Korean War soldier James T. "Jimmy" Higgins will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery on August 11. His remains were identified after 50 years by the use of DNA.

Fallen soldier will be buried at Arlington National Cemetery

By: Richard Anderkin

It has been 50 years since the United States became involved in a civil war half way around the world.

It also has been over 50 years since a local family lost someone in that war.

But not until a few weeks ago, did they ever really know where his body had lain since 1950.

On August 11, Mrs. Betty Bruce of Mt. Vernon, and other family members, will finally get to give Corporal James T. "Jimmy" Higgins, a casualty in the Korean War, a proper burial.

Jimmy, the younger brother of Mrs. Bruce, will take his place in Arlington National Cemetery, alongside the thousands of other men and women who have died while serving their country.

Mrs. Bruce has met with Army officials and finalized the ceremony that will be held in Washington.

Visitation will be held at the Arlington Funeral Home on Thursday, August 10, from 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. Funeral services are scheduled for Friday at 1 p.m. at the Fort Meyers Chapel in the Arlington National Cemetery.

Mrs. Bruce who is married to longtime Rockcastle County Baptist Minister Bro. Jack Bruce, said this week that she and other family members, are thankful to be able to give her brother the type of burial he so deserves.

But had it not been for advances in genetic science and the discovery of DNA, Jimmy Higgins would be one of the 8,174 soldiers still listed as missing in action in Korea and his family would have never been able to give him the proper burial they have talked about so much throughout the years.

The eventual positive identification of Jimmy Higgins, who was only twenty when he was killed in battle, began with improved relations between United States and North Korea.

The North Korean government allowed American anthropologists to unearth remains from two sites in North Korea where battles were fought early in the war.

Jimmy Higgins' body was found in a trench, along with three other soldiers.

Among the four skeletons, a forensic anthropologist found a jawbone with information identifying Jimmy Higgins and his hometown of Benham in Harlan Co.

A few calls were made to Benham and a lady there remembered that Mrs. Bruce was Jimmy Higgins' sister.

After Mrs. Bruce was contacted by Army personnel, two of her brothers, David and Leon, gave blood samples which were used to compare. Cont. to A-10

Local Korean War Veteran served as Medic

By: Richard Anderkin

Many Americans take the freedoms we enjoy in this country for granted and do not realize the sacrifices that so many Americans have made throughout history.

One Rockcastle County Baptist Minister knows only too well the horrors of war, and the nightmares that have followed.

Bro. Carl D. Sears, 71, of Copper Creek, was a Medic in Korea in 1950 and, although many Americans refer to the conflict between North and South Korea as the Forgotten War, Bro. Sears will never forget the images of the soldiers lying on the battle field begging for help.

In July of 1950, only a month after the conflict began, 21-year-old Carl Denton Sears arrived in Korea. He had already served a tour of duty in Japan and Guam after entering the service in 1948, but he admits he wasn't prepared for what he was about to experience.

As a medic who served soldiers on the front line, Bro. Carl Sears watched men die from the wounds of battle and heard the cries of others who asked him, "please do not let me die in this place."

"It really tears me up to talk about this, I rarely do," Bro. Sears said as he became emotional during Tuesday's interview.

"So many people today don't realize what sacrifices have been made by so many families in this country," he said. "They have no idea of the horrors of war and what brave men and women have gone through so they can enjoy their freedoms."

Because Bro. Sears was captured during the Korean War he spent only 33 days in North East Asia on Korean soil.

Bro. Sears laughed Tuesday when he recalled a conversation between himself and another man, who asked Bro. Sears how he figured a way to spend only 33 days in Korea.

"I told him I figured out a way to get myself captured and then I figured out a way to escape with the wounded men," he said with a chuckle.

But what Bro. Sears was referring to was no laughing matter. Around the first day of September of 1950, Sears was captured, along with 22 wounded soldiers, one of whom was unconscious.

"I didn't have to be captured that day, but I couldn't leave those wounded soldiers," he said.

"Because the men were wounded, the North Koreans didn't pay a lot of attention to us, especially when they were eating," Bro. Sears said.

"I thought there were American soldiers on the other side of this hill where they were holding us and I thought we could get away if we timed it just right," he said. Cont. to A-10

An Ohio family, who was headed on vacation didn't quite make their destination after they were involved in a single vehicle accident on I-75 Friday morning. According to eyewitnesses, the above Mercury Mountaineer, which was traveling south, hit a construction barrier and then overturned at least five times before coming to rest on its top in a grassy area next to the emergency lane. All three children in the Mountaineer were ejected from the vehicle. The mother, who was riding in the passenger seat, was hanging upside down in her seat thanks to her seat belt, when the Mountaineer stopped. The father, who was driving, received head injuries in the crash. Eyewitnesses said a little boy was thrown onto I-75 when the Mountaineer flipped the first time and his two sisters were thrown from the vehicle sometime during the other flips. Miraculously none of the five were seriously injured, although all were treated at the Rockcastle Hospital.

Bro. Carl Denton Sears, a Korean War Veteran, is the pastor at Macedonia Baptist Church at Scaffold Cane.

County among sixty sued by "watchdog" organization

Rockcastle County Judge-Executive Buzz Carlolitis announced Wednesday that the county has been named in yet another lawsuit.

This time the suit involves the county's care or lack of care for stray animals.

Carlolitis said Rockcastle was apparently one of about sixty counties sued by the Trixie Foundation, which is a state watchdog for the care of such stray animals.

The Trixie Foundation has complained in the past that the county has no dog kennel and does not properly treat stray animals.

Carlolitis was quick to point out that the county has a dog warden and that the Rockcastle County Adoption Agency for Pets is a non-profit group, which looks after the well being of animals in the county.

Carlolitis said that he had not seen the lawsuit, but that he would bring it to the fiscal court's attention at the next monthly meeting.

Rockcastle County High School Senior Tom Mills Jr., is currently finishing up a three week course at Governor's School for the Arts, which has been held at Transylvania University in Lexington.

The highly selective program selected only 200 students from across the state to study creative writing, dance, music, theater and other arts. Students from 50 counties were chosen from 1,300 applicants to spend three weeks in seminars, classes and performances.

The school creates a community of artists, allowing the students to spend time with others like themselves and to study in one specific

Court tables request for garbage permit

The Rockcastle County Fiscal Court denied a request for a permit to haul commercial garbage at Tuesday's regular meeting of the Rockcastle Fiscal Court.

Joe McWilliams, a representative of Republic Services of Kentucky, who asked for the permit, told the fiscal court that his company was based in Florida, but had offices in Lexington and Nicholasville.

"There isn't alot of competition here in the dumpster business," McWilliams told the court.

McWilliams also said that he had talked with several business owners who had expressed interest in his company.

McWilliams also told the court that his company charged $100 a month for an eight yard dumpster which is the biggest his company carries.

One visitor said his business paid Be Garbage $145 a month for an eight yard dumpster and magistrate Bill McKinney, who owns McKinney Tire said he paid $77.00 per month to Be Garbage for the same size dumpster. McKinney said he thought the difference in price was because his dumpster is never more than half full.

The court did agree to table the permit issue until the next court meeting and McWilliams told the court he would provide information packets on his company.

Rockcastle County Solid Waste Coordinator Scotty Bierman had recommended that the court approve a permit for Republic Services, because they had met the requirements set forth by the court.

In other business, Executive Director of the Rockcastle County Development Board, Bige Towery Jr., presented the court with his annual report.

Towery told the court that the board had been very busy in the past year working on three separate projects.

Those projects included the Community Development Initiative, Renaissance Kentucky and the new Technology Center, which is housed in the Rockcastle Courthouse.

All three projects are still in progress and the Technology Center is scheduled to open around September 1.

Towery was praised for the board's efforts and the court passed a resolution in support of the board for another year.

At the request of Jailer James Miller, the court gave raises to all Detention Center employees.

