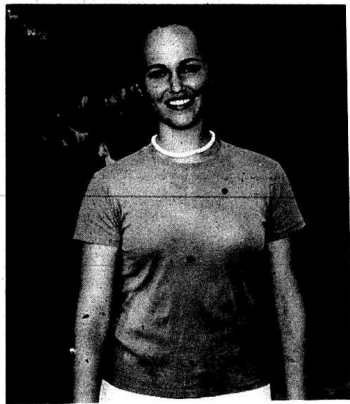

Cumberland College, located in Williamsburg, is a private liberal arts college in its 110th year of operation. Cumberland offers four undergraduate degrees in 34 majors of study, 30 minors and nine pre-professional programs.

entrance exam scores, extracurricular activities, volunteer work and a written essay. The students also have attended a previous residential program at UK.

As continuation of the program, PEPP II emphasizes academic enrichment in the sciences, clinical and hospital experiences, health-related seminars, skills enhancement and health professional school admissions test workshops.

The majority of students selected to participate are from areas of Kentucky with health professional shortages.

Rachelle Hammond part of Rogers Scholars program

Rogers Scholars, a project of The Center for Rural Development, is a training program for high school juniors from Southern and Eastern Kentucky. During the intensive one-week sessions, forty-eight students take classes in leadership, engineering, computer networking, video production and web page development. They also participate in entrepreneurial training sessions where they will be challenged to come up with Kentucky's leading business professionals.

This year, The Center is embarking on a partnership with the Kilby Awards Foundation of Dallas, Texas. The Foundation was created in tribute to Jack St. Clair Kilby, acknowledged as one of the 20th Century's most important inventors. Kilby created the monolithic integrated circuit, commonly referred to as the "microchip." The breakthrough made possible the sophisticated high-speed computers and large-capacity memories of today's information age.

Each year Kilby Award Laureates are recognized for imaginative contributions to society through science, technology, innovation, invention and education. The Foundation's mission is to provide these extraordinary Laureates as role models for future generations as leaders. Rogers Scholars have the unique opportunity to meet Laureates and hear about the personal challenges and triumphs they have experienced.

"We are delighted to partner with The Center for Rural Development in its outstanding Rogers Scholars program," says Victoria Downing, Kilby Awards Foundation Chairperson. "Our Kilby Laureates will inspire and be inspired by these young people, who are the hopes of our future."

Several past Kilby Awards recipients will address this year's Scholars. These include international virologist

Dr. Karl M. Johnson who fights the world's most dreaded disease, including Ebola. Johnson impacted the world of science when he brought in the use of space suits as protective clothing for scientists and technicians dealing with highly infectious contagious.

Dr. Francine Penny Patterson will also visit with Scholars. For twenty-five years Patterson has studied the linguistic abilities of primates. Her most famous student, Koko, a great ape, has a vocabulary of more than 1000 words to communicate her wants, needs and feelings. The teaching methods Dr. Patterson has developed have exciting and promising applications for reaching autistic children and other people who have difficulty communicating.

Several other speakers will visit the Scholars, including the Foundation's namesake, Jack St. Clair Kilby, who will join them via video-conference from Dallas. "This partnership with the Kilby Awards Foundation is a wonderful opportunity for our Rogers Scholars," says Center executive director and CEO Hilda Guy Legg. "We are so pleased, through The Center for Rural Development, to be able to bring this interaction to the young people of our region."

Being chosen for Rogers Scholars involves a highly competitive process. Scholars must have a 3.5 grade point average or above and complete essays entitled, "How telecommunications will affect rural Kentucky in the year 2025." Showing active participation in the community is also a requirement.

Summer sessions were held at The Center located in Somerset. Rachelle Hammond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Hammond of Mt. Vernon attended one session at the Center.

Little Institute for School Administrators at Eastern Kentucky University this summer. Miller teaches seventh grade language arts at Rockcastle Middle School and Graves teaches fourth and fifth grades at Brodhead Elementary. The Institute, which prepares outstanding educators for a career in educational administration, was established by a gift from Hazel Calico Little, a civic leader in Richmond, Va., and her husband, the late Thomas C. Little, both Eastern graduates. Dr. Little served the Richmond, Va., public schools for 22 years, retiring in 1976 as superintendent. In the background is the Thomas and Hazel Little Building, a 1994 addition to EKU's John Grant Crabbe Library. Participants in the Little Institute are provided full-tuition scholarships for the summer graduate-level program and take part in guest lectures, seminars, clinical or field experiences and other activities. ## "Pioneer Past" is forever preserved in the pages of books, a goodly portion of it has been wiped from the earth forever. We, for our own sake and for the sake of unborn generations, must preserve what little remains.

