A few folks suggested fire arms. Tromy the burrows down as full as you can and when you use the earth nove as a mole tires to open his hole back up, fire several rounds with a 22 rifle into the ground. There were some suggestions for rigging up a means to electrocute moles which we will not mention in the column because we do not want to be defendants in a law suit should the process get messy and the person attempting wind up fring himself. the process get messy and the person attempting wind up frying himself. Rockcastle Kiwanis Club honors Preston Nunnelley

By Martha Cox

By Martina Cox There are giants who walk among us with such quiet, soft steps that while we may not always hear the sounds, we certainly feel the results soundar we crainly ready heat use of heir warm and pacel heresence in our lives. One such man, Peston Nunnelley, has touched so many young men and women at the First Baytist Church in M. Vernon with his service, his faithfulness, his kind and gented disposition, his charming personality and graceful manner, and and gented disposition, his charming personality and graceful manner, and his innate low for his fellow man. The Kiwanis Club feels it a great hoor to bestow the Spiritual Aims Award on this worthy citizen whose caeching and example has touched so many lives. The beautiful story of his faith clusters around his church, his teaming and Teamps rate durates the second second his church, his home and his friends. One such friend, Albert Gene Griffin, minister of the Fairview Baptist Church gave a fit-ing tribut to his frienda the Kiwanis Meeting on Thursday at the Annual Prayer Luncheno. Albert Gene spoke: There aren't many herea anymore. The security of the press...systems now that preven teachers from deal-ing personally with the students...our old tired and impersonal. Kiwanis Club honors Preston Nunnelley (Cont. from B1)

The Spiritual Aims Award is given each year by the Kiwanis Club to a recipient who demonstrates that spe-cial spirit and to one who has made a cat spirit and to one who has made a difference in our community by the life they have led and by the many lives they have touched. Preston Nunnelley belongs in that class of spiritual leaders who has served his church faithfully and who; with his graceful manner, is a true example of a kind and humble Christian.

Preston Nunnelley resides in Mt. Vernon where he has lived for most of his life. He was married to the late Graditine Fairchild and has three children: Dr. Preston Nunnelley. If a Lexington, Jim Barton Nunnelley of Austin, Texasand Jerri Lynn Smith e Hu Vernon He has eight grand-children and six great grandchildren. He is returief from He Bluegrass Army Depot and has taight Sunday School a Frist-Baptist Church and been a Deacon there for over fifty years.

Cheyenne Carmack, who is a member of the Fellowship of Christian letes at RCHS, gave a wonderful talk on prayer at the Kiwanis F Luncheon at the Kastle Inn Thursday.

To The Graduates,

2001 Graduates,

At the time of this writing we are nearing press time for the special graduation issue of the Mt. Vernon Signal. I have delayed writing this letter because it is difficult to express in words what I want to say to this class.

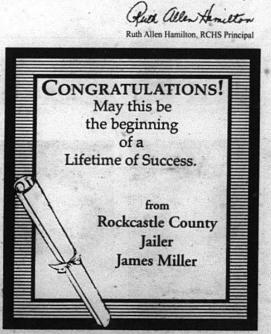

First, I congratulate you on your many accomplishments. Having carried the "Rocket Pride" far and wide, you are winners at the state and national level in academics and extracurricular activities. Trophies overrun our cases and banners line our walls. You have earned more scholarships than any other class at Rockcastle County High School. What goals you have reached, and how very proud we are of you! Not only are we proud of you as students but we are proud of you as

Not only are we proud of you as students but we are proud of you as promising community members. You have given many hours in community service to others. You have been respectful, hard working and caring at school. You have set a good example for the underclassmen. We expect that you will contribute greatly to all the communities that your class will call home in the future.

As you leave Rockcastle County High School, remember that you truly do have the knowledge, the strength and the resources to overcome any obstacles you may face. Accept life's challenges and do not settle for second best. Take care of yourselves spiritually, physically and emotionally in order to meet those challenges. Ask for help when you need it, and listen to the advice of those who love you and want what is best for you.

Knowing what your capabilities are, we expect great things to come for you. May those things bring you much happiness.

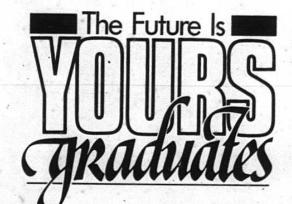

Love and best wishes always,

$48,224.19 was divided among the RCHS staff as a bonus by the Site Based Decision Making Council from the $53,248.68 awarded for CATS testing.

In a special meeting called April 25 the SBDM Council decided to divide the money alloted for the '98-'99 and '99-'00 school years to certified and classified staff.

Each staff member received a portion based on the time they worked during the years awarded. New staff in '99 will received half Dr. Benjamin Miller of Florida the amount as those who were members both years.

$5,019.49, the rest of the money, will be deposited in an account and the yearly interest drawn will be used for a student scholarship pro-

By the time this is read, RCHS may know the name of its new principal. The SBDM Council was to meet Wednesdayafternoon to discuss the two candidates, and hopefully reach a consensus.

Results of Wednesday's meeting were not availabe by press time.

RCMS Principal John Hale and were interviewed Monday, May 21.

Council members met after school Thursday, however a decision was not made at that time.

School Superintendent Larry Hammond has given the ouncil the full responsibility of interviewing and choosing a principal.

Tve placed my full confidence in the [SBDM] Council," said Mr. Hammond. "I think they will make a wise decision."

prepare to say goodbye June 2 Six teachers

BY SHANA NOE

The ending school year always brings about sad goodbyes, and this year will be no different. Not only will the school feel the loss of the 2001 graduating class, a large hole will be present in the faculty ros-

Six teachers, three from the math department alone, will not be gracing the halls with their presence next year. Mr. Lawrence Bullock, Miss Robyn Johnson, Miss Dawn Quigley, Miss Rhonda Rose, Mr. John Wells and Mr. Jason Wilson will all be saying their last goodbyes June 2.

"If this place was closer to my family and fiance, I'd want to teach here for the rest of my career," math teacher Miss Quigley said.

Marriage is also one reason be-hind the departure of Miss Johnson and Miss Rose..

"I'm getting married and moving to Oklahoma," stated Miss Rose, who teaches Chemistry.

