Why you should spend Tuesdays with Morrie

By MISSY WILBURN

When you look at it, you will see a cover containing 192 pages and think it's just another book. Inside are words and phrases that will just take up your time.

One day you decide to read a book for school and pick up Tuesdays with Morrie. You read about Mitch Albom who forgot the lessons of life his old professor taught him. Who fell into the work force at full speed to become the best sports writer in the country.

Channel surfing one night, he sees his old professor twenty years later dying of Lou Gehrig's disease. Since his career's on hold from a union strike, he pays a visit to Morrie. Then it all begins...

The last class of my old professor's life took place once a week in his house, by a window in the study where he could watch a small hibiscus plant shed its pink leaves. The class met on Tuesdays. It began after breakfast. The subject was the Meaning of Life. It was taught from experience.

Pure, simple, and straight from the heart, Tuesdays with Morrie is the book to read, remaining 111weeks on the New York Times Best Seller List.

The power of emotions and a unique style both come together to make this book my favorite on the shelf.

BY STEVEN WARD

Today's artists are giving props to the ones who came before them. These "props" are new versions of old songs called covers.

One artist familiar with covers is Britney Spears. She has successfully covered such songs as Janet Jackson's "Black Cat" and Jets' hit "You Got It All".

Spears has broken new ground on her sophomore effort, "Oops!...! Did It Again", with a cover of The Rolling Stones' number one-hit "(I Can't Get No) Satisfaction".

When I first looked at the track listing and noticed the song, I glanced through the CD sleeve to see if it was just a song with the same name. To my surprise, it was the same song written by the Rolling Stones over thirty years ago.

This song wasn't at all backed by Spears' record company Jive Records. They didn't think that she could do a successful cover of a classic, which nagged VH1's best song of the century award.

After recording the song and working with well-known P&B and Rap producer Rodney Jerkins she pushed it through and got it on her second album.

The addition was worth it. The lyrics 'When I'm watchin' my TV, and that girl comes on and tells me, how tight my skirts should be, but she can't tell me who to be, babe. I've got my own identity,' display her dislike for people trying to tell her what to do and how to be, something that I think that a lot of teens today can relate to.

This gould signal Spears growing up, by saying I have to find out who I am, and when I do, no one can change it, which I find admirable.

There aren't many differences in the lyrical content between the two versions, albeit the absence of the original third verse, which included references to cigarette smoking. Aside from the lyrical content, there are no similarities between the two versions.

Spears's rendition includes a much more pumped up R&B groove, with the stronger Stones guitar riff pushed far into the background. The synthesized instrumentals provide the well-known 'pop' effect, meaning it has a high dance quotient.

The Stones' version had slower moving vocals and a more rock and roll vibe with a more evident guitar riff and drum set, coupled with Jagger's rough vocals.

Mrs. Linda Taylor was also hired as the new School Grounds Monitor. Although the monitoring position has now been filled, a Nursing Assistant position is still vacant. Serving on the Interview Committee will be Principal Ruth Allen, Food Services Director Jeaninne Parsons, and council members Dana Singleton, and Cindy Anderkin.

The Southern Regional Education Board's October 17th visit was also mentioned. Strengths and weaknesses of the school program will be published at a later date.

The meeting was concluded with a proposal for a senior trip. Ms. Allen told students that the proposal must be taken to the Student Support Committee before further discussion with the Council.

The SBDM meetings are opento the public, and everyone is invited to come.

Despite the differences and the mixed critical reactions to the cover, there are rumors that the song will be released as a commercial single.

Of course, this will have to come after her third single, "Stronger", is released

If you ask me, and you haven't yet, I think that if an artist wants to do a cover, then more power to 'em.

I just so happen to like both versions of "Satisfaction": the Stones' version for it's 'ROCK' and Spears's version for its 'ROLL'.

Even though I like the cover, there are just some groups and songs that are great just like they are. The legendary Stones are one of those groups.

Bulldogs to be leashed tonight

School spirit is soaring high this year, and with a very remarkable reason. For the first time in Rockcastle County football history, the Rockets have completed a perfect season, ending with 10 wins and 0 losses.

"I knew we could [advance this far] if we really tried hard and put forth the effort and dedication," Assistant Coach Chris Larkey com-

The year started out with a surprising win over Lincoln County in the Death Valley Bowl, progressed to the slaughter of Knott County Central (80-0), and the end of the scheduled season marked a-turning point in RCHS football.

Until last Friday night, Rockcastle had never defeated the Bell County Bobcats. The crowd must have had every finger crossed because The Rock shutout Bell County, 26-0.

"I felt confident that if we went out and played well and eliminated turnovers, a win would be possible," Head Coach Tom Larkey said.

Tonight the RCHS Rockets will face the Lawrence County Bull-. dogs on home turf at 7:30 pm.

The Rockets definitely have their work cut out for them, especially since Lawrence County player Michael West, number one in the state for rushing, has rushed more individual yards than our entire team this year.

"He may be the number one rusher in the state, but he's coming to The Rock tonight!" said senior

As nearly any football player or coach will tell you, ranking doesn't matter when you're out on the field. Turnovers, conversions, and injuries can drastically affect the outcome of a game.