Pioneer homes like the David Lewis House are an invaluable link to the past - the closest we may ever come to our ancestors' physical world. Few such homes, however, are left in Kentucky country. Careless progress and uncaring neglect have assured the destruction of many. Several decades ago, for instance, an ancient log structure behind the courthouse was demolished. The presence of loopholes (narrow potholes from which rifles could be fired at an attacking force) identified this as a pioneer dwelling - possibly the Robert Langford House, which had seen additional duty as a temporary courthouse when Rockcastle County was formed in 1810. Nevertheless, its destroyers thought little about saving it as a memorial to the county's first settlers, and much less about keeping it for future generations. It can never be replaced.

We may read in L.P. Summers' History of Southwest Virginia and in Humphrey Marshall's early History of Kentucky of what was perhaps the last significant assault made on the Kentucky settlements. These historians tell us that in 1793, near the Hazel Patch in present-day Laurel County, fourteen whites and six Indians (including a white "renegade") were killed in an engagement. Marshall further informs us that the women and children were made captives, but whether killed or conveyed to the Indian towns he does not say. We do know that a panic must have swept the settlement and that Wood's blockhouse was erected at the Hazel Patch in the same year - perhaps a measure against another attack. Yes, we may read of these events, but standing in the shadows of the decaying David Lewis House, one has a different sensation from that produced by detached reading: The Lewis dwelled in that ancient home when this tragic incident of border warfare transpired. They surely heard the news of the battle and no doubt, it made them shiver all the more in their cabin. But, like countless others, they did not flee. They stood their ground and kept the spinning wheels turning. Surely interlarded but unyielding, they kept clearing the land and continued (in the parlance of the time) to "make corn," though their hoers were doubtless accompanied in the field by long-griffes for some time after the Hazel Patch incident. Looking, then, upon the homes of these pioneers brings a human quality to their history.

But what can Rockcastle do to preserve their pioneer heritage? Two neighboring counties afford us excellent examples. In Lancaster, the Garrard County Historical Society has successfully seen the restoration of Pleasant Retreat, the early home of William Owsley, who served as governor 1844-48. This great service to the community and to the Commonwealth was made possible by federal and state funding, and by the support of concerned persons in the community. Likewise, the Lincoln County Historical Society has effected the restoration of the historic Stanford L&N Railroad depot and plans, in the future, to lift Baughman's old steam mill from the depths of near ruin. Moreover, we may look to far eastern Kentucky, where caring, heritage-conscious citizens in Prestonsburg have made possible the restoration of the badly decayed Samuel May House. Built in 1816, it is the oldest brick home in the Big Sandy Valley.

Why, then, should Rockcastle County lack restored public landmarks? Is our heritage not as rich or as important as that of Floyd, Garrard or Lincoln County? Is a 210-year-old structure such as the David Lewis House not worthy of preservation? Could school children never benefit - indeed, could they fail to learn from such a renewed and cared-for public relic? To answer these questions, we need only remember the prominent role Rockcastle County played in the formative years of Kentucky - and we need only realize how hollow our sense of origin and communal direction becomes when we are stripped

Four stop in county on bike trip across the United States

By: Richard Anderkin

How did you spend your summer vacation? Some folks have worked, others played sports, some have just been lazy, but for four college students, this summer has been a seemingly endless trek across the United States, on bicycles.

Ironically, on Thursday night, the group spent the night at friend Matt Ford's house on Hwy. 150. The night's stay wasn't planned.

As the four rode past Ford's home from Mt. Vernon to Brodhead, Ford recognized Daniel Newell, a student that Ford goes to school with at Cumberland College.

Ford was mowing his family's yard next to the highway or the chance of meeting would have never happened.

On Friday morning, the group had been on the road for seven weeks, traveling from Florence, Oregon, near Portland to Letchfield Beach in South Carolina.

The group actually followed the Transamerica bicycle route until they got to Mt. Vernon, where they were leaving the trail to head to South Carolina.

The trail actually runs from Oregon to Virginia, through the states of Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky, and of course, Oregon and Virginia.

