Nicholasville man killed on Thursday

A Nicholasville man became the eighth person to lose their life on Rockcastle County highways in 2006 in an early morning wreck last week.

According to police, Bennis Stinnett, 80, was traveling south on U.S. 25, two miles from the Laurel County line when he lost control of his 2005, F-250 pickup truck and struck a rock

The wreck occurred in what is known as the Wyatt Straight. Family members told authorities Stinnett was headed to Laurel County to pick up a load of stoker coal when the 7 a.m. accident happened.

Stinnett was taken to the Rockcastle Hospital and airlifted to a Lexington hospital, where family members said he died on the operating table.

Brodhead City Clerk Becky Bussell said that one of those who applied was not qualified and the other turned the city

Wednesday, Spencer Scott Bussell, 36, of Brodhead had his probation revoked and was sentenced to two years in prison for failing to pay child support.

The court says Bussell owes, $34,267 in back child support and had agreed to pay $100 per month, beginning last May, to pay off his debt.

However Bussell never made a payment since his sen-

Darrell W. Lamb, 32, of Big Hill Avenue, Richmond received two years of unsupervised probation for also failing to pay child support.

The terms of Lamb's probation is that he submit to random drug testing and pay his back child support of $10,708.

David "Piggy" Madden, 51, of Mt. Vernon was sentenced to three years, probated for three years, after Circuit Judge David Tapp, rejected the recommendation of UNITE prosecutor David Dalton for one year imprisonment.

Madden was indicted earlier this year for second degree trafficking in a controlled substance, but his public defender argued that Madden was a good candidate for probation because of his clean record while out on bond, after his arrest.

Farley Newcomb, 28, of Berea was ordered to serve his original three year sentence, after violating conditions of his probation.

Farley admitted to his parole officer that he had used Oxycontin and had drug paraphernalia in his possession

Representatives of Design Lab have grand ideas for Livingston School

By: Richard Anderkin

If a plan for the re-use and preservation of the former Livingston School property by two professors of architecture become a reality, it would be the biggest news for that Rockcastle County town since L&N Railroad announced they would pull the majority of their large operation from the small community in the late 1940's.

Greg Luhan, a professor at the Center for Historic Architecture and Preservation at the University of Kentucky and Bob Ogle, a former UK professor, now teaching at Colorado Mountain College, made a pitch Monday for a new technology center on the old Livingston School property.

Last year the two men organized Design Lab Inc., a private, not for profit corporation that specializes in historical preservation techniques and architectural design techniques for craftsmen.

The two professors gave a presentation pertaining to their concept of a multi-million dollar teaching, learning and production center at the old school.

Professor Luhan told a small group, which had gathered at the Rockcastle County Courthouse, that the center would provide students, educators and professionals unique digital and fabrication opportunities.

"We foresee developing a new program within the boundaries of the old school and surrounding grounds that would actually be a new type of school," Luham said during the hour long presentation.

"In comparison to its past occupation, this new school will also be a place of education and this new complex will serve as a regional education center for wood and metal production, ultimately serving as a consortium of area colleges of design, community colleges and technical schools where digital media is increasingly becoming important," Luhan told the Luhan also said that students at U.K. who had worked on the project over the summer, had mapped a driving time of five hours from Livingston outwards and the area included 15 colleges of design.

"That does not include the technical schools, community colleges and high schools within that driving distance which could be served by this center," he noted.

Ogle added that there was a possibility that some private and public funds, even from out-of-state, could be obtained for this project.

The campus would also include dormitories for students, teachers and craftsmen, who would be coming and going from the facility for different periods of time for different kinds of training.

The dormitories would be Ready for the Christmas Holidays Ky. Music Hall of Fame in fifth year of operation

The Kentucky Music Hall of Fame & Museum is in its fifth year operation and, this year especially, has been a busy one including a new induction class, weekly performances by the Dean Osborne Band and Hall of Fame member, Bobby Osborne and a new book published in partnership with Rockcastle County Middle School students, according to Robert Lawson, executor director of the facility.

In February of this year, KMHFM held its third induction ceremony at the Bluegrass Ballroom in Lexington, Jazz, gospel, bluegrass, folk, country and opera were all celebrated on a very memorable night which honored Kentucky's contribution to music across the world.

Those named to the Hall of Fame included: John Conlee, Sam Bush, Wynona and Naomi Judd, John Jacob Niles, Todd Duncan, Mary Travers, Dottie Rambo and Lionel Hampton. Governor Ernie Fletcher announced the 2006 inductees in the state capitol rotunda.

This was the third class of inductees for the Kentucky Music Hall of Fame, a ceremony held every two years. In February of 2007, the 2008 inductees will be selected and announced with induction taking place in 2008.

Robert Lawson, far right, Executive Director of the Kentucky Music Hall of Fame and Museum at Renfro Valley, along with Chris Mullins and Crystal Smoker, display some of the gift baskets available at the Hall of Fame this Christmas.

From May through October of this year, the KMHFM was honored to host weekly shows on Monday and Tuesday evenings. The comedy/bluegrass duo, The Moron Brothers, performed every Monday and the Dean Osborne Band, along with 2002 inductee, Bobby Osborne, treated audiences with topnotch bluegrass every Tuesday.

Educational programs at the facility include guided tours, along with a teacher's study guide, in school music residencies and many partnerships with Rockcastle County Schools. Chris Mullins, Resident Musician, makes visits to classrooms across Kentucky, explaining the instruments and the various types of music represented at the Museum. This year, Mullins was the mandolin instructor at The Cowan Creek Mountain Music School, a week long, yearly old-time music workshop in Whitesburg. Recently, he contributed to the Kentucky Educational Television Music ToolKit as their American Music Consultant. The toolkit, which will be available in 2007, provides K-12 teachers with high-quality teaching resources that bring the world of music into the classroom.

