Mrs. McKinney, who was also a candidate for the recently filled principal's job, will assume her duties on September 13.

Mistrial declared in murder case

A mistrial was declared Tuesday in the murder trial of Brent Kirby, 42, of Mt. Vernon.

According to court records, Kirby's attorneys were unable to seat a jury in the case, because too many of the jurors either knew something about the case, knew some of the family members or were related to family members.

Kirby is accused of murdering his uncle, Frankie Griffin, 49, also of Mt. Vernon, on March 28, 1993.

The original murder indictment against Kirby was dismissed last year, but Kirby was later indicted by another grand jury on the same charge.

According to court records, Kirby shot Griffin in the head on a Sunday afternoon. The shooting took place near Griffin's Chestnut Ridge home.

The Commonwealth Attorney's office has indicated that they will file a motion seeking a change of venue to another county in the case, so that they can seat a jury.

Hudson, language arts teacher, RCMS; John Wells, math teacher, RCHS and Cindy Anderkin, guidance counselor, MVES.

Classified personnel action was: Melanie Lyons, Secretary II/Administrative Secretary I Central Office; Elaine Hansel, Secretary II, Central Office; Angela Pitman, instructional assistant; Brenda Renner, substitute instructional assistant I; Darlene Mink, substitute instructional assistant I; William Middleton, Jr., substitute instructional assistant I; Peggy Bowling, substitute bus monitor; Jennifer Burkhardt, substitute bus monitor; Shanda Hayes, substitute bus

Judge orders Lovell held until August 23 hearing

A Mt. Vernon man remains behind bars this week, after he apparently broke provisions set forth in his bond release.

According to a three page order, handed down by Circuit Judge Dan Venters on Monday, David Lovell, 31, will remain in jail until at least August 23, when another hearing on the matter will be held.

In his order, Venters wrote that Lovell made inappropriate contact with a witness in his murder case. Lovell and his wife Barbara, 25, were indicted earlier this year for the Fiscal court creates new board to run fairgrounds

By: Richard Anderkin
The Rockcastle County Fiscal Court voted Tuesday to establish a seven member board to oversee all of the operations of the Rockcastle County Fairgrounds in Brodhead.

The unanimous vote came at the urging of Rockcastle County Judge-Executive Buzz Carlolfius, who told the court that the board would make all of the decisions as far as the fairgrounds were concerned.

The board will also be set up as a non-profit organization, although they will be required to report to the fiscal court on a monthly basis.

Third district magistrate Bill McKinney said that he thought the fair board should run all of its finances through an account set up by the fiscal court, mainly because of the amount of property owned by the county in Brodhead.

McKinney said that he didn't think the fair board should be set up like the local ambulance board, which is a non-profit corporation, that is self-appointing and which owns the property where the ambulance service is located in Mt. Vernon.

In essence the fiscal court has no control over Rockcastle Ambulance Service, Inc.

McKinney and other members of the fiscal court were also quick to point out that they thought the local ambulance board did an excellent job of providing service to the county, but it was obvious by the court's vote that they did not want to give up complete control of the fair board.

Carlolfius said that the fair board would be in order to put money back into the fairgrounds.

I simply think the county would be better off if a non-profit board took care of the fairgrounds. Any money made down there from the fair, horse shows, whatever could go back into the upgrading and maintenance of the property," Carlolfius said.

The Judge said that he would take recommendations from the fiscal court before he makes any appointments, but part of the resolution passed by the court requires that a representative of the Rockcastle Little League board be on the board at all times.

Carlolfius said that the Little League board would appoint their own member to the board.

The court also heard from a local man about a road that has been discussed over and over at fiscal court meetings.

Jodi Shelton told the court that it was almost impossible to haul equipment across the Oscar Issacs Road in the northern part of the county, because the road was narrow and the county had not worked it in some time.

Shelton said he had bought prop-

Police raid Red Hill home Friday

Federal, state and local police raided the home of Glen and Judy Hammond on Red Hill Friday afternoon.

According to police, several items were confiscated in the raid, including some illegal drugs, drug paraphernalia and two four wheelers, one of which was apparently stolen.

Police said the raid was conducted as part of the ongoing High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area investigation that is currently underway in Rockcastle.

No one was arrested on Friday, and federal agents in London would not comment other than to say that Glen Hammond is a suspect and that more information would be released

House burns

Kentucky State Trooper Life Owens is being credited with saving the life of a local man.

According to Mt. Vernon fireman Tim Cameron, Owens arrived at the scene of a house fire at Climax on Friday night and found Sam Napier asleep in an upstairs room.

Owens was able to wake Napier and get him to safety.

Cameron said that the 8 p.m. fire was probably caused by a faulty extension cord and that firefighters were able to contain the blaze mostly to one room.

Napier was renting the house from James Mullins of Mt. Vernon.

Lambert appointed to family court judgeship

Local attorney Debra Lambert, of Mt. Vernon and wife of Kentucky Chief Justice Joseph Lambert, has been appointed to a judgeship of her own by Gov. Paul Patton.

Lambert will become a family court judge in Pulaski, Rockcastle and Lincoln counties on Sept. 1.

The family judgeship, which handles cases such as divorces and domestic issues, are equivalent to a circuit judge and are paid $100,034 annually.

Lambert said her husband did not contact anyone in the governor's office about her appointment. She did obtain letters of recommendation from law school and undergraduate professors, where she obtained a degree in family and child studies.

"I'm going to be the hardest working judge I can be," she said.