Chief Deputies went from $8.13 per hour to $8.50. Regular deputies went to $7.00 from $6.25 per hour and the billing coordinator went from $6.25 to $8.00.

Part time deputies went from $6.25 to $7.00 and cooks went from $6.25 to $7.00.

The fiscal court also gave all other county employees a 5% across the board raise.

Gene Watson here Saturday

Gene Watson is a singer's singer if ever one breathed. Just ask Clint Black, Randy Travis, Marty Stuart, Martina McBride or any number of other stars who have been influenced by his songs.

"I never did go lookin' for music," says Watson, "music found me."

In 1974 the steamy single "Love in the Hot Afternoon" was picked up by Capitol records and the rest as they say, is history.

You can hear Gene Watson in concert when he appears at Renfro

Sweet and Sour

By Zi Graves

July 4th, 2000
Today, July 4th, 2000, it has been 224 years since the Leaders living in the colonies of the "New World" now known as, "The United States of America," signed a declaration of independence for freedom from the tyranny of the Mother Country, England. The dedicated leaders bring in freedom, the determination to obtain it, the bravery and sacrifice of life on the battlefield by men of all ages, who also believed in the cause; freedom, were all a part of the war that followed and the winning of it which made the U.S.A. "The Land of the Free," and "Home of the Brave."

This thought brings me back to this morning when my mind turned back to the first 4th of July I spent in Rockcastle County. That was back in 1937, July was a happy, lovable, squeeze-able nearly eight month old baby and an armful to carry wherever, and when ever, I had the chance to go anywhere other than with that little truck. I guess a mama's arms grow stronger, as the baby gets bigger, but the burden in my arms wasn't as heavy as the burden of loneliness in a place where the closest neighbor was a mile away. I was busy making a farm out of a wilderness with little time left to socialize.

So, when Dorothy Gooden, the closest neighbor, and Evelyn Norton, our friend from Tennessee, invited our family to join them and their families on their fourth of July picnic, I accepted. A picnic! I hadn't been to one since I was a kid and our family would all crowd into the big old touring car and drive into the country, look for a big tree with plenty of shade, park under it and spread a tablecloth on the grass beneath, unload the baskets of food and gobble up potato salad, baked beans, and sweet wishes mom had packed in the basket. Then drood as a couple of watermelons was pulled from beneath our feet where they had been safely tucked when all the space had been taken up with kids and dinner basket. If I remember correctly there were no trunks for storage in those old touring cars. The running-boards and rear bumpers were used to carry luggage or things too big to fit under the seat, or feet. Of course they were securely tied on with ropes. Some of us were still clad those days "the good old days" and maybe we were right, "the whole families still went riding in one crowded car to enjoy a day together and dinner was eaten from a cloth spread on the ground. Watermelon, still warm from its hiding place, would be devoured as quickly as one today chilled in the fridge.

I was disappointed when Mat didn't accept the invitation as readily as I did. It was July, the corn needed hoeing, garden vegetables were ready for canning, and celebrating the fourth of July had never been important to their family so why should he waste day picking when there was work to be done. None-the-less I prepared something to contribute, probably a cake, dressed Judy in her prettiest dress, and she and I went anyway. (Freedom? maybe.) Liberated? That word had not been a part of my vocabulary and I did not feel I was at war nor a prisoner, so the word never entered my mind.

Mat took us as far as the Goodin's politely explained why he couldn't go further and returned home to his work.

We were soon comfortably seated in the two cars and headed for the river banks a couple miles away. Mat was missed, but that did not put a damper on the fun of being together. Soon the voices of men and youngsters splashing in the water came from the banks of the Rockcastle River while we spread the food on an improvised table on the beach. Another old fashioned picnic dinner was done away with quickly as the wet and hungry swimmers joined the rest of us and "kicked the platters clean." Judy had been played with by everyone there including the young folks till I thought she would be spoiled by all the attention, but she accepted it as her due and was none the worse off for it.

Rockcastle River may not be known as well as the Ohio or Kentucky River, but it has beauty that can be compared to or perhaps surpass either of them. The place we picnicked that day was one of them. It was on a sandy beach at the end of the Line Creek Road, at that time a narrow dirt road that twisted around and followed the creek a short way then took off through the hills and ended in Pulaski County. There was a pool of water close to the edge and swifter running water beyond. Across the river was a mountain with cliffs going half way up that tempted a person to explore its secrets that were securely hid in the dark caverns below. The clear ripples bubbling and singing over the rocks were not only pleasant to watch and listen to they were a temptation to those of us wanting to wade or simply sit on one of those big rocks and dangle burning feet in the soothing coolness of it.

My day was a success. Dorothy and Evelyn never knew what that one day, a picnic two families had shared with an outsider and her baby, had meant to me. They are both gone now. But the Rockcastle River still shares its beauty and comfort to anyone, whether it is fishing, swimming or simply sitting on a rock or shore enjoying the ripple of water or soaking weary feet in its coolness.

It's 11:30 p.m. on Monday night and I should have been in bed thirty minutes ago. Unfortunately, I have been engaged all evening in two things I do best: procrastinating and getting side-tracked.

I will get to that in a minute, but in the meantime, at least two editors who have recently complained that they would rather have "columns" instead of the "epics" I've been submitting to log up the editorial page should be happy when they turn on their computers tomorrow morning. I should "take all day to set the type on this one because I do intend to be asleep by 12:30.

I got side tracked because I have four movies rented that are due back tomorrow. I'd already watched three of them over the weekend and didn't realize until 9 o'clock that I still had one to go. I don't know about you, but I'd give all week if I had a movie that I'd paid hard cash to rent back to the store without dutifully watching everything on the tape from the previews through the credits. You never know when somebody you went to college with is going to show up as a key grip or water boy or gaffer, etc. in the movie credits. It hasn't happened yet, but if it ever does, I'm not the kind of guy who would miss it.

So instead of starting the column on time, I watched what turned out to be the best movie I've seen in at least ten years. If you haven't seen Kevin Costner's "For the Love of the Game" you are in for a treat. If you have already seen it, you know what I'm talking about. It's a baseball movie, but you don't have to like baseball to like the movie. Not only that, but it has a happy ending.

I actually rented it as an after-checkout counter they told me that since I'd already rented three movies I had a fourth one coming for free. As it turned out the only reason I watched the others all the way through was to keep from feeling guilty. Actually, "Ed TV" was pretty good, but I can't even remember the titles of the other two.

Two weeks ago I asked readers to tell me what the signs were in when I planted beans on June 24. At last count I had 116 emails not counting what may be on their tonight telling me the signs were in the fact. But that's okay. I like to get emails and I found half a dozen long lost cousins in the process of finding out what the signs were in. Predictions for my corn of half runners are mixed though. I've been told that the feet are absolutely the best sign under which to plant beans and others have told me I shouldn't expect very much. For whatever its worth the beans are up and already about 18 inches high and they are beginning to twine around the corn stalks that I intend for them to grow on if a big storm doesn't blow it down.

Now I need to know what the signs were in on June 25. I planted corn on a Sunday and I need to know what you all think about that. Also, I need to know what the signs were in on Saturday, July 8. I planted Fall beans that day. The email is ikedams@aol.com if you're forgetting.

I know that you're saying to yourself, why not go out and buy an Almanac. Try it yourself if you think you're so smart. Even the companies that print the damn things are sold out. I spent two hours on the Internet trying to find out what the signs were in last Saturday before I planted my beans and I couldn't find anything. Everybody else that I know who has an almanac is either in the hospital or on vacation so I planted them anyway. I had the garden all tilled up and I figured that was a good enough sign.

Speaking of the garden, we've been eating Roma beans here for two weeks and if you want something different than beans and taters cooked together with a piece of fatback, let me suggest this simple recipe. Steam a quart or two of Romas in a pot with a heavy lid for thirty minutes with just enough water to keep them from cooking dry and burning. Then add a regular sized can of crushed tomatoes, a diced green pepper, a liberal amount of fresh oregano, salt and black pepper and simmer for another 15 minutes.