Dear Journal:

Evidently there are people who actually read my Journal. I've noticed that the cat that fell victim to our car a couple of weeks ago has been moved. Thanks to whomever was the Good Samaritan. I trust the cat was given a decent burial, and not simply thrown in a dumpster, as we could have done that.

Stanley and I had an encounter with cats of another sort last week. It was in downtown Lexington. These cats weren't dead, just headed for the critical list, I

We, quite unexpectedly, were offered a good deal on some Wildcat tickets from my niece, Karen, and her husband, Mark. They are UK alumni, and live in Lexington. Mark's aunt died unexpectedly, and the funeral was in the afternoon on game day. There wasn't any way he could get back to Lexington by game time, so we were given first chance at the tickets.

I even bought Stanley and myself two new long-sleeved Wildcat T-shirts to wear, and a Wildcat flag to put on the car. We arrived in style with our Wildcat flag proudly flying, and sporting our new shirts. We got a "good" twenty-dollar parking spot for fifteen dollars, directly across the street from Rupp Arena. As it turned out, the parking lot attendant was a Dwight Yoakam fan, and across the back of Stanley's "Caddy" window there is gold lettering that says "Guitars, Cadillacs, Etc." which is similar to an old Yoakam album title (Personally, I'm glad the phrase didn't include "Hillbilly Music" as the song says. I don't like to promote the stereotypical hillbilly image, as the media does a very good job of that, anyway).

The tickets were great. They were in the lower arena. I had been to Rupp Arena for various events such as musical concerts and a NBA exhibition game (Jazz and Celtics), and other meetings, but never to a Wild-should go to Rupp Arena to see a game at least once in their lifetime, if at all possible. We've now had our chance, but hopefully it won't be our last. Who knows? If we lived a little closer, we might look into season tickets, if we could get them.

I think that all Wildcat fans

Rupp Arena is quite the impressive sight, especially when filled almost to capacity, as it was on Tuesday night. There was only a single seat or two here or there that wasn't occupied. At first appearance, it looked like an ocean of vibrant blue had exploded upon the scene, leaving a "Big Blue" mass. The blue mass extended ever upward as far as the eye

Rockcastle Memories

By David J. Griffin

I love this time of the year. It always reminds me of the wonderful holiday memories from my childhood. The anticipation of seasonal food, Christmas songs on the radio, family gathering at home, and (of course) the presents made me feel all warm inside. It truly is the time of the year to be thankful for all of our blessings. Early in December, Mommie Katie would suggest that Pop go to the back of our small hilltop farm and cut the traditional cedar Christmas tree. He considered this to be man's work, so he would tell me to get the ax out of the tool shed and follow him to find the perfect specimen.

There was one area on the side of a steep hill that was covered with cedar trees, and he would try to visualize how each one would look in our living room. After careful inspection, he took the ax and with a few good "whacks" it fell to the ground. I can see him now walking back to the house with it on his shoulder.

My mother and Mommie Katie decorated the tree with lots of "old-time" ornaments, bubble lights, and finally boxes and boxes of silver (foil) icecycles." The tree always looked the same. The smell of freshly cut cedar filled our home. Pop made sure that the tree stand was kept full of water to keep the tree fresh and green. Both of the ladies wrapped the presents early so that they could be placed under the tree as part of the decoration for the season.

I miss this family tradition so much. Now that so many members of the family have passed away, and others live in distant parts of the country, Christmas is not the same. It is impossible to get everyone together at the same time. My son, Andy, and his family live in Philadelphia and do not get home as often as we would prefer. The distance creates a difficult situation for us to be together at Christmas, so this year we decided to have our Christmas with his family when he visited us on Thanks-

Andy, Terri (my daughter-inlaw), and our three handsome, smart, and lively grandchildren (Baylor-Emory-McLean) arrived at our house in order to celebrate both holidays. Since the children are "city kids," we planned to spend the day in the woods hiking, standing around a fire, and roasting hot dogs. I was amazed how much fun they had in the woods. I told them stories about the land that we own on Furnace Mountain. My heart was warmed as I noticed the expressions on their faces as we crossed the back of the property which runs along a limestone cliff. They held our hands tight as we looked over the cliff into the valley below. The sparkle in their eyes told me that fun was being had by all.

After completing several trails, my son reminded me that hot dogs sure sounded good. We walked back to the fire ring where my wife and Terri had been maintaining the fire. The children roasted their own dogs, and my wife served the rest of the meal on our picnic table. We completed a fine lunch by making "smores" for dessert. Just

Points East

By Ike Adams

Last Thursday, November 30, just before midnight I was sitting on the front porch swing winding down with a cup of chamomile tea and bowl of Captain Black. My closest neighbor, Rena Vae Callihan, lives a few hundred yards down Charlie Brown Road and she says that, when the wind is right, she can smell my pipe when she's outside. I've tried hundreds of pipe tobacco blends, but I've yet to find and equal to taste and aroma as that of Captain Black.

Anyway, I was sitting there rubbing on the dog with one hand, holding my tea cup with the other, pipe clinched between my teeth, gently swaying back and forth, barefoot and dressed in a t-shirt and tennis shorts. The outside temperature was seventy degrees.

What a way to end November, I was thinking to myself. The weather had pretty much been like this for well over a week.

Then just before dawn on Friday all heck broke loose. The chamomile had served to put me into a deep and peaceful sleep but I was awakened when to a roar and the sound of my cathedral wind chimes clanging as though they were being beaten by several strong and angry men with heavy clubs.