The four said Friday they were making the cross country trip for fun and adventure and because they had not seen much of the country, in which the bike trail took them.

Traveling with Newell were friends Ben Canida and Andy Hossler, all from Madison, Indiana and Jeff DeKruyter from Kalamazoo, Michigan.

They began their trip in Oregon after riding a train from Chicago.

Along the way they met a diversity of people and tackled all types of terrain. From the 11,541 feet high mountain at Hoosier Pass near Breckenridge, Colorado to the plains in Kansas where the people are legendary among cyclists for its friendly folk.

The four said they camped in national and state parks, small town municipal parks and private campgrounds along the way.

They average between 80 and 100 miles of travel a day at a rate of 14 to 15 miles per hour.

On Friday, they were hoping to make it to Tazewell, TN, traveling along U.S. 25, about 95 miles south of Mt. Vernon.

That 95 miles for the four 20-year-olds is just a leg of the 4,500 total miles they traveled this summer on bike.

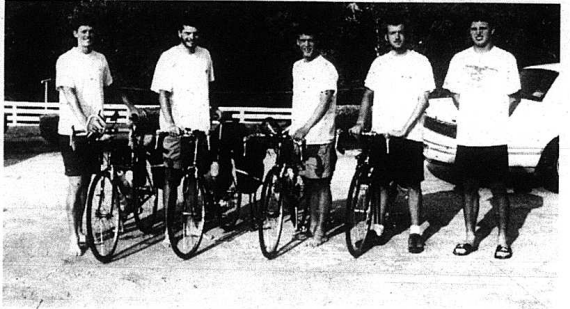

The group said once they got to Letchfield, just south of Myrtle Beach, they didn't know how long they would stay but it would certainly be long enough to rest up from a coast to coast trip on a bicycle.

Chief Justice Lambert to speak at EKU Commencement

The chief justice of the Supreme Court of Kentucky will be the featured speaker at Eastern Kentucky University's 92nd summer commencement Thursday, July 29.

Joseph E. Lambert, Mt. Vernon, a former member of the EKV Board of Regents, will speak to 578 degree candidates. The total includes 34 associate degree candidates, 336 bachelor's degree candidates, 2065 master's degree candidates and two specialist degree candidates.

The ceremony, which is open to the public, will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Ravine in the center of campus. In the event of inclement weather, the program will be moved to McBrayer Arena in Alumni Coliseum. Following the formal commencement exercises, a University-wide reception for all graduates and their families will be held in the Keen Johnson Building.

Lambert, who earned a bachelor's degree in economics and business administration from Georgetown College and his juris doctorate degree from the University of Louisville School of Law, practiced law with the Lambert and Lambert firm of Mt. Vernon from 1975 to 1987, when he was appointed to the Kentucky Supreme Court. He was named deputy chief justice in 1996 and chief justice in 1998.

"Judge Lambert brings to the Court a very bright and agile mind," said his predecessor, Robert F. Stephens, after Lambert was elected by his colleagues to serve as the top officer in the state's court system.

At his swearing-in ceremony

Lambert said a major focus of his four-year term would be to enhance public trust in Kentucky's court system.

Lambert has written several high-profile decisions. In 1996, he wrote for the Court its decision to uphold a state statute that makes it illegal to drive with a blood-alcohol level of 0.10 percent regardless of how impaired the driver is.

"We are pleased that Justice Lambert will speak to our summer graduates," said EKV President Bob Kustra. "He has a distinguished record of service to the Commonwealth and to our University."

He received the Distinguished Alumni Award from the U of L Law School in 1988 and was a 1995 Featured Alumnus of the Association of Independent Kentucky Colleges and Universities.

Besides his four-year term on the EKV Board of Regents, Lambert has served on the Board of Directors of the University of Louisville Law Alumni Association and has chaired the Appellate Rules Committee, 1989-91, Civil Rules Committee, 1991-93 and Criminal Rules Committee, 1996-present.

He also has chaired the Kentucky Judicial Firm Retirement System and the Board of Directors of the Rockcastle Hospital and Respiratory Care Center Inc. He serves on the Board of Directors for The Center for Rural Development.

He is married to the former Debra Hembree and they have two children.

Lambert will receive an honorary Doctor of Law degree.

Members of the Mt. Vernon Volunteer Fire Department were called to the Lake Linville boat dock, after three people from Lexington were caught on the lake in the storm.

