Three Rockcastle County teenagers were injured in a single vehicle accident on U.S. 25 Friday night near the Laurel County line. Travis Smith, 19, said he lost control of the above 1995 Chevy Cavalier, after a blow-out around 9:45 p.m., as he traveled toward his Livingston home. Smith said the car hit the embankment and turned around in the roadway after the impact. Smith's girlfriend, Luann Masters, 18, who is pregnant and her 16-year-old sister, Michelle, along with Smith, were injured in the accident. Michelle Masters and Smith were thrown from the vehicle, but Luann Masters stayed in the vehicle according to Smith. Smith and his girlfriend were taken to Rockcastle Hospital for treatment. Smith was treated and released and his girlfriend was admitted. Michelle Masters was flown from the scene to the University of Kentucky Medical Center and was released on Tuesday. Smith said he and Luann found out just before the wreck on Friday night that they were having a boy, who was not injured in the accident. (Photo By Richard Anderkin).

Mt. Vernon Council votes to purchase two new cruisers; approves firehouse bid

Grand Jury indicts five

A Rockcastle County man, who had already been indicted on a charge of first degree assault, was indicted on Friday for cultivating marijuana, second offense and possession of drug paraphernalia for a February 23rd incident.

Josh Morgan, 34, of Dusty Trail Subdivision, Hwy. 461, turned himself in Tuesday at the Rockcastle Detention Center and will be arraigned on the indictment on July 27th.

He is being held on a $50,000 cash or property bond.

On July 6th, Morgan filled a $100,000 property bond on the assault indictment and was council does for us," Jackson told the council. "We actually need to replace three cruisers but two will get us by until next year. All our cruisers have over 140,000 miles and one of them blew an engine last week," the chief added.

Jackson said he had located a fully-equipped rebuilt 2007 Crown Vic with only 3,000 miles for $15,000 at a dealer in Salyersville and that a 2006 model, which had been rearended, for $10,500 and a 2007 model, with 13,000 miles, for $19,000 were also available at the same dealer.

The council okayed the purchase of two vehicles for the department.

Mayor Clarice Kirby brought the council up-to-date on the new emergency vehicle building for the city and CSEPP. The mayor said that the lowest bid for the building came from Walters Buildings for $228,000 but she had managed to negotiate the price down to $210,000. Since the bid was considerably higher than expected, Kirby said that Hal Holbrook, CSEPP director, had said he might be able to acquire more money from his department to help make up the difference.

The 72x104 building will be all metal, including the roof, and will have six bays.

Kirby also told the council that three of the city's projects had been ranked first in the county by other governments in the county and the two wa-

Local man charged with sexual abuse

Kentucky State Police Detective Gary Lane arrested a local man on Saturday and charged him with third degree sexual abuse, a class B misdemeanor.

Charles "Skip" Wilson, 48, of Rt. 4, Mt. Vernon posted a $2,000 cash bond and will be arraigned August 20th.

Wilson was charged with subjecting a neighbor, who is a minor with sexual contact, according to Rockcastle County Attorney, Billy Reynolds, who wrote the warrant for Wilson's arrest sometime in April.

Conditions of Wilson's bond is that he stay away from the defendant and her family.

Kirby said this would help the city's chances of obtaining Kentucky Infrastructure funds or direct funding as a line item. "It sort of comes down now to who you know (in state government)," Kirby told the council. "I had hoped to see the project bid before winter but, I just don't know if it will happen," Kirby added.

The city has had two of their four sewer projects funded -- sewer lines around Lake Linville and on Rose Hill Road, leaving just the two other projects for completion.

The annexation process was also discussed by the council. City Engineer Luther Galloway gave the council copies of an aerial photo showing the present boundary and explained the annexation process.

Galloway said that, according to former court rulings, the areas to be annexed must be

A Corbin man and his son were among several who pleaded guilty in Rockcastle Circuit Court on Friday.

Henry Boswell, 47, and his son, Henry Edward Boswell, 24, entered guilty pleas to a March theft at the home of an elderly Three Links woman.

According to Asst. Commonwealth Attorney Jeremy Bartley, who handles prosecutions in Rockcastle County for Commonwealth Attorney Eddy Montgomery, a sentence of four years will be recommended for the two men.

Charges against another, Boswell, Matthew Shane Boswell, 19, also of Corbin, were dropped and he was released from jail on Friday.

According to Bartley, the Boswells showed up at the home of Wanda Tankersly at Three Links on March 8th, asking if they could do some work for her.

Cemetery board will pay cost of replacing stolen military markers

Walter Cash, a member of Brodhead's Piney Grove Cemetery Board, said the board would pay the cost of replacing the five bronze/brass grave markers stolen from the cemetery on June 30th.

Two Brodhead residents have been arrested for the thefts and are being held on a $25,000 cash bond.

Timmy Whiteshell, 35, and Janet Michelle Duncan, 37, were scheduled for a preliminary hearing Wednesday.

Mt. Vernon Scrap Yard co-owner Sarah Grace Miracle positively identified the two last week, after they brought the markers to the scrap yard.

Local historical society trying to increase numbers

The Rockcastle County Historical Society has been semi-active for the past few years but some people would like to change that.

"We currently have over 100 members but only a small number of those actually live in Rockcastle County, therefore the first order of business is to create and maintain an active organization and to increase membership and interest," said member Linda

Editor's Notes

By: Richard Anderkin

After many months of not being in the mood to put my own thoughts on paper, I've decided to give the old column writing a try this week for a number of reasons.

First, I would like to apologize for apparently not knowing the difference in a military marker and a temporary grave marker.

In last week's paper I had a picture I took of a temporary marker and for some reason I thought it was a military marker. Of course I did not ask anyone if the photo was correct and although it did pass through one more set of eyes here before it was printed I should have known the difference. You can tell I've not spent a lot of time in cemeteries. Thank goodness!

A correct picture is running this week, along with another short story about the thefts.

It was nice, but not surprising to see the large crowd at the Pongo Fire Department's fish fry Saturday night.

The entire community in that part of the county is making a valiant effort to be able to fight their own fires, which will provide more protection for the residents in the area.

The group of volunteers has made great progress since an organizational meeting in February.

Saturday night's event raised over $3,000 and was supported by people throughout the county and from other counties.

It just goes to show once again that Rockcastle countians always step up to support worthwhile causes.

I have enjoyed doing the bi-monthly church features, since we kicked off the church pages in March.

Everyone I have come in contact with has been very helpful and cooperative and made me feel welcome.

Some of the church services may be different at the churches I have attended, but they all have the same goal - to worship God and help their fellow man. It has been a great experience.

Because of a lack of knowledge about the Iraq War, I have kept my comments to family and friends to a bare minimum.

But it seems like things just get worse there and our President and Congress have no solutions.

When I carefully read or listen to both sides of their arguments, whether to stay or go, I am even more confused because I agree with both of them at times.

I don't think we are making any progress over there and, if I had a son or daughter there, I know I would be for a complete pull out. I would be extremely upset that we are there in the first place.

It truly amazes me that we were not 100 percent sure there were weapons of mass destruction in Iraq before we invaded and it bothers me just as much that the most powerful nation in the world can't find one terrorist.