Maybe so, but being ranked third in 3A, facing off against a nineteenth place team is a definite advantage. Intimidation can help. win a game and fans stay pepped up if their team is highly ranked.

We have beaten some traditional powers in the beginning of the season. The point margin increases chances of high ranking," Coach Tom Larkey.

While we may have overall ranking on our side, Michael West will be a challenge.

"It's number one against number one [#1 rushing defense vs. #1 rushing player]. They've earned my respect, but I'm not scared of them," remarked senior linebacker Travis Ingram.

When asked how The Rock was planning to hold back Lawrence County offense, Senior Greg Harper replied "Put everybody in [Michael West's] face and bring the kitchen sink."

Reserved seats are honored, but must be accompanied with a general admission ticket. Season passes, Kentucky High School Coaches. and Officials cards are not honored. Everyone who enters the parking area must purchase a ticket.

As senior tight-end Chaz Cable put it, "It could be our last [game]. It's do or die. We've got the number one rushing defense, so I hope we can stop them."

Notice what Paul and the disciples were involved into both among the Jews and the Gentiles, they were disputing on religious questions. A lot of people have the notion that it is wrong to "argue religion". Now if you mean to argue in a hateful, arrogant, snobbish, argumentative disposition. I would say yes such is wrong. But to reason about the scriptures, dispute with another that you disagree with, argue in a good was about the truth of Jesus, to earnestly contend for the faith, there is nothing wrong in this! Does any wish to say that Paul and the bettern were quilty of sin, in what they did for 2 years and 3 months? Truth has nothing to fear from an open investigation! ROCK crushes Dogs 42-6 in opening round

By: Richard Anderkin
There is no question that this season the Rockeastle County Rockets have one of the best defenses in the state of Kentucky.
Friday night they showed just how good that defense is - when they held the state's leading rusher to just 18 yards.

Terry's kick made it 35-0 in the third period.

Also in the third, junior Josh Hale

Rockcastle head coach Tom Larkey and head assistant Tony Saylor began topull their warsiy players and in the fourth period, the Bull-dogs scored on a pass play.

"I was very pleased with our running game Friday night - we didnt; throw the ball much because we were running the ball so well," Larkey said.

Also on Friday night, Ingram set a school record for tackles and as-

The Face of the Future

Ask a farmer why they grow burley tobacco and the answer will probably be, because that's what their families have relied on to feed them for generations. There's a pride in their land and burley tobaçco . is a product that enjoys world-wide demand. Most burley is grown on small, family-owned farms that could be devastated without tobacco.

For decades, the Burley Price Support Program and auction system has helped tobacco growers support their family farms and their communities. The Program keeps tobacco prices stable and ensures our farming families are able to continue growing burley, a crop world renowned for its superior quality.

The Burley Price Support Program. A program that works for everyone.

Library News

By Kristiana Burk
Times is certainly flying by quickly, Itis amazing that it is almost Thanksgiving! I am so thankful for the wonderful staff, board and patrous that support the Library and the work that we do. I ruly believe that when we are thankful for the blessings we have, work hard and support ings we have, work hard and support each other, then just about anything is possible! The Halloween Party that was held The Halloween Party that was near here at the Library on October, 31st was a great success? There were lots of little witches, goblins and more running around playing games, parrunning around playing games, pair-ticipating in contests, and enjoying refreshments. The children enjoyen playing games like the Bat Toss, Pin the Nose on the Jack O'Lantern and Pass the Pumpkin. Costume prizes were awarded for the most original, mosthilarious and the scariest. Kathy, our Children's Librarian, wants to send a heartfett thanks to all that attended and helped out, all who made the night a special one to remember. Recently, the Children's Area of the Röckesated County Public Library the Réckeastle County Public Library has adopted the following slogan that we feel states the role that the Public Library should play can be a considered to the following should play can be a feel state of the feel should be a the Röckcastle County Public Library vices and resources that the Library, has to offer, all for FREE!

I received an e-mail just the other day from my Grandmother in Texas who told me that she had completed all of her Christmas shopping already. I haven't even stancel! Anyhow, that haven't even stancel! Anyhow, that haven't even stancel! Anyhow, that had ene start thinking along the lines of gifts and then in connection with the Library, that one of the greatest gifts that a parent by guardian can give their child is the gift of reading and learning. According to the American Library Association, who conducts various studies on the effects of Reading and Library association, who conducts various studies on the effects of Reading and Library association, who conducts various studies on the effects of Reading and Library association, who conducts various studies on the effects of Reading and Library association, who conducts were the conduction of the properties of the pr ducts various studies on the effects of Reading and Literacy on all ages, "Kids Who Read Succeed" is more than just a slogan; they call it a fact. They discovered the following statis-tics: Half of a child's intellectual detics: Half of a child's insullectual de-velopment occurs between birth and four years of age. Children who are reactor from ancarly age rend to learn we sounds, increase their vocabu-laries and stretch their imginations more than other children. "Children who have been ex-posed to reading and other cultural experiences before they begins chool alway an overall better chance at suc-cess in formal learning." The threat of illiteracy for chil-dren who don't learn to read well is very real. Today nearly 15% of American adults—more than 27 mil-lion people—cannot read or write.