What turned out to be wind driven rain drops were pelting the side of the house but they sounded more like bullets that might penetrate the inside walls at any second. This phenomenon lasted for more than thirty

According to the latest research, over 500,000 violent crimes occur nationally in schools annually, and of those, over 100,000 are serious violent crimes, rape, sexual assault, robbery, and aggravated assault.

Students are far more likely to be the victims of a theft at school then when away from school according to a 2006 Bureau of Justice Statistics report. About three percent of all students nationally are victims of theft annually while attending school.

The presence of weapons on school property continues at an alarming rate. Nearly ten percent of all male students mationwide reported being threatened or injured with a weapon during the preceding twelve months. Six percent of students in grades 9-12 report that they carried a weapon on school property within the previous thirty days.

And our teachers are no safer than children. Annually, teachers are victimized in over 180,000 incidents including 65,000 violent crimes. And though secondary teachers are more likely to be threatened

When Blood Clots Pass to the Lung

Presented by Kimberly Cornelius, M.D.

When a blood clot travels to the lungs it is called a pulmonary embolus. This can be serious since it blocks the return of blood to the heart and decreases the oxygen getting from the lungs to the body.

The lungs normally screen out tiny clots from the circulation and dissolve them, which is very helpful in preventing strokes. However, when the clots are larger, they can cause shortness of breath and the heart must work harder to pump the blood through the remaining open blood vessels. A large clot can cause a sudden drop in blood pressure causing a person to pass out. If large clots or multiple clots travel to the lungs from the legs or the large veins in the pelvis, it can be very dangerous.

Besides shortness of breath, a person is likely to develop a rapid heart rate, chest pain and pleurisy. Smaller clots, however, may cause only vague symptoms and it may be difficult to make the diagnosis.

There are a few tests to help determine if there has been an embolus. One is a blood test that measures breakdown products of clots. If it is high further tests must be done. Lung scans are occasionally done, but are often inaccurate in persons with lung disease such as emphysema. These days, CT scans are commonly used in making the diagnosis and determining the extent of the damage. A CT scan is also a quicker way to evaluate the illness and can pick up other abnormalities in the lungs which may be causing the problem.

If there is a clot, the person will need to use blood thinners to prevent any further complications. Blood thinners are usually continued for at least six months and often longer if there is a risk of more clots forming.

PBK named among top performers in nation

In the July, 2006 edition of American Bankers Association magazine, PBK Bank has been named the 37th highest topperforming community bank in the United States. In documents released by the ABA, the rating reflects PBK Bank's results in its peer group Non-S community banks and thrift organizations with assets less than $100 million.

According to its Top Performers-2006 article, the ranking of America's banks was based on consolidated statistics for the highest regulatory reporting level available for each institution. The rankings placed focus on institutions which offer "traditional banking services" and included analysis of industry standard ratios such as Return on Average Equity (ROAE). In addition the article noted performance trends for banks across the nation and established benchmark averages for financial performance.

At the top of the ranking was University Bank in Ann Arbor. Michigan. PBK Bank was one of only two banks rated in Kentucky.

PBK CEO Bruce Edgington noted "We are pleased to have been recognized in the very upper echelon of community banks in America for our financial strength and performance, but we will never lose sight of the fact that we're more about the people we service than the awards we

"In earning this rating, a lot of financial reports and data were examined," he continued. "But while they have looked at numbers on a page, we know that behind every number is a customer whose financial needs are being met by PBK Bank in Hustonville, Stanford, Junction City, Danville and Mount Vernon. That's the real significance we celebrate."

Historical Society requests old pictures... Dear Rockcastle County Historical Society Members,

As with time, comes change. Time has happened to the Rockcastle County Historical Society. As the new President I have a tough act to follow, becoming President of the Society following Ms. Juanita Witt. Ms. Witt was President for several years and due to her love of history, skills and labor of time the Historical Society is what we have today. It is my wish and desire to continue the high standards of preservation of records that she helped start long ago and continues today. The Historical Society recently presented Ms. Witt with a plaque for her years of dedicated service to the Rockcastle County Historical Society. I ask for your patience as I take on this new role and learn my new task. I also ask of you, your continued support in our Society in sharing of your family stories, pictures, and the county's history. Please walk with me on a journey and continue to preserve our county's rich heritage.

As a new project for us I am asking our members, and other interested parties to share copies of your old photographs of the county. This includes towns, important buildings of our past and most important the people. I am interested in building up this area of the Historical Society. If you are interested in this project, we are asking for the sender of the photo to:

RCMS's Student YMCA's annual food drive...

Dear Editor,

This letter is to the whole Rockcastle County community. I would like to announce that the Rockcastle County Middle School Student YMCA is starting their annual food drive. Al collections will be donated to the First Baptist Church Food and Clothing Mission.

Our goal is "2006 in 2006." Last year, our goal was "2005 in 2005" and we passed this goal by 10 cans. Surely this year, we can do it again. We are also having a competition among homerooms to see who can bring in the most items and the winner will get a special party, hosted by the Student YMCA, as a thank you for their generosity and hard work. We are really pushing for non-perishable food items but will be glad to take any new items, such as toothpaste, toothbrushes, shampoo, soap, etc. Along with the food items, we would like to collect bottles of water, Gatorade and powdered mixes such as powdered milk. But we ask that on every item donated, the expiration date is checked cember 4th and ends on Friday, December 15th. I strongly encourage all of you to get involved. If you have a child or know a child who attends the middle school, please send the items by him or her before December 15th. You can also bring the items to the middle school in person. Mrs. Nancy Hale and Mr. Tracy Gabbard, our YMCA advisors, have figured that if every student can bring at least three cans each, we can reach our goal. However, we know that not all students will be able to donate so we are asking for your help in the community.