Jane Venters, a Somerset attorney who had also been nominated for the judgeship, said she asked others to make contacts with the governor's office on her behalf. Venters, who is married to Pulaski Circuit Court Judge Daniel Venters, said she was unfamiliar with what considerations went into making the appointment. "I'll just say this. I think it was a political appointment," Venters said.

Although she knows Debra Lambert socially, Jane Venters said she has not practiced law with Lambert. "So you kind of get back to this debate, for lack of a better word, about political appointments and whether the most qualified person was chosen," Venters said.

Patton said through a spokesman that Justice Lambert did not contact him about the appointment. Patton said Debra Lambert's law practice in domestic issues made her "exceptionally qualified and very well suited to the mission of family court."

Mrs. Lambert will hold office until the general election next fall.

If she is to keep her job she will have to run a three county race for the remainder of the term, which will be seven more years.

ATV accident claims life of former resident

A former Rockcastle County man was killed Saturday night in an accident on his mother's farm at Climax.

Lewis Mullins Jr., 46, of Kingston, probably died from a spinal cord injury after he lost control of his all terrain vehicle, according to Rockcastle County Coroner Bill Dowell.

Dowell said that Mullins was riding his ATV after dark and apparently hit an old rear end from a vehicle causing the four wheeler to flip over him.

Dowell said that from all indications Mr. Mullins died instantly after a pedal on the ATV hit his spine.

The coroner said that Mr. Mullins was wearing a helmet and had high beam lights on his ATV, but that the rear end was in some high grass and hard to see.

Dowell said that Mr. Mullins' mother, Mrs. Louise Mullins, realized early Sunday morning that her son had not come to the house Sunday night and she called her daughter's home for help.

The coroner said that Mrs. Mullins' son-in-law, Mark Wilson, found Mr. Mullins' body around 7 a.m.

Mr. Mullins is survived by his wife, Betty Mullins and a daughter, Robin Holt.

See complete obituary on page A-3.

We have a set of wind chimes on the front porch that I bought for Loretta a few months back with the certain knowledge that I would get equal joy from them. Trouble is, it takes a pretty good gust to make them move enough to start ringing and normally there's some falling weather involved. Needless to say they've been pretty silent over the last several weeks.

Last Sunday morning, however, I heard them peeling out a steady beat right at the crack of dawn so I sneaked out on the porch in my skiwees to what was going on. I could tell it was going to rain before I even looked at the sky, so I jerked on a pair of jeans and some sneakers and decided to sit outside and watch it blow in.

By 6:30 it was obvious that we were in for a gentle, steady drizzle that was going to last for a while and it occurred to me that I needed a shower anyway so I just started walking. Now, for the neighbors' sake, I had my britches on, I've been known to do this in my back yard with nothing but a wash cloth and a bar of soap, but I headed down Charlie Brown Road a bit less eccentric than that.

Dog that normally chases my truck took one look at me, tucked their tails between their legs and sort of slunk off around the side of the house. Cattle grazing on both sides of the road showed me sidewise glances of approval because they were enjoying the rain as much as I was. In the meantime I was a bit preoccupied with what I might say if anyone came along and offered me a ride because by 7:00 it was coming down pretty good and I was soaked to the bone.

Instead of saying, "No thanks, I'm just out enjoying a walk in the rain," I decided that I would tell folks that I didn't want to let their vehicle wet and I was just going a little further away. The local notion that I'm half crazy needs no additional reinforcing.

I walked about a mile - nearly into town - before turning around and heading back toward the house. One old yellow, smiling dog jumped off his front porch and followed me about a hundred yards. I reached down to pet him. He was already wet and smelled exactly the way an old wet dog is supposed to smell.

He shook himself and water sprayed all over me. If I hadn't needed a shower before that, he, at least, legitimized that excuse for being out in the rain. Then he briskly trotted back toward home, apparently deciding that getting wet was not nearly as enjoyable as I made it appear.

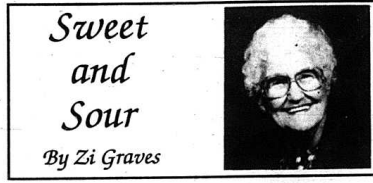

A bit further along a box terrier was slowly waddling across the road. He'd probably been waiting for days, weeks even, to make the trip but the pavement had been too hot. I picked him up and he immediately drew his head and appendages inside his shell. But when I set him down in the ditch, he didn't hesitate to get back under way to wherever terriers are going when they get to the other side of the road.

Which reminds me of a joke. Two Buckeyes are standing on opposite sides of the Miami River and one yells across to the other. "Hey man, how do I get to the other side of the river?"

The second fellow yells back. "Hey fool, you're already on the other side."

Just thought I'd throw that in. If you haven't already gathered by now, it's been a pretty slow newsweek.

Major

My dream home in the country did not materialize when we moved into the new building, which at that time consisted of one big room 23x28 ft., with upright studs standing where future walls would separate the space into rooms. And a stairway would fill the open space leading into the area above that would become the children's bedroom. The closest I ever got to that point was some three years later after the children had grown up and left home to start their own families. It was then Mat slowly and laboriously dug a basement next to the house and built a modern, well planned addition to the house that had been our home all those years. (Be patient young dreamers, Rome wasn't built in a day either.)

So, I had to make the most of what I had and placed the furniture next to the studs so the appearance of rooms was there. With curtains and window shades up, a table cloth on the dining room table, a big fruit bowl in the center of it and several oil lamps scattered around, it took on the look of homey comfort. The bowl was filled with apples from the trees growing in a small orchard in front of the house.