Miss Johnson, Family and Consumer Sciences teacher, will be relocating to Florence, Kentucky and is planning on getting married next summer

Next year will be quite different for the students coming back, with all the unfamiliar faces milling around. The new teachers will definitely have a hard time at first, for they are going to be trying to fill some pretty big shoes

"I'm dissapointed that I won't get to have Mr. Wilson as a teacher next year," said freshman Josh Ott.

Although they're leaving Rockcastle High School, each teacher plans to be involoved in something else on down the line. There will be no slacking on their part.

Art teacher Mr. Bullock and math teacher Mr. Wells are both thinking of taking up some kind of business, with Mr. Wells owning a saw mill, and Mr. Bullock having

Class, interrupted

As you sit in English class, pondering on the thought if "big, blue bull" is a type of alliteration, onomatopoeia, or some other type of complex term from the English world, the intercom blares. Shattered, your mind begins to shuffle back and forth, from words from the intercom to "big, bad, blue bull". Trying to gather your thoughts back to harmony, the words from above shout out for a student that's not even class

"OH, Thanks."

What is with the office and this loud, obnoxious machine? Being one of the most annoying pieces of technology ever produced, the intercom seems as if it is a toy for the office. Every time you become extremely involved in a subject, the talking ceiling suddenly interrupts you.

BEEP!

"The person who left their lights on, will they please go out to the parking lot to turn them off?"

Up in front of the class a teacher is giving a subject for class discussion. Students become intensely involved. " Abraham Lincoln was twice the man that John Adams was!"

"Yeah, he freed the slaves!" Beep!

"This is only a test. Does it work?"

Disruptions along with the beep are always going to be present in a regular day classroom. Knowing this we must move on past the point that the intercom is always interrupting class, and focus on the ways to improve the situation. A few things could be done to improve the brutal technological, or are we not using the advancements to our advantage? From the eye catching screen saver on the teacher's computers, to them rambling on the intercom, disruptions are by no means rare. This is very disturbing to all students to receive so many interruptions, and almost crazy to think they can actually concentrate. The best way to learn is to listen, the best way to listen is to focus, and the best way to focus is to go uninterrupted.

Four years ago, the worst possible crime at Rockcastle County High School was smoking in the bathroom.

Catching someone smoking was the disciplinary priority of administrators and staff alike. It was a problem, and it needed to be stopped.

Stepping into any RCHS restroom will tell you that the problem was stopped.

No ashes appear on toilet seats, and no smoke clouds the air

Now, however, our concern rests upon our physical well-being and safety while at school.

The outbreak of school shootings across the nation over the past years have forced school systems to pay attention

It has forced them to put into effect security features that were never even a thought in previous vears.

Despite the addition of several security devices -- locked doors, handbooks, security cameras, and drug dogs, just to name a few -- the question of safetly still lingers.

One addition that some students find reassuring, though unpractical, are the three alert boxes placed around the school.

Students are supposed to place any tips of violence or suspicious behavior inside the boxes, remaining comepletely confidential.

While the idea is good, the location of the boxes (the lunchroom, library, and in front of the main office), cause students to doubt their effectiveness

"Thesire out in the open," commented senior Tara Abney.

In the futur ecurity will only continue to tighten; however, this problem, the one of fear, caused by the acts of several teens, is not one that will likely vanish like smoke.

NEWS FLASH: Project Graduation was designed to ... BY CASSIE SMITH

For the past thirteen years, parents have been giving their all to provide for us a Project Graduation. It is to be a night of fun, games, friends, and free stuff. However, the real purpose of Project Graduation is to keep us alive graduation night.

Sadly, only 34% of one hundred seniors surveyed knew the true purpose of Project Graduation

According to June Stevens, a former RCHS economics teacher who retired in 1997, safety was in mind when the Kentucky State police began to encourage the establishment of a project graduation or project prom. These programs were designed to keep teens from involving themselves in dangerous recreations, such as drinking and driving, on nights when "partying" is expected most.

Mrs. Stevens felt there was a definite need for a project graduation in Rockcastle County. She got the ball rolling by gathering interested students and taking them to conferences in Louisville, as well as meetings with other organizations who already had the program up and running in their own community.

"I feel like it was a wholesome way to celebrate graduation without students endangering themselves or others," said Mrs. Stevens.

In the beginning, this program was completely dependent on the participation of parents and the community. There was less money, but Mrs. Stevens said the program was just as successful as it is now. "We had 75-100% participation from the start.' Even though this program is successful at getting seniors to attend, many do not know why they are being encouraged to be there.

A recent survey showed only 34% of seniors know the purpose behind Project Graduation.

Senior Jay Anderson was one of only four seniors that said they were attending Project Graduation to stay safe.

I don't want to end up over a cliff graduation night."

In contrast to that small number, a huge 47% admitted they were going in hopes to receive some free goodies

The little knowledge known of Project Graduation and the predominate reason for attending make me question the communication between the projects organizers and the senior class. Everyone seems to know that there will be free stuff, but not many people know the important facts about project graduation

"I think students are so busy it's hard to pull them together and let them know that this is taking place for them to have a drug-free party." said the school secretary, Mrs. Sondra Mullins, who participated in the organization of at least three Project Graduations.

So, what is the most important fact about Project Graduation? According to former assistant chairperson of the Project Graduation committee, Ms. Darlena Bowls, it is "the importance of safety first on a drug free evening of fun and and games for very deserving seniors."

Though I have repeated the purpose of Project Graduation several times throughout this article, please allow me to reiterate:

PROJECT GRADUATION WAS DESIGNED TO SAVE YOUR LIFE! It is not to give you a VCR. or feed you for a night.

Seniors, I think it is extremely important and actually respectful to acknowledge the reason for Project Graduation. Be aware of how hard your parents and your community have worked for your benefit.

Wait-- you can do more than that. Go to Project Graduation. Stay sober graduation night.

Hopefully enough seniors are reading to spread the word. Every senior needs to know why we have a Project Graduation.

The best prize you might receive at Project Graduation is towels for your dorm room, but the greatest gift will be to your community and family: the knowledge that you are safe and sound on graduation night.

A great year full of memories

BY CLAUDIA VEJRAZKA

At the end of each school year, especially the seniors of that year have the tendency to reflect on what the last year(s) have been like and what they expect from the future. I, too, have to go from this school at the end of the semester, and so over the last couple of weeks I did my own reflections of what had happened during the last year.

When I first came here, I was kind of scared that I would have problems fitting in. After all, the US is not Germany; and despite all the similarities, there are still some differences, and it took me a while, to get used to the new surroundings.