But, on the other hand, they make a compelling argument when they make the statement, that if we pull out we are sending a message to all terrorist in the world that they have won.

Points East

By Ike Adams

When I first started selling GRIT "newspaper" back in the 50's, Dad was employed by a mining company operating in the head of Blair Branch that used ponies to pull coal out of the mines.

We had the last barn in the head of the holler and it had 6 big stalls on the ground level that would comfortably house 2 ponies each. In addition to working underground, Dad was also paid a feed to house and board the ponies. I can't remember the barn being full, but for several years we kept 6 or 8 ponies at the same time and finally got down to the last two that were used for mining in Letcher County when the practice was outlawed in the early 60's.

Notice I said that "Dad was paid."

Yours truly and brother Keeter did all the feeding, watering, and washing down the ponies on week ends as well as cleaning manure out of the stalls on a regular basis. We actually thought this was great fun and couldn't imagine why anybody would be paid to do it.

On weekends boys on Blair Branch and even neighboring hollows would come around to ride the ponies, most of which were none to keen about having anybody on their backs and did more kicking, bucking and biting than actually transporting riders from one point to another. But the deal was that the rider had to bathe his pony in the branch and then curry him down before being allowed to ride. Tom Sawyer would have been envious of this trick.

However, a couple of ponies that we kept for several years were extremely gentle and loved having all the attention Keeter and I could lavish on them. My favorite was Old Red, a wonderful Shetland that was big for his breed who actually thought he was a dog.

For a couple of years, especially in warm weather, when I was in 6th and 7th grades or thereabouts, I would ride him about three miles from our house to the Jeremiah Post Office and deliver GRITs on the way home over a meandering route that covered about 6 miles or so up Spring Branch, Doty Creek, Adams Branch, Black Bottom and finally to the head of Blair Branch.

No saddle mind you. This was strictly bareback but I'd figured out a way to make my paper bag rest on Old Red's haunches as I rode along. I had about 35 five regular customers but during the summer I'd

by: Tonya J. Cook

Dear Journal:

As I had noted several weeks ago, I had made an endeavor to compile a written oral history of my family. Other than history, it would contain short stories and little tidbits of knowledge future generations might find interesting. It would be so enlightening to future generations provided I ever get anything down on paper. However, as usual, I've let it fall by the wayside due to the rush and hurry we call daily living.

I'm thinking of calling it "Twice-told Tales of an American Family" which sums it up pretty well. They are stories and tidbits of information I've been told as a child maybe dozens of times, or maybe only once many years ago, but they have stuck in my mind. I guess it would be rather interesting, as it will cover a great range of personal experiences, most of which took place in an era when daily living wasn't so rushed and hurried.

There was a little story that came to mind a couple of days ago that I wanted to get down on paper while I was thinking about it. It makes for a good example of when life was lived at a slower pace, and even a trip to town was an adventure. The chief character in this story is my great-grandmother on my mother's side, Ella Vestie Otey-

Price.

Breakdown at Sweetgum Flats Clearfield, Tennessee was pretty much of a self-sustaining little town, or at least is was around 1930 when this story takes place. Clearfield lay just across the Tennessee line along Clearfork Creek after crossing the Middlesboro Mountain in Bell County, which is in southeastern Kentucky. Most of the population worked in the local coal mines. There were several local mines, all located about five to ten miles apart, and each mine had its own little town or community. All of them were connected by the railroad. They were: King Mountain, Standard, Black Diamond, Anthers, Valley Creek, Rogerston, and Big Nickel. The larger ones: Eagon, Pruden, and Fondee had their own post offices. Clearfield was centrally located to each. The remainder of the population worked in the handful of stores and businesses in the little town. This, of course, was only about half a dozen businesses with a church and school in the community. Other people worked on their small farms that produced fruits, vegetables, meats, and dairy products. Of course there was the logging business, as well.

Clearfield was a small, (Cont. to A4)

A Cobbler's Justice: 166 Years Later

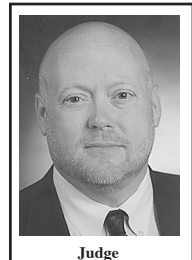

Respected University of Kentucky law professor Robert Lawson wrote in 2004 that "[t]he thirst for incarceration of citizens has reached levels far beyond anything ever experienced in this country's history and seems to exist unchecked in almost every corner of the nation." By Professor Lawson's reckoning, the United States has increased its incarceration rate by 500% in a twenty-five year period, and compares with Russia only for the dubious honor of leading the world in incarcerating its own citizens.

With prison populations skyrocketing, courts are increasingly called upon to grant shock probation for eligible criminal defendants. Shock probation is a sentencing alternative developed to permit courts to suspend a sentence following a defendant's service of not less than 30 days nor more than 180 days incarceration.

The genesis of shock probation in America, and other forms of probation, can be traced to John Augustus, a Boston cobbler. According to law professor and author Wayne Logan, Augustus began in 1841 to intercede on behalf of petty criminals who would have been otherwise incarcerated in Boston's penal houses. Over an eighteen year span, Augustus interceded for over 2000 defendants, only one of whom out of the first 1100 for-

Treat Strokes Early

Presented by Dr. George W. Griffith

Everyone knows that when you get chest pain you could be having a heart attack and should go to the ER. However, when having a stroke, or a "brain attack", most people still do not feel an urgency to seek medical treatment. They may let the symptoms go on for hours or longer before seeking treatment.

Part of this may be the lack of pain in most strokes.

However, with strokes as with heart attacks, early care may provide the possibility of reversing the damage with medicines that dissolve the clots.

Treating strokes with clot-busters carries a significant risk that needs to be addressed before starting the treatment. Some strokes are caused by bleeding, not an obstructed artery. A CT scan of the brain must be done in every case before the clot-buster can be started. It can only be used if there is no bleeding in the brain. Other contraindications to its use include recent surgery or bleeding in the gut.

The medicine must be started within three hours of the onset of symptoms. This tight time frame makes it extremely important to seek medical attention immediately if symptoms develop.

Using the medicine carries significant risks--it can result in bleeding in the brain which makes the stroke much worse. This is not common, but starting the medicine requires the optimum conditions for improvement, minimum risks of complications, and a full understanding of the benefits compared to the risks.

Rockcastle Memories

By David J. Griffin

When I was a very young boy, the family physician in Rockcastle County was Dr. George Griffith. In those early days of the '50's, he did not have access to the scientific medical tests and high powered technical devices that doctors use today, but he was a fabulous diagnostician nevertheless. And anyone who remembers those times also recalls that our country doctors actually made house-calls!

If a member of the family was too sick to make the trip to Dr. Griffith's office, he drove to the house at the end of his regular office hours. The sight of him coming up the gravel road made you feel better even before he actually examined you.

I can see him now as he entered the house. He carefully removed his coat and overshoes and then seated himself on the side of the bed. He went through the process of taking our temperatures, listening to his stethoscope, and pushing here and there. Finally, he looked into your mouth, ears, and examined your eyes. He had a wonderful bedside manner.

My mother (Bee) was always surprised by how well Dr. Griffith remembered my medical history. He never had to ask if I previously had some childhood illness because he already knew the answer. He also was aware of any allergies that I had and would provide the proper medication for whatever ailed me.