Mrs. Jean Allen, from the Food and Clothing Mission, spoke at our club meeting last week and shared the fact that donated food items can be VERY scarce at this time of the year. We want to have a part in providing any Rockcastle County family with need the kind of help they should have during this wintry season. We cannot do this without the help of our community.

This is an awesome project that benefits our community greatly! I hope you all get involved to spread some love around this Christmas season. If you have any questions, please contact Mrs. Nancy Hale, Mr. Tracy Gabbard or Mrs. Kathy Bobo at them middle school (256-5118).

This is a challenge to all middle school students and teachers! Mr. Rob Phillips' home room is going to win!

Sincerely, Kara Canterbury Student YMCA President

Food instead of tickets....

Dear Editor,

I would like to share some information from Mr. Jason Coguer, our middle school principal. To encourage our students to participate in the annual food drive, Mr. Coguer will admit all students to the ball game on December 11 if they bring two cans of food as their admission. Instead of paying the $2 ticket price, students can get in free by donating two cans of food.

This is a great idea and will not only help us reach our goal but will also help boost our cheering section that night! All donated items to the game will be divided among each homeroom.

Don't forget! On Monday, December 11th, all students who bring two canned food items will be admitted free to the middle school basketball

Thank you, Alivia Bullock Student YMCA Community Service Drive

Duncan honored...

Dear Editor.

Things have recently been great for Kentucky as two of our own, both personal friends of mine, have assumed national leadership positions.

Mitch McConnell, our senior United State Senator, was elected Senate Minority Leader, the top Republican position in that august body. Senator McConnell has long been an asset to the Commonwealth of Kentucky as a voice for our concerns in Washington.

In 1984, the Republican Party was on life support in Kentucky. That was the year that Senator McConnell first ran for the Senate and I first ran for State Representative. Despite both of us being told that we did not have a chance to win, we were both victorious and kickstarted the Republican Party in Kentucky.

Also an integral part of the Republican resurgence in Kentucky has been those behind the scenes working in the Republican Party structure. The key man from Kentucky has been Mike Duncan, who has served as our Republican National Committeeman since 1992. Mike has been a stalwart for our party, working for candidates from the precinct level all the way to the White House. This past week, Mike had his skills and experience rewarded as he was nominated for Chairman of the Republican National Committee by President Bush.

I have the utmost confidence that both of these men will excel in their roles and, with the influence they have by nature of their positions, Kentucky is very fortunate to have them as our advocates on the national scene. I hope you will join with me in wishing each of them the very Seeking donations...

Dear Editor,

The Rock Of Ages Mission is seeking monetary donations to go toward purchasing a building. We are asking everyone who will to donate what they can. We have received several calls this past week from people needing items.I have listed the things they need. You can see how great the need is for us to get a place. We do have a place in mind, but, we still have to come up with a down payment,that's where we need you, the public to help. If we dont get this payment soon I'm afraid the place will be gone.It took us a long time to even find a place that is available. Everything you give goes to others, please remember that.My heart really goes out to the people. I have a great burden to help them.I wish you could know how I feel when someone calls me and explains their need through tears because their kids dont have a bed or food.It breaks my heart, but, I cant do it myself .I can buy food for a couple of families at a time with my own money,but,who will help me feed the others, will you? This is why I need support to buy this building. We can get furniture of all kinds, but, where can we put it without a place?Rockcastle Countians are good caring people,I've seen this from your giving to other organizations and groups in the past.Now,we need your help.Please call or send your support.I hope everyone has a safe and Blessed Christmas.

could see, until it blended into only shadows and then, the oblivion. The constant movement of the fans adorned in their Wildcat blue could be easily compared to the constant turning and churning of a violent ocean wave about to climax itself upon an unsuspecting shore. I'm sure that this sight alone is quite domineering to the players and coaching staff of the opposing teams who dare to enter the sanctity of "the house that Rupp built."

All of this to behold, and the game hadn't even started yet. Soon the starting lineups began after the singing of our national anthem. The lineup for the little College of Charleston (South Carolina) Cougars was announced without a lot of fanfare. It produced only a smattering amount of applause just to appear to be polite. It's that Southern hospitality thing. Then...then, let me tell you, there was the introduction for the Wildcats. If I didn't know better, I'd have thought the Twelve Apostles were in the house, and about to be introduced.

The arena went totally dark, and about a dozen or more spotlights that looked like stars ablaze in a darkened galaxy began to shine their beams frantically in every direction in search of rare, god-like mystic warriors. On the massive speaker system, an anthem, "Also Sprach Zarathustra", otherwise known as the "2001: A Space Odyssey" theme. It reminded me of a Suosa march and Mozart's "Requiem" all rolled into one. Just as it reached its crescendo, overhead, high atop the arena, fireworks exploded producing ear-tingling bursts. Thousands of sparks from this rained down through the darkness looking like Niagara Falls, then the spotlight converged as the first Wildcat player was introduced, and followed his steps to center court, as it did with each of his fellow players who followed.

The game had finally started. We missed the "play by play" that you usually hear on the radio or the TV. At a live game, what you see is what you get, except for what is announced over the speaker system.

The Cats started out slowly, as they usually do. It would be a shame to be beaten on our home court by the little College of Charleston. The game picked up pace, and the Cats began to pull away by halftime.

About a year ago, Stanley and I saw a movie about the Wildcats and UTEP back in the early to mid-60s called "Glory Road." It focused on a predominately black basketball team from West Texas, now better know as the University of Texas, El Paso. They were to play UK for the National Championship. UK was predominately or all-white at the time, but in either case, Coach Adolph Rupp refused to start or play any black player, whichever the case may have been, not only in the championship, but in any other game. UK lost shamefully, and were "schooled" by UTEP, all because of pride and prejudice (Sounds like it would make a good book).