Being able to find new friends was another thing I was worried about, but this was the part of the whole experience that made the least problems. Today, I'm at a point I would have never thought I could be. I'm torn between the desire of going home to see my family and my friends there, and the wish of staying here with all my new friends. I don't have very much choice on that part, because of the way the educational system is set up in Germany, but there is something I would really like to do before I leave!

All the time since I have been here, everybody always tried to make me feel at home. I was welcomed with a great deal of hopsitality wherever I went, whether it was in my new family. at church, or here at the school. I want to thank all the people I have met over the course of the year, and became friends with. If I wanted to account for everything anybody has done for me during the last year. it would surely take up the whole paper. If any of you have ever thought that I have been unthankful on some occasions, I really apologize for it. I ensure, I have never forgotten anything anybody has done for me.

I will always treasure this school year here in the States as an enjoyable and unforgettable part of my life. For any of you who get the chance of being an exchange student somewhere, I can only say-do it, you don't get a chance like that again.

Senior trip not out of the question for Class of '02

Editor's Note: A section of this article was inadvertently deleted from the last issue of The Rocket. Therefore, we are reprinting the article in its entirety.

BY SHANA NOE

At some schools, senior trips are included in your typical twelfth grade package: senior pictures, college visits, skip day, ect. But here, the tradition of a final gathering of the graduating class has long been disbanded.

'We didn't even have a trip the year I was a senior," English teacher Susan Norton, who graduated in 1989, said. "I think we went to the mall."

The last official senior trip, according to Principal Ruth Allen, was in 1971, when there were still three separate high schools. After consolidation a year later in '72, faculty at the new high school decided not to continue the tradition because the classes were so much larger.

This year's attempts of organizing a senior trip failed after'a lack of student participation. Whether it was students wanting the trip, but not willing to work for it, or the failure of some teachers to communicate to their students, either way it's not going to happen. Juniors-it's your turn now.

"I think we need to organize a student committee to start the process," said junior Cassie Smith. "It's our trip, we should have to work for it.'

According to Sergeant Major Keith Taylor, chairperson of the Student Support Committee, plans for a senior trip should begin sophomore year, but this year's juniors still have enough time.

"I'm all for a senior trip," Sgt. Major Taylor stated,"but I think it's entirely up to the students."

The juniors can start their planning by oragnizing a committee to be responsible for all the decisions that need to be made. Eligibility requirements for the trip must be established first thing, because the students have to be presented with the criteria at the first of their senior year. Whether eligibility be

Speed bumps, more security cameras among new safety measures

BY AMY CLARK

At the end of this year many decisions will be made about adding and changing security in the school to protect the students and the staff.

Contrary to rumor, there will not be radar detectors. However, police officers will come in randomly so the students will not know when the police officers will be at school.

The students can get a speeding ticket in the parking lot, although some don't think they can," said assistant principal Mr. Barry Noble

"There have been a couple of rear end collusions in the back of the school," said assistant principal Mr. Barry Noble.

According to Mr. Noble, there have been times when the roads were wet and students fishtailed, running into the covert.

Students have been slowing down since speed bumps were put in May 3.

"It takes everyone a little longer to get into and out of the parking lot," said senior Amanda Chism.

Speed bumps aren't the only changes. There has been a request by the school for cameras in the back parking lot to better enforce the school rules.

"There will still be a school grounds monitor, mostly for the safety of the vehicles," said Mr. Noble.

There will still be blue books next year, however, they'll be smaller and the new principal will decide whether students will have to buy them.

"If they are smaller, we can put them in our notebooks," said sophomore Marty Reagan. Name tags will also be used next year for identification, but the school is not sure how.

"We may have people who coop and do community'service wear the name tags, but not everyone," said Noble.

Teachers may be wearing the name tags in the halls next year so the incoming freshmen will know who they are.

"I think it would definitely let everyone know who the teachers are and who the visitors are," said English teacher Mrs. Jennifer Mattingly.

The school has also applied for a Cop in School grant for next year. More information will be available at the end of the year.

Cummins selected for leadership seminar BY TASHA VANZANT

Leadership is a word learned in elementary school, and students hear it throughout their educational career. Not only is it used in the classroom, but in the clubs/organizations that many students become involved in.

There are also summer programs that are dedicated to guiding youths in perfecting their leadership skills. The Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership Program (HOBY) for sophomores is one such establishment.

This year, Amanda Cummins will representing RCHS.

"They [HOBY] asked us to select one sophomore who has demonstrated leadership qualities, and are interested in improving those qualities," explained guidance counselor Jance Miller.

HOBY revolves around the seminars, which are leadership hased

"Business leaders and community members come in and lead many of these seminars," Mrs. Miller said.

HOBY will be taking place at Trannsylvania University June 2-3 this year.

"There is also the opportunity for one boy and one girl to go on to the National World Leadership Congress, which is located in Washington D.C," said Mrs. Miller

Summer school may not be so dreadful

BY JOSH ROWLAND

It's about time for that dreadful letter to come in the mail, letting some students know that they will need to attend summer school, which begins June 4.

Now students may not have to use the word "dreadful." This year, summer school will only be 15 days. Last year, it was 25.

According to Mr. David Riddle, those who must attend for a half a credit will only have to stay until noon; those wanting to receive full credit will stay until four P.M.

Students will be able to make up different classes.

"The basics, you know math, English, science, and history," said Mr. Riddle

Some of the teachers who taught in the past will not be able to teach summer school because of other obligations

For instance, Mrs. Nancy Bussell, who taught English last year, will be on a trip to France.

At press time, the official list of teachers had not been determined.

Portfolio scores rise, test prep hoped to have similar effect on scores 2000-2001 Scores

BY STEVEN WARD

RCHS students tested for two weeks April 23-May 4, taking the CATS and CTBS. Though those scores won't be known until fall. one thing is known.

"We definitely did better on our portfolios," said English teacher Ms. Allene Cornelius.

Better indeed. The number of distinguished scores doubled from 3 last year to 6.

Proficient scores increased by thirteen from 27 last year to 40 this year. Apprentice scores decreased by 29 from 105 to 76. Novice scores also decreased by eight from 49 last year, to 41 this year.

Portfolios are one of many facets to testing, and as a whole. RCHS did many things to prepare for testing.

CATS 'test prep' sessions were held the entire week before testing for juniors and sophomores.