The Agricultural Appropriations Act (Public Law 106-78) provided the Secretary of Agricultural authority to permit the lease and transfer of aburley tobaccoquota from one farm to another farm within the State, if a majority of the tobacco producers approve lease and transfer by a State-wide referendum. The Secretary called for a referendum in Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio. Congress in the recently enacted Agricultural Risk Protection Act of 2000 clarified their original imension by allowing that majority of those voting will be sufficient to determine the outcome of cross-country! leasing referends. NOTICE Rockcastle County Schools Plan For Inclement Weather School Closings Early Dismissal

Every effort will be made to keep parents and concerned citizens informed as to school closings, early dismissals and possibly a delay plan.

-The number one concern is the safety of students. After an extensive evaluation of road conditions in the county, taking into consideration all roads, a decision will be made in regard to closing school.

chool closings will be announced on radio stations and three television stations. They are as follows: Radio - WRVK (AM 1460), WVLK (FM 93), WBUL (FM 98.1), WMXL (FM 94.5), WLAP (630 AM), WRSL (FM 96.3), WLKT (FM 104.5) WKQQ (FM 100.1). Television - WKYT (Channel 27), WLEX (Channel 18), WTVQ (Channel 36). If possible, the closing will be announced the evening before the closing date. If a determination cannot be made the day prior to the closing date, every possible effort will be made to reach a decision by 6:00 a.m. The announcement vill be made no later than 6:30 a.m. This will be conducted the same for the delay plan, if it is concluded the delay plan would be the appropriate plan of action

If the delay plan is used, breakfast will be served upon the arrival of students at Early dismissal of school due to inclement weather will be announced on WRVK. Roads will be closely monitored as school is in session to determine if there is a need for early dismissal. If the need for early dismissal does occur, parents should make arrangements to meet children as they arrive safely.

Parents and students should not call any radio or television stations to inquire about school closings. This could delay the information distribution to the necessary channel by tying up the phone lines.

Rockcastle County School System Delay Plan

Occasionally, there are mornings when an additional hour is needed to check bus routes and temperatures/weather conditions sometimes can change between 6 a.m. and 7 a.m. As a result, the Rockcastle County School System will consider a one hour delay in school opening due to weather conditions.

If a one-hour delay status is warranted, the delay will be announced by the following radio stations: WRVK (AM 1469), WVLK (FM 93), WBUL (FM 98.1), WMXL (FM 94.5), WLAP (630 AM), WRSL (FM 96.3), WLKT (FM 104.5), WKQQ (FM 100.1), and the following television stations: WLEX (Channel 18), WKYT (Channel 27), WTVQ (Channel 36), at 6:00 a.m. or as soon as possible

There may be a time when a few isolated bus routes may not be made or may be delayed for an hour while the rest of the bus routes will be made on the regular schedule. These bus routes will be announced only on WRVK radio station.

In instances of a delay schedule, breakfast will be served as soon as students arrive

Rockcastle reaps CATS rewards again

Math scores soar nine points Y NIKKI WOOD

Rockcastle County High School has once again been rewarded for an outstanding performance on the CATS assessment. Several departments made vast improvements this year.

Math content scores jumpednine points and on demand writing made an increase as well.

The 1999 CATS results in were a 62.9248, and they made an astonishing leap to 71.6111 in the 2000 results for mathematics

· Mr. Scott Adams, head of the math department, explained that problem solving and more hands on activities had been stressed last year in preparation for CATS.

Mr. Adams also said, "We've had more stability within the math department faculty. Not as many teachers have been hired so we are used to each other and we work really well together. We do things similarly:"

The dramatic difference between scores may leave some people wondering if there was just a difference in the brain power of last years juniors and the classes

Geometry teacher Ms. Dawn

Quigley explained, "I don't think that there was really that much difference between them the class that was tested last year) and juniors that took it before.

'I think it's that our department had been handing out a common open response item every two to three weeks. The students had more practice."

On demand writing is another-content area that increased its score this year.

Novice scores dropped 22% from 1999, while apprentice rose 9%, and 15% more students achieved a proficient rating

Mrs. Jennifer Mattingly, head of the English department, believes the increased scores have something to do with the use of direct instruction in on demand'

"One of the things we did last year was teach the students how to take the test and break down the writing process into manageable chunks of time," said Mrs.

She also emphasized it is important for students to realizedthat on demand writings are scored using the same criteria as portfolio pieces. However, students only have an hour and a half to complete the on demand

Changes in other departments may increase their scores in the years to come.

One department making such changes is Social Studies.

The social studies test covers six areas: world history, American history, geography, sociology, government, and economics.

According to teacher Mr. Adam Coleman, world history is in the process of being shifted from a senior class to a sophomore class. Geography, economics, sociology, and government are all incorporated into the 18 week Global Issues. U.S. History will remain a

Soon, almost all of the core content covered by the test will be covered well before students actually take the test.

Arts and Humanities scores may be in for a change this year, as well. This year's juniors are the first class to have taken the now required History and Appreciation of Visual and Performing Arts.

Taught by Ms. Allene Cornelius, Arts and Humanities is a class focused on creative writing, dance, drama, music, art, and multicultural studies.

Each area is covered by the. CATS assessment.