Adolph, honey, I hate to tell you, but things "have come a long way, baby." This thought, and the recollection of the movie came back to me early in the first half: the entire starting line up for not only UK, but the College of Charleston was all black, and UK, in Tubby Smith, has a black coach. Could it be that in most cases, the black athlete is superior?

We had certainly gotten our money's worth. The Cats had won, we had had quite a new experience, and saw Ashley Judd come out to center court to cheer the Cats during a

We lingered after the game to let the crowd thin out, and to see the UK cheerleaders and dance team. All evening, they had put on a good show, along with the pep band during the half-time and timeouts. The UK mascot was on hand, too. They all really provided a lot of entertainment you don't see on the televised games. These individuals honored the state in the playing and singing of "My Old Kentucky Home" a home-game tradition. It was a wonderful, time-honored gesture to make a memorable evening even more perfect.

with attack, primary school teachers are more likely to report actual physical attacks.

(Tick. Middle school student beaten to death at bus stop. Tick. Female student stabbed to death in middle school complex. Tick. Seventeen year old killed in botched robbery attempt of younger brother at school).

Of course, it should come as no surprise that the presence of illicit drugs in schools correlates to increased victimization. Nearly one-third of children report that drugs are available to them at school and about five percent of the students report using marijuana while at school.

Because of the growing concern about safety, schools have had to adapt to the reality that the national student population reflects the generally declining moral and behavioral standards of society at large. Nearly ninety percent of all schools now practice controlled access to school buildings and nearly forty percent control access to school grounds through the use of fences and checkpoints.

(Tick. Cafeteria manager and husband found shot to death outside middle school. Tick. Male student shot to death during high school graduation ceremony. Tick. Fourteen year old female student shot and killed while walking to school).

We are fortunate that local school districts take the security of students and staff seriously. Pulaski County and the Somerset Independent Schools deserve a tremendous amount of credit for their initiative in securing school resource officers in cooperation with local law enforcement agencies. Likewise, Rockcastle County is blessed with a gifted and concerned deputy who spends numerous hours at the high school and has established a wonderful rapport with students. Lincoln County is also exploring methods to increase school security. But more needs to be done statewide.

The presence of a sworn school resource police officer in each middle school and high school within Kentucky should be a priority of the next General Assembly and local government. These officers, who are assigned full-time to our schools, offer an immediate response to any possible serious security incident. In addition, the presence of these officers is an example of "community policing" at its best. They come to know, and in many instances, befriend the students thereby instilling an awareness of authority in someone the students genuinely admire.

Help make this happen.

Speak to your legislator and soon. The clock is ticking.

seeing the faces of my grandchildren in our woods was a grand Christmas gift for me.

About dusk, we drove back to the house to open our Christmas presents and have a real dinner, which included baked country ham, corn pudding (my wife's best dish), lima beans, baked sweet potatoes, rolls, and banana pudding. Having my son and his family with me for the holidays will be a memory that I will not soon forget.

Speaking of being thankful, I was able to experience a new memory to add to my list. Several of my friends and I gather each morning at Pete and Mary's for breakfast and my favorite coffee in town. We sit at a long table and share stories of the week's events. One morning we were surprised by "June Bug" Todd when he brought in a large pan of freshly cooked turnips and fried cornbread.

Now I admit that this does not sound like a suitable breakfast dish, but to my surprise the pan was quickly consumed. It might have been the best turnips that I have ever had. He cooked them with a cheese garnish that simply made the dish delicious and unforgettable.

We suggested to Pete and Mary that they add this meal to their menu for breakfast. I would not count on the menu being changed soon. We all thanked "June Bug" for his generosity and culinary skills. Is this a great place to live or not?

minutes and then suddenly it was over. I dozed back off until just after 7:00 a.m. when I jerked on my sweats and house shoes and headed, shirtless, out the front door to fetch the news-

Big mistake. The wind was still gusting and the chill factor must have been near zero. The old cliché' "frozen in my tracks" has never been more appropriately applied.

I literally fell backwards into the fover and kicked the door closed. I donned an overcoat and stubbornly ran to and from the paper slip, still "shocked and awed" as Dubya would say.

In less than seven hours the temperature had dropped from a balmy seventy degrees to twenty-eight. I don't believe that such a drastic change in weather has happened in such a short time in my lifetime.

What a difference a day makes is another appropriate cliché'. Suffice to say that Friday night I took my tea and Captain Black in the basement because Loretta won't allow me to smoke it in the living quarters and going to the swing was out of the question.

In the meantime the National Association of Wooly Worm Winter Weather Watchers (NAWWWWW) whose forecast covers a period roughly beginning December 1 and ending in March 31 are laughing at the skeptics.

You may recall that NAWWWW's winter forecast, published here recently, boiled down to cold and wet through December and early January then mild until late February with the biggest snow of the season scheduled for March.

We'll have to wait and see about the rest of the season, but no skeptic can deny that they hit the first week of December right on the nose.

Tails From The Bluegrass

Chapter 7

Boy it's great to be out of the doghouse and those PAWcuffs! That was not a smart move. It seemed like an excellent idea, but next time I will definitely think through an idea before jumping in with all fours. Though it's never fun being in the doghouse and giving up dessert, it did give me the opportunity to spend time exercising. I did plenty of sit-ups, crunches and jumping jacks! I was proud of my muscles before the tour, but you should see them now! (Sniff, sniff!)