Autumn was now evident by the leaves putting on their new outfits of gold and red colors and the summer

Anyway, I got back home about an hour later, came in the house through the laundry room where I stopped long enough to strip and throw my clothes in the washer and trowel it. I put on some dry skiwees, sneaked back into the bedroom and raised the windows so I could hear the rain pattering on the maple leaves and an occasional drifg down from the chimneys.

When I woke back up at noon the rain was still falling and the chimes making their melody. I went straight to the laundry room and sure enough, my wet sneakers were sitting on the floor and my jeans were in the washer. I wish I could have dreams that nice.

stood between them and a low growl would begin deep in his throat if I got too close. But Judy wasn't his only charge. Mat and I were included in his protection as well as the house. He hounded Mats footsteps when Judy wasn't occupying his time. Even these were family folks and needed to be checked on. Now he wasn't an ordinary stray dog running the woods looking for prey, he was running a familiar path to visit people he loved.

He was no longer a puppy but a young dog in his prime, proving his worthiness by the deeds he did. Mat often walked the seventeen miles through the hills to Mt. Vernon to attend to a bit of business, and stop by the family store at Sand Springs, going and coming, so would get back home quite late the same night. Of course I sat up and waited for him, sometimes reading by lamp light, sometimes simply sitting in the dark worrying about his lateness in getting home. Major, my faithful watchdog was always on duty. On these occasions he always curled up under the corner of the house directly under where I was sitting, facing north, the direction Mat would be coming from. When Mat would finally get home, mile of home and I would know I would hear a low pleasing growl from under the house and I would know it was the earth's vibrations, the scent of a loved one close by or a dog's snile sense that alerted him but he always knew things ahead of time.

Then there is the time he accompanied me when I walked to the store on Highway 80. The first mile or so was on the dirt road along the ridge until I reached Highway 80 then another mile to the store. It was a pleasant walk on this seldom traveled road with no thought of danger or interruption of day dreaming in the future. There was only one thing that could disturb the solitude, meaning one of the local "moonshiners" going to or from their mountain hide-away or, some deep hollow or delivering their product to a customer. But even if I did I need not fear them for so far they had been nice to me. Major had other thoughts about the matter though. He had a natural instinct for the harm that came from their load. This day instead of following close behind then appearing close by my side or drifting into the woods on each side then appearing in front. This was a strange pattern for him so I began to take notice of how he was acting and discovered over ever so often he would growl softly and get on the other side. That was when I noticed a slight movement in the woods and immediately I understood, he was plotting to take someone hiding behind a tree or fallen log. Whoever it was never showed himself openly but Major knew he was there. These men knew how to disappear and hide so they could not be identified by a nosy neighbor.

Later on when we were passing a house with a lot of hungry looking hounds in the yard that seemed to be itching for a fight, he again took his stand between me and them. His fur ruffled and a deep growl came from his throat but I knew he would not fight for we had carefully taught him not to. Not so this time. After escorting me in sight of the store he suddenly disappeared behind and answered the challenge of the hungry hounds. I looked back to see him being attacked by three or four of them, then a flurry of legs, and bodies, became one big ball of bony slick haired dogs mingled with a lightning fast ball of soft brown long hair. The sharp cries of the hounds was drowned by the vicious low growls of this beautiful genetic dog whose parentage must have come from fighting stock of royalty. The fight lasted all of maybe two minutes, the challenged crept back to their yard. Major drowned me at the store, his tongue hanging out dripping angry saliva, but I swear, I think I saw a smile of satisfaction on his face. He had whipped the whole bunch and put them in their place. He was never challenged again.

"What Saith The Scriptures"

I was watching 20/20 one time and they had an interesting segment on the parent-child relationship. They were talking about how children sometimes "tune out" and ignore the "rant and raving" of a parent. They were showing some examples of a couple of families who were taped, and how these kids were doing this very thing. One was a family with 3 girls, and the other was a family with 2 boys. They had a professional counselor view the tapes and she made an interesting comment about the situation, she said that the kids were "Mother Deaf".

A few verses from the book of Proverbs that we might consider: Proverbs 13:24 "He who spares his rod hates his son, but he who loves him disciplines him promptly." Proverbs 22:15, "Foolishness is bound up in the heart of a child. The rod of correction will drive it far from him." Proverbs 23:13-14, "Do not withhold correction from a child, for if you beat him with a rod, he will not rebel. You shall beat him with a rod, and deliver his soul from hell." Now notice also from Eph 6:4, "And you, fathers, do not provoke your children to wrath, but bring them up in the training and admonition of the Lord." All these are from the NKJV. There is a bunch of empty words that you don't really mean. Kids soon realize that what you mean and what you don't. Don't say "no", when it is not necessary. Seek to affirm and encourage the good things, but don't rant and rave over things that amount to less than a "hill of beans." When push comes to shove, administer discipline swiftly, fairly, and firmly. Your words need to be respected, and your authority established. Children like to know their boundaries and their limitations. Don't make your children "mother deaf" by empty ranting and raving.

Dear Editor,
In response to the article in last week's Signal, the Mt. Vernon Fire Department would like to document the amount of water that was used on the fire at Burr on the Old Bargain Barn.

- There was a total of 10,900 gallons used from the hydrant that Mr. McClure was referring to.
- Mt. Vernon used 1,000 gallons.
- Broadhead tank #1 used 4500 gallons.
- Broadhead engine #4 used 2700 gallons.
- Brindley Ridge tanker used 2700 gallons.

The hydrant was used only for filling the trucks and wet-pumping them. Experienced personnel was stationed at and operated the hydrant.

We feel as Mr. Vernon and Rockcastle County Fire Fighters that Everyone deserves fire protection. Period!! We also feel that Mr. Mullins' statement about adequate water supply was correct.