All other subject areas stayed at nearly the same level this year. but that level is high enough that when combined with the better math scores and increased on demand, the school will be rewarded again this year.

Just what are the rewards given to the school? Principal Ruth Allen explained that they were money given to the school from the Writing policy stresses student accountability

Site Based Decision Making Council members reviewed a proposal on a possible writing policy at the October 5 meeting. If approved the policy will affect juniors and seniors for years to come.

Mr. Chris Frith, freshmen English teacher, presented the Writing Portfolio policy proposal, formed by the English Department.

If approved, the policy will require that all juniors and seniors will be required to have an apprentice level portfolio piece from each core content area. A novice piece will result in failure of the course.

The writing policy will hold students more accountable for their portfolio," said Mr. Frith.

Although the proposal will affect junior and senior classes, freshmen and sophomores will not be faced with the requirements of the proposal.

Freshmen and sophomore students will continue to have a working writing folder, but will not have a formal letter to the reviewer," said

Writing skills such as grammar, sentence structure and punctuation are all things that freshmen and sophomores will continue to im-

Although the policy is intended to increase lest scores, some council members were unsure of the Council member Dana Singleton expressed the concern that it seemed unfair to fail a student with a one-hundred percent average due to a poor portfolio piece.

According to Mr. Frith, faculty reaction has also been mixed.

Mr. Frith feels that while some teachers believe the policy will only affect students and test scores positively, others feel that writing isn't their responsibility as a core content teacher.

Writing Cluster Leader Ms. Allene Cornelius believes teachers should not see writing as an 'addon' responsibility.

"Writing is imperative, and a positive attitude makes writing less of a chore and more of a chal- creased by an impressive nine lenge," said Ms. Cornelius.

The proposal is being revised e, and a second reading of the policy will take place during the November SBDM session.

An update on the CATS test scores, new club information, and the Southern Regional Education Board visit were also mentioned.

A release of the Spring 2000 CATS assessment showed that Rockcastle County has been recognized as the only school district in Kentucky with all schools in rewards. RCHS Principal Ruth Allen also told council members that students scores have progressively increased, and that math scores in-

Although CATS scores were up, there was a decrease in CTBS scores. All core content departments will research in more detail to find their strengths and weaknesses, and how the weaknesses could be improved.

In other businesss, the council reviewed the Ethical Explorers Club, sponsored by Ms.Trina Bustle and Ms. Dana Singleton through the 21st Century Learning Center. This club will allow students to discuss alternatives to de-

Dear Seniors:

BY CHEYENNE CARMACK

The other day in the cafeteria I heard Alanis Morrisette singing "Tronic." I hadn't heard that song in forever, and when I did, it practically catapulted me back to middle school!

But as I listened and reminisced, I realized just how much irony there is in our lives as seniors.

Yes, it is possible that we are busier and more stressed out than ever before.

Decisions weigh more heavily upon us now and we are quickly learning that we are clueless when it comes to responsibility.

Reality is sinking in. Adulthood is approaching and whether we like it or not, it will soon be here.

Scary, huh?

But you know what? In growing up and finding maturity, somewhere along the way, we have unwittingly made life simpler for ourselves. Think about it...

Illness makes a person appreciate their health, just as death calls attention to the gift of life.

All of our fear and stress exposes the small, worthless ideas and problems that we've wept over since our preteen years for exactly what they are -- absolutely nothing.

And as seniors, 1 believe most of us realize this fact.

Take a look inside senior homerooms. You'll find far less made-up faces and far more smiles. You'll hear less snickers and gossip, while hearing more "I love you guys..." and "What are we going to do next year?"

The tags that adorn people's clothing are less important and superficial smiles no longer win friends. Maybe the butterflies are finally mature enough to escape from the cocoons

Petty arguments, the tiny incidents that once seemed so important that they ended grade school friendships, are being resolved. Some of us are actually being big boys and girls and saying those dreaded words "I'm sorry" or "I was wrong."

It's actually very refreshing to see. No one is worried about impressing the upperclassmen, or being voted green, silly, or goofy. I actually have other seniors to run to lunch with now!

As we have found our own niches in this familiar place, we have also discovered security, support, and our own identities.

But it has been no easy task and one that has been our whole lives in the making. We have finally arrived, and just in time to board the bus to the future.

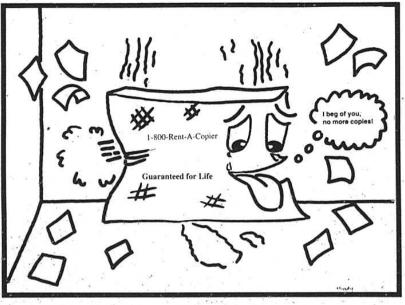

Have you seen those posters around school that say, "Thirty years from now it won't matter what kind of jeans you wore or how your hair looked. What will matter is what you learned and how you used it."?

The truth is, those things don't even matter now, and most of us realize that.

We've spent our whole existence making small things into big deals and blowing off the things that should have been important.

Suddenly the word senior falls into our laps and the view of the spectrum changes:

-Would I call that ironic? Nah... I call it growing up.

Why throw it all away

BY JOANIE MINK KING

When all the freshmen classes start out they usually have some where around 230 students.