If that recipe wasn't so simple, I'd try to copyright it and charge you for even thinking about fixing it. It's even good cold, especially if you have some leftover cornbread to go with it.

And finally, coming next to you was a newspaper near you; All You Ever Wanted to Know About Early Golden Crook Neck Squash but Were Afraid to Ask.

Okay editors, I've earned my pay. Goodnight.

Summer Time Food Safety

Spring is now upon us and with summer fast approaching, there is a need to do more activities outside, including cooking. The incidence of foodborne illness is most prevalent from May to September, so while you're firing up the charcoals or putting gas in the grill, it is important to be aware of some "food safety tips" during the warm weather. Often foodborne illness can occur with symptoms like, headaches, muscle aches, exhaustion, diarrhea, dizziness or vomiting. It is often misdiagnosed as the flu.

Did your mother tell you to wash your hands before dinner? Well I bet she didn't tell you to wash them before, during and after dinner. Bacteria can start to form each time you touch something - especially food.

1. Wash Hands Often. Wash hands in warm, soapy water before preparing foods and after handling raw meats, including poultry and seafood. While preparing foods, whether it is raw meat, cooked meat, be careful of cross-contamination.

2. Keep Raw Meats and Ready-to-Eat Foods Separate. When the juices from raw meats or germs from unclean objects accidentally touch cooked or ready-to-eat foods, cross-contamination occurs. Make sure to use two separate cutting boards: one for raw meat, the other for ready-to-eat foods, like breads and vegetables. Make sure to wash them thoroughly after use in hot soapy water.

During summer, hamburgers and chicken are two of the most popular grilling foods across America, signaling the perfect time to reinforce safe food-handling practices. Mishandling food is the leading cause of food-related sickness.

3. Cook to Proper Temperatures. Use a meat thermometer, to help ensure the meat is cooked thoroughly.

Now it's time to relax after your grill. All of the unseasoned foods are refrigerated within the hour after your meal.

4. Refrigerate promptly, below 40 degrees Fahrenheit. This will also help to reduce the growth of bacteria in the food.

According to a recent survey, nearly nine out of 10 Americans believe more education is needed about food safety preparation and handling in their kitchens in order to prevent food-related illness. By making sure you follow the four simple tips listed, you will be helping to reduce foodborne illness for you and your family. Have a great summer!

Is Divorce the Unpardonable Sin?

"There was a deacon in my church in Louisville who had once robbed a bank," Terry told me. (All characters are fictitious.) "He had served time in prison as a result of his crime. When he got out of prison, he got a job and became a responsible citizen. Several years later my church asked him to serve as a deacon."

"That's OK with me," Terry added. "I have a problem with his serving in that capacity. I am grateful for what has happened in his life. But do you realize that since I am divorced, I cannot be elected a deacon in my church? It's OK for bank robbers to be deacons but not me. I love my church, but I must admit that's very hard for me to take."

"It seems to me," Terry continued, "that we have made divorce the unpardonable sin."

Divorced persons are often confronted with the stigma that goes with being divorced in our society. "It's as if I had big 'D' tattooed on my forehead," one of them told me. "I feel like everybody looks at me as divorced, first and a person, second. I think they judge me based on my marital history rather than on who I am."

Cheryl says that her relationship to her church has changed since she has become divorced. "I used to teach a Sunday School class," she said. "But after I was divorced, I didn't feel like they wanted me to do that anymore. When I resigned, no one tried to talk me out of it. I guess some of them were just my assumption about what they thought, but no one said anything to me to change my mind."

Martin tells how his divorce affected him. "No one knew that my wife had a drinking problem. We had managed to keep that a secret. Therefore, when I left, I got the blame. I heard all kinds of questions from people wondering how I could leave such a good woman. They didn't know what my life at home was like, and yet they judged me. I quit going to church soon after that."

Norm had a different story. "Most of the people in my church were very supportive of me," he reported. "Some went out of their way to tell me of their concern. My pastor was the one who seemed to have the most problems with the divorce. I've heard him preach sermons that divorce is sin unless there is adultery involved, so I don't guess it should have surprised me that he became very cool towards me after my wife and I split."

Deborah reports an experience similar to Martin's. "The divorce was a mutual decision by my husband and me. We were both miserable and decided to go our separate ways. The marriage was a mistake right from the start. I felt very uncomfortable in church from that time on. I don't like any of them what you say to me so they didn't say anything. I soon stopped going, and I haven't been back in two years."

Divorce is certainly not the unpardonable sin, but it is sometimes treated as if it were. Divorce does not "scar a person for life" nor render him or her unfit for religious service. Thankfully many churches have come a long way in this regard. No longer do they label divorced persons as "second-class citizens." These churches allow persons who have been through the tragedy of divorce to take their rightful place in the church leadership.

Fairview News

By Mrs. Hubert Chasteen

By Mrs. Hubert Chasteen

Hello everyone everywhere.

Hope you haven't been to disappointed in not seeing the Fairview News for some time. I have just been busy and neglected to write. You know there is a lot to do in the summer time.

Sunday School attendance for July 9th was 145 and worship service attendance was good. We just thank God for all His blessings. Bro. David Aker is still serving as Interim Pastor at Fairview. We really enjoy having him.

Our deepest heartfelt sympathy goes out to all those who have lost loved ones lately, including Mrs. Beulah Harbin, sister of Hubert Chasteen and John Shupe, husband of the former Alice Cope. Both Mrs. Harbin and Mr. Shupe lived in Ohio. May God bless and comfort all relatives and friends in this time of sorrow.

Mrs. Edith Mullins of Snider celebrated her 100th birthday, July 2nd with many, many relatives and friends attending. A beautiful dinner was served on the front lawn, and a lovely evening was enjoyed by all. We all love Aunt Edith and wish for her good health and happiness the rest of her life.

And while I'm writing about birthdays I want to publicly thank all my family, relatives and friends for the gifts and beautiful cards I received on my birthday which was July 5th. Dorothy Lambert and Mary Lou Reynolds of Augusta, Georgia recently spent a few days here with Dorothy's relatives. They also attended worship services at Fairview on Sunday morning.

Enjoying a nice trip to Kings Island recently were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Isaacs and two sons and Jeremy Davidson.

Visitors of Mrs. Hallie Alexander during the past few weeks have been J.T. and Doris Gadd, Mrs. Mildred Phillips and Odessa Hines. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Dan Wilson of Hudson, Florida and Mrs. Dianna Robinson of Orlando (Brush Creek).

Visiting Mrs. Celia Kirby recently were Hallie Alexander and Irene Alexander.

Some of our most recent friends, Judy Cummins and daughter, Dreaux, Moss Linville, Doris Gabbard and are in and out very often.

We, at Fairview are so thankful to see Buddy Gabbard back at church following surgery in Lexington several days ago.

Visiting Mrs. Mary Cope a few days ago were Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Cope and Christine Barnett.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly McCuddy of Winchester visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R.J. Ridgell, and her grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Chasteen Sunday afternoon.

So for this sunny, hot and humid Monday morning, July 10th I will say Adieu and hope to write more soon.

Try to attend church and Sunday School every time you can. Pray for one another, especially for the sick and broken hearted all around us. May your heart be filled with love for God and people. God bless you.

Remember

Submitted By Vallie Burton
Remember when Hippie meant big in the hips, and a trip involved travel in car, plane and ships.
When pot was a vessel for cooking things in,
and books was what grandma's rug might have been.
When fix was a verb that meant mend or repair,
And being mean simply existing on and off.
When neat meant well organized, tidy and clean,
And grass was ground covered, normally green.
When lights not people were turned on and off.
And the pill was what you took for a cough.
And camp meant to quarter out doors in a tent,
And pop was where the weasel went.
When groovy meant furrowed with channels and hollows,
And birds were winged creatures like robins and swallows.
When gear was a substance that's fluffy like lint,
And bread came from bakeries, not from the mint.