When Dr. Griffith opened his "little black bag," he measured out doses of medicine and placed them into small envelopes, writing the directions on the side. His medical bag contained several small bottles of medicines which he dispensed instead of writing prescriptions. So, in essence, Dr. Griffith provided us with his medical knowledge and also served as our pharmacist. Bee told me one time that Dr. Griffith charged a mere $2 for each house-call.

I am almost sure that our "good doctor" told my mother in secret that children should have a daily dose of cod-liver-oil because it was added to my orange juice before breakfast each day. When Dr. Griffith came to our house, she made a habit of quizzing him about preventative medicine as well. She believed that he had very good sense about such matters.

My only fear of Dr. Griffith came when he reached into his bag and pulled out a hypodermic needle and filled it with some solution. His instructions were to "pull down your pants and stick your behind up in the air." Oh how I hated "shots" when I was a boy! I guess he was aware of my fear because he rarely administered medication to me in this manner.

I remember one afternoon that the good doctor was called, and he came immediately. Bee and I were spending the day at my grandparents' house when a bad storm approached. Lightning struck the kitchen-wall fuse box just behind the couch that we were sitting on. Pieces of the fuses flew all over the house. Both my mother and I could feel the "tingle" of electricity flowing over our bodies.

Dr. Griffith was called and responded promptly without any question. After a careful examination, he instructed Bee to give me a sponge bath with isopropyl alcohol. For some unknown reason, the solution did the trick and in a few hours I was feeling fine. I often wondered how he knew about this amazing medical treatment.

Gone are the days of doctors' house calls and the "little black bag" filled with his cures. The country doctor was endeared in the hearts of his patients. Dr. Griffith was one of these important physicians. He took a common-sense, compassionate approach to his practice of medicine.

For many years, he was one of my heroes. Even after I moved away from Mt. Vernon, I returned to his office whenever it was possible. I will never forget how much we loved our country doctor and his gentle touch.

(You can reach me at mman@mis.net I continue to be amazed at your responses. Thank you for reading my column and offering suggestions for future editions.)

tight-knit community with everyone knowing each other, and good a good portion of their business. The population was probably not over two or three hundred, counting livestock. One of the best-known characters who lived in Clearfield was "Old Doc Rogers," as he was known. He was the only doctor for miles around and treated all of the people not only in Clearfield, but the other little towns and communities in the area. I don't know why, but I've always pictured "Old Doc Adams" of Gunsmoke fame when I think of him. He must have been pretty good, as he rarely lost a patient. He had delivered my mom, and her brother, Junior.

Doctor Hagar Rogers had a wife, Lessie, who was the post-mistress of Clearfield. This is where my family comes into play. My grandpa, Roscoe Norton, was the mailman for Clearfield. He rode an old horse, Dandy, twenty-seven miles each day on his winding route through hill and hollow delivering folks' mail in all kinds of weather. He was well-acquainted with Lessie and Doc Rogers. Doc and my grandpa were good friends, and he made many visits to grandpa's house personally and professionally.

Doc and my grandpa were among only a handful of people to own a car in that whole area. Most of the areas where my grandpa delivered mail weren't accessible by car, anyway. The roads, what few that they had, were in poor condition by today's standards, and usually unpaved. Most travel was done by horse, or on the train, which came through each little mining town once or twice each day for passengers, freight, and coal transportation.

Although Clearfield was, for the most part, self-sustaining people did find it necessary to venture outside this hamlet from time to time either for business or pleasure. Such a day came along for Doc Rogers and his wife, Lessie. They had asked my great-grandma, Ella Vestie Otey-Price, Grandpa Norton's mother-in-law, to accompany them to Middlesboro for the afternoon. Another lady who lived next door to my grandpa, Edna Thomas, was asked to go along as well. Both of these ladies were sixty-ish at the time. Edna was friend of my great-grandma.

Edna Thomas was the wife of J. L., a local magistrate who also worked for the American Association, owner of all of the land where all of the mines were located. My great-grandma Price had a husband, Henry Frank, who worked for the American Association, as well.

Doc drove his old Model A or T Ford across Middlesboro Mountain to the big city of Middlesboro. I can almost imagine this foursome chugging along, about twenty or thirty miles per hour top speed, through muddy ruts ankle deep passing horse-and-buggies along the way. I've been across Middlesboro Mountain not too many years ago, and it was narrow, curvy, steep, and winding but at least it was paved.

They had been gone most all afternoon, and night was approaching. Having been gone far longer than expected, their friends and family feared that something had happened to cause such a delay. These worried individuals gathered down at Matt Hamblin's General Store to wait for any news or prepare for the worse. They gathered there, as Matt had what may have been the only phone in town. The whole town used it to make only the most important life-or-death calls, or to receive such a message. (My grandma, Evelyn Norton, daughter of Grandpa Price went to the general store about 1939 to call my mom, Inez Norton-Hill, at Berea College to tell her that some of their friends, the Davis', were getting a divorce. Mrs. Davis had been caught by her husband in a rather adulterous situation in their barn with a hired hand. The scandal shocked the little town. At that time, divorce was extremely rare and practically unheard of. It affected the town almost like a death.)

Finally, Doc and his travelers arrived back in town to the relief of their friends and family. They were late, but uninjured. What had happened was the question on everyone's lips. Doc told them that about the time they reached Sweetgum Flats, a span of road that was without any hills or curves, Lessie told him that he was going a little too fast, and to slow down a bit. However, from the back seat he heard my great-grandma say, "Go on, Doc, while the goin's good." He decided to take her advice. About that time, from out of nowhere, a cow wandered into the road, and Doc had to swerve to miss it, which caused the car to have to hit the ditch and get stuck. He couldn't get the car out until the farmer came in search of the cow, and pulled the car out with a team of mules.

That was when "back-seat driving" was in its infancy, and women hadn't perfected it yet.

the entire middle east region will dive into pure chaos if we pull out now.

And I wonder if anyone really cares that the United States Senate met in an all night session Tuesday to debate the war.

You would think men and woman of their capabilities could debate the war during the day.

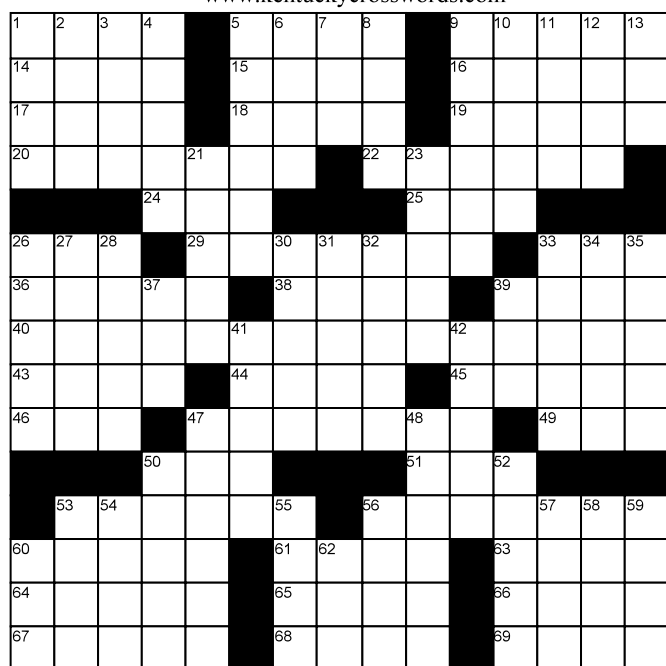

I doubt that one American feels sorry for any elected official these days and certainly not for any of our so-called leaders in the senate or the house and not for the President. After all it was under his watch that we got into this mess.