By their senior year, this number has dropped about 22%. Some of these students transfer, but others simply drop out.

According to Guidance Counselor Dale Whitaker, most students decide to quit school during their freshmen or sophomore year. This is not a smart thing to do.

If you drop out you don't get a diploma; if you don't have a diploma then you can't get a good job that pays good money. If you can't get a good job, then it will make it hard for you to support yourself and your family.

I am a senior and I got pregnant during my sophomore year. I came back from homebound to finish school because I know that I need to get a good education.

I know that I need a good job because I need to support my little girl. I want to continue that because I want her to have nice things like I did.

Another reason I came back to school is because who knows how long I will be able to depend on my family or how long I will be married. I know that my family will be there if I need them, but I will still need to make it on my own. No matter what I will make sure that my little girl is taken care of.

I hope that some of the students who are thinking of dropping out this year will, change their minds and not do it. Believe me, it is hard to make it out in the real world without a job when you have bills to pay.

A great experience of another lifestyle

Public schools should offer regular overseas trips for their students BY CLAUDIA VEJRAZKA

GUEST WRITER

When I came to Rockcastle County and started school here, I found out that there are many students that do not know very much about Europe and how people live there. It made me sad when I heard questions like "Do you ride on horseback to school?", because this shows me that there are young people who have no idea what life is like on the other side of the

The Rocket

This lack of knowledge shows me that regular oversea trips are a necessity. These trips would be the perfect opportunity to clean up the prejudices on both sides, not only here but also in the minds of people

A possibility to offer these trips in a not so expensive manner is the partnership between high schools here and high schools in Europe. The school I used to go to at home in Germany has partnerships with schools in Italy, Russia, and here in the States. The way of exchange is through letters between students of these schools all year round and trips to the other country, where the students stay in host families.

Right now students from Italy are staying in Germany for three (3) months. Next year some of the students from Germany will travel to

The students are not the only ones that have the chance to get to know the other culture more intensively than they would as a tourist. Other people like the host family and all the surrounding persons have this possibility throughout the

The students should not expect to get on a trip overseas every year, but once in his or her high school time every teenager should have the opportunity to stay abroad. These kinds of experiences help young people to think not only in terms of a limited area like the US, but more globally. This is an ability every person of today's society should have, especially when you think of how many companies have branches all over the world.

For me the possibility to stay in another country far away from home is a great experience. Nearly all people I have spoken to about their experiences abroad have confirmed that. They told me that it was the greatest time of their lives. They have learned a lot from it and it helped them to judge without prejudices over other people. .

I have found out that the saving It is not right! It is not wrong! It is just different!", which my exchange organization told us, contains a lot of true facts and it is a way of thinking everybody should have the opportunity to experience.

Students starving for English

BY HEATHER KIRBY

Every year students are deprived of important curriculum, due to lack of time. Students and teachers rush through their English classes trying to-cover all of the bases. With literature, portfolios, and writing practices teachers do not have enough time to cover everything.

As a result of block scheduling, students lose thirty-six hours in English classes.

While block scheduling is beneficial to students by allowing students more classes per year the loss of nearly forty hours is detrimental to a student's reading/writing ability. In a system that emphasizes writing skills so strongly, it seems morally corrupt to allow the deprivation of a subject that is the basis of our educa-

English classes to provide a better understanding of all the aspects of the subject.

Due to the fact that English is the basis of the curriculum taught to the student, a better understanding of English will aid students in other studies. For instance, to begin learning a foreign language, students need to have a solid understanding of the parts of speech before they can go on to learn another language.

An increase in writing skills would also boost students' portfolio scores. If English was yearround teachers could take the extra time to focus on different writing styles, especially transactive writing, which often lowers port-

I realize that if English classes were year round some people may Students should have longer . feel that they would be excessive.

But, when you consider portfolios, literature, writing styles, and writing prompts it's really not that much time.

Teachers could spend the first hour of each class teaching the English curriculum and the last thirty minutes for portfolios, a sure fire way to bring scores up. This would also prevent that end of the year portfolio rush.

By having year round English all four years of their high school career, students will boost their reading/writing skills. The extra time will allow classes to cover more of the important aspects of the English curriculum. All in all, students need more time for English classes so they can acquire a sound background in the subject that is the root of our edu-

FCA rocks the boat for 2000

BY STEVEN WARD

Fellowship of Christian Athletes, better known as FCA, is making changes all around the board.

FCA now has the opportunity to meet at night. These "get togethers" are held every other Monday from 6:30 pm to 8:15 pm.

. "Having, more time allows us to accomplish more than we could in a 45 minute club block," said adviser Mr. Jason Wilson.

A primary reason for this change was the fact that the brief time limited the speakers that could be used and the time that members could spend interacting with them.

Attendance at the night meetings has been high. Out of the 283 members, about eighty or more attend

Many of last year's members are making positive comments about the switch in formats.

"There are a lot more people this year than last year, and we do things that are n.uch more fun," commented senior Chaz Cable.

Many of these changes may be attributed to the new leadership team that was created.

This team is made up of about 12 to 15 members who decide what happens in the club and what can be done to make it more interesting.

Another change making waves in the FCA waters is the change in the attendance policy for the state convention.