"It was a realistic view of what they would see on the test," said Mrs. Connie Riddle, who prepped the sophomores in vocational stud-are the released items given to teachers that have been administered in past years. These are most commonly open response items that come with scoring guides and answers for each grading level.

These items are available on the internet to anyone through the Kentucky Department of Education's website.

The sessions themselves differed depending on grade level. Mrs. Debbie Coleman, who teaches social studies, gave different prep sessions to both juniors and sophomores.

"For juniors, we went over what they would have on the social studies portion of the test," said Mrs. Coleman.

Sophomores received information on general test-taking tips.

Students at the junior grade level tested in social studies, science, math, arts and humanities.

Sophomores are held responsible for three sections of CATS testing in reading, vocational studies, and practical living.

Freshmen and sophomores take the CTBS test. This test is divided into sections: reading, science, mathematical computation, and memory.

According to sophomore Anita Collins, the test prep was in vain.

"A waste of our time" she said. However, Mrs. Coleman feels otherwise.

"If effort was the deciding factor of this test, our school was definitely one of the best."

BY TASHA VANZANT

Summer is usually considered to be the most looked forward to season of the year. Students are eager for the summer months so that they can vacation with their family and spend time with their friends.

Some students from RCHS have made other plans for at least a portion of their summer. While you were deciding which beach to go to, and what hotel to stay in, they were filling out forms and going through a selection service to get into summer workshops. Seven students from RCHS have become involved in these academic programs.

Two of these programs are the Governor's Scholars Program (GSP) and the Professional Educational Preparation Program (PEPP).

The Governor's Scholars Program focuses on both academics and personal growth.

"You do a lot of hands-on activities at GSP so you focus on both education, and communication skills," former GSP participant Chelsen Stratton said.

a state championship rifle team, but an outstanding Raider Team.

Recently, the Rockcastle Raiders traveled to Rutherford County. Tennesse where they competed against 44 teams from 29 different schools, and took home third place in the rope bridge divison.

"It was the first trophy I had ever taken home from a Raider event," said sophomore Zach Shepherd.

Under the command of Command Sergeant Major Robbinson and Cadet 1st Lt. Jay Noe, the Raiders proved they came to fight.

During the torturous three day event, the Raiders were pushed to their physical limits, negotiating obstacles and running over hills.

They also competed in several other grueling events, such as the army physical fitness test, cross country rescue, land navigation course, night compass course, and

Not only does our school have a five mile squad run.

"The best part was working as a team on the cross country rescue. If we hadn't worked as team we would have never made it, " said junior Sherri Glover.

"It just goes to show we can't do . this alone.

Rockcastle entered both a male and a female squad to compete in the Raider Rendezvous. Although it's a rookie season for the female squad they still finished in front of many of the other teams, including several male squads ..

Overall, the male team took 17th place and the females took home 37th out of the 44 teams attending. Even though they only took home one trophy, it was worth the wait.

"The best feeling in the world was to see everyone's face when they announced that Rockcastle had won the trophy," said sophomore Joe Husband.

Foreign exchange students on their way home

BY JARROD BURDETTE

- Rockcastle County has been home to three foreign exchange students for over seven months now, but it's now time for them to return home.

Freshman Nick Derveshiv returns to Bulgaria next Tuesday, and senior Martina Maurer leaves for Germany Thursday. Junior Claudia Verjaska returns home to Germany June 25.

During the time they spent with RCHS they had the opportunity to learn more about our country, and home life.

"I thought it would be really different from Germany but it really wasn't," said Maurer.

"The only thing different was that the sports are involved with the school, and in Germany they are with clubs."

Derveshiv will surely be taking some memories back home with him

" I'm always going to remember the time I went "liming" with my friends."

Perhaps the biggest transition was the home life. "It went really good but it was a little weird in the beginning being around people I didn't know," Verjaska said. According to Maurer, the experience was "good most of the time, but like all families we had fights, too,"

When Maurer and Vejraska return to Germany, more school is waiting. They must complete one more year of school in Germany before attending college.

Dervishev, who was a senior in Bulgaria, already has enough credits at home to graduate. Therefore, he plans to come back this summer to attend UK for a career in software design.

"I'm going to miss them all, because in the past year, we've grown so close," said freshman Jamie Ornella, who was part of the host family for Maurer and Dervishev.

$25,000 grant continues freshmen program

BY MELISSA PAQUETTE

A $25, 000 ESS Continuation Grant will allow RCHS to continue its successful Crossing the Road program. Originally designed to reduce the number of students failing freshmen classes as they enter high school, it has also resulted in improved attendance and fewer disciplinary referrals.

Most students may know the of the program through the summer program, Bridges.

Plans for the summer camp are already underway.

"The grant money will help with all the food, pay of the teachers, transportation, and many gifts and prizes that will be given out," said Mrs. Trina Bustle, who will be assuming the role of president with the retirement of Principal 30 Hamilton.

Scavenger hunts will be just one of the activities used to help over 200 incoming freshmen become familiar with their new surroundings

"It will be a "Survivor" theme, since next year's freshmen will be able to spend a week and learn how to 'survive' high school," said Mrs. Bustle

Mrs. Hamilton originally wrote the grant for the 2000-01 year.

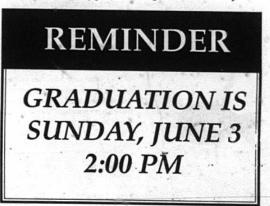

"I want to thank everyone for being so nice, and helping me." Martina Maurer

Waxing, scrubbing, brushing worthy of prom

BY STEPHEN HOPKINS

Believe it or not, guys spend just as much time and effort preparing for the prom as the ladies do...or at least I did. I washed, scrubbed, brushed, filled, and waxed for over three hours! After all the hard work, I stood back and thought to myself, "Man that car looks good." Journey with me into the often unseen world of male prom preparation. Watch your step, it may get a little messy.

My most difficult aspect of prom preparation was something most guys find trivial and pointless, color coordination. This prob-

caused by a of fashionability, but by procrastination. It's usually helpful to see your date's dress BEFORE you pick out a tuxedo...especially if you're wearing anything other than solid black.

I, on the other hand, ordered my tuxedo only a week before the prom, basing my selection only on a vague description by my date. Luckily, I was able to order the tux I wanted. Even luckier, it matched rather well.

My next difficulty in preparing for the prom was finding suitable transportation. This endeavor may have been more male oriented and less date oriented, but it was essential nonetheless.