If our elected officials would do what they were elected to do, they wouldn't have to turn to the martyr role.

It is truly a sad day in national politics, possibly the worst days in modern history.

SOLUTION TO KY 320

order 45 papers which was the absolute maximum I could stuff in the bag.

I'd stop to rest in front of Adams Brothers General Store and Doc Lundy's office and sell the extra ten papers in a matter of minutes to store customers or patients who couldn't resist shelling out fifteen cents to a boy selling papers off a pony's back. Without Old Red, I couldn't have given them away.

I used to get jealous because store customers would run in and buy Red an apple or a carrot just to let him eat it out of their hands but I can't remember anybody ever offering me one.

Throughout my GRIT career I had one regular customer who was blind but she'd be out on the porch even in cold weather waiting for her paper. GRIT always had a serialized western novel going that was printed in weekly installments. Truth be known, that was the reason most people bought the paper.

Anyway, she'd buy the paper and then make me sit down and read aloud that week's installment to her. And anybody that came into her house had to do the same thing until she had it nearly memorized before I came back around.

I'd hand her the paper in July and August and she'd say "I can't wait for it to get cold so you can't ride that danged old nag."

"He's not a nag," I'd say. "He's the prettiest pony in Letcher County."

"I don't care what he looks like but you oughtn't to be delivering papers on him in hot weather and you ought to give me a nickel off," she'd grump. "Nobody wants to read a paper that makes the whole house smell like a sweaty old mule."

Loretta came in the other day with a GRIT delivery bag that looked nearly new.

"Antique," she said. "Collectors item."

I took it off the hanger where she placed in on the kitchen wall and smelled of it.

"What on earth are you doing," she wanted to know?

"Just checking to see if the kid who used it rode a pony," I replied.

Loretta looked skyward and rolled her eyes around. "I don't even want to know," she said.

"You wouldn't understand anyway," I told her as I hung the bag back up.

“Bench”

feited his bond for a new infraction. From this humble cobbler's effort to reform criminals the American model of probation developed.

Shock probation is simply a refinement of a traditional probation model. The theory underlying this alternative is that it allows a sentencing court to retain jurisdiction for a short period to grant probation following a defendant's exposure to the sometimes harsh reality of a state correctional institution. To be eligible for shock probation, a defendant must have been eligible for probation to begin with. Violent offenses and persistent felony offenders are generally ineligible for consideration.

The rules governing the grant or denial of shock probation are strictly construed. A court has no jurisdiction to even consider a shock probation request which is filed outside the statutory allotted periods, nor for any offense which does not fit within those deemed eligible by the General Assembly. Since 1916, the United States Supreme Court has definitively held that courts lack inherent authority to suspend sentences absent express legislation.

And unlike most other court proceedings, defendants and prosecutors have no right to be present at a hearing on the issue of shock probation. Judges are free to grant or deny such motions without formal court proceedings, and the Kentucky rules do not permit appellate review of a trial court's ruling on a shock probation motion.

Despite public perception that shock probation is routinely granted, the facts do not bear this out. Pulaski County probation officers only supervise 25 individuals who were granted shock probation, while Rockcastle County officers supervise ten and Lincoln County supervises eleven offenders. Even these numbers are deceptive because they may include defendants who were granted shock probation by other jurisdictions, but are being supervised within this judicial Circuit, and some who have been on shock probation for many years.

While the wisdom of granting or denying shock probation in any given case may be debatable, it is hard to attack the underlying principle that shock probation, like other carefully thought-out and crafted sentences, can be an effective individualized sanction.

Brodhead Christian Church has been part of town since 1890

Tracy Valentine has been the minister at Brodhead Christian for about three years.

The beautiful mural behind the baptistry at Brodhead Christian was painted by the late Barbara Owens about 25 years ago. Mrs. Owens, an art teacher in the county school system for many years, also painted murals for other churches in the county. (Photos By: Richard Anderkin).

By: Travis Burton

The Brodhead Christian Church has been a part of the landscape that composes the Brodhead community for many years.

Its beginnings can be traced back to the days of Boone's Fork when the church was adjacent to Brodhead's first school.

Made of square logs the church house was located 100 yards or so down the creek from "the bridge".

Brodhead Christian Church found a new home on what is today Main Street Brodhead in 1890.

The land for the building was donated by James Tate and the construction was done by R.S. Martin and others.

Services have been held at the same location for 117 years. While the Independent Christian Church's building has seen many changes over the years, once having a tall bell tower, the location and teaching of God's word have remained the same.

It was in 1960 that several major changes were made to the building. New Sunday School rooms were added along with the construction of the baptistry, the basement with a new furnace, kitchen and a new fellowship hall. It was at this time that the porch was built with columns and the sanctuary was bricked.

Brodhead Christian holds Sunday School every Sunday Morning at 10AM, followed by worship beginning at 11AM. Evening services are held Sunday nights at 6PM with Wednesday night Bible Study and Youth Classes starting at 7PM.

In addition to these services, Brodhead Christian Church conducts an annual Vacation Bible School at the start of the summer along with other youth activities throughout the year. A group from the church, the Seasoned Singers, worship in song every third Sunday of the month at the Rockcastle County Rehabilitation Center in Brodhead.

The Ladies Aide Missionary Society holds its meetings the first Tuesday of each month with the men of the church enjoying a monthly Prayer Breakfast every fourth Saturday.

Brodhead Christian Church is a proud supporter of the International Ministries of Andy Martin, P.V. Alexander, and Michael Diskin and also of the local Kentucky Christian Assembly church camp which is located only 2 miles down the road from the church.

Brother Tracy Valentine is the minister, and has been at the church for a total of five years.

Valentine served as a part-time preacher before taking over as the full-time preacher about three years ago.

Valentine and his wife Sandy live in Somerset. Valentine met his wife while at

Ford Bros. wins national award

Creativity and professionalism in auction marketing are being celebrated by the world's largest association for auctioneers and auction marketing. This week, the National Auctioneers Association (NAA) announced the winners of its 2007 Marketing Competition and Ford Brothers Auctioneers-Realtors with offices in Mt Vernon, Somerset and London Kentucky won the Best Television Commercial Award.

Each year, the organization holds the competition for its members to allow them to face off in a competition against their colleagues, and vie for top awards for their marketing materials and programs. This year's competition drew nearly 950 entries from throughout the United States and other countries, including South Africa and Australia.

"Been Sellin' Long" is the title of the 30 second television commercial that won first place at the annual National Auctioneer's Convention, held this year in San Diego, California. The commercial depicts a young Sam and Danny Ford contemplating their futures and then fast forwarding to a current shot of the brothers who have been partners for over 4 decades, with company spokesperson, former University of Kentucky basketball player, Cameron Mills.