When square meant a 90-degree angle form,
When cool was a temperature not quite warm.
When roll was a bun, and rock was a stone,
And hang up was something you did to a phone.
When chicken meant poultry and bag meant a sack,
And junk meant trashy cast off's and bric-a-brac's.
When jam was something you spread on your bread,
And crazy meant not right in the head.
And cat was a kitten grown up,
And tea was a liquid you drank from a cup.
And dig meant to shovel and spade in the dirt,
And put on was what you did with a shirt.
And making a scene was a rude thing to do,
It's Groovy, man Groovy but English it's not,
Me thinks that the English language has gone straight to pot.

Kentucky WIC Program is "Growing Healthy Families"

Pregnant women, new mothers, infants and children up to age five are eligible for WIC Program benefits through the Rockcastle County Health Department. WIC provides nutritious food, nutrition education, health care referrals and breastfeeding support to eligible clients at no cost.

The theme for the Kentucky WIC Program is "Growing Healthy Families." WIC enables parents to properly feed their children during critical early years of growth and development, assuring normal growth, reducing levels of anemia, increasing immunization rates, improving access to regular health care and immunizations.

Clients must meet income guidelines to participate in the WIC program. People who receive Medicaid or Food Stamps automatically meet the income requirements. A family of four earning $31,243 a year or less is eligible for WIC. Participants must also be a resident of the state and determined to be at nutritional risk by a health professional.

The health department contracts with grocery stores where clients redeem food instruments for nutritious food items high in protein, calcium, iron and vitamins A and C. WIC foods include milk, cheese, eggs, fruit juice, cereal, peanut butter, dried beans or peas and iron-fortified infant formula and infant cereal.

For more information about the WIC Program or any health department service contact the Rockcastle County Health Department at 256-2242.

Brenda Cable, RN - Nurse of the Year

Patty Daniels, LPN - Nurse of the Year

Cable and Daniels named Nurses of the Year at RHRCC

As part of National Nurses Week, the more than 100 nurses at Rockcastle Hospital and Respiratory Care Center, Inc. have chosen two of their co-workers as the hospital's Nurses of the Year.

Brenda Cable, RN, and Patty Daniels, LPN, were chosen by their peers for best representing registered nurses and licensed practical nurses at RHRCC. As part of their honor, the two attended the Kentucky Nurses Association banquet in Louisville on May 12.

Cable, who has been a nurse for 37 years, was a non-traditional student who juggled college with caring for her three children. She received her nursing degree from Somerset Community College.

"I really enjoy my patients," Cable said. "I care for people of all ages, and the variety keeps me on my toes, because caring for infants is so different from caring for the elderly." Daniels, an LPN at RHRCC for 20 years, said she has seen a lot of patients during her nursing career. For her, meeting people is one of the things she likes best about nursing.

"I enjoy educating patients about their illnesses and what they can do to stay healthy," she said. "It really all about helping people."

Betsy Purcell, RHRCC's director of nursing, said the Nurse of Year Award is a tradition at the hospital.

"I think we have an exceptional nursing staff, and my patient satisfaction surveys agree with me," Purcell said. "I'm very proud of all our nurses. Each of them deserves recognition for the wonderful job they do caring for the community."

RHRCC is known nationally for its respiratory care program and treats patients from all across Kentucky and parts of Tennessee. The hospital was established in 1956.

Heat Exhaustion & Heat Stroke

By Hazel Jackson
County Extension Agent for Family and Consumer Science

Summer is here and with it comes a lot of hot days. For people who work or play hard outdoors, the heat can become seemingly unbearable. The body's normal reaction to this heat is to form perspiration, or sweat. This perspiration then cools the body. If this normal reaction does not occur, heat exhaustion or a heat stroke can occur.

Anyone can experience either of these conditions, however, heat exhaustion is most commonly seen. Very young people can be the elderly are the two groups at the greatest risk of developing heat exhaustion.

Heat Exhaustion

Heat exhaustion results when the body loses its water and salt. This occurs with excess perspiration in hot temperatures while doing heavy work or exercise.

Signs and symptoms of heat exhaustion include: face - pale, cool, moist; skin - cool, clammy, heavy perspiration; temperature - may be slightly elevated or subnormal; pulse - thready and rapid; respiration - shallow and quiet; muscles - tense, contracted; and eyes - pupils are normal.

If you suspect someone around you is suffering from heat exhaustion, move that person to a quiet place to rest. Give the person cool liquids to drink. However, never give liquids to a person who is semi-conscious or unconscious. He will choke as the fluid will go down into his lungs causing additional problems. Watch for signs of heat stroke. Have the person checked by a doctor.

Heat Stroke

Heat stroke occurs when the body's cooling system fails. This is an emergency because the body cannot cool itself and is literally cooking itself. A heat stroke can result in damage to the major organs. If not treated, death will occur.

Signs and symptoms of a heat stroke include: face - red, dry, hot; skin - hot, dry, no perspiration (the key difference between heat stroke and heat exhaustion); temperature - 104 degrees F or higher; pulse - strong, pounding; respiration - difficulty breathing, noisy respiration; muscles - tense, possible seizures; and eyes - pupils dilated but equal.

If you suspect someone around you is suffering from a heat stroke, cool that person's body immediately. You can do this by placing the person in cool water (not ice) or by sponging him or cover him with cool, wet cloths. Call 911 immediately.

Library News

By Kristiana Burk
In the Library News today, I wanted to bring you all up to date with the Summer Program, some new faces you will see at the library and some plans for the future.

As many of you are already aware, we are in the middle of our Summer Reading Program. On June 28th, we hosted a Reptile Show that was a great success! With over 40 in attendance, the adults and children were amazed (and perhaps a little unnerved) by some of the creepy reptiles brought in. Those who attended the program were able to see alligators, snakes, a huge python and more first hand. Another excellent benefit of the program was the wealth of information given on how to care for animals, how to deal with the animals in the wild, as well as safety tips if someone ever comes face to face with poisonous snakes or other "dangerous" animals.

These craft sessions are a fantastic way to have fun, discover books, and go somewhere cool and relaxing on a hot summer day!

One thing that I have been impressed with in the past few weeks is the number of young readers that have been eagerly coming to the Library to check out books and participate in the Summer Reading Program - encourage each and every adult in this community to take the time to encourage these children to come in to the Library so that we can produce a love of learning and literacy in our children. Remember that these children are the future of Rockcastle County and Literacy is the key to a Community's growth. Also, don't forget that as a added incentive on Tuesday, July 18th, Ronald McDonald will be here to hand out prizes and certificates to all the participants in the reading program. And let me tell you, kids, there are some pretty neat prizes this year for the top readers in each age group! Just remember that you must figure out Reading logs in no later than 3:00 p.m. on Saturday, July 15th either at the main library branch or to Pam, our Bookmobile Librarian. Without the Reading logs, we can't figure out the winners and hand out prizes. Keep reading and see you soon!

On a sad note, Lynda Mullins, our Children's Librarian put in her resignation last week. As many of you know, she just had a new baby girl and made the decision that right now she would prefer to stay at home with her children. We are very sorry to lose her and know that she has done a wonderful job serving this community; most especially the young children and young adults. We wish her the best and want her to know that she will be sorely missed.

In Lynda's place, the Library has hired Kathy McKibben of Brodhead. Kathy has worked closely with children for many years through a variety of activities in addition to raising four boys of her own. I am excited about some of her ideas and abilities. Kathy will be writing an article next week to introduce herself to you a little bit more in depth.

On a final note, we want to welcome Pam back from her vacation. I know that her Bookmobile patrons missed her and we are glad she is "refreshed" and happy to get back to the great job that she does on the road.