After weeks of thought ("who has a nice car"...'have I made them mad lately"...and so on and so forth). I was able to track down a black BMW 325i that belonged to one of my father's former co-workers. It would be difficult for anyone to argue that it was indeed a sweet ride.

Finding the car was only half the battle. Making the car prom worthy was the next. A car being clean in one thing, being prom worthy is completely different. The car had to be spotless, inside and out. It had to gimmer in the sun. It had to inspire awe. It had to turn heads.

At noon on Saturday, the cleaning began. First things first, the car had to be washed. A proper car wash can take one person up to two hours. While I washed the car, my father helped with interior detailing (vacuuming, carpet stain removal, armor-all, etc).

Then came...the rain. Just as we finished, the enemy of any clean car descended upon Mt. Vernon, Kentucky. It goes without saying that I was a bit perturbed. Nonetheless, I guess it's better to have a clean, wet car than a dirty, dry one.

After spending three hours washing and detailing a car, 15 minutes in the shower doesn't seem so bad. Another 15 minutes for various brushing (teeth, hair, teeth 2001 prom themes that would have bombed 1. Get Your Freak On 2. Millenium 3. 2001 Prom 4. Remember the '80s 5. Saturday Night Fever 6. Even the rain wasn't enough to dampen prom experience

BY COURTNEY ALEXANDER

Eve dreamed of attending prom for as long as I can remember. The time had finally arrived for one of the sacred moments of being an upperclassman, Prom 2001. •

Being on the prom committee, I saw firsthand all the work and money that goes into the production of the RCHS prom each spring. The experience is one I will always cherish, and it was definately one of those times when you see just what those behind the scenes must do.

My dress wasn't ready until the Thursday before prom. It was supposed to be finished two weeks earlier, but due to numerous mixups, like hemming the wrong blue dress, forgeting to hem it period, and not hemming enough, cut it too close for me.

Saturday morning I woke up at 8:30 and left my house for RCHS at 8:50 AM. I spent the next two and a half hours blowing up and tying hundreds of balloons along with my fellow prom committee members. We placed the finishing touches which ensured that this would be the most memorable prom ever.

I then came home and cleaned house until 12:45 PM. A girl's work is never done. Itook a shower and shaved my legs before leaving for my hair appointment at 2:00 PM. I arrived at A Cut Abyve, which was a mad house filled with girls all searching for that perfect prom hairstyle.

Then came the rain! A downpour of much needed rain descended on Mt. Vernon in the middle of the afternoon as people were finishing their beautification routines and leaving for various restaurants.

I rushed home, shielded by an umbrella, hoping my hairdo would not fall. Considering how much hairspray and bobby pins it contained, there wasn't much danger. I quickly applied my make-up and sparkles and put on my sky blue, beaded dress. No fear, my mom and dad not only took roll af er roll of pictures, but also videoed. I left my house at 4:45 PM and went to fill up our van with gas. I met ten other of my buds at the high school at 5:00 PM and we left for Ruby Tuesday's in Somerset. We were joined by 20 other students from the Rock and feasted on a variety of foods.

We only had to stop twice on our way back to the high school, once for nail glue and the second time for the poty. We arrived at the high school at 8:10 PM and our prom experience began. After taking about 100 more pictures, it was time for my junior prom.

My night was filled with beautiful girls, gorgeous guys, sparkles, neverending flashes from cameras sweat, wild dancing, and memories I will hold dear all my life.

After 29 years, Ms. Allen leaving RCHS

Since beginning her career in 1972, when the high schools were consolidated, she has seen many changes--big and small.

BY TASHA VANZANT

After four years of high school, most students depart RCHS ready to begin the next phase of their life. Imagine being at high school for almost 30 years! Mrs. Ruth Allen Hamilton has been a part of the staff for 29 years, and she's retiring June 30th.

The first 25 years were spent teaching English and foreign language. For the past four years, she has been our administrator. After all these years of working with students Ms. Hamilton has decided to retire, having dealt with the peculiarities of teens for so many years.

Since Mrs. Hamilton has been loyal to our school for so many years, I hoped that she might share some of her memories with us before leaving. In order to do this, she agreed to answer some questions for me.

Q: Where did you graduate college from and with what degree? A: " I graduated with a Bachelor of Arts Degree from Eastern Kentucky University in the fall of 1971.

Q: When did you begin teaching? A: " I did substitute teaching in the Rockcastle County School during the spring semester of 1972, and then (I) received my first teaching job in the fall of 1972. That job became a twenty-nine year career at RCHS."

Q: What changes have you witnessed while working at RCHS? A: "The first major change for Rockcastle County students was the consolidation of the community high school into one county high school.

Students came from Brodhead, Mt.Vernon, Livingston and even one room schools. Rockcastle County High School at that time was in the building where the middle school is today. Students felt a genuine loyalty to their own community schools and it took a while to become "the Rock." Classes were larger and students probably did not get as much individual attention as they once did. They no longer knew all the students and teachers as they did before.

The consolidated high school participate in sports, clubs and organizations. There is now a county football program, girls' basketball in addition to the boys basketball, softball and baseball."

O: Who/what did you find helpful when you first begin teaching?

A: "When I began teaching, I was assigned a classroom and given teachers' manuals to accompany the books the students were using. Mr. Cleston Saylor, our principal, kept ticipate in the Kentucky Teachers Intern Program, which provides mentoring from a resource teacher, usually a colleague of the beginning teacher, the principal where the teacher is employed, and a teacher educator from a university. Beginning teachers must meet the standards of the internship in order to be certified. Therefore, beginning teachers are held to higher standards but they have the support they need to reach these standards." Q: What was school like when you first began teaching?

A: "Students took six classes per day during the twenty-three years that we were where the middle school is now. The class offerings were pretty much the same as now. The classes that students now take on the block schedule that last eighteen weeks lasted all year, whereas nine weeks classes, such as health and P.E. lasted one semester.

Students that attended vocational school now had the convenience of walking across the street to classes rather than riding a shuttle bus from Brodhead, Mt. Vernon or Livingston. We had homeroom the first thing every morning. For a long time, I recall keeping attendance by hand-in a green book with Kentucky's state bird, the cardinal, on the front. We teachers referred to the attendance books as "bird books." They were a real hassle to keep because all of them had to balance out, so not one teacher could make a mistake. Of course, some of us would make mistakes, and we would have to search and work until everything came out right "

Q: How do you feel about our new high school?