The commercial was written and produced by Chuck Crawford of Rainmaker Advertising in Lexington, Kentucky and directed and edited by Jason Epperson, currently one of the 10 finalists on Fox Network's "On the Lot" competition that currently airs Monday and Tuesday evenings at 8pm.

Ford Brothers Auctioneers-Realtors is a long time member of the Kentucky Auctioneers Association and the National Auctioneers Association, and Sam Ford is a past president of the National Auctioners Association. This is the most recent in a long line of state and national awards for Ford Brothers print, radio and television marketing.

All winners will be formally recognized during the NAA Marketing Competition Recipient's Luncheon which will take place from noon to 1:15 p.m. Thursday, July 19 as part of the NAA's 58th International Auctioneers Conference and Show at the Town and Country Resort & Convention Center in San Diego, California. Winners will receive a plaque, and their winning entries will be displayed for their colleagues to view.

Why we Relay...

The Bible Baptist Church wanted to participate with Relay For Life this year because of the folks who have been touched by the terrible disease of cancer. Some of our very own are survivors and some have passed on, but either way, we want to honor ALL those who have been affected by this disease. Our prayer is that God will intervene, as He has already has, and bring to the minds of doctors the cure that we desperately want to see come about. Our team, "the Tribe of Joab", which means the Lord is our Father, wants ALL victims of this disease to know that they are not alone and that we will stand with them, pray with them, hug, and love them through their time of need.

Lights of Love Brighten the Night

Honor and remember the special people in your life who have battled cancer a this year's American Cancer Society Relay For Life in Rockcastle County on Friday, July 27, 2007 at the Middle School Track. Candles will be lit and left glowing throughout the night as a symbol of the many reasons we work to conquer this disease. To purchase a luminaria for your loved one, contact Gwen Lay at Rockcastle Hospital by calling 256-2195 or mailing the below order form to Ms. Lay at PO Box 1310 Mt. Vernon, KY 40456.

Dog Days of Summer

Summertime can be brutal sometimes. Especially true for some of the residents of eastern Kentucky where air conditioning is not available, summertime can turn deadly. Summer heat combined with high humidity can feel utterly unbearable. It is the dog days of summer.

We all know that the "dog days of summer" as the hottest and muggiest part of the season. A quick look in Webster defines "dog days" as: 1) the period between early July and early September when the hot sultry weather of summer usually occurs in the northern hemisphere. 2) a period of stagnation or inactivity.

But where does the term come from? Why do we call the hot, sultry days of summer "dog days?" The brightest of the stars in the constellation Canis Major (the big dog) is Sirius, which also happens to be the brightest star in the night sky of the summertime. In fact, it is so bright that the ancient Romans thought that the earth received heat from it. During late July Sirius is in conjunction with the sun, and the ancients believed that its heat added to the heat of the sun, creating a stretch of hot and sultry weather. They named this period of time, from 20 days before the conjunction to 20 days after, "dog days" after the Dog Star.

During an average year, 175 people succumb to the heat in the United States. In the disastrous heat wave of 1980, more than 1,250 people died. The heat wave of July 1995 caused 600 deaths in the Chicago inner city alone, which marked the greatest heat-related disaster in the United States. In Europe, the scorching summer of 2003 equates to devastation, as more than 50,000 people succumbed across the continent, with the majority, nearly 35,000 deaths in France. These are the direct casualties. No one can know how many more deaths are advanced by heat wave weather, as diseased or aging organs that surrender to the heat stress, but under better conditions would have continued to function.

Considering this tragic death toll, the National Weather Service (NWS) has stepped up its efforts to alert more effectively the general public and appropriate authorities to the hazards of heat waves - those prolonged excessive heat/humidity episodes. The NWS will issue Heat Advisories and Warnings to advise people that extreme heat is expected. Based on the latest research findings, the weather service has devised the "Heat Index". The Heat Index, given in degrees F, is an accurate measure of how hot it really feels when relative humidity is combined with the actual air temperature.

For eastern Kentucky, a heat advisory will be issued for a reading of 105 or higher for at least 3 hours or more, with a minimum Heat Index around 75 degrees during a 24-hour period. An Excessive Heat Warning will be issued for 110 or higher for 3 hours or longer, with a minimum Heat Index of 75 during a 24-hour period.

It does not have to reach the warning or advisory stage for heat to take a toll on people outdoors, especially when working. Heat is a killer. Heat kills by taxing the human body beyond its abilities, where in a normal year, about 175 Americans succumb to the demands of summer heat.

Know These Heat Disorder Symptoms

SUNBURN: Redness and pain. In severe cases swelling of skin, blisters, fever, and headaches. First Aid: Ointments for mild cases if blisters appear and do not break. If breaking occurs, apply dry sterile dressing. A physician should see serious, or extensive cases.

room. Sips of water should be given. If nausea occurs, discontinue use. If vomiting continues, seek immediate medical attention.

HEAT STROKE (or sunstroke): High body temperature (106° F. or higher). Hot dry skin. There will be a rapid and strong pulse. Possible unconsciousness. First Aid: HEAT STROKE IS A SEVERE MEDICAL EMERGENCY. SUMMON EMERGENCY MEDICAL ASSISTANCE OR GET THE VICTIM TO A HOSPITAL IMMEDIATELY. DELAY CAN BE FATAL. Move the victim to a cooler environment Reduce body temperature with cold bath or sponging. Use extreme caution. Remove clothing, use fans and air conditioners. If temperature rises again, repeat process. Do not give fluids.

To: Parents and Guardians of Brodhead Elementary students From: Brodhead Elementary School staff and PTA

We are beginning to get things ready for the upcoming school year. We look forward to working with you and your child. I am sure that together, we can give your child the best education possible.

We will be conducting "Back to School" night on Tuesday, August 2, 2007. Back to School will be just like it was last year. Instead of coming anytime during the evening, as we used to do, we will have specific times to meet with students in each grade level. At that time, you will meet all of the teachers in that particular grade level. They will go over information that you will need to know about how the school works, the curriculum that will be taught, what your child will need to know before moving on to the next grade and who your child's teacher will be.

After this brief meeting, you and your child will be able to go to your child's classroom and spend some time with your child's new teacher. The purpose of this is to help your child be ready for the first day of school. This is your opportunity to see your child's class, meet many of their classmates and their teacher. On the first day of school, parents are not allowed to accompany their child to the classroom.

The PTA will be having a cookout during Back to School night and many other activities will be going on. We look forward to a future working together to provide your child with a great education. Please arrange now to attend Back to School Night during your child's grade level meeting. If you have questions, you may call the school at 758-8512.

The following is a list of the classes and times they will meet on August 2nd.

Kindergarten/Preschool 4:00	Third Grade 5:30
First Grade 4:30	Fourth Grade 6:00
Second Grade 5:00	Fifth Grade 6:30

- Immunization Certificate
- Physical (Ky. form)
- Social Security Number
- Eye Exam (Ky. form)

Words of Hope

We know that the Bible tells us that we are to shine our light before men, but it also tells us that we are to live as righteous men and women. To be righteous is to be morally upright, without sin and without guilt: and we are called to live like this to set an example to those who are unbelievers. The Bible says in Matthew 5:19, "Whoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven: but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven."