Last year, only club officers and advisers were permitted to attend the conference. This year, the experience is open to all members for a $30 fee.

There are going to be many more changes, however these are not yet set in stone.

"I think that if we do stuff like this, then we will get more involved and it will be a better club for students," said junior Courtney Alexander.

BY SARAH HOOVER

Students can expect to receive their 2001 yearbooks next fall instead of in the spring.

"We've done this because it gives us a chance to include important things that happen at the end like Project Graduation," explained editor Zach Pennix.

The new delivery date will enable the staff to include pictures of prom and graduation. They will also be able to include spring sports like baseball, softball, and track.

Many students have wondered how they will be able to get their yearbooks signed.

According to yearbook adviser Mrs. Angie Hendrickson, signature booklets will be on sale in April. This gives the opportunity for students to collect friends' autographs. When the book is received the sheets can be placed in the back.

A price for the booklets has not been set.

Senior pictures will be done differently this year, as well. Students will be able to choose their own pictures, instead of using the traditional school snapshot.

"The pictures must meet the dress code. All pictures will be approved by me," said Mrs. Hendrickson,

The deadline for senior pictures is Feb. 1.

Senior ads were also changed to accommodate all students. Instead of the different sized ads that have been done in the past, they'll all be the same size, and the same price.

"They've been changed so everyone can afford one," said Mrs. Hendrickson

Another change is the removal of baby pictures. They have been removed from the book to accommodate other changes.

"We-took out the baby pictures to give is more room for other pictures," said yearbook staff member Brandi Albright

The theme for this year's book is "Pictures Say 2001 Words". Yearbooks can be purchased through Nov. 16. The cost is $30.

Academic team improving

The varsity academic team is doing great this year, their 11-3 record showing vast improvements from last year. Their record last year was 8-24.

"We hope to have a winning season and to improve our skills so we can continue to be successful," said coach Stephanie Hammack.

Senior Nikki Wood is the only returning varisty member. Gretchen Phelps, a junior, is the only junior varsity member to move up to varsity.

Other varsity team members are: seniors Stephen Hopkins and Heather Kirby, and junior Joe Lambert.

According to Ms. Allene Cornelius, junior varisty coach, the JV team is very new. Already, they are showing improvements as they practice various techniques like playing games and using book references, for increasing content knowledge.

Members are juniors Brian Reynolds and Ronnie Hess; Jessica Evans Justin Cornelius, sophomores; and freshmen Shaina Lewis, Scott Cain, Charli Feltner, and Andrea Lester.

The junior varsity's current record is 4-10.

Time to start plans for Project 2001

Before we know it, graduation day will be here. And know what comes after graduation? Project graduation--the night to spend and have fun one more time with our senior friends.

But, before we can enjoy Project Graduation's excitement, we must first raise money and prepare for it. It may seem early in the year for this, but if we start soon, the more money we can raise.

Last year, the committee didn't even start to meet until January. Though they raised around $28,000 in cash and about $4,000 in gifts, according to last year's chairperson Darlena Mays, if the Class of 2001 starts now we won't be as rushed to prepare for our big night.

All it takes to start Project Graduation is for one person to stand up and say, "Hey, we really need to get moving on this." I'm standing up to say just that. I urge all seniors to do exactly as I am and beg their parents to help out with this. As we're making our senior year the best it can be, let's work on doing the same for the night that will top it all off!

Rocket spirit invades RCHS

Spirit Week was October 23-27. The week led up to the Rockets match up against the Bell County Bobcats last Friday night. Students got to show their school spirit by dressing up for activities like Red, White, and Blue Day and Huntin' Day. Clockwise from top left: seniors Steffany Gabbard, Tara Abney, and Theresa Chislum cheer during Friday's pep rally; English teacher Mr. Chris Frith takes advantage of relaxed dress codes to frighten his students; senior Ladonya Mink is a fashionable figure in her huntin' fatigues; sophomore Justin Rogers epitomizes the Rocket Spirit.

Ignore it, but it won't go away

BY CHEVENNE CARMACK

Few topics of conversation are quite as uncomfortable to discuss as death. For this reason, death remains to be a taboo issue for many.

Death is an important fact of life. However, due to the implications of discussing it, important decisions and pressing matters go unattended or unsaid.

Upon the passing of family members, say the parents, the children are left with unanswered questions and no one to answer them.

"It's just a touchy subject," said Linda Howard, a local mother of two, who admits that she and her husband have not discussed such matters with their children. "When you start talking about those things kids say, 'That won't happen to me,' and so you push it aside."

Mrs. Howard also added that though they have talked about it for years, she and her husband, Mike, had not yet written up wills. The Howard's are part of a large majority.

According to a survey done in 1999 by the National Hospice Foundation, fewer than 25% of Americans 45 years of age or older have put into writing how they would like to be cared for at the end of their lives.

Marlene Lawson

Local attorney John Clontz says that he encourages all of his clients to draw up a written will and inform the executor of their position.

"The transition is smoother if there is a will, and we recommend that our clients do have one," said Clontz.

It does seem important that people, especially parents, make legal, medical, and personal decisions and formal provisions for family members prior to death.

"I think if you're prepared in that way it decreases the overwhelming, 'What am I going to do now," said RCHS English teacher, Mrs. Christa Rose.