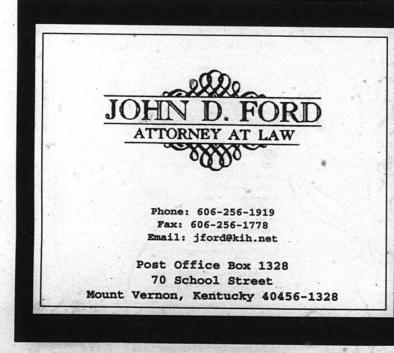

A: "We moved to our present site 6 years ago. We have a beautiful facility and campus. The rocket that has been our mascot for 29 years has been proudly placed near our entrance gate. Our school has continued to progress over the years, and we have been a school in reward three times. Our students compete at the state and national level in many competitions. Most of our students have successful careers and meaningful lives."

Q: What kinds of changes have you seen in learning?

A: "The Reform Act of 1990 brought the statewide mandatory testing and more accountability. However, with the accountability came more funding for schools particularly in overcoming barriers to learning. Students now had access to extend school services and Youth Service programs. More work began in meeting the needs of individual learners."

Q: What do you have to say about your career, overall?

A: "My career has been most meaningful and rewarding. I have enjoyed each year that I have been a part of Rockcastle County High School. If I have been a positive influence and helped guide students in the right direction, the years have been very worthwhile. I am very proud to have contributed to the "Rock" in any way that I might have helped students."

most pleasant thing to wake up to. Lighting & Windows

Hanging up Christmas lights may seem like a tacky and overused decoration, but when your roommate comes in late at night, enough light is put off so that you can go to sleep, and your roommate doesn't have to stumble around in the dark looking for their bed.

If regular Christmas lights are too plain for you, stores like Speigels and JCPenney carry inexpensive lights with ornamental wire butterflies around each bulb. Extra Space Storage space is always limited, and an easy way to add room is to stack see-through boxes with drawers that slide out. They take up less floor space, and can hold anything from sweaters, pants, pens, homework, and cosmetics. They can also be hidden under your bed.

A loft will raise your bed high off the floor, like a top bunk, but will leave an empty space underneath for a desk or couch. You can buy them at several stores or on the internet, or you can build your own.

Extra closet space can be made by buying hangers with multiple hooks. One set can hold 4 jeans, and if you clip them up as soon as they get out of the dryer, you won't need to iron them.

Organization & Messages

Place less used items in higher places or under your bed so they stay out of the way, and the things that you use more often can be within arms reach.

You and your roommate may not see each other during the day, so if you need to leave a message for them, you can tack it up on a cork board or write it on a dry-erase board It will be easy to find, and notes won't get lost.

With a different schedule each day, you might want to keep a large wall or desk calendar for the first month or so. Rush, orientation, and a ton of other activities are going to be taking place, and you won't want to miss out on any of them. Extras

Most rooms already have a phone with a cord, but take a cordless so you can walk from one room to another or to the bathroom to finish getting ready when you're in a hurry.

Rather than laying your coats and scarves on a sofa or the floor. hang them up on a coat rack. It leaves everything you need for cold weather by the door instead of sprawled all over your room, and saves you the time of looking for everything.

You'll finally be living away from home, but before you leave your house make sure that your bedroom door is locked; you might not want your little brother or sister peeking through all of your stuff.

There are also possibilitys for grants, loans, scholarships, or some other types of financial aids. Last year 80% of the students at SCC recieved some type of financial aid.

Mr. Whitaker, guidance sounselor at the high school said," Somerset offers the education best around for that kind of price."

With course schedules, course syllabi, course information, and study guides avaliable over the internet you can do most of your essays, research papers, etc. on line.

Classes may also be available here at the high school.

Mr. Whitaker also noted," Somerset offers top notch degrees in several different fields."

Senior track girls end season in a familiar way: with Regional victory and a trip to State

Sports

Senior Ashley Lawson put the shot at the Rockets' home meet on May 15, 2001. The girl's track team won the Region 4 meet on Saturday, beating their nearest competitor by over 80 points. The girls will be competing in over 13 events, out of 18, at the State Meet this Friday and Saturday. The boys 4 x 400 relay also qualified for the state meet.

BY LINDSEY PARSONS

The six senior members of the RCHS girls track team have led an otherwise young team to victory this year.

Since they were in the 7th grade, Tara Abney, Mindy Bullock, Cheyenne Carmack, Theresa Chislum, Rachelle Hammond, and Ashley Lawson have competed together at countless track meets.

This past Saturday, they participated in their last regional meet. Again, they were victorious, winning 13 of the 18 events.

"We started so young, and began on the bottom. Now we've worked our way all the way to the top. It's a great way to go out," said Carmack.

The team is ranked first in Class AA, placing less than first at only one meet over the course of the season.

The state track meet at UK will be the next and last stop for these seniors this Friday and Saturday.

"I don't think any of us ever expected to have a chance to be state champions, but here we are. It's been awesome," said Carmack.

The girls are proud of their accomplishments with the track team, and will miss memories they've made while on it.

"[I'm going to miss] the close relationships I have with the other runners. We're like a little family," Abney said.

Lawson will miss the lighter side of being on the team. "Goofing off at track practice," she said.

Some of the girls offered advice to underclassmen members of the team.

Chislum advises to "work hard and take life slow because track passes you by quickly. Before you know it, it's all over."

"Believe me, all of the hard practice will pay off in the end," Abney said.

These six girls are proof of that.

The Rocket baseball team defeated Clay County Friday to gain their third District title in four years.

The Rockets, ranked 2nd just behind Louisville Ballard, are now in the Regional tournament.

Regional results are unavailable at press time; however, the 28-4 regular season Rockets must win Region 13 to advance to the State Tournament. State sectionals will begin on Monday, June 4 at Knott County Central

Golf team to hold tryouts this summer

Golf team tryouts will be held at Cedar Rapids Country Club over the summer, for anyone interested in playing next fall.

There are no set dates for tryouts, but they can be expected any time from mid-June to late July.

Golf team coach and RCHS Assistant Principal, Barry Noble outlined a few basic requirements for becoming a golf team member.

"Basically anyone who is interested [can try out], as long as they attend Rockcastle County schools," said Noble.

"Also, they have to have a complete medical physical...They also need written permission from their parents," he said.

Many believe that the golf team simply ride the carts from hole to hole, and in response to this, Noble said, "During tryouts we will be walking the holes. We don't use the carts."

In addition, he added his goals for next season.