Dear Editor:

I enjoyed the poem about the Laswell Mill. I am 89 years old and I sure remember it by my father-in-law, A.F. Lawrence and my husband, E.B. Lawrence cradled wheat. And as soon as it was thrashed, we would move everything out of one room and pour the wheat out on the floor to dry and every day they would take a shovel and stir it so it would dry out. Then it was put in bags, put on a wagon with a team of mules and off they would go to the mill. I can remember Mr. Laswell, he would be covered with the white dust from the flour. We would get two or three bags of flour and deposit the rest of the wheat. Mr. Laswell would give us a receipt how much we had left, it would take the biggest part of the day to get it thrashed then the next day after it was thrashed the women would empty and wash their straw racks, then fill them up with fresh straw and our bed would be so high you couldn't hardly get in them.

My husband, E.B. worked with the thrashers, Mr. Bill Gentry and his brother, Fred Gentry owned the machine and if they happened to stop one at noon, the women would get dinner for the thrashers.

When they would be our hose I would carry water to them for it was a hard, hot job. It was a job to take care of the wheat. The men would cradle and throw it on the ground. I too have helped Mr. Lawrence with his husband. I would pick it up and tie it in bundles then the bundles were stacked. I can remember all the hard times and work back then. I think if I would take the time I could write a book of all the hard work and times back then. But I believe people loved one another better back then. Always ready to help each other. Now everything is to busy. And the good Lord is so good to us all.

Dear Editor,
The Rockcastle River and it's tributaries have been a source of food, water, recreation and commerce to its bordering counties for many years. At the turn of the century the fish were plentiful and large. The river and creek water, being spring fed, was drinkable and clear. Huge trees were floated down the Rockcastle River from Jackson, Laurel, Clay and Pulaski County. These big trees built homes, churches, businesses and schools. Picnicking and boating on the Rockcastle River was a favorite pastime for locals and visitors alike.

These days the river is used by a few fishermen and canoeists only. The water no longer drinkable without chemicals to counteract the pollutants. The fish are no longer huge and abundant, due in part to huge food disappearing. This may sound terminal but there are things individuals can do to remedy some of the problems that exist today.

In late spring Kenneth Gilliam and I began taking water and biology field samples from the Rockcastle and Roundstone. Appalachia-Science in Public Interest took samples from Horse Lick and Skeggs Creek. The samples were PH (acids), dissolved oxygen (air for fish), fecal coliform, fecal strep and alien chemicals. These samples were sent to Commonwealth Technology Labs in Lexington for analysis.

The thing that got our attention most was the lack of biological specimens - the critters (worms, etc.), snails, stones.

These critters are part of the food chain. The big ones eat the small one. It stands to reason, if these critters do not have stones to hide under and produce, they will not survive. The cause for loss of habitat in some places was trees. The trees in the river and tributaries create a back-up of dam and sand. The dirt and sand covered the stones, the critters disappeared.

Nancy Meadows, our solid waste coordinator has announced a period of time we can get rid of old tires that we have accumulated over the years. FREE.

What better time, than now, to remove the tires from our rivers and creeks. The water is low and the shoals are easily accessible.

If you plan a tire extraction please remove them safely.

- Wear gloves. Some tires have wire in them.
- Do not venture into the bank brush. Snakes.

The budget surplus debate

By Jim Bunning, U.S. Senator

On July 30, 1999, the United States Senate, after a long and contentious debate, approved a major tax cut for the American people — The Tax Relief Act of 1999. I voted for it. There are compelling arguments for cutting taxes right now. Tax rates are at all-time peacetime highs. When President Clinton took office, federal taxes consumed 17.8 cents out of every dollar earned in the United States. Now the federal government's take is 20.6 cents out of every dollar. Budget projections indicate that over the next ten years, the federal government will have huge budget surpluses totaling about $3 trillion. If these projections are accurate, we will have enough money to pay down the public debt substantially, protect Social Security and Medicare and still have $1.1 trillion left over.

I believe—and a majority of my colleagues in the Senate agree—that a large portion of that surplus be returned to the people who pay the bills—the American taxpayer.

That is why I supported the Republican tax cut proposed in the U.S. Senate which would return $792 billion to the taxpayer over the next ten years. It enables us to reduce taxes substantially, but at the same time allows us to protect Social Security and pay down the public debt nearly $2 trillion over the next ten years and still leaves a cushion of several hundred billion dollars to protect and strengthen Medicare or deal with emergencies.

It was a good bill. I managed to get four provisions of my own included in the bill—a tax exclusion for stipends paid to foster home care givers, a needed tax reduction for vacation and a correction of the current capital gains law that discriminates against Kentucky's horse industry and a provision which will benefit charitable institutions like the Brown Foundation. Nonetheless, the bill was by no means perfect. I prefer the provisions in the House passed bill, which provide an across the board tax reduction, eliminate the death tax altogether, and cut capital gains. Still, it is a good bill and I wanted to make sure we keep the momentum for a major tax cut alive and moving.

Make no mistake about it, if left to their own devices, Congress and the President will spend every cent of our budget surplus if we give them half a chance. The President's budget submitted early this year is ample proof of that. He proposed over 80 new spending initiatives and a trillion dollars in new spending.

The message is clear: if we don't reduce taxes now, while we have the opportunity, the President and Congress will spend every cent of the extra money they can get their hands on.

When you get to the bottom line, the whole debate is not just about facts and figures, it is about two different philosophies of government.