Remember, the Library is open Monday-Wednesday, Friday 10:00-5:00, Thursday 12:00-8:00, and Saturday 10:00-4:00. Drop in and cool off during these hot and humid summer days with a book, movie, to read the newspaper, or just to say hello! The Library is here to serve Rockcastle County's need to know!

What's Turning
The Black Locusts Brown

Many of the black locusts in Kentucky are beginning to turn brown. It is probably not a sign of an early fall. Instead, the browning is caused by an insect that has apparently set up housekeeping for some time to come.

A close inspection of leaves on the lower branches of damaged trees will bring you into contact with one of the most serious insect pests of black locusts, which is appropriately called the locust leafminer. The adult of this insect is a beetle that is about 1/4 inch long and has an orange body with a black stripe down the back and black head, antennae and legs.

The adult beetle hibernates wherever winter protection can be found, often in litter under the locusts. As temperatures warm in the spring, the beetles move to the developing foliage and begin to feed on lower leaf surfaces, leaving speckled, shot-hole-type damage.

The beetles then lay eggs and the resulting larvae eat into the inner layer of leaf tissue, forming a mine. Preferred feeding sites are near the tips of leaflets, where the mines take on the shape of irregular blotches.

After emerging in midsummer, adults of this second generation begin feeding on the leaves, subjecting the trees to more damage. This second generation will again lay eggs on the leaves and second-generation larvae will add more damage to the foliage. After adult beetles emerge in late summer and fall, they will look for overwintering sites. It's no wonder that black locusts are turning brown!

Black locust trees may produce a second growth of leaves during a growing season. If damage by the locust leafminer is extensive on this foliage in successive years, trees may die or at least be weakened to the point where they may be susceptible to other pests and diseases.

In year such as we're having, drought stress is a real concern as well. Although black locusts are the most obvious plant host, other plants such as false indigo, bristly locust, Japanese pagoda tree, and golden chain tree are fed on as well.

The adults are known to feed on dogwood, elm, oak, beech, cherry, wisteria, Hawthorne, and several herbaceous plants.

The locust leafminer is found throughout the eastern United States and Canada. Several natural control agents including parasitic wasps and predators such as the white bug prey on various life stages of the locust leafminer.

Most black locusts are found in the wild or along roadsides and control measures for this pest are seldom used in this setting. If a tree is part of a residential or recreational area, there are pesticide applications that can be used to reduce the damage.

The 25th annual 100 Mile Ride sponsored by the Rockcastle County Saddle Club was a very successful and fun filled event this year. Riders from ages 8 to 80 participated in the four day event.

Over 70 people participated in the ride with 59 completing the entire four days. The saddle club would like to especially thank the following folks for helping to make this year's 100 Mile Ride a spectacular event: Kaye Shelton, from Dari Delite in Brodhead, for the fantastic service and food; Bill Dyehouse of Dyehouse Trophies in Crab Orchard for his splendid work and a special thanks goes out to all the various club members who always work very hard at these events. Knox County Saddle Club was the largest visiting club.

Tell a buddy and bring a friend to any of the saddle club's numerous events throughout the riding season. The schedule for July 2000 is as follows:

Sat. July 15 - Bobby Ball Wagon Ride at Cartersville 9:30 a.m. BOL.
Sun. July 15 - Willard Neeley Director Ride at Saddle Clubhouse on Hwy. 1526.

Five year trophy winners were: Keith Adams, Katrina Adams, Brett Adams, Lori Adams and Larry Gibson. Not pictured was Larry Goff.

Carrie Perkins and Zachary Combs were the youngest male and female completing the 100 Mile Ride.

Gene Philbeck presented Clay Colson a trophy for being the oldest gentleman rider at this year's 100 Mile Ride.

Tiffany and Angel Philbeck, daughters of Jeff Philbeck, also completed the 100 Mile Ride.

Newcomb & family participates in ARC Program in Washington, D.C.

By Barbara Newcomb
Recently my daughter and I were invited to Washington, D.C. to speak for our community and to express our gratitude for the ARC funding, which enable most residences to have access to city water.

Chere' and I were very honored to have had this privilege of visiting our nation's capital with a purpose.

Mr. John Bruner II (executive director) with Cumberland Valley Area Development and Mr. Bob Fields (president of the Water Association) accompanied us on our trip. They both were very helpful on this adventure and through their time and efforts along with other members, made it possible to receive the ARC funding.

ARC (Appalachian Regional Commission) is a wonderful organization and deserves support, making it possible for Appalachian areas to become better developed, or as they put it, "That we will no longer be considered a region apart" from the rest of America."

We were welcomed to Washington and made to feel right at home. I did my best to let the congressmen know what a difference this water has made in under developed areas like ours.

At the Sam Rayburn Building on Capitol Hill, I walked up in front of the congregation in the largest, tallest most noble looking building I've ever been in, in my life and told them of the hardships that go along with no city water and how that it has "ruined" our way of life.

This was a wonderful experience, one that I will never forget. We were all honored to have met Rep. Bud Shuster from Pennsylvania; Rep. Jim Oberstar of Minnesota, Rep. Phil Rogers of Kentucky, Rep. Bob Wise of West Virginia and Dr. Jesse L. White, ARC Federal Co-Chairman, who also spoke at this conference in support of the ARC program.

With sincere gratitude for ARC and to all who participated in this accomplishment God bless you.

Locals participate in AE program at UK

Candice Blair, Sara Snyder and Caleb Blair, all of Mt. Vernon, spent three weeks between June 11 and June 30 at the University of Kentucky as a participant in the Appalachian Explorers program. The program is supported by the Robinson Trust fund and includes students representing the counties within the Appalachian region of Eastern Kentucky.

The program consisted of science classes, laboratory work, field trips, visiting scientists and scientific research. Both class and lab work focused on scientific concepts in areas such as erosion, chemistry and energy. Using scientific experiments, participants spent several days investigating research questions. The primary field trip involved a three day trip to Robinson Forest. During the trip, students participated in environmental activities and examined areas reclaimed by coal companies.

The Appalachian Explorers program is sponsored by the University of Kentucky College of Education. Dr. J. Truman Stevens is the project director.

Bring Brazil to Mt. Vernon

Somewhere in Brazil, there is a teenager dreaming about America. That teenager dreams of perfecting his or her English, sharing stories of life in Brazil that a Mt. Vernon family won't see or hear on television or the Internet, and learning everything he or she can about American culture. But most importantly, that teenager dreams of becoming part of an American family, your family.

By bringing a Brazilian student into your home for 5 or 10 months, you can experience another culture without ever leaving your home. You can also develop a close tie to someone who genuinely wants to experience your way of life. Eric Via, a host father from Texas, recently hosted an exchange student, Christina. He said, "I know I was only her host father, but I felt like I was her real father sometimes. We'll never forget her, and I'll cherish her stay with us."

Year in America (AYA), a program sponsored by the American Institute For Foreign Study (AIFS) Foundation, a not-for-profit organization, has brought international students between the ages of 15 to 18 1/2 to the U.S. These bright young "ambassadors" of Brazil will arrive in August with full medical insurance, their own spending money, solid academic records and English skills as well as great hopes.

In addition to the tremendously rewarding experience of helping make someone's dream come true, you can earn up to $1,000 toward any number of travel abroad programs sponsored by AIFS. For more information on hosting a Brazilian exchange student, please call Danielle Carpino at 800-322-4678, ext. 5164 or e-mail dcarpino@aifs.com. You can also visit AYA on-line at www.academicyear.org.

For more than 19 years, Academic

Home is where the healthcare is for more Rockcastle residents

If you ask hospital patients what they want most, they're likely to say they want to go home. In many cases, patients can return home within days, or even hours, of surgery. Although it is desirable to have patients in the least restrictive setting, recovery at home can pose challenges for patients and their families.

"It was at my wit's end," said Barbara Rector, referring to the point at which she called Dr. Michael Hamilton for help.

Rector was working full-time, trying to manage the house, and taking care of her husband, Johnny, who was recovering from open heart surgery.