The helicopter ride was a thrill. Once we landed in Bell County and bid farewell to Mr. Pete, the four of us decided to explore the Cumberland Gap. The Gap is a major break in the Appalachian Mountains that was formed by nature. Though the history of Cumberland Gap dates back to the 17th century, it became known in 1775 when Daniel Boone was commissioned to blaze a road through the gap. Boone's Trace became Wilderness Road and is now known as U.S. 25E and U.S. 58. We walked along the shoulder while Mom and Dad held tightly to our leashes. Mom reminded us we could never be near the highway without her or Dad, and we always had to look both ways when we crossed the street. As we walked along the edge of Highway 25E, I tried to imagine myself in a coonskin cap, fighting a bear, just like Daniel Boone. My imagination was interrupted when a large charter bus approached. It was the longest bus I had ever seen. I always thought The Woody Bus was big, but this was huge. The bus stopped and the driver opened the door. We saw a lady, wearing a blue bus-driver uniform, with a big smile on her face. "Well if you aren't the two cutest wiener dogs I have ever seen!" When she said that, I fell in love!

The passengers invited the four of us to join them on the trip. They didn't have to ask twice. We piled in the bus and immediately started singing one of my favorite travel songs, "The Wheels on the Bus go Round and Round." It was too fun. By the time we finished the verse, "The puppy on the bus goes bow wow wow," we had driven from Middlesboro to Corbin on Highway 25E. Merging on Interstate 75 North made me realize that this was the first time on our tour that we had been on the interstate. Then I saw the sign that said "No farm equipment, no pedestrians, no animals on foot!" (No wonder we had not been on the interstate.) It had been nice to be on the back roads, but the interstate allowed Miss Rose to drive faster with all of the lanes of the highway and the higher speed limit. Miss Rose said she remembered the days before the interstate system. In fact, I-75 was finished 1970. It is the second longest north-south interstate in the nation, about 192 miles, and runs from Covington to Williamstown. I-75 and I-65 are the state's busiest interstates. I-64 stretches across the state from east to west. Miss Rose said that you can always tell which direction an interstate

All the information kept us occupied. Time passed quickly. We were surprised when we arrived in Berea, located in Madison County. Known as the "Folk Arts and Craft Capital in Kentucky," it also is home to Berea College and welcomes plenty of visitors each year, like the group on the bus. Visitors love to come to Berea and tour the galleries and shops to see the jewelry, view the artwork or hear the dulcimer. With so much to do, I'll sign off for now. I don't really know anything about jewelry or arts and crafts, though Chloe can make a beautiful necklace out of candy, cereal and dog vittles. Hey, maybe

Kentucky Greetings, Woody readers! Berea was spectacular. Chloe and I loved looking in all the shops and galleries. We saw candles, jewelry and lots of art. We searched for wiener dog portraits, but didn't have any luck. They must have been sold out. Anyway, while visiting Berea, we spotted a taxi. Mom suggested that we take a cab from Berea to Lancaster to visit our friends at the Garrard County Public Library. Since we packed minimal things due to our travel situation, we had not been able to take our favorite books. We had been reading newspapers from across the state that kept us informed and entertained. We missed our favorite bedtime stories. The library was perfect. We had been in so many libraries, but it was always exciting to see books lined across the shelves. The workers of the Garrard County library are so friendly. They immediately knew us. (I guess being two wiener dogs was a dead giveaway!) Anyway, they showed us through the library and helped us find our favorite books. While Mom, Chloe and I browsed the shelves, Dad was telling the library director about our tour. He told her how the Woody Bus was broken and how we had to find a new mode of travel each week. The director had a great idea - the bookmobile! Honestly, we had never been in a bookmobile. The director explained that the Bookmobile Program had been in Kentucky for 52 years. In 1954, 100 bookmobiles were presented to Kentucky counties. The bookmobile is a vehicle, stocked with library books, that travels to the rural areas of Kentucky. It allows patrons to check out books without having to go into the main library. Today, Kentucky leads the nation in the number of bookmobiles. That was just one more fact convincing me that I lived in the best state of all.

The director said it would be OK if she took us a bit farther on our Kentucky tour in the Bookmobile. We couldn't wait to ride and look at books at the same time. Since we had to stay buckled in our seatbelts for the ride, Mom picked our favorites before we drove off. As we drove west on Hwy 52, we read Curious George, Clifford the Big Red Dog, Scooby Doo and even our own books. We were so busy reading that we didn't even notice the bookmobile had stopped in Danville. We unbuckled our seatbelts, put our books back on the shelves in the order we found them, and gave the director a great big thankyou hug! We climbed out of the bookmobile and said hello to Danville.

We noticed we were standing in front of the Boyle County Chamber of Commerce, a great place to find information about Danville. After reading brochures, we learned that Danville was known as the "City of Firsts." It was the location of the first courthouse in Kentucky, the first capital of the Kentucky District in Virginia, the first U.S. post office west of the Alleghenies, the first college in the west, the first law school in the west, the list goes on and on. In addition, Dr. Ephraim McDowell became the first physician in the world to successfully remove a tumor. Dr. McDowell made history on Christmas morning in 1809 when he performed surgery. Can you believe he didn't even have anesthesia or antiseptic? (I made a note to self to not be a scaredy-cat at the vet.) The Chamber of Commerce also gave us suggestions about places we could see. We bid them farewell and walked to Second Street to visit Constitution Square.

This state historic site was the birthplace of Kentucky's statehood. Because of Danville's prime location, it became a center for political ac-

Sixth grade math students completed an activity based on the Mark Twain story "The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County." The students made their own "frogs" from paper clips and cotton balls and then held their own frog jumping contests. Each jump of their frog was measured in centimeters and recorded. The students then analyzed their data for measures of central tendency and created several different appropriated displays of their data.