The President and those in Congress who oppose cutting taxes clearly believe that the money generated by federal taxes actually belongs to the federal government. Those of us who supported the tax cut bill believe that the money belongs to the people who paid the taxes and if they are paying more than we need to run the government, we should give it back. That is what the whole argument was about.

The great budget surplus debate is not over yet. We still have to work out the differences between the House and Senate versions of the bill. And we still have to get the final tax cut package past the President who has promised to veto it.

But when the Senate passed the Taxpayer Refund Act this past week, the taxpayers of America won the first round of the debate. The surplus belongs to them.

Tire Amnesty Days begins August 19th

By State Representative Danny Ford

Rockcastle County residents will be able to dispose of unwanted tires August 19, 20, & 21 at the Kentucky Department of Transportation Highway Garage on U.S. 25, one half mile south of Mt. Vernon.

The Tire Amnesty Days Program was established by the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet to provide a means for citizens to properly dispose of unwanted tires that have accumulated on their property. The program enables county residents to drop off tires - free of charge - at the county collection point. Throughout the year, the program will move every county in the state, collecting thousands of unwanted tires.

"Waste tires are not only unsightly but also serve as breeding grounds for mosquitoes and other insects," said Danny Ford. "I encourage all our citizens who have unwanted tires on their property to take advantage of this opportunity. These tires will be moved to an approved landfill or recycled into numerous products such as landscaping materials or filter materials as asphalt plants."

Rockcastle will be the first of the eight counties in the Cumberland Valley Tire Amnesty Program to be served in 1999. For additional information contact the Rockcastle County Coordinator for this program, Nancy Meadows at 256-5315, or State Highway Department Road Superintendent Billy Joe Schaffer at 256-2116.

In Loving Memories

In Memory of Bennett Burton, who passed away Aug. 16th, 1981
Your gentle face and pleasant smile, with sadness I recall.
Oh, bitter was the trail to part when you left us all.

You are not forgotten son, nor will you ever be. As long as life and memory last, we will remember thee.

We miss you now our hearts are sore, as time goes by we miss you more. Surrounded by friends we are lonely, in the midst of our love we are blue.

With a smile on our lips we have herathces. Our lips can not tell how much we miss you.

Our hearts can not tell what to say. God only knows how we miss you.

Sadly missed by mother & family
Vallie Burton

In Memory of A Dear Friend, Mable Hamm

Her Journey's Just Begun
Don't think of her as gone away
Her journey's just begun.

Life holds so many facts
This earth is only one.

Just think of her as resting
From the sorrows and the tears,
In a place of warmth and comfort
Where there are no days and nights.

She is living in our hearts
Those of whom she touched.
She was a very special lady
To those who loved her much.

To laugh, to love, to work or play
She found that peace at the close of day.

Sadly missed by her friends,

Dad,
It's been four years on August 8th since you left this world. I only seem like yesterday that I was watching you working on a car. I know when I die I'll be with you because I know God is taking care of you.

Love Always,
Your son Chris

In Memory of Warren Poynter, Sr. Submitted by Mrs. Warren Poynter, Sr.
Today is August the 11th, and its such a special day.
I have so many wonderful memories. In so many special ways.

So Sweetheart I want to wish you a happy birthday and tell you I miss you so. To hold you in my arms would be so wonderful. I don't think I could ever let you go.

We had a wonderful marriage and we knew we were so wonderfully blessed. God loaned us nine beautiful children and our years together were the best.

Life wasn't always a bed of roses but the good times always outweighed the bad. And looking back I truly can say you were a wonderful husband and dad.

I know I must go on with my life. For God doesn't make a mistake. For he made a beautiful thing happen in November 8th of 1948.

I'll say hello to you for all our children. For like me I know they miss you too. You left such an empty place in our hearts that no one can fill but you.

God needed another flower to put in heavens bouquet. He saw the perfect one down here to fill that empty space.

So he sent his special angel to carry our loved one home.

It left our hearts so shattered and Oh I feel so alone.

But I know God is always with me. And I know he understands. And it gives me strength to face each day. When he reaches down and takes my hand.

So very much loved and missed,
Your wife and children

In Memory of Henry McCracken When Tomorrow Starts Without Me!
Submitted by Lillie Lawhorn
When tomorrow starts without me, and I'm not there to see:
If the sun should rise and find your eyes,
all filled with tears for me;
I wish so much you wouldn't cry, the way you did today,
while thinking of the many things,
We didn't get to say.
I know how much you love me, as much as I love you,
and each time that you think of me,

I know you'll miss me too; But when tomorrow starts without me, please try to understand that an angel came and called my name, and took me by the hand, and said my place was ready, in Heaven far above, and that I'd have to leave behind, all those I dearly love.

But as I turned to walk away, a tear fell from my eye, for all my life, I'd always thought, I didn't want to die. I had so much to live for, so much yet to do, and seems almost impossible, that I was leaving you.

I thought of all the yesterdays, the good ones and the bad, I thought of all the love we shared, and all the fun we had.

If I could relive yesterday, just even for awhile, I'd say goodbye and kiss you and say you see my smile. But then I fully realized, that this could never be, for empresses and memories would take the place of me.

And when I thought of worldly things, I might miss come tomorrow, I thought of you and when I did, my heart filled with sorrow.

But when I walked through heaven's gates, I felt so much at home when God looked down and smiled at me, from his great golden throne.

He said, "This is eternity, and all I've promised you."
Today for life on earth is past, but here it starts anew.

I promise no tomorrow, but today will always last, and since each day is the same day, There's no longing for the past. But you have been so faithful, so trusting and so true.