Visits from Rockcastle Hospital Home Health nurses were just what the doctor ordered for the Rectors.

Johnny Rector received the care he needed to improve, and Barbara Rector got peace of mind while she was away from the house. During home visits throughout the week, Registered Nurse Miriam Mullins monitored Johnny's health and Home Health Aide Jennifer Berge helped him with his personal care and light meals.

"It meant so much to have them here," said Barbara Rector. "I really mean that."

Home health services are not new to the county. The Cumberland Valley Health Department offers home healthcare, but physicians and community leaders saw a need for additional services, said Kay Fielder, director of Rockcastle Hospital Home Health.

"Our goal is to make home health care available for more patients and to expand the types of services they can receive," said Fielder. "This is possible because we are an extension of Rockcastle Hospital and can offer patients additional therapies through hospital resources."

Patients must be homebound, need the skills of a nurse, physical, or speech therapist and be under the care of a physician to qualify for services in most cases.

Rockcastle Hospital Home Health patients can call 24 hours a day, seven days a week and talk to a nurse. If needed, a home health nurse or therapist will make a visit to the patient's home at night or on weekends.

This was necessary during Johnny Rector's recovery process, when complications developed.

"It's amazing how they can come in and care for you. It's wonderful," said Johnny Rector. "They treated me like family."

While Rector received primarily nursing and personal care assistance before his recent discharge from the program, some patients receive visits for physical, speech or respiratory therapies.

Marie Robbins, 80, had lived independently in her home until her hip was broken by a fall in March. Her daughter, Frances Bredlove, came to stay with her during her recuperation period.

Prior experience in caring for her husband had taught Bredlove how the caregiver's role is often more than one person can should bear. She welcomed the medical knowledge and physical help provided by nurses, aides and therapists.

"I would have become exhausted without their help," she said. Bredlove also appreciated the educational role the home health professionals provide. When she observed that her mother had the tendency to fall backwards when standing, Mullins, the home health nurse, explained that her medication side effects or her medical condition could be causing it.

And, when Robbins experienced some pain with a catheter, it only took a late-night call to Mullins for tips on better positioning it to make her mother more comfortable.

The goal of the various therapies Robbins is receiving is to help her resume her independent lifestyle.

Independence was also on Shelley Phelps' mind when she contacted Rockcastle Hospital Home Health. She had a special request that she believed would help her 2-year-old son, Mavarick Hodge.

Medical conditions required Mavarick to have a tracheotomy, and opening at the base of his throat that allows him to breathe. Phelps thought her son was capable of breathing through his nose and mouth, but was afraid to close the tracheotomy, often called a trach, without professional assistance.

"I wanted a respiratory care specialist to cap off his trach. If something were to happen they could respond appropriately," said Phelps. "It was a lot simpler than I thought. They monitored him for an hour to be sure his oxygen levels were good and the respiratory therapist did some teaching, such as how long to leave it capped."

Mavarick has responded well and is still learning to adapt to the type of breathing most of us take for granted. Phelps reported that he has become more talkative as a result.

Mullins said Mavarick's mother deserves credit for much of his progress because she has learned to manage many of the complex tasks related to his ongoing care. But, with three children at home, the assistance of home health professionals has made a significant difference for Phelps.

"The fact that they can come out to your home, and you don't have to pack up all the kids, travel to the medical office and wait to be seen nearly every day gives me a little more freedom and the chance to get more of my other chores done," she said.

Children often do not qualify for home health services through their insurance or government health plan because they are considered "portable." That conflicts with the primary requirement that home health patients be homebound.

Fielder said the best way to find out if a child or adult qualifies is to call Rockcastle Hospital Home

Health's office.

"Sometimes it just takes a few questions for us to help someone know if they qualify and to what extent their health plan covers visits," she said.

Rockcastle Hospital Home Health is licensed by the State and Federal Licensure. The program will be reviewed this fall by the Joint Commission for the Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JCAHO), which is a voluntary program that evaluates a facility's quality of care and management. Last year, Rockcastle Hospital and Respiratory Care Center and the Rockcastle Medical Arts center were awarded a three-year "Accreditation" by JCAHO.

Some people may find it odd that Rockcastle Hospital has started this program at a time when insurance payments and Medicare reimbursements are decreasing for home health services. "It's a program that's been around for a long time, and we're not going to stop it just because of budget cuts," said Fielder.

Our Readers Write

Dear Editor,
As we surrender more and more of our political and economic sovereignty and freedom to the United Nations and kindred international organizations, we will increasingly see our religion, morals and way of life under attack by this gang of megalomaniacal internationalists. Like the radicals and utopian revolutionaries of every age, they will not be content with mere control of our commerce, our militaries and our civil laws; they will insist on attacking and destroying our families, our churches and our culture as well, inasmuch as these institutions pose a threat to their long-term design of world domination. For our Judeo-Christian belief system they will substitute paganism; for love of God and our fellow men they will offer up worship of the ecosystem; and instead of traditional families, marriage, and moral restraint they will promulgate abortion, promiscuity and sexual deviance. In a review of coming attractions, all of these are already being pushed in varying degrees by various amoral international agencies.

In the still-robust remnants of our Judeo-Christian, Western culture, we have the resources to repudiate the UN's assault on our nation, our religion and, indeed, on our liberty. We must recognize the UN as a powerful adversary in the so-called "culture wars" and for that, among other reasons, work diligently and alert our Senators and Congressmen/women to Get Us Out of the UN and get the UN out of the United States.

Norton Diabetes and Endocrine Center offers tips on traveling with diabetes

Travel, be it for leisure or business, is an experience that people with diabetes need not miss. And, with a few extra preparations and advance planning, you can go anywhere in the world. The Norton Diabetes and Endocrine Center offers the following guidelines to help make your trip more enjoyable and safe.

• Always plan ahead and take more supplies than you will need. This will prevent running out if you extend your trip or encounter unexpected delays.

• What you will need:
√ Twice the supplies you need for trips less than a week and one week extra for longer trips.

√ Insulin, syringes, swabs, glucometer and ketostix (if applicable), along with some form of identification stating that you have diabetes and a list of your medications and dosages.

√ Extra food in case meals are delayed or missed (not in your luggage).

√ Extra prescriptions, motion-sickness pills, medicines for possible vomiting or diarrhea, glucose tablets.

• Traveling by car? Plan for car trouble, long stretches without rest, and delays.

• What you will need:
√ 10 grams of carbohydrate every hour to guard against low blood sugar and insulin reactions. (Fruit, crackers and glucose tablets.)

• Don't keep insulin or glucometer supplies in areas of the car that become very hot or cold. If you're comfortable it is safe.

• In-flight injections
When injecting in the air, that only difference is to inject about half as much air into your insulin bottles as you normally would. The difference is pressures (cabin is lower) doesn't require as much air.

Insulin does not need to be refrigerated.

It will "keep" at room temperature for several months. It is affected by extreme temperatures.

• Other Considerations
You made need to increase the number of times testing your blood sugar as stress and excitement may affect glucose levels. If your levels are high, increase exercise and reduce carbohydrates. Ask your doctor for guidelines to increase or decrease insulin while traveling.

Activities—exercise burns sugar. Decrease carbohydrates when you are being lazy and increase them for extra busy days.

• Foot care:
√ Never go barefoot.
√ Practice good foot care.

• Don't wear new shoes for more than an hour the first day. If you plan on walking a lot, wear shoes that are broken in.

• Inspect feet daily. If you develop blisters do not break them. This can lead to infection.

• Traveling Abroad
To avoid delays explaining your syringes, insulin and other supplies, have a prescription and letter from your doctor explaining that you have diabetes.

• Know common phrases such as "I have diabetes," "get me a doctor," and "sugar or orange juice please" in the language pertinent to your destination.

• Avoid water in countries like Mexico, Central and South America, Asia or Africa because the bacteria can cause diarrhea and make it difficult to balance your insulin and available glucose.