Applications being accepted for WHIP

USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is accepting applications for the Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program (WHIP) signup. Landowners may apply for WHIP at any time however; applications received by January 31, 2007, will be evaluated and considered for the 2007 program year. Applications received after that date will be held until the next evaluation period.

WHIP provides landusers an opportunity to improve wildlife habitat. The program provides financial incentives for installing eligible practices on land they own or control. The landuser must devote at least 10 acres to eligible wildlife practices.

In Kentucky, the primary focus of WHIP is to improve early successional and forestland habitats for declining species and other wildlife. Restoring remnant prairies, planting native grasses, shrubs, and trees, implementing wildlife beneficial forest stand improvements, and creating shallow water areas are some of the eligible practices for the program. Excluding livestock from sensitive streams and woodlands is also important focus under Kentucky's 2007 WHIP. Since WHIP focuses on improvement to wildlife cover, food plots are not eligible under the program.

WHIP applications are evaluated and ranked to determine which applications provide the most beneficial habi-

USDA now accepting applications for EQIP

The USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is accepting applications for Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) at your local USDA Service Center or conservation district office.

Landusers may apply for EQIP at any time. Applications received by January 31, 2007, will be considered for this (federal fiscal year 2007) program year. Applications received after January 31, 2007 will be held until the next evaluation period.

EQIP applications are evaluated and ranked using criteria set forth by local work groups to determine which applications provide the best environmental benefits and address the resource concerns of their local

EQIP allows cost-share assistance to persons engaged in livestock or agricultural production on eligible land. Cost-share rates vary by practice and generally range from 30 to 75 percent. Cost-share rates for beginning farmers and limited resource producers are 75 percent and 90 percent respectively for all eligible practices.

All conservation practices are subject to NRCS technical standards adapted for local conditions

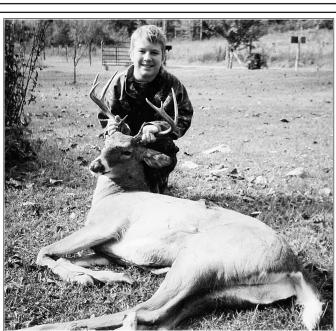

For applications selected for funding, an EQIP plan of operations will be developed with the landuser to identify appropriate conservation practices. EQIP practices in Kentucky include, but are not limited to, critical area planting; pipeline and watering facility; grassed waterway; diversion; and fencing.

Additional information may be found at http://www.ky.nrcs.usda.gov/programs. To apply for EQIP, or for more information, please contact your local NRCS or conservation district office at the USDA Service Center on Hwy 150 or call Randall Templeman, District Conservationist at 606-256-2525 Ext.3.

"What Saith The Scriptures"

Today we want to begin a series of articles on the 5 points of Calvinism, showing the error of each of the five points. We shall use the TULIP acronym in this series of studies.

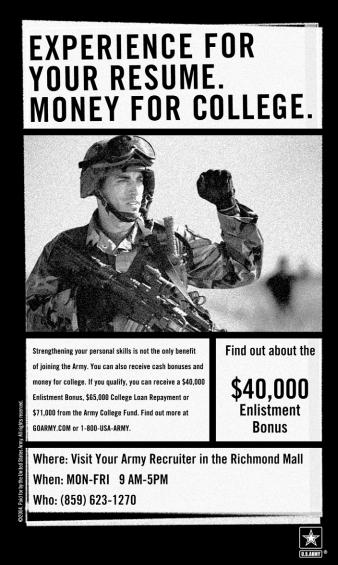

T stands for Total Hereditary Depravity. The idea is, because Adam sinned, this sin is passed unto all his descendants. Because we inherit Adam's sin, man is unable to believe the gospel to the saving of his soul.

Let's notice from Ezek.18:20, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die. The son shall not bear the iniquity of the father, neither shall the father bear the iniquity of the son: the righteousness of the righteous shall be upon him, and the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon him." Isn't that plain what the prophet said, "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the father"! Calvin (and other religious teachers) was simply wrong on this point. And of course this brings up the problem about Jesus who was born in the flesh, Matt.1:1, Jn.1:14. Why didn't Jesus inherit the sin of Adam? Our Roman Catholic friends just made up another doctrine called "Immaculate Conception" to bolster the first error. So what will our protestant friends do about this quagmire they are in, over why Jesus didn't inherit sin? No, beloved the doctrine of inherited sin is false.

Words of Hope

With all the gifts and all the presents this time of year, it's important for us to never forget the greatest gift ever given is Jesus Christ. The bible says in John 3:16 "For God so loved the world, that He his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." Mark Proctor, 26, of Lovell Lane, Mt. Vernon was also ordered to serve his original sentence of two years, after violating his probation.

Proctor was indicted in September 2005 for theft by unlawful taking over $300 and, after pleading guilty, had been granted a pre-trial diversion which would have kept him from having a felony on his record. Jerri Lynn Reynolds, 21, of Mt. Vernon who was indicted September 8th of this year for trafficking in a controlled substance, first offense, first degree was sentenced to three years, probated for three years and given a pre-trial diversion.

Reynolds will also have to successfully complete drug court.

Doug Vanwinkle, 35, of Berea will be sentenced January 26th after he pled guilty to Theft by Unlawful Taking over $300 and Burglary.

Vanwinkle, who was indicted in Rockcastle County in September, is currently facing other charges in Madison County, also Assistant Commonwealth Attorney Eddy Montgomery recommended that Vanwinkle serve four years for his Rockcastle crimes to run consecutive with any other sentences he may have. Amy Louise Willis, 35, of Mt.

Vernon pled guilty to Theft by Unlawful Taking while she worked at Save-a-lot in Mt.