Though there were times you did some things, you knew you shouldn't do. But you have been forgiven and now at last you're free.

So won't you take my hand and share my life with me?
So not tomorrow starts without me, Don't think we're far apart, for every time you think of one, I'm right here, in your heart.

Sadly missed by wife, Marie & 8 children

We certainly want to publicly thank God for the blessed good rains we received this past week. For though we saw a lot of destruction from the lightning, wind and hail we still thank God for the much needed rain.

Our sympathy goes out to all those who have lost loved ones recently. You know we all have death, sorrows and many other things in our life time, so we must put our trust in God and try to go on and do the best we can. We all need to love and have a concern for others. Love gives us such a good warm feeling; but hate will eat you up like cancer.

Prominent Kentuckians team up to promote free legal help for older residents

When Kentuckians hear the names Martha Layne Collins, Ralph Hacker, Canwood Ledford and Al Smith, they probably don't link them to the legal system. But this impressive group of leaders is taking on a cause to help older Kentuckians who have legal problems. They will record radio spots endorsing the Legal Helpline for Older Kentuckians, a service that these four prominent Kentuckians say will help hundreds of people throughout the state.

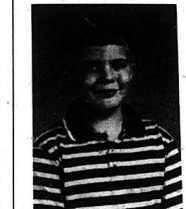

Many older residents struggle to make ends meet, and in most cases finding extra funds to pay for legal help is out of the question. But the Helpline, a statewide, toll-free hotline, offers free legal advice to seniors and their children or caregivers.

The Helpline, a service provided by the Access to Justice Foundation Inc. and the Association of Older Kentuckians, is staffed by attorneys and trained volunteers who provide advice on a variety of topics.

"Seeking legal help can be intimidating, especially for those who feel they can't afford it," Jamie Harmon, executive director of Access to Justice, said. "But, the Helpline provides an avenue that allows seniors direct access to legal services and referral to other social service agencies by dialing one toll-free number. Whether the issue is health care/wills, credit card debt or even home repair fraud, our staff of full-time attorneys advise clients or refer them to the proper social service organization for help."

A 1993 study funded by the Kentucky Bar Association and the Bingham Fund found that more than 100,000 low-income households face one or more legal problems in a year.

Money, air conditioners available to low income families

The state of Kentucky has received $7,749,823 in emergency assistance to help low-income families pay cooling bills and to obtain air conditioners.

Ms. Betty Carter, with the local Daniel Boone Development Agency which handles the distribution of funds locally, said low-income families will receive $50 to $175, depending on their income, to pay electric bills.

Those in need of an air conditioner will receive a unit until the supply is exhausted. A daily report on distribution of the funds and air conditioners is made to Frankfort, Carter said. She said there is no way to tell how long the funds will last.

The federal aid was released from the emergency funds of the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP). The Health and Human Services Department in Washington, D.C. released the funds to Kentucky on August 3rd.

Kentucky was one of nine states to receive funding in this second round of emergency cooling assistance that totaled $55 million. The first round of funding was released in mid-July to 16 states. When Kentucky was not funded in the first round, the General Assembly's Special Subcommittee on Energy passed a resolution on July 16 urging HHS to release cooling assistance funds to Kentucky. This is the first state-wide cooling assistance program funded by LIHEAP emergency funds in Kentucky since 1995.

"We are quite pleased that we will be able to help low-income families with their cooling bills for the first time in several years," said KACA Executive Director Kip Bowman. "It comes at an opportune time because the heat has been oppressive this summer and many families have had trouble paying their bills or accessing air conditioners."

The Kentucky Association for Community Action (KACA) operates LIHEAP with a grant from the Cabinet for Families and Children. KACA then subcontracts to each of the 23 Community Action Agencies around the state that provide social services to low income people in all 120 counties of the state. If people need information about the program, they can call KACA at 800-456-3452.

Applications for Rockcastle County residents can be made in Mt. Vernon at the Daniel Boone Development Council, Inc., on the third floor of the Rockcastle County courthouse from August 9 to September 10, or until available funds have been expended, whichever comes first.

Household income cannot exceed 110% of the poverty level. The poverty level varies depending on the size of the household. Household income must be at or below the following, relative to household size:

Household Size	Gross Monthly Income
1	$738
2	$995
3	$1,252
4	$1,508
5	$1,765
6	$2,022

Richmond Raceway News

The temperatures wasn't near as hot as recent weeks, but what Mother Nature left off in heat the drivers made up racing. Four wide all around "The Action Track" to the fans' delight. In all, one hundred race cars competed in four of the most evenly matched classes around.

Keith Denny set a fast time to take the pole and led every lap in a very well driven race by all 18 cars that started. Denny entered the evening one point behind Walt Neal, who finished eighth in the feature allowing Denny to become the new points leader. Last week's feature winner, Russ Perry finished second with Steve Brinegar, third.

In the open wheel modifieds Todd Gilpin and Jimmy Crabtree had their own little war for the lead while Troy Roark, Tim Littrell and Donnie Adams, battled close behind the leaders. Crabtree was finally able to get by Gilpin on Lap 18 to secure the win. Gilpin finished ahead of Littrell, Roark and Adams.

Reading, feature time signaled more close racing all around the track. What should have been one of the best races of the year was marred by rough driving, resulting in one car being barred and another black flagged. At the checkered Tony Hunter of Lexington won his first feature of the year, Mike Newby and John Cole followed Hunter to the line.