• Adjusting meal times and insulin can be done with guidance from your physician.

• Ask your doctor
Adjusting for meal schedules
Emergency glucose
Letter and Prescription
Medicine for possible for vomiting or diarrhea.

Expressing the Father's Heart

Mark D. White
Mark, born and raised and Assemblies of God pastor's son, began his ministry at the age of 16. He graduated in 1978 from Rhema Bible Training Center in Tulsa, Oklahoma. Since then, he has been an associate pastor of two churches, and pastored three, presently pastoring Eagles Nest Family Church of Nashville, Tennessee, still maintaining himself in the traveling ministry. He has traveled throughout the United States and foreign countries. Having over 24 years experience causes an understanding of God's heart toward his people. Operating in the Prophetic Office with a pastor's heart, there is a visible anointing upon him. Which gives place to the open move of the Holy Spirit in the opening out, pulling down, building, planting, edifying, exhorting and comforting. Bringing to the church of school of the spirit. Mark has a supernatural ministry with a reputation for compassionate balanced preaching and teaching the plans and precepts of God. Miracles take place confirming the love of God for his people. Homes are restored, blind eyes are opened, deaf ears are healed, cancers disappear, cataracts removed. The word is preached with signs following. Come experience the life changing ministry of Mark D. White. Called and anointed to express the Father's heart in these last days.

The Lighthouse Assembly of God Men's Ministry Breakfast (Food for the Body & Food for the Spirit) will be Saturday, July 22nd, at Lighthouse Assembly of God at 9:00 a.m. for breakfast and 10:30 Life Changing Preaching.

PRIDE grants available

Once again PRIDE is pleased to announce the availability of PRIDE Environmental Education Grants.

Over three years ago PRIDE - Personal Responsibility in a Desirable Environment-enacted a plan to clean up Southern and Eastern Kentucky. PRIDE offers these grants to educators at non-profit organizations interested in the promotion of environmental education. To date, over 119 PRIDE Environmental Education Grants totaling over $500,000 have been awarded. The grants have been used for the construction of 74 outdoor classrooms, the implementation of 13 recycling projects, the purchase of equipment for classrooms and various other projects at schools throughout the 40-county PRIDE region.

Jean Dorton, who chairs the PRIDE Education Committee, says "grants of this size will make a significant difference in improving environmental literacy in our young people and help to prepare them to make wise decisions about their environment." Dorton an environmental educator, says, "the PRIDE Education Committee is anticipating a great response and looking forward to seeing many creative projects being submitted."

PRIDE - Personal Responsibility in a Desirable Environment was started by Fifth District Congressman

Harold "Hal" Rogers and Kentucky Natural Resources Secretary James Nickford in an effort to provide government resources to local citizens as they work to clean up the environment in Southern and Eastern Kentucky. Rogers emphasizes that a crucial key to solving pollution problems in the rural PRIDE region is education.

Funding for this program is provided by a grant to PRIDE from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA). To obtain a copy of the PRIDE Environmental Education Grant, contact Cathy Hall at the PRIDE office at 1-888-577-4339.

For Rockcastle Hospital, home health care is another way to accomplish its mission.
"Our mission is to improve the health of this community through exceptional healthcare services offered locally," said Lee Keene, Administrator. "When we realized the numbers of people who were not getting the care they needed at home, this became a priority."
"We have to keep close watch on payments for our services so that we can keep our doors open," he said. "Yet, we are less concerned about how well services pay than whether or not they are helping our friends and neighbors."

Felder reports that admissions to Rockcastle Hospital Home Health are increasing steadily.
"Our goal is to provide care and services for anyone and everyone who needs home healthcare in Rockcastle County," she said.

New income guidelines

New income guidelines have been established for the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC).

The guidelines, which take effect April 1 each year, are used to determine income eligibility for the WIC program.

WIC provides supplemental foods, health care referrals and nutrition education at no cost to low-income pregnant women and new mothers, infants and children up to five years of age who are found to be at nutritional risk. A family with income under 185 percent of the federal poverty level is eligible.

WIC serves about 113,000 clients a month in Kentucky. The infant food package averages $96 a month and the woman and child food packages averages $34 a month.

Under the new guidelines, a family of two people with income of $20,813 a year (or $1735 a month) or less is eligible for WIC. People who receive Medicaid or food stamp benefits are automatically eligible for WIC. Monthly guidelines for a family of three is $2,182; for a family of four is $2,629; a family of five is $3,076, if a family has more than five members $448 is added for each member.

WIC foods include iron-fortified infant formula and cereal, iron-fortified adult cereal, vitamin C rich fruit juice, eggs, milk, cheese and peanut butter or dried beans and peas. The WIC foods provide five target nutrients - protein, calcium, iron and vitamins A and C.

Pregnant, breastfeeding or postpartum women, infants and children are eligible for WIC. They must meet income guidelines, a state residency requirement and be determined to be at nutritional risk by a health professional.

Every dollar spent on pregnant women in WIC produces $1.92-$4.21 in Medicaid savings for newborns and their mothers.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture funds WIC. In Kentucky, the WIC Program is administered by the Department for Public Health, Division of Adult and Child Health, Nutrition Services Branch. The program is operated by county health departments in all 120 counties and by two independent health agencies.

Yard Sale Clearout

If you're the type of person who thinks one man's junk is another man's treasure, then Bible Baptist Youth has something you won't want to miss! There were so many items donated for their yard sale last week that they still have a surplus of items they need to get rid of. This Friday morning at 9 a.m., for only $10 per carload or $25 per truck or van load, you can come and take whatever you can fit into your vehicle. Some TVs, coolers, lots of clothes of all sizes, and many other items are still available. All money raised will help the Bible Baptist DC 2000 team make it to our nation's capital next week!

Pizza Hut Fundraiser
The Bible Baptist DC 2000 team will also be waiting tables at Pizza Hut this Friday night, July 14th, from 5 p.m. until 10 p.m. to complete their fundraising efforts for their trip to Washington D.C. You still get Pizza Hut's great pizza, but their servers will be members of the DC 2000 Team. All tips for the evening will go to these team members to help them complete the $750 each needed to take part in this event. That's at Pizza Hut, Friday night from 5 to 10 p.m., for the Bible Baptist DC 2000 Team.

A real church family feeling!

CHILDREN SHOULD NEVER TAKE A VACATION FROM FAITH

For many children, school has been out for nearly a month now, but others are continuing their studies, whether it be in summer school or the relatively new year-round school. However, even they will have some time off, whenever the schedule permits. During that vacation period it is most important that they maintain that momentum of learning that they have built up during the regular school year. Besides the three Rs, this includes manners, discipline and respect for authority. Moreover, since the Sunday school is out for the summer, they should be taken to the House of Worship, to remind them of their faith in God and let them know that He will protect them wherever they may be; whether at play or in the classroom.

DNA from Jimmy Higgins' remains. A few weeks ago, officials notified family members that the blood samples and DNA from Jimmy Higgins bones were a match.

"This opens up old wounds all over again, but it is worth it to be able to finalize this chapter of our lives," Mrs. Bruce said.

Bro. Bruce said that he, too, was glad the family would be able to bury his brother-in-law in a manner befitting a courageous soldier, but he said it was also worst today than 50 years ago, when the family got the news that Jimmy was missing in action.

"You have to wonder why the powers that be, would send young innocent men into a battle where they were sure to be slaughtered," Bro. Bruce said.

"It just doesn't make sense, but there are a lot of things the government does that doesn't make sense," he said.

The Bruces were invited to Washington for a June 25 memorial service, marking the first day of the Korean War in 1950.

"They sat on the front row and shook hands with President Clinton. It was certainly worth it to me to be there. It made me proud to be an American, and the service acknowledged the sacrifice that so many people made during the Korean War, which is often referred to as the forgotten war," Mrs. Bruce said.