Willis has made restitution to the store and Bartley has recommended a three year sentence, to be probated for three. Sentencing is December 22nd.

built on the site where the one story brick structure, which houses city hall, now stands. Luhan said the current building would be torn down and a two story dorm built in its place.

"At any given time you could have as many as 44 people housed on the campus,' he said.

"This would be a largely hands on school where both digital methods for fabrication and visulations would be utilized," Luhan said.

The professor also told the group that the gymnasium at the school could be used for large scale prefabricated architecture, furniture and sculptures and any other like projects which originate from a digital design

"The uses of such a facility for the architectural community, seem endless," said Rockcastle County Judge/Executive Buzz Carloftis.

Luhan told the group that Carloftis had, through a "gentleman's agreement," told them the county would very likely donate the Livingston School property to Design Lab, if money for such a project can be found.

Part of the plans for the campus would be a new community center at the corner of McClure and School Streets and a possible cafeteria and public park area.

project was definitely going to happen, whether at Livingston or someplace else and that "our hearts are with Livingston."

Luhan said that no other sites for such a school of design and manufacturing had been considered by his company to date.

The two professors told the group that because of the unique set up of Design Lab and because of the need for such a facility, much of the equipment, money and labor for the facility may be donated.

State Representative Danny Ford of Mt. Vernon and State Senator Ed Worley of Richmond, both of whom attended the meeting, said they thought the concept for the school as presented was a very worthwhile idea but that the bottom line was funding.

"That is what it always comes down, to, where you are going to get the money and how much," Ford said.

"This is a multi-million dollar project and, in my years in the commercial construction business, I have never seen anyone jump on the band wagon from another state, say Missouri, to fund a project in Kentucky," Worley

The two professors did not have any figures as to the cost of the project and said that currently they have no money for a feasibility study.

Ogle said the feasibility study could cost anywhere from $20,000 to $50,000.

Both Amy Stroud, a field representative from Kentucky Ernie Fletcher's office and Lynette Girdler from U.S. Congressman Harold Roger's office, said they were very interested in the project and would help in any way pos-

Girdler told Carloftis to get her the appropriate information, including the cost of the project, and that she would help the county in obtaining a possible federal grant for the feasibility story of not only the major artists in the state, but has been instrumental in getting awareness out about all of Kentucky's artists of all genres of music," Roy Martin, chairman of the board which oversees the facility said.

No time line for the massive undertaking was presented.

"This facility is one of the most beautiful in the state with a first class museum gift shop that has all types of musical gifts from crafts, CDs and DVDs, books, shirts, caps and is also an official outlet for Old Kentucky Chocolates. The Gift Shop has just about anything you can think of for the musician in the family and we can also special order items," Martin

"Locally, people have shown a great deal of support for the Hall of Fame and Museum, with about 75 to 80% of those attending the induction ceremonies being local," Lawson said, "and we appreciate the support."

"This facility operates solely on ticket sales, proceeds from the gift shop and small pledges from the City of Mt. Vernon and the Rockcastle Fiscal Court. We receive no state funds at all and are not affiliated with the Renfro Valley Entertainment Center in any way," Lawson added.

The Museum will be open

Art students have spirit

The Christmas spirit that is. Art students began spreading the joy of Christmas this season by painting holiday scenes on the Window's at KFC and Wendys restaurants.

This is an opportunity students have to get out into the community and demonstrate their talents and apply the artistic techniques they learn in the classroom for everyone to see.

The students especially enjoyed working on location where people can come and talk to them and ask them questions as they paint.

In the museum's permanent collection, the students saw art created in every period of Art History. "The students loved the tapestry room where students seen in the furniture, stain glass, and regal woven material the early influence the French had in Kentucky", said Mr. Scalf. The students also toured the University of Louisville's Art Department, ate downtown at Fourth and Live, and viewed an IMAX theater presentation.

Bulimia is an eating disorder that involves a cycle of binging and purging. The one with bulimia may eat enormous quantities of food and then make herself throw up afterward. One person told me that she once ate 25,000 calories in one day. Or she may throw up after eating only a small amount. (I use "she" because eating disorders are more common in females.) She may take laxatives instead of or in addition to throwing up. She sees herself as fat even if she is ten pounds under her healthy weight. A woman with bulimia may exercise for hours after eating one Oreo. She feels no control over the amount of food she eats and bases her selfworth on how thin she is.

Judith Asner, a bulimia treatment specialist, recently participated in an interview at HealthyPlace.com. These comments are taken from that interview which is available online.

Q: When you talk about a strategy for fighting bulimia, what do you mean?

Judith Asner: "A plan goes this way: First one has to have health professionals on a team. There is no way around that because bulimia nervosa is a disease. This team has to begin with an internist to cover one's physical condition and follow it. Next, a psychiatrist is needed to evaluate whether or not the person is suffering from a biological depression or other condition.'

Q: You have also said a plan is needed for eating. What do you mean?

JA: "A plan for breakfast, lunch, dinner and in-between snacks that is planned the day before. There can be substitutions but the person basically has to know that they can eat X amount of calories per day without gaining weight and that if they stick to this plan they will not have to binge and purge to maintain normal weight. Most people with bulimia do not believe that they can eat 3 normal meals and be a normal weight. This just isn't true. If you have an emotional need to binge or you are controlling your mood by binging or you have a compulsion to binge, you can get help. Medications help control compulsions, and emotions can be discussed with a therapist."

Q: Is it possible to stop the binging without seeking outside help?

JA: "I am not saying a person can NEVER do it alone. Certainly self-help books on eating disorders, family and peer support, faith and faithbased groups and Overeaters Anonymous are enormously