A strong field of late models showed up for a try at the $500.00 winner bonus. However, Bobby Carrier, Jr., continues to be very tough to beat as he won for the second week in a row. Class newcomer Donnie Gumm just keeps getting better week after week. He gave Carrier all he wanted, but had to settle for second. Seven Cornelius ran a strong third, with Mike Jewell and Scott Douglas battling for fourth and fifth.

Results of each race were:

Library News

The Family Room

By Dr. Don Whitehead

By Lynda Mullins

The Summer Reading Program is over and the children who participated were rewarded for their reading efforts at the Artsfest a few weeks ago. Everyone had a great time playing games, choosing prizes, getting their faces painted and eating.

Children were divided into two age groups for the reading program this year. The first group included children from birth to eight years of age. The second group was for ages eight and up. Winners were determined by book logs turned in to the library during the six weeks of programming.

The winners in the 0-8 age group were: first place, Jasmine Johnson, 320 books read; second place, Marty Hammons, 234 books read; third place, Michael Stevens and Rachel Johnson, each read 172 books. The winners in the age group 8 and up were: first place, Beth Colman, 114 books read; second place, Dustin Vanwinkle and John Colby Robbins, each read 62 books and third place, Megan Hood, 53 books read.

Congratulations to all the kids who won and thanks again to those businesses who donated money or supplies. These include Renfry Valley Entertainment, Bank of Mt. Vernon, McDonald's Corporation, Bob's Car Wash, Foodland of Brodhead, Dairy Mart in Brodhead, Richmond Street Eyecare and Wal-Mart. A big thanks also to Mary Vanwinkle, who volunteered a lot of time to this effort.

I'm currently working on our children's/youth services web page and one feature I would like to add is a book review page. I've chosen some books for small children as well as young adults to post on the page. If anyone would like to read one of these books and write a short review (good or bad) to be posted on the Internet please contact me at the library.

School begins this week and many Moms and Dads are busy getting their little ones ready. During this busy time please don't forget the ones who are left behind. Now would be a great time to start bringing your preschool age children to Story Time, Tuesdays at 1:00.

The Mt. Vernon Signal Thursday, August 12, 1999 P-85
knowing that he will not be coming in on them in the middle of the night. In some extreme cases women have had to leave the area in order to be safe. Shelters can help in making those arrangements.

Victims have sometimes said, "No piece of paper is going to stop him." It is true that an EPO or DVO does not provide absolute protection. Patricia, who was killed on July 28th, had a DVO against her boyfriend. Nothing can make the woman 100% safe.

It is true, however, that protective orders do stop most abusers. Patricia's death was the first Lexington murder in several years in which the victim had a protective order against her abuser. The prospect of jail time is an effective deterrent for most abusers.

Scientific research has shown that jail time is one of the best methods to stop abuse. Abusers spend time in jail are less likely to continue the abuse. Judges have become more willing to sentence domestic violence offenders to jail time.

Another place for the woman to get help is at the local spouse abuse shelter. Here she will be kept as safe as possible until the offender can be found and dealt with by police. She and her children can sleep better

The most dangerous time for a woman in an abusive relationship is when she tries to leave. The abuser may become jealous and even more violent. While there are no total guarantees of safety, there are ways to reduce the risk. Domestic Violence Orders give the woman a better chance of surviving the threats of a violent man.

Domestic Violence Has

Struck Again

It has happened again. Another woman has died at the hand of her abuser. The incident occurred in Lexington July 28th. Patricia had left Steven after a fight on Easter morning. He had stalked her since that time and had continually threatened to hurt her. He finally made good on his threat. Patricia's daughter and sister watched as Steven shot and killed her.

The recent mass murders in Atlanta at the hand of a stockbroker also began as a domestic violence incident. The accused killed his wife and also his two children by his first marriage, before he began his shooting rampage against others. He was also a suspect in the murder of his first wife.

What can a woman do who is threatened by husband or boyfriend? To whom can she turn for help? One avenue of help is the police and court system. The first step is to obtain an Emergency Protective Order. This is issued by a judge at the request of the victim. The police, the county attorney or a domestic violence shelter can help the woman in obtaining an EPO.

The EPO acknowledges that violence may have occurred and orders the man to have no contact with the woman. It may require him to stay 500 or 1000 feet away from the woman and can restrict contact by telephone and letter.

If the abuser violates the EPO, he is subject to immediate arrest. The woman does not have to wait until she is hurt in order to call the police. If he knocks on her door or follows her home from work, he has violated the EPO and can be arrested. No further violence has to occur for him to be taken to jail.

Once the EPO is obtained, a court date will be set for a hearing. At this hearing the judge will determine if

Top 10 Investment Scams

By: Hazel Jackson County Extension Agent for Family and Consumer Science

Today we have an ideal climate for fraud. Millions of new investors, many of whom expect unrealistically high returns, are looking for places to put their money. At the same time we're living through an Internet-driven technology revolution that is a boon to investors and con artists alike. State securities regulators estimate that securities fraud cost American's billions of dollars each year. By the time the regulators are notified, the investor's money is usually gone and is rarely recovered. As always, investors are the first line of defense against fraud. The best weapon's investors have to protect themselves and their money are skepticism and common sense.

Here is a list of the Top Ten Scams, ranked roughly in order of seriousness or prevalence by the North American Securities Administrators Association (NASAA):

- 1. Internet fraud. Con artists are using the Internet to "pump and dump" small stocks, peddle bogus offshore "prime bank" notes and perpetrate fraudulent pyramid schemes. Never invest based on a "tip" on the Internet without doing independent research. You never know who's offering you the "help".
- 2. Investment seminars. Investors should be very wary about expensive seminars where self-anointed experts you can get rich quick. Some people do get rich but usually they are the ones running the seminar, making money from admission fees, and selling their "books and audiotapes."