"Our goal is to be better this year than last year, and for that matter, every year before," he said.

shower, most prized possessions, and food; take away your parents, your dignity, and your past. These were the conditions mentioned in the autobiography, Far from the Bamboo Grove. It dipicts the events Yoko Kawashima Watkins had to indure as an eleven year old girl fleeing Korea during the second World War.

The Koreans and the Japanese resented one another before the war even began. The Japanese were inhabiting Korea and tension among the two were extremely high Yoko's father served for the Japanese government and was stationed in Korea. Could he have ever known that the life he and his family would build could never survive under such political instability?

Yoko describes herself at this time in her life as being "at the most bottom of bottom." But, imagine what horrific circumstances she lived through. Before she fled, she was forced to spend her days digging trenches at school, packing survival kits, at home, and prepar-

Take away your bed, hot ing food rations for the inevitable situation that was to occur.

The threat of a communist attack was what disturbed the family one sleepless summer night. Warned that solders were approaching the village, Yoko's mother gathered the "ruck sacks" and her two girls.

Tired and disoriented, Yoko struggled to comprehend what was happening. Where was her father? Where was her brother? She could not ponder on those things while her mother pushed her forward into the night. Her father and brother did not know they were being left behind.

Ko, being older and wiser than Yoko, was also physically stronger than her sister and mother. She carried the heavy canteens of water during the terrible hike trough the Korean landscape. She was the scavenger of the trio, hunting through garbage, bushes, and streams to find food.

Yoko and Ko's mother was strong spirited. She had the admirable ability to push forward through the worst times she and her daughters faced. She was economically a genius, in that I mean she made the most wise decisions during the long journey.

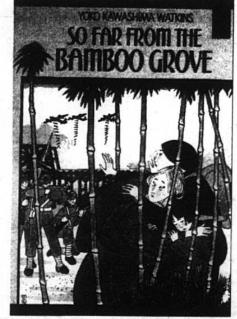

Yoko battled with her hunger and fatigue. Her tolerance for the situation and the constant disappointments she experienced was very low. Then again, who can expect a child as young as she was, to withstand from pining for the comforts of a home.

The terrible ordeal of traveling hundreds of miles, being inches away from buzzing bullets, and the constant craving for food of any kind is enough to break anyone.

Will these three survive? Will they reunite with their lost relatives? Will they make it to their home country, Japan?

This compelling story is heartbreaking. It is hard to realize that it is a true story and that these things happened to many families during the second World War.

One could not keep from taking something personal from this book. Whether it be strength, humbleness, or gratefulness you seek, this book and its contents will shed light on those qualities that seem to be so hard to acquire.

Yoko's battles during this time made her stronger. They made her appreciate the life she had before the war and the life she would rebuild after the war. "I competed with life and death when young. And I won," Yoko said.

I recommend this book to anyone that has ever taken anything for granted. Find this book. Read it. I'm sure you will find it inspiring.

Walt Disney's Newsies Is a musical based on the true story of the 1889 newsboy strike in New York.

Lifehouse is a band everyone can like

BY JOE CLARK

No Name Face, the debut album from Lifehouse, is topping the charts with its mellow alternative sounds.

The style of their music is much like that of Creed and Pearl Jam. Touring with Pearl Jam may have a little to do with Lifehouse slightly mimicking their sound,

The songs on the album are great even though they all have the same laid back feeling to them. They're still easy to listen to, as well as relate to.

Of the twelve songs on the album some songs tend to stick out more than others.

With lyrics like "I started chasing after you; I'm falling even more in love with you", the song "Hanging By A Moment" is one anyone can connect with.

"Breathing" is similar, but the only difference is the speaker cant be with the girl, so he just wants to be close to her-"Cause I want nothing more than to sit outside your door and listen to you breathing ..."

"Trying" is one of the faster, more up beat songs on the album. Listeners may be surprised to hear a harp in the back ground, which is a unique change to what we usually here from alternative bands.

Lifehouse is a band everyone can like. For those up beat listeners to the mellowed out individuals who prefer soft music, I recommend trying this album to everyone.

Newsies "strike" my interest

BY CATHIE MIDKIFF

Childhood memories are full of favorites. Senior Kristie Whitter recalls her favorite cartoon, the Muppet Babies, and Heath Payne, also a senior, grew up reading his favorite book, The Little Engine That Could.

My childhood favorite movie was the Disney musical Newsies starring Christian Bale, Robert Duvall and Anne Margret.

The Newsies are a ragged bunch of orphans and runaways making a living selling newspapers on the street for a penny a pape. When newspaper tycoons, Joseph Pulitzer and William Randolph Hearst raise the price of papers for the "distribution apparatus" the Newsies dare to strike against rutheless foes.

Jack Kelley, played by Christian Bale, who also starred in last summer's American Pycho, leads the Newises in their struggle against mobs, beatings, arrests, and even spares a little time to fall in love.

Newsies is based on the true story of the 1899 newsboy strike in Manhattan, New York. The movie was an inspiration to me as a child, and continues to be my favorite. Newsies adds new meaning to old sayings: "Good triumphs over evil," and "Where there's a will there's a way."

Newsies has gained hundreds of dedicated fans since it's release in 1992, and still has all of its appeal of yesteryear. If it's a movie with inspirational lessons, a well scripted plot and a talented cast that you're looking to rent, then Newsies is your find. Does it "strike" your interest? Make it your favorite, too

PEPP also focuses on academics, but in a more specific form than at GSP

The PEPP program exposes aspiring doctors and dentists to the medical centers, but it also helps students get accustomed to college life," RCHS guidance counselor Mr. Dale Whitaker said of the PEPP program.

"It's that first year after highschool that's so different for students, and the PEPP program gives students an orientation to the type of life that they'll be leading in college. It's that orientation that students talk about when they come and talk to me about PEPP."

Participants in GSP also take part in courses and seminars during their five week program, minor, and participate in the Governor's Scholar seminars," explained Stratton.

"The seminars are like discussion groups where we talked about teen issues, problems, and the worries that many of the students have about college."

So, while you're going from one place to another this summer, having the time of your life, give a thought to your friends who are living in residency halls, getting acquainted with other students and faculty members.

When you see them after they've participated in these summer workshops, I'm sure they'll have some amusing stories and valuable lessons to share with you from their store of memories of GSP and PEPP

SBMD alters attendance policy CONTINUED FROM three parental excuses for absences FRONT

Mrs. Connie Riddle and Ms. Dana Singleton, members of the council, explained that the reason for their decision was because this is the last year staff members will be able to receive bonuses from the award money. Hereafter, it will automatically go back to the school.