Mrs. Rose, though she has no children of her own, admits that she would feel unprepared if something happened to her parents.

"I wouldn't even know where to start," she said

Another RCHS teacher, Mrs. Connie Riddle, echoes her coorker's thoughts. However, Mrs. dren would ultimately be in the custody of the court system.

"Kentucky law prevents and protects minors [those below the age of 18] from handling matters upon > the death of a parent," stated Clontz.

At that time, a relative would have to file in a district court for guardianship of the child, and then act as the minor's advisor.

Some parents, though few, have provided for their children in case of the unexpected.

Josh Taylor, a junior at RCHS, feels that his parents have provided adequate information for him and his two siblings.

"Legally, we're completely prepared. The wills were done by a lawyer. Wa know where the copies are kept. The burial arrangements have all been taken care of, too,"

and Taylor

Taylor's knowledge serves as a relief to him. "It really is a burden off of me." he said.

Still, the majority of us are not so lucky. Sixteen year old Travis Burton, an RCHS sophomore, has never discussed the details concerning death with his mother.

"I guess we just both know that if something happens it would fall into my grandparents' hands," said Burton.

How well are you prepared for unexpected circumstances? Are your children provided for if something should happen? If they are, are they aware of it?

Pressing issues at the time of death, such as organ donation, burial and funeral arrangement, unpaid debts, and personal wishes should all be taken into consideration and addressed.

In the end, naive attitudes can only be harmful. Is it fair to leave your children unprepared just because it's too uncomfortable to talk about?

It's better to be prepared for the inevitable fact of death, than to be unprepared for the cruel realities of life.

Student behavior may result in falling grades

BY AMY CLARK

In many classrooms you will find a particular student who is always trying to be the class clown.

This is the student who generally sits in the back, laughing and cutting up with their friends while the teacher is talking.

Some may laugh and think it's funny, but others are being deprived of learning what is being taught.

In some cases, a students mannerisms tend to affect their own grades.

"It seems as if students with poor behavior are also the ones who have bad grades," said science teacher Stephanie Hammack. Other teachers support this opin-

"People that are disruptive are usually not paying attention or getting the information they need," said math teacher Dawn Quigley.

French teacher Angie Hendrickson agrees that if students are not attentive they usually don't know what is going on.

Mr. Ryan Riddle, anatomy and physiology teacher, believes that if students are hyperactive or hypoactive it affects their grades.

"If they are asleep (hypo), they aren't doing the assignment. If they have intense energy (hyper), they are probably not paying attention because they can't sit still," he said.

Some students tend to agree with the teachers.

"People who goof off in class are not serious about their education. They'll regret it when they can't find a good job," said senior Tabitha Durham.

Although some student behavior may cause conflict, teachers are usually good at handling the situation before it becomes a problem. However, it will always remain solely the student's choice on how it affects their grades.

The presidential campaigns are in full force as November 7 steadily approaches. Many Americans are tuning in and reading up on the two candidates: Bush and Gore. However, do students at RCHS really care about the political arena?

"No, they're not interested at all," said English teacher Nancy Bussell. "They just don't understand. They haven't been watching the television, they don't read the newspapers...it is not their concern at this point,"

RCHS students log

BY LINDSEY PARSONS

The world is available to teenagers at just the click of a mouse. Whether it's researching for a school assignment or conversing with friends, kids these days are constantly logging online.

Use of the Internet has increased in popularity for teenagers at RCHS, too. Many students enter their passwords into an Internet service every night to perform various tasks.

"When I'm online, I check my email and chat with people. Sometimes I do my homework," said senior Ashley Lawson, who is online about two hours every night.

Emailing, chatting, and homework seem to be the most popular uses for the Internet. But, why is it so popular with teenagers? Could it be that we find regular teen activities dull? We are kids of the technology era and computers are at our fingertips after all. Plus, according to some adults, we get bored very easily. Maybe the computer is a treatment for this.

Senior Stephen Hopkins said he logs on because "it's more interactive than TV," while Lawson does "to keep in touch with

Through emailing and chat rooms, the Internet has become a replacement to the telephone for many. It is the new-age way of communication and I can say, through personal experience, that teenagers at RCHS are using it as just that I am a self-titled "online junkie" myself and can be found typing into AOL Instant Messenger nearly every night. I'm addicted to this chat room and didn't even really enjoy talking on the phone

While most teens just want to use the Internet for fun, such as chat rooms, it can also be helpful with schoolwork. The vast amount of information available is very beneficial to students working on a class assignment.

"[The Internet] gives me a wide selection from different resources in topics I look up," Josh Lyons, senior, said.

Sophomore Austin Miller finds the Internet useful for home-

"It has helped me a bunch. I can find lots of information that I need for school quickly," he said.

While it can be helpful, there are also a lot of phony items on the World Wide Web, so it is important that students choose which site to get information from carefully. Remember that anyone can create a website and anyone can access the web. Always use good common sense when online.