Boat dock owner Chris Bishop said the three were extremely lucky because the water swamped their boat, but the wind was strong enough to blow them into the bank, where city police officer Barry Adams found them.

Bishop said that four of the boats at the dock were also damaged as was a large tent he had just purchased. The high winds also destroyed the city's picnic shelter, near the boat dock.

Many local gardeners also reported heavy damage to corn growing in their gardens and power was knocked out throughout much of the county for a short time Tuesday night.

Library News

By Geraldine Robbins

Can you believe our summer is almost half gone and in about three weeks a new school year will be beginning? The weather has been very hot and will continue to be so for a while so why not come in and take advantage of the services in the library where it's nice and cool. You may use one of the computers, look at our good selection of magazines, read the daily paper or choose a good book, a video or even an audio book to take with you.

Some people will probably be happy to see fall but I am a warm weather person and I would prefer spring and summer. I don't like to be confined to the inside all the time. I especially like to walk in the mornings and enjoy the fresh air before I come to work. I'm hoping everyone does enjoy the remainder of the summer with outings, picnics, etc. There is still a little time left for vacations before the new school year begins.

The Summer Reading Program came to a close last Thursday evening with the Arts Fests. Several children attended and all had a great time with games, food and the prizes that were awarded. Lynda will give the winners in the different groups in her next article. We do especially want to thank everyone that has done donations of food, gifts and money to help support our reading program. Lynda will also identify these donors in her article.

Carolyn Jones, our library aide, had surgery this week at Ephraim McDowell Regional Medical Center in Danville. She will be off from work for at least four weeks and we are really going to miss her. I'm sure some of our patrons will miss seeing Carolyn, also. If anyone would like to send her a card, her address is 135 Ford Drive, Mt. Vernon, KY 40456.

I have received several new books that our patrons will enjoy. Some are already on our reserve list. Carolyn always finished the book processing by covering the books after I had catalogued them. I will have to manage this while she is off so the books might be a little slow getting on the shelves but I will try as time permits.

1. Hannibal by Thomas Harris... In one of the most eager anticipated literary events of the decade, Dr. Hannibal Lecter escaped from custody, seven years since FBI Special Agent Clarice Starling interviewed him in a maximum security hospital for the criminally insane. The doctor is still at large, pursuing his own ineffable interests, savoring the senses, the essence of an unguarded world. But Starling has never forgotten her encounters with Dr. Lecter, and the metallic rasp of his seldom used voice still sounds in her dreams. Powerful, hypnotic, utterly original, Hannibal is a dazzling feast for the imagination.

2. Loose Lips by Rita Mae Brown... If you crossed Mt. Vernon, North Carolina, with Peyton Place, you might come up with Runnymede, Maryland, the most beguiling of southern towns. In the picturesque town of Runnymede, every one knows everyone else's business, and the madcap antics of the battling Hunsenmer sisters have kept the whole town agog ever since they were children. Now, in the fateful year of 1941, with America heading to war, the sisters are inching toward forty... and one sister thinks it's unwise to mention that unspeakable reality to the other.

Spanning a decade in the lives of Louisa and Julia, and their nearest and dearest, including the incomparable Celeste Chalfone, Loose Lips is an unforgettable tale of love and loss and the way life can always throw you a curve ball.

3. The Wild Child by Mary Jo Chutney... Bribed by his brother, Kyle, Dominic Renboume agrees to take his twin's place at Warfield Manor, where he is to pay gentlemanly court to Lady Meriel Grahame. Lady Meriel is the orphaned and extravagantly wealthy heiress Kyle intends to marry. The deception need only take a few weeks, and no one will be the wiser, especially the strange Lady Meriel, who is whispered to be...mad. The last thing Dominic expects when he arrives is to be entranced by a silent woman whose ethereal beauty if as stunning as her mystical relationship to the intoxicating flowers and trees that surround her.

Told with Mary Jo Putney's incomparable intelligence and grace, The Wild Child is an unforgettable tale about the infinite richness and possibilities of love.

4. A Long Way From Home by Connie Briscoe... This hauntingly beautiful novel opens in the peaceful Piedmont of Virginia. Trained as a house slave since childhood, Susie enjoys the privileges that her position as maid in Miss Decker provides her and Clara. For Susie, life holds no mystery, no promise beyond the boundaries of the plantation itself.