These four college students from Bowling Green, KY had formed as a band less than a year before. The song was called "Trying," and was written by Billy Vaughn, a native of Glasgow, KY, and classmate of the other three Hilltoppers at Western Kentucky State College. They recorded the song on a $30 reel-to-reel recorder at the Van Meter Auditorium on campus, because it was the only place around with a playable piano. They had never before performed in a larger venue than a church or a Rotary Club, and now 40 million people were watching. Ed Sullivan would later autograph their record with, "You don't have to try anymore. You're (Cont. to A13)

FENCING: More than just making good neighbors
 Famous American poet Robert Frost said in Mending Fences that "good fences make good neighbors" and I would like to begin today's article from that starting perspective.

Now, I know not every reader is shopping for a fence, and fence contracting is not the usual chore of a landscaper, but it seems like a subject I have ignored in this column despite more than one reader comment over time. So, today, let's consider some information about fencing and about why and how.

Indeed, good fences seem to make good neighbors. I think, personally, that that is so because of the need for differentiation of what's mine is mine/what's yours is yours. Also, the practice of getting with a neighbor and walking the line fence (usually of stone in by-gone days of yore) was a springtime ritual, one could say even a sacred practice. (Roman pagan god Terminus was supposedly honored when neighbors walked the line fence in ancient times.)

There may be reasons for fencing that are "neighborly", or reasons practical (such as keeping outsiders from entering a pool area), for fencing. Or, usually, both. Plus other reasons such as aesthetics and privacy and contentment.

Gated communities are popular, especially with those who have made their livelihood and want to enjoy it without being bothered by those who are still trying to make a way for themselves. Fenced yards and barred windows keep those who might want what's yours outside of your space.

OK. Enough. Let's look at it from the perspective of a nice landscape tool to have privacy and beauty.

The reasons you feel you want a fence can be many and varied. Is it aesthetics? Is it privacy? Is it protection, or to keep trespassers out? Is it to screen out undesirable vistas? (You will be able to answer better than I can suggest on this one.) But, once you are thinking about fencing, there are quite a few things one ought to consider.

Probably you ought to talk with your neighbor. Maybe the two of you can come to agreement and split the cost of a fence?

But, if not, you have the right to build a fence on your own property (in most cases) even if your neighbor is not happy about the idea. (Just make sure you know where the survey boundary is, or hire a surveyor, as you don't want to hear "you put that fence on my property and you're going to tear it down or I'm going to sue you"!)

home."

In P.S. I Love You: The Story of the Singing Hilltoppers, Carlton Jackson examines the story of the Hilltoppers' near-overnight success in the music industry. In doing so he illuminates not only the music of the era, but also the social and political climate of the time. The days of the big band were coming to a close, and Elvis was still a year away from recording his first song. At the same time, the Korean War was escalating. It was a time of change, and the Hilltoppers' crisp harmonies and clean-cut image provided just the right kind of distraction to the American public.

The Hilltoppers also embodied the American Dream. They would go on tour during the weekends so that they could attend classes back home in Kentucky during the week. They would arrive to class on Monday, exhausted from the weekend jaunt to Akron, Philadelphia, Cleveland, or Boston, and then they would be off again on Friday to tour the country once more. Hits such as "Marianne" and "P.S. I Love You" kept the band in Billboard's Top 40. Their success, however, was short-lived. Three of the original band members were drafted into the military, and despite a set of temporary replacement members, the group eventually called it quits.

The impact that the Hilltoppers had on popular music was acknowledged in 2005, when they were inducted into the National Vocal Group Hall of Fame. Their vocal harmonies made a lasting impression on the world, garnering Hilltopper fans from as far away as France, England and Germany, and as diverse as Pat Boone and renowned author Bobbie Anne Mason (who was one of the first presidents of their fan club). But nothing meant more to them than home: Western Kentucky State College in Bowling Green, Kentucky. P.S. I Love You chronicles the Hilltopper's meteoric rise to fame and provides a nostalgic snapshot of the era.

Carlton Jackson is University Distinguished Professor at Western Kentucky University and the author of numerous books and articles. His book Hattie: The Life of Hattie McDaniel was listed by the New York Times as one of the fifty most notable books of 1989.

much the person "across the fence" can say about it.

Once you have made a decision to build a fence....things like what materials, how will it look, how will it help me or my property, at what cost, for what functions, and for how many years will it last, should be considered.

Screening out noises, ugly views, bad critters or people, can all be legitimate concerns and desirable reasons for fencing. Boundary lines are another consideration.

Putting certain parts of your yard into another "room" can also be a purpose of a fence.

(And, fencing can be a growing hedge, not necessarily a fence of wood or steel or pvc.)

Check your deed restrictions and check your municipal codes if you live in a city. Then, get to the nuts and bolts of building a fence, or hiring one built if the chore seems rather daunting to you!

Selecting materials, colors, figuring how much of what to buy, these are considerations. (Rolling land may require more fencing than you think if stretch a straight line from one end to the other.)

And when push comes to shove, if you are restricted to, say, a 6 foot high fence, can you perhaps add a foot of dirt to the area before you install the fence? Would this hide the view you don't wish to look at?

Privacy fencing may need to screen out prying eyes. Security fencing may need to keep people or animals out. Some fences may just be for looks. And, sometimes the barrier is just for psychological reasons, and it might be served by a line of trees or an opaque fence you can see through, or maybe a 2-rail fence which screens nothing but is a differentiation of space.

Whatever your reasons for marking your boundaries or fencing your yard, in the spirit of Robert Frost, build a good fence and make some good neighbors. Happy fencing!

The Family Room

By: Dr. Roy Don Whitehead

Domestic violence happens in many families, and not every victim is able to leave immediately. Because leaving is the most dangerous time in an abusive relationship and for other good reasons, some choose to stay. For these victims here are some suggestions on living with abuse and staying as safe and sane as possible.

[These ideas are from the book When Dad Hurts Mom: Helping Your Children Heal the Wounds of Witnessing Abuse by Lundy Bancroft. He also wrote Why Does He Do That? Inside the Minds of Angry and Controlling Men. I highly recommend both of these fine books to anyone who wants to understand domestic violence.]

1. Stop blaming yourself and your children for the high level of tension in your home. The abuser blames you, but you do not have to accept that blame. Do not argue with him, but be clear in your own mind that the abuse is his fault. Notice the many ways in which his abuse affects you and your children.

2. Work hard on your relationship with your children in order to develop closeness and trust. The abuser wants to undermine your relationship to others in your family. He wants everyone else to fight with each other; this allows him to remain in control. If you and your children fight, he knows that you will not be able to unite against him. Abusers thrive on mistrust and dissension.

3. Insist on respect from your children. Abusers often try to undermine your authority with the children. As much as you can and especially when he is not there, insist that your children respect your authority. As it is safe to do so, do not allow them to call you names or to hit you. Begin when they are young to teach them to respect you.

4. Do not hit your children. This is especially important in abusive households where there is already too much violence. Teach them that physical violence is not the way to solve family problems.

5. Be honest with your children about the abuse, but do not give them all the details. Children know that the violence is happening, even if you think they do not. To lie to them about it is to deny their perceptions. On the other hand, do not use the children as your counselor. They are confused enough without being placed in the role of being your main source of support.