The SBDM council has also agreed upon a new attendance policy. Next year, students may have two parental excuses of a tardy or absence before they must have a doctor's excuse. This is a change from the current policy of before a doctor's excuse is required. This years members of the council are Mrs. Allen-Hammilton as chair, Mrs. Connie Riddle, Ms. Dana Singleton, Mr. Adam Coleman, Mr. Paul Abney, and Mrs. Cindy Anderkin.

Elections for next year's council were held earlier this month. Every member will return, except for Mr. Coleman. Math teacher Mr. Travis Brenda will take his place on the council.

"I felt honored to be nominated." Mr. Brenda said. He hopes, "to be able to help make decisions for the best intentions of the students."

based on grades, absences, and/or discipline is totally up to the committee

Sgt. Major Taylor explained that there are only a few limits to where the seniors can go. The destination has to be within the United States, for obvious reasons, and some educational value must be attributed to places students plan on visiting. Washington, D.C. and Williamsburg, Virginia have been two suggestions thus far.

A written proposal must include criteria, destination, dates, chaperones and costs. The proposal must be approved by the Student Support Committee, the principal, the SBDM Council, and finally the school board.

Spring break seems to be the most feasible time frame to travel, but a date during the summer could be arranged, although it would be after graduation.

Funding could easily be one of the more debatable decisions of the entire planning process. Charter buses seem to be the more popular choice of transportation

According to Sgt. Major Taylor, a flat fee of around $500 would cover-everything from transportation to hotel arrangements. Seniors could pay the full fee on their own or try fundraisers. The downfall of that would be interference with attempts to raise money for other events, such as Project Graduation.

Those memories are the things that make this so special, but at the same time, so difficult.

Do you believe you are prepared for college?

I think I'm fairly well prepared. Of course the change is going to be hard to deal with, but that is part of the fun, adapting to new situations.

What has been your highest honor?

Being drum major for two years.

Are you going to join a sprority? No, I don't want to limit myself to one social circle. I want to get to know everybody.

Do you have any words of wisdom for underclassmen?

Enjoy it because it goes by really fast.

What is your most memorable moment of high school? I think it will be project graduation.

Any last words? You can never have too many shoes.

They're also what will keep smiles on our faces through the goodbyes, and then throughout our entire lives.

We've made this special. We've made this real. Our class is a very special group of people -- one that won't quickly be forgotten by those we're leaving, or by each other.

We have been students. We have been athletes. We have been friends, enemies, teammates, and rivals.

We have certainly been extraordinary; nothing as simple and every-day as a can of Coke.

Graduation day is finally upon us. Only time will tell where all of us end up, but one thing is certain -- it's been good until the very last drop. I love you!!!

Things we've learned in high school:

~ Never trust a goose that eats french fries. ~ Trophies won't last, and records are broken. The heart you put into something is what will last forever. ~ Make a memory as often as possible. ~ Drugs and alcohol are not required for a good time. ~ Ft. Thomas Highlands is for the birds. ~ No matter which elementary school you went to, you're a Rocket, so you're cool. ~ It is possible to leave your mark. Example: the middle school Hard as a Rock dance, courtesy of the Class of 2001. ~ When someone says 'Immediately,' they mean business ~ You never get too old to eat popsicles. Parking lots full of teenagers are dangerous. ~ Mondays are officially "Look Like Crap" days. ~ Getting funky with the band is not exactly fun stuff. ~ Dreaming about someone does not make them your destiny. ~ You can't always have as much ketchup as you'd like. ~ The four words of success: Center down, focus in. ~ If ever on a crowded street you-hear, "What a do-er," you've found Mr. Hansel. ~ A huge IQ does not compensate for lack of common sense. You need a little of both. ~ All sports are not equal in the eyes of spectators. ~ You won't always need a blue book, but identification at all times is a good idea. ~ Always be honest with your parents -- no matter what! ~ Outside of a public education, nothing is free. ~ Pool passes are not required, and there is no such thing as a pep rally ticket. - Some people have a worse bark than bite. ~ The people who think they're cool are usually dorks, and the dorks are really cool. Following the crowd will take you one of two places: Jail or nowhere. ~ When choices of dates get boring at home, look elsewhere. Duh!

Make that drab dorm room into a home away from home

BY TARA COX

Graduation is only a few days away, and several seniors must soon leave their cozy houses and move into a small, cramped dorm room with white walls and bolteddown furniture.

Your job is to transform this bland, unoriginal room into a haven for you and your friends, letting your personality shine through.

Before you start searching for things to fill your room with, you need to contact someone in the Student Housing Office and get the dimensions of your room and any permanent furnishings such as closets, dressers, desks, and chairs.

Also, request a list of any items that you are not allowed to have because you may have to pay a fine if certain things are found in your room.

When you contact your roommate, decide what items you already have, who's going to bring them, and what you still need. The little extras can be added throughout the school year.

Make a list of the more expensive items (small refrigerator, sofa, computer, TV, etc.) and divide it so that you both spend around the same amount, but do not split the cost on any item. It can lead to arguments as to who it belongs to after graduation or who will take it home during the summer. Start at the basics first

Develop a theme or color scheme and stick with it; some themes are butterflies, bumblebees, cartoons, clouds and stars, Hawaiian, animal prints, and sports. You'll be really stressed at college, so make sure that your room is full of stuff that brings up your spirits. Choose your bedspread first because that's where you'll spend most of your lounging time, and during the day it can be converted into a couch by lining pillows along the wall.

Walls & Colors

Colors do affect your mood, so take them into consideration. If you're trying to avoid the "Freshman 15," try to stay away from orange; it's an appetite stimulant.

If painting is not allowed, you might be able to find a loophole. At some colleges there is no fine, or a small one, if you paint the walls. More color may be worth paying a few more dollars to your college, but if not, contact paper is easy to put up, comes down easily, and doesn't leave an awful smell.

Posters are always an option, but if you cover the walls, your room may look too cluttered and chaotic. Framed pictures can coordinate with your sheets and accessories, or photos of family and friends can ward off any feelings of being homesick. Floor

Unless your room has carpet, an area rug should be near the top on your list of things to bring. Nothing will wake you up faster than setting your bare feet on a cold concrete floor, but it's not exactly the CONTINUED TO