Life will change for both mother and daughter, though, with the death of James Madison and the departure of his wife for their town house, events that leave the estate in the hands of Dr. Leever's profligate son, Todd. As a result of his neglectful stewardship, the plantation soon falls into a series of owners, each posing a new threat to Susie and Clara. Connie Briscoe vividly recreates Southern life and the ambivalent, shifting relationships on both sides of the color divide.

5. Every Little Thing About You by Lori Wick... The first meeting between Slater Rawling and Liberty Drake could hardly be called ideal. As acting deputy of Shotgun, Texas, Liberty is simply enforcing the town laws. But Slater, a former Texas Ranger with a restless spirit, is surprised to find himself on the wrong side of the law and even more shocked to realize it's a she who is arresting him!

my body, my sexuality, my thoughts, my dreams, my mistakes, my sins, my everything. I could find nothing about myself to like. Shame is a horrible master. Whatever I did I never felt was good enough. No matter how good I was I could never wipe away the shame. I KNEW THAT THERE WAS A FLAW IN ME THAT COULD NEVER BE FIXED. And the sad thing is that I felt somehow that this was what I deserved.

The shame that I felt has a large part of its roots in the sexual abuse. Shame was what I felt at age nine when I stood at the foot of your bed. I knew that I felt bad but I didn't have words to describe what had just occurred. (I didn't know what sexual abuse was) Since I felt bad, THERE MUST BE SOMETHING WRONG WITH ME! After all you certainly wouldn't do anything to hurt me, I thought, so if I felt bad, that must mean there was something wrong with me. And that was the shame that I was to carry for thirty years.

I want you to know how much I have hurt, and I want you to know that I am getting better.

The Family Room

By Dr. Don Whitehead

Letter from an abused victim
 The following letter was written to her abuser by a victim of sexual abuse. She is 38 years old and has given her permission for this letter to be published.

Dear Family Member,
 For the last two years, I have known that I am a survivor of sexual abuse and that you were my abuser. I do not mean to say that you are a bad person. Most abusers have themselves been abused. I believe you were physically abused by your parents, and it is my strong hunch that you were sexually abused by someone. Something is going on in our family, and it is being passed from generation to generation.

What had it done to me to be a survivor of sexual abuse? Certainly that is not the only thing that helped to shape my life, but it had a big effect. You have known little of my life since I left home. I didn't tell you much of what was going on. The real misery of depression hit in 1978. That was the first time I went to see a counselor. My self-esteem was very low and had been so since grade school. I never felt like I fit into any group. I was very unhappy.

That was only the beginning of ten years off and on misery. My relationships to men were dismal to say the least. My marriage was deteriorating, until we almost separated. That would have been a shocker to the family, huh?

Three years ago I began to take antidepressants. That was the beginning of better things. Soon afterwards I got involved in a support group that helped me to feel better about myself. The SHAME that I had carried with me for so long was beginning to loosen its grip on me.

Most of the time I felt like a little kid, like a fraud, an impostor. I thought that if people ever knew what I was really like they wouldn't like me. I felt ashamed. Ashamed of myself,

PLAY IT SAFE AND HAVE AN ENJOYABLE SUMMER

- ✓ In 1999, the American Cancer Society estimates that nearly 44,200 people will be diagnosed with melanoma, the most serious form of skin cancer.
- ✓ More than 80 percent of all boating fatalities come as a result of drowning because the boater was not wearing a life jacket or personal flotation device, according to the U. S. Coast Guard.
- ✓ In 1997, 53 people drowned in Kentucky, according to the Kentucky Annual Vital Statistics Report.
- ✓ In 1998, 1,700 children died in car crashes—six out of 10 were unrestrained, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Rockcastle Hospital and Respiratory Care Center wants everyone to have a safe and happy summer by knowing the facts and protecting themselves.

To be safe in the sun, be sure to wear protective clothing and use a sunscreen with a SPF 15 or higher. Also, drink plenty of water to prevent dehydration.

When boating, always wear a life jacket and avoid drinking alcohol. Alcohol slows the body's reflexes, which can be especially dangerous in an emergency.

Remember to always supervise children in and around swimming pools, hot tubs and even bathtubs. A child can drown in only two inches of water.

Finally, wear your safety belt for all car trips. Also make sure that small children are in car safety seats that are installed properly.

Follow these tips to have a safe and enjoyable summer.