6. Do not be hard on yourself for your failures as a parent. All parents fail at times, and parenting while living with an abuser is especially difficult. You will not be the perfect parent. Concentrate on what you can do rather than beating yourself up for past failures.

7. Encourage your children to speak up and express their feelings to you, especially about the abuse they witness. Do not speak badly of their father, but tell them that certain of his behaviors are not acceptable. Let them know that it is safe to disagree, if not with their father, then with you.

8. Insist on respect for females in general. Male abusers do not respect females, and their attitudes can easily be absorbed by their children. Speak to your children, both girls and boys, if you hear them talk negatively about females.

9. Do not say that the abuser is a good father. A good father does not abuse the mother of his children.

10. If you see that your lives are in danger, leave as soon as possible.

A close relationship with you is your children's best defense against the effects of abuse.

[If you or someone you know is in an emotionally or physically abusive relationship, call Family Life Abuse Center at 800-755-5348.]

urban in nature or expected to be urban in the future. “Annexation laws change with every court case and every legislature just about,” Galloway added.

Galloway told the council that the city would have to decide the areas to be annexed and then publish two ordinances, detailing the new boundaries. The annexation can proceed from this point unless landowners in the area organize a petition with enough signatures to force the issue onto the ballot. At that time, 50% of the landowners in the area effected would have to vote against annexation to stop the process.

The largest area being considered for annexation is probably the Burr area to the south of Mt. Vernon. One of the sewer projects, for which financing is being sought, is for new sewer lines in this area and, if these residents were in the city limits, their water/sewer bills would be much lower not to mention the added protection from police and fire departments. “It would be a while before we would see more revenue than expense from the annexation,” Kirby told the council.

The council appointed an annexation committee to make decisions about new lines, cost, etc. and to bring this information back to the council for further action.

Councilman Wayne Bullock then brought up a raise for Mayor Kirby saying, “She’s the best mayor we’ve ever had and she should get a raise.” Kirby thanked Bullock for his kind words but said that the city couldn’t afford the added expense now. Councilwoman Willie French quipped that the city had to “spend the money on new cruisers.”

In other action, the council approved a Memorandum of Agreement with the state for a $125,000 Renaissance grant received for work on the Jones Building. The money will be spent on a new roof and the front entrance, if there are any funds left over.

released, after spending seven weeks in jail.

A trial date on the assault charges has been set for August 1st in Rockcastle Circuit Court.

When Morgan was arrested May 16th, and charged with shooting a 19-year-old London man, he was also charged with cultivation of marijuana, possession of marijuana, possession of drug paraphernalia and possession of a police radio.

Those charges were dropped.

Dallas Clifford, 34, of Mt. Vernon, who walked away from a detention center work release detail in Livingston on June 23rd, was indicted on two charges.

Clifford, who was captured on July 2nd, was indicted for escape second degree and being a persistent felony offender.

He will be arraigned next Tuesday.

“Guilty”

declined, but did allow them entry into her home under the pretense that they were going to get some water.

When the three left the residence Mrs. Tankersly told police she thought something was wrong and, when she checked her purse, she found that $6,000 in cash had been taken.

The money had been set aside for funeral expenses for her recently deceased husband.

After the three were apprehended by Jackson County Sheriff Tim Fee, Mrs. Tankersly positively identified them. They were taken into custody and placed under a $100,000 cash bond.

The two Boswells, who have been held in the Rockcastle Detention Center since their arrests, pled guilty to Theft By Unlawful Taking, over $300, a Class D Felony which carries a sentence of up to five years.

“We must protect our elderly citizens from harm and the recommendation of four years reflects our intolerance of these type of crimes,” Bartley said.

“Even though this is their first felony offense, I think the nature of the crime calls for a sentence near the maximum, I will strongly oppose any early release for the two,” he added.

The two will be sentenced in September.

In other court action on Friday, Frankie Carpenter, 26, of Manchester was the last of three men to plead guilty to several thefts in the Freedom School Road area late in January.

Carpenter was sentenced to three years in prison by Circuit Judge Jeffery At. Burdette.

John McClure, 24, of Haiti Road, Berea pled guilty to criminal possession of a forged instrument, second degree.

McClure’s co-defendant, Karey Dillon, 31, also of Berea, pled guilty to complicity to criminal possession of a forged instrument.

The guilty pleas stem from a six day period in March in which the two forged and used checks stolen from Dillon’s great-grandmother.

Bartley recommended a sentence of three years for McClure and two years for Dillon. The two are scheduled to be sentenced next week.

Nicole Richmond, 26, of Scaffold Cane, who was indicted on February 9th for stealing a chainsaw and handgun from local logger Russell Cope in December of last year, was sentenced to two years in prison for receiving stolen property over $300.

Jessica Johnson Price, 27, of Mt. Vernon had her probation revoked for her association with convicted felon, Chuck Marlow as well as the use of a controlled substance.

Bartley recommended a five year sentence, which was imposed by Burdette.

The prosecutor said he expected additional charges to be filed against Price in Pulaski County, stemming from her role in a home invasion a few weeks ago in the Walnut Grove section of the county.

Jack McCormick, 31, of Honey Comb Road, who was arrested on June 18th, waived presentation of his case to the Grand Jury on charges of possession and manufacturing meth.

McCormick pled guilty to possession of controlled substances, first and second degree and possession of meth precursors and DUI.

He was sentenced to five years in prison but his co-defendant, Gary Wayne Caldwell, 24, who was arrested the same day, will likely receive a much lighter sentence, after he cooperated with police, according to Bartley.

Also on Friday, Bartley filed a motion for a speedy trial in the case of Nicholas Williams, 21, and his wife, Virginia Williams, 20, of Castle Village Apartments, Brodhead.

The two were arrested in April and have been held in the Rockcastle Detention Center on $200,000 cash bonds, after they were charged with incest and sodomy after an alleged incident involving their 21-month-old daughter.

According to Bartley’s motion, Kentucky law allows the Commonwealth to request a trial within ninety days when the victim is a minor and the charges are sexual offenses. The couple was indicted June 8th.

Judge Burdette will hear the motion on Tuesday. If convicted the two could receive up to life in prison.

Bobby L. Brown, 71, of Sand Gap, was indicted for failure of compliance with the sexual offender registry, first offense, by failing to comply with the Kentucky Sex Offender’s Registration System.

On May 4th, State Trooper Tommy Cromer arrested Brown, after he learned Brown was registered as living on Conway Road when he actually had been living in a pull-behind trailer at the Spur Truck Stop.

Another arrest warrant for Brown, who was released on his own recognizance after his initial arrest, has been issued.

Ronnie Vanzant, 27, of Orlando and Clint W. Daugherty, 19, of Billy Rash Road, Mt. Vernon were indicted on two counts involving a March 22nd incident.

The two were indicted for theft by unlawful taking over $300. The two are charged with stealing road signs from the Kentucky Department of Transportation and the Rockcastle County Road Department.

Vanzant filled a $500 cash bond and will be arraigned on Tuesday. A warrant has been issued for Daugherty.