The Internet may have come into existence in the late '70s, but it has become more popular within the last few years. Teenagers around the world dial up the net every night. Many students at RCHS, me included, are among those sitting at our computer desks, typing away.

reflects school with honor, tradition

BY MINDY BULLOCK

Washington and Lee University has two preeminent objectives: to dedicate all its resources to developing in its students the capacity and desire to learn, to understand, and to share the fruits of their intellectual growth, and to pursue its educational mission in a climate that stresses the importance in the individual...

WLU's mission statement reflects a school with honor, pride, and a drive for education.

The university is located in Lexington, Virginia after being established some 20 miles north of there with the name Augusta Academy. In 1798, it was changed to Washington College after George Washington gave the school $50,000.

After Robert E. Lee took the position as president in 1865 the school yet again changed the name to Washington and Lee University to show their gratitude. .

The once small regional school now offers over forty majors including Russian studies and East Asian studies. Their business school is the smallest one fully accreditted in the United States.

Another program regarded as being excellent is WLU's journalism department. Not only does it supervise the campus newspaper, but the student run radio station, WLUR-FM, and Cable 2, which is used as a laboratory for television

For those students who want to pursue an occupation in medicine or law. WLU has a medical school acceptance rate of 88% and a law school acceptance rate of

The Comprehensive Tuition Fee for attending WLU is $16,470. However, 208 of the 213 freshman last year that needed assistance from the government had their needs fully met. Also, there are plenty of scholarships available for incoming freshman to apply for. .

But, as an entering freshman what can you expect as far as residence halls and cafeteria food?

"Freshmen seem to be relatively satisfied with their dorm experience, and the cafeteria is not bad," says Holloway. "But, once you've had pasta 10 million times it's hard to deal with it again."

If you're looking for a little more variety of food, then perhaps you should think of joining a fraternity on campus. Not only does it provide an atmosphere full of friends, but a cook as well.

Some sororities even have their own cooking staff based on the number of girls who reside in the house

The university has had an honor system established ever since General Lee inspired it when he was president. Students who lie or steal will be booted out, practically no questions asked. According to Holloway, most students don't even lock their doors as they journey off to one of the campus buildings that stay unlocked 24 hours a day.

However, security isn't really a major problem with the college being situated in a small town of 8,000. This provides comfort for those students who come from a

"I had a wonderful time while at WLU," says Holloway. "I really liked the combination of academics, and weekends are for fun and relaxation."

Taylor excels in academics, JROTC

BY TASHA SANDLIN

Many people fail to realize the talent in senior Tami Taylor's life. As a seventeen year old, 4.0 student Taylor has made a huge impact on Rockcastle County High Taylor is the daughter of Sgt. Major Taylor and Mrs. Jenny Taylor, both RCHS staff members, and is currently serving as commander of the Rockcastle County High School JROTC.

When she was a freshman, Tami's dad influenced her to take the ROTC classes. She soon discovered she loved them. She joined the Rifle Team and began shooting as well.

It has taken Tami three out of -team to get promoted to commander.

" These four years have really shaped me, mostly in the physical department," she said.

She exercises each day in class. As far as training for rifle team, she only practices shooting once a week. Somehow she still makes the grades and breaks the records.

On her way to the top Taylor has set five records within the school: highest 600 match, highest 300 match, prone, stand, and kneel. And now she has attained the position as high rank commander.

Some people might point fingers and say she doesn't deserve her position because her father teaches the Taylor feels that this doesn't change anything. She has worked hard all four years of high school for her accomplishments.

Freshmen and JV end winning season

BY LINDSEY PARSONS

Football at RCHS has been better than ever this year. Our varsity, as most now know, had an undefeated season. But, is everyone aware of the great accomplishments made by our freshmen and junior varsity teams?

"It's hard to believe that one team out of freshmen, JV, and varsity could have just one loss all year," said freshman Devon Bussell.

The freshmen football team ended their season with a record of 6-0.

Caleb Blair gives credit for the undefeated year to their good coaching, and Shane Lynch feels it was "because of our line and quarterback Devin Taylor."

Their winning came from "hard work and dedication and we played as a team," said Taylor.

Whatever it was that brought the team to a winning season, it worked. Maybe it's just the team itself. Last year, as eighth graders, they lost only four gantes, according to coach JD Bussell.

Coach Bussell has his own opinion as to why the freshmen team was so successful.

"They worked really hard and we didn't have many [players] miss practice all year," he said.

The Junior Varsity team ended a very successful year as well. They came out of the season with an 8-1 record, the only loss by a single point.

The loss was to West Jessamine, 27-26. The winning points came at the end of the game when Jessamine intercepted a pass on the last play.

However, according to junior Josh Taylor, Jessamine played all of their starting varsity except the seniors and Rockcastle used a freshmen line.

The team is still proud of their season.

"I feel like we had a great year. I'm just sorry it had to come to an end like it did," commented sophomore quarterback Aaron Anderkin.

Coach Adam Coleman

"As a defensive coach, I was pleased with our defense. We were a fast team and that really helped us on defense. I was disappointed how our season ended but I'm proud of the team," he said.

Sophomore James Bussell has a good attitude about the year, "It's been a great season and I hope to improve it next year."

"We worked hard and we all wanted to keep the Rocket tradition alive," Josh Taylor said, explaining why he thinks the JV was successful

Freshman Nick Thomas displayed the feeling that most of the football players have when he said, "I feel proud to play for the Rock."