- 3. Affinity group fraud. Members of closely knit religious, political or ethnic groups are targeted by con artists of the same religion, ethnicity or political orientation. The crooks seek to take advantage of our natural trust of people who are like us.
- 4. Abusive sales practices. State regulators report progress in the fighting against aggressive brokers who specialize in the manipulation of low-priced securities.
- 5. Telemarketing fraud. New high pressure telephone sales operations, open all the time, selling illegal or fraudulent investments.
- 6. Promissory notes. A growing area of fraud, these notes are supposedly "insured" and backed by real assets. In fact, they are often backed only by an often worthless promise to repay. Even if the companies are legitimate, investors should realize that the reason these notes are being offered directly to small investors is because banks and venture capitalists have declined to invest in the companies.
- 7. Viatical investments scams. One of the hottest new investment products and one of the riskiest, viatical contracts are interests in the death benefits of terminally ill patients such as AIDS and cancer victims. The insured gets a percentage of the death benefit in cash, supposedly to improve the quality of their lives in the last days. Investors get a share of the death benefit when the insured later dies, after a fee is paid to the viatical investment broker. Because of uncertainties in predicting when even a terminally ill person is going to die, these investments must be considered extremely speculative.
- 8. Entertainment fraud. Con artists zero in on investors hoping to hit it big by buying a piece of the next "Titanic." Besides movies, investment vehicles include cable television shows, video games and other entertainment products.
- 9. Pyramid schemes. Always in style, these swindles promise high rates of return to investors, but the only people who really make a killing are the promoters who set them in motion, at the expense of and out of funds from later investors, who end up losing their money when the hose of cards inevitably collapses.
- 10. Illegal franchise offerings. States have taken actions relating to inadequate disclosure and fraud involving franchise investments, often marketed at business opportunity and franchise trade shows where promoters target people attracted by the prospect of owning their own business.

Before making an investment or doing business with a stock broker or investment or franchise promoter, call your state securities regulator to find out if they are properly registered or have a disciplinary history.

Burley Tobacco Warehouse Advances

It has come to our attention that some burley tobacco warehouse operators are buying tobacco from producers and later reselling this tobacco as producer tobacco. In order to obtain price support eligibility the producer's marketing cards are used by the warehousemen to identify the tobacco as a first producer sale. Only first producer sales at auction are eligible for price support. Some warehouse operators are saying that the original payment to the producer was an advance.

than the date of settlement on tobacco for which there is no advance.

4. The signatures of the producer and the person making the advance.

If you have been contacted to sell your tobacco by any means other than the traditional auction sale you may want to contact this office to assure that your marketing transaction is handled properly.

If you receive an advance, your tobacco should not be co-mingled with other producers' tobacco. You

USDA regulations do not prohibit a warehouse operator from making an advance to the producer. Advances may be made provided the following conditions are met:

1. There is a written agreement covering the advance.
 2. The parties comply with the written agreement.
 3. The advance price per pound is less than the average net sale price per pound for the farm for the marketing year.
- The written agreement, available from the FSA office, shall be between the producer and the warehouse operator, dealer or other person who makes the advance that fully and accurately sets forth the conditions of the advance. The written agreement shall contain:
1. The amount, nature and date of the advance or consideration.
 2. The pounds of tobacco on which the advance or consideration is made.
 3. The date that final settlement will be made, which can be no later

PUBLIC HEARING

In accordance with the provisions of HB 44 enacted by the 1979 Kentucky General Assembly a public hearing has been set by the Rockcastle County Public Library District Board of Trustees for August 23, 1999 at 10 a.m. at the Rockcastle County Public Library. The purpose of the hearing is to inform the public that the Rockcastle County Public Library District is proposing the 1.87 cent tax rate with anticipated revenue of $41,792.16. This tax rate reflects a 4% increase in anticipated revenue. The tax rate for the preceding year was 1.76 cents with revenues of $36,928.54. The compensating tax rate is 1.8 cents with anticipated revenue of $40,227.75. The expected revenue from new property is $1,077.80. The expected revenue from personal property is $10,056.52. Increase for the 1999/2000 budget year is needed due to the rising costs of books, library materials, and equipment.

Camp Challenge '99

Eight Rockcastle County JROTC Cadets and three chaperones attended a week long JROTC Summer Camp at Camp Aterbury, Indiana this summer, along with over 650 other cadets from Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio and Indiana. Cadets trained and competed in such events as: land navigation, obstacle courses, physical fitness tests, water survival, rafting, rappelling, marksmanship, litter obstacle course and leadership reaction courses. All this being accomplished during one of the hottest summers in recent history. How did they do it? Ask them and they'll tell you. Lots of physical training before camp, and drinking water till it almost flowed out their ears.

The days usually began for the cadets with a 5:00 a.m. wake-up, followed by Physical Training, breakfast and personal hygiene. Cadets then moved to training, usually by marching distances up to a mile. After training they moved by foot back to the containment area, ate a great (?) sack lunch, then marched off to another training area till supper time. It wasn't all work though, water survival and rafting were pretty relaxing, and they did manage to go bowling one night in a nearby town. They also ate a lot of pizza and ice cream, even after filling up on that good Army chow.

Cadets attending camp were: Terri Glover, Sherri Glover (who won first place in female physical fitness), Tim Tyler, Josh Whicker (who won third in male physical fitness), Jon Noe, Jacob Helton, Josh Ramsey and John Phelps. Chaperones were CSM Charles Robinson, SGM Keith Taylor and Mrs. Jenny Taylor.