Approximately $3,100 was raised at the Pongo Volunteer Fire Department's first fish fry on Saturday night. Among those making donations to the fire department was the Mt. Vernon Lion's Club which gave the newest fire department in the county a $100 donation. Above, Mike DeBorde, center, president of the club makes the donation to Pongo Fire Chief, Kevin Blevins, left and asst. chief, Tony Bullock. Blevins said he would like to thank everyone who came to the fish fry, those who donated their time and those organizations who donated money.

Among those in attendance at Saturday night's fish fry were, from left: Pauline Kincer, Sandy Riddle, David Riddle, Lynett Renner, Grace Randolph and Bob Randolph. Mrs. Renner, who is treasurer for the fire department said donations of approximately $3,100 were received at the event, including $100 donations from the Mt. Vernon Lion's Club, Bentley Cromer, Michael Caperton and Tom and Frances Chaney.

Roger Renner, a member of the Pongo Fire Department, helped fry the fish for the nearly 260 plates which were served Saturday night at the fire department's first fish fry. The fish fry was held at Buffalo Baptist Church. The Shopville-Stab fire department donated the equipment to fry the fish and helped out with manpower as well. Other fire departments who supported the event were: Brodhead, Livingston, Western and East Bernstadt.

Filling their plates at Saturday night's fish fry at Buffalo were, from left: Ashlee Tipton, Josh Thompson and Marian Holman. Holman, who is assistant fire chief Tony Bullock's mother-in-law, came from Powell County to support the event.

A 1970 Imperial fire truck, which was on display on Saturday night, was donated to the Pongo Fire Department by the Laurel County Fire Department. So far, four trucks have been given to the department and one truck is on loan to them.

Coy Cromer, center, Brent Boone, left and Gary Mason talk during Saturday night's fish fry at Buffalo. The department now has ten certified firefighters, which is just three short of what they need to be certified as a department by the state.

Dad Steven Higgins holds up his daughter, Molly, at Saturday night's fish fry at Buffalo. The two were among a crowd of over 250 who attended the Pongo Fire Department's first fish fry where $3,100 was raised. Anyone wishing to make donations to the department can call (606) 256-0389 or (606) 256-9328. The 13 members of the fire department are still in need of radios, which cost between $400 and $500 each. (Photos By: Richard Anderkin).

Library News

Pam Chaliff

This week at story hour the children made flowers using coffee filters, a pipe cleaner and markers. The children enjoy making their own creations of flowers. Remember that story hour is every Tuesday at 1:00 all year long regardless of anything unless it is a major holiday.

The biggest news is that Ronald McDonald came to the library this past Thursday. The children and caregivers were fascinated by his magic tricks, tickled by his jokes, and amazed at his talent of entertainment.

Ronald McDonald even made a child be the star of the show. Dylan Bullen was actually floating in the air! Ronald McDonald had amazed everyone. Plus the children and caregivers helped Ronald solve a mystery of a secret message and a few children helped Ronald perform some tricks.

The library is proud to announce the winners of summer reading: in adults Brandy Kirby won first place, in grades 8-12 Jennifer Cox won first place and Cory Bond won second place, in grades 4-7 Jamie Kirby won first place, John Hurley second place and Candice Bishop third place, in grades 1-3

Tony Moore won first place, Alissa Snyder won second place, Breonya Napier won third place, in ages 2-kindergarten Braden Parker won first place, Brandie Moore won second place, and Dylan Bullen won third place. Congratulations to all of the summer reading 2007 winners.

After the performance of Ronald McDonald a pizza party was in the back library. As the children left they were given a treat bag full of coupons and candy, a Ronald McDonald book all about safety, a Ronald McDonald Pencil, a coupon for a free ice cream and a balloon.

The library would once again like to thank all of our sponsors of summer reading. Without sponsors summer reading wouldn't be possible. So thank you once again. The library would also like to thank everyone who has come out to the library to enjoy summer reading and we hope to see you next year here at your library.

Eight students honored at Jackson Energy meeting

Eight southeastern Kentucky students were honored at the recent Jackson Energy annual meeting as the electric cooperative's 2007 scholarship essay winners. The students will each receive a $1,000 scholarship, and were recognized by Jackson Energy Board Chairman Fred Callahan and President & CEO Don Schaefer. Since 1992 almost $90,000 has been awarded to area students.

"The goal of our program is to help local students continue their education so, hopefully, they can return home to good-paying jobs after they finish their college education," said President & CEO Don Schaefer.

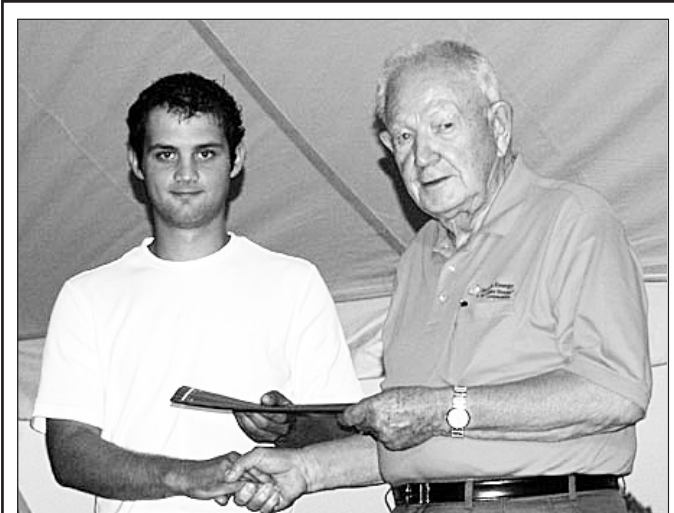

"We want to improve the quality of life in the region we serve, and helping students continue their education is an investment in the student and the region. This is another way Jackson Energy is working for our members."

Receiving scholarships were Allyssa Addison, Beattyville; Veronica Bowling, Oneida; Matthew Bray, Brodhead; Chelsea Belt, Keavy; Ethan Ingle, London; Tyler Allen, McKee; Andrea Taylor, Irvine; and Stephen Gabbard, Ricetown.

In addition to the scholarship essay winners, seven $500 scholarships were given away as door prizes. Winning $500 scholarships were Kari Cotton, Manchester; Ashley Oliver, Irvine; Melinda Garrett, McKee; Benji Hammons, London; Kyle Smith, Beattyville; Jina Amis, Vincent; and Bryan Grubb, Mt. Vernon.

Claudia Brock recently received a tuition check for $1,500.00. Rockcastle Health and Rehabilitation Center, Inc. initiated a nursing scholarship program in January of 2006. They currently have one Registered Nurse Scholarship recipient (Claudia Brock) and two Licensed Practical Nurse Scholarship recipients. Two nurses recently graduated from the LPN program. The scholarship program is extended to employees with at least one year of service that have demonstrated a commitment to excellence and quality care. "We are always looking for quality nurses. We had become a net importer of nursing talent from outside the County and decided to "grow" our own", says Steve Coy, PT, MBA, Administrator of the Facility. RHRC hopes to sponsor a couple of nurses in each graduating class at least over the next several years.

Matthew Bray of Brodhead recently received a $1,000 scholarship as a winner of Jackson Energy's Scholarship Essay Contest. He was recognized by Jackson Energy Board Chairman Fred Callahan at the co-op's Annual Meeting in McKee.