Jimmy Higgins joined the Army in 1948 at the age of 17.

He spent time stationed in Alaska and, in August of 1950, he was sent to Korea to fight in the war which had begun in June.

On November 1 of 1950, Jimmy Higgins was killed by grenade. But, it wasn't until late in November of 1950, a day when Kentucky played Tennessee in football, that a member of the war department and the local police delivered the sad message to the Higgins family that their son and brother was missing in action.

Three years later, in 1954, the Higgins were told that an eyewitness saw Jimmy die in the battle of Ulsan. Mrs. Bruce, and her brother David Higgins, are the only two members of the immediate family still living.

Leon Higgins, who gave blood along with David, did not survive to hear the news and Jimmy Higgins parents have been dead for more than twenty years.

Jimmy Higgins body was one of the first Kentuckians to be identified by the use of DNA.

The Armistice between two countries who never actually declared war on each other, was never signed. But, for Mrs. Bruce and other family members, the long trip from Arlington National Cemetery is finally over for their brother and for them.

area of the arts, according to Rockcastle County High School counselor Dale Whiaker. "Only the cream of the crop are chosen for this prestigious school," he said.

The three week program, which began June 25, will end Saturday with a finale of performances and a graduation ceremony.

Mills is the son of Tom and Cloye Mills of Maresburg.

According to Sears, on his command, all of the men took off from a rice paddy with about six inches of water in it and headed over the hill. He picked up the unconscious soldier, put him on his back, and began the climb up the hill.

"The other men got over the hill before they saw them, but because I was moving pretty slow up the hill with the soldier on my back, they saw me and began firing at us," he said.

"I fell about the time I got to the top of the hill and we both began to roll - it seemed like for a mile, but the North Koreans weren't able to get to us," he said.

Bro. Sears said that he and the wounded men made their way through the jungle and "...after dark I saw a Jeep coming up the road. I wasn't sure if it was the enemy or our soldiers so I sent an able-bodied man to check it out and thank God it was Americans," Sears said.

Reports from that day's escape said that Bro. Sears had carried the wounded soldier on his back for seven miles before they were rescued.

For his bravery and his willingness to be captured so he could stay with his men, Bro. Sears was presented with the prestigious Silver Star Award for Gallantry in Action.

Bro. Sears also recounted the times he would run from foxhole to foxhole during battle trying to help the wounded.

"I would stop the bleeding and I was free with the morphine. I hated to see these men suffer," he said.

Bro. Sears, who also assisted doctors in surgery, said the television series MASH, which is centered around a field hospital during the Korean War, fairly depicts what took place over there.

"We would just try to get them stabilized and do the best we could to help them make it to a real Army hospital - a lot of them didn't make it but a lot did," he said.

Bro. Sears said he has had lots of cards and letters and some visits from servicemen he helped during the war and he really appreciates that. "I'm not so sure how much soldiers in the Korean war were ever appreciated," he said.

Bro. Sears returned to Fort Knox in 1950 and married his wife, Ann, also a Rockcastle County girl, on December 29, 1950.

In 1952, Bro. Sears was discharged from the service and since that time he and his wife have raised six children. They also have 10 grand children and three great grandchildren.

There is no way of knowing, but in 1975, when Bro. Sears was working at a service station in Renfro Valley, a Korean War veteran stopped to buy gas.

"He had a really bad scar on his head and I asked him what happened. He said he got it in the Korean War - that he was injured in battle and that he was knocked unconscious and someone carried him out," Bro. Sears said. "That all happen to him in September of 1950," he said.

"We still don't know for sure, but I wouldn't be surprised if that was the soldier that I helped," he said.

Bro. Sears and his wife live at Copper Creek and he preaches at Macedonia Baptist Church at Scalford Cane.

Bro. Carl Denton Sears of Copper Creek was a medic in the Korean War in 1950.

Corporal Carl Denton Sears was presented with the prestigious Silver Star in 1951 for his actions during the Korean War in September of 1950.

Mrs. Betty Bruce, left, shook hands with United States President Bill Clinton during a memorial service for Korean War Veterans held in Washington on June 25.

Douglas Lovell, left, of Chestnut Ridge, shows off his big cabbage, which he grew in his garden this summer. Lovell said he had an entire row of cabbage that averaged weighing over 20 pounds each. At right is his grandson, Josh Lovell.

Tom Mills Jr., a senior at Rockcastle County High School, was selected for the Governor's School for the Arts.

All Our Neighbors

Rabbits nestle in a bed of native grasses. Butterflies flutter among a patch of wildflowers. And a mother raccoon gathers food for her babies.

A nature preserve? Not really. It's a transmission corridor owned and maintained by Kentucky's Touchstone Energy Cooperatives. The pathway that brings power to your home is also home to many rare plants and animals.

A two-year study of our transmission corridors throughout the Daniel Boone National Forest found many rare plants growing beneath our power lines: Several of the species were thought to be near extinction. As a result, our biologists continually monitor the pathways to help protect these plants and the wildlife that live among them.

But that's only part of our commitment to the environment. Each year, our cooperatives bring nature into hundreds of classrooms throughout Kentucky. Students learn about the plants and animals of our great commonwealth. And hopefully, they will grow up to be strong stewards of our natural resources.

Kentucky's Touchstone Energy Cooperatives are proud to be nationally recognized leaders in environmental education and preservation. Because that means we're doing our best for our communities and our neighbors - all of our neighbors.

That Little Gold Box
By William Jerry Ayers
My story goes back some time ago, a man punished his little five-year-old girl for wasting a roll of gold wrapping paper.

Money was tight and he became very mad when his daughter tried to wrap a box to put under the Christmas tree.

Never the less, the little girl bought the gift to her father the next morning and said, "This is for you dad."

He was embarrassed by his earlier accusation, but his anger flared up again when he found the gold box was empty.

He yelled at her, "Don't you know when you give someone a present, there's supposed to be something inside it?"

The little girl looked up at him with tears in her eyes and said, Oh Daddy, it's not empty, I blew kisses into the gold box. All for you Daddy."

The father was crushed. He put his arms around his little girl, and he begged her forgiveness.

An accident took the life of the child on a short time later and it is told that the man kept the little gold box by his bed and whenever he was very discouraged, he would take out an imaginary kiss and remember the love of the child who had put it there.

And in a very real sense, each of us humans, have been given a little gold box filled with unconditional love and kisses from our children, friends, family or God. There is no more precious possession anyone could hold.

Little Old Country Church Bulletin Bloopers

I once read these in a church bulletin, believe it or not.

Ladies, don't forget the rummage sale. It is a good chance to get rid of those things not worth keeping around the house. Bring your husbands.

The peace-making meeting scheduled for today has been canceled due to a conflict.

Next Thursday there will be try-outs for the choir. They need all the help they can get.

Liston Men: maybe you will never be as big a hero as your son thinks you are, but you will never be as big a fool as your mother-in-law thinks you are either.

"What Is Written"

Last week we pointed out that from Heb 8 we have a pattern that we must follow in practicing N.T. Christianity. Today, let's notice the N.T. pattern for the work of the church, which is threefold.

Evangelism The church is to be involved in the teaching of the gospel to a lost and dying world. "But if I tarry long, that thou mayest know how thou oughtest to behave thyself in the house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth." 1 Tim 3:15

Edification The church is to be involved in the good work of building up the saints through teaching and instruction. "From whom the whole body fully joined together and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love." Eph 4:16

Helping Needy Saints The church is to be involved in benevolent help toward needy saints, as those needs arise. "But now I go unto Jerusalem to minister unto the saints. For it hath pleased them of Macedonia and Achaia to make a certain contribution for the poor saints which are at Jerusalem." Romans 15:25-26

Notice some things that are not according to the pattern, concerning the work of the church: church ball teams, church gyms, fellowship halls, political action committees, general benevolent society, church-run business enterprises, etc. Not one scripture can be found for these activities.
