Saving precious Georgia water

Atlanta skating rink to open with water from King Bottling

When skaters take to the ice rink this weekend at Centennial Olympic Park in Atlanta Georgia, they can zip along knowing they are not, repeat not, skating on that frozen, precious Chattahoochee River water.

Instead they'll be skating on ice made from water at King Bottling Company in Climax and trucked to Atlanta in time for the holiday season.

It was better to get water from 500 miles away, says the guy putting up the rink, than to venture onto "thin ice" and ask the city of Atlanta for the wet stuff during Georgia's continuing drought.

"I wasn't even going to try to broach that," said Rick Glueckert, who operates Ice Guys LLC, the Atlanta company erecting a rink on the 21-acre park. "We're trying to be as civic-minded as we can be."

It's a mind set shared by city and state officials, who have declared a sweeping ban on various types of water consumption across North Georgia.

No one said anything specifically about banning the use of water for an ice rink, but officials felt they'd be better off if the water came from a place where it wasn't in such short supply, said Katy Pando, a spokeswoman for the Georgia World Congress Center Authority, the agency oversees the park's operation.

One of five defendants in same marijuana growing case Trial date set in federal court for Jerry Muncy

The trial date for one of five Rockcastle County residents, who are defendants in a federal drug case, has been set.

Federal authorities in London said Tuesday that Jerry Levi Muncy, 52, of the Brindle Ridge area, would go on trial on January 2nd of next year on charges for conspiracy to knowingly and intentionally manufacturing over 100 marijuana plants, a Schedule I controlled substance.

Muncy was ordered detained on November 6th until his trial date.

He is one of five Rockcastle residents who were indicted last month by a federal grand jury on the same charge.

Authorities said the charge of illegally growing marijuana was the result of an investigation that revealed an indoor growing operation at the residence of Michael Shane Gabbard, 37, of Hurricane School Road.

Gabbard is also being held by federal authorities, awaiting a ruling from a detention hearing on November 2nd.

Another defendant, Christopher Matthew Muncy, 28, is also being held until a ruling is made on his detention, following a hearing on November 8th.

Other defendants, Kathy Diane Baker, 45, and Ingrid Dekauwe, 43, were both released on their own recognizance after their arraignments. Motion hearings for both women have been scheduled for December 3rd.

All five defendants face a penalty of not less than five years and not more than 40 years in prison and a $2 million fine.

Gabbard is also facing an additional five years, consecutive to his drug penalty, due to a federal firearm charge.

Authorities said a weapon was found at his residence when Gabbard was arrested on the drug charge.

Another local man, Johnny D. Owens, 53, who was indicted last month by a federal grand jury, for knowingly and intentionally manufacturing less than 50 plants of marijuana, was arraigned on October 31st and released on his own recognizance.

His case is totally separate from the five other local people indicted, according to authorities.

Landowner questions fiscal court on condemnation proceedings

A landowner in the Sand Springs area was at the fiscal court's regular meeting Tuesday to question the court's decision to condemn part of her property in order to lay a water line to other residents on the road on which she lives.

Alma McCreary, who lives on the road, which is off the old School House Hill Road, in the western part of the county, told the court that she just didn't think it was right for the county to take private property.

She said that if she wanted to put a driveway into her property, she wouldn't be able to because she couldn't cross a water line and that she didn't feel the road needed to be made a public road. "Those people who built the other houses on the road knew when they built that there wasn't water on the road," McCreary told the court.

Community Christmas Dinner is Dec. 16th Livingston gets lower cost for replacing water lines

Livingston City Commissioners got some good news Monday night, at their regular meeting, when they were told by Mayor J.C. Griffin that the low bid, for replacing water lines in the city, was now even lower - $20,000 lower.

Griffin said that he had been informed by HBN, engineers for the project, that Staton Construction Co. of Salt Lick had made a mathematical error in their bid which had resulted in the project coming in at $267,170 instead of the original $287,970.

Griffin said that Staton had said they would honor the bid at the lower price. The low bidder for the new water tank was Weldon, Inc. out of Charleston, West Virginia, at $278,000.

Brodhead has first reading of nuisance ordinance

The Brodhead City Council unanimously passed a first reading of a new nuisance ordinance, for residents inside the city limits, at their regular monthly meeting on Monday night.

The five-page ordinance basically prevents landowners from creating health hazards and eyesores.

The ordinance also carries an enforcement clause which could land violators in court.

"This ordinance eliminates any confusion about what will happen if the city decides to enforce it," city attorney John Ford said. "The city will have the option to do what they have the option to do and choose to do," Ford added.

A public hearing for a second reading of the ordinance is scheduled for Monday night at 7 p.m. at city hall. A copy of the ordinance is on file at City Clerk Becky Bussell's office.

Vacant votes against band fundraiser School safety report good at RCHS, RCMS

By: Richard Anderkin

Rockcastle County School Superintendent Larry Hammond, and Director of Student Services Rose Brown, told members of the Rockcastle Board of Education Tuesday night, that there are basically no problems with safety at either the high school or middle school.

The two told board members that representatives of the state's Center for School Safety and the Kentucky School Board Association were in the county on Tuesday and visited both schools, where they conducted a school safety audit.

Prior to Tuesday's audit, surveys concerning school safety had been sent home and on Tuesday, staff members and students were interviewed at each school.

"At both schools, students and staff members said they felt safe," Hammond said.

Hammond said some students did complain about other

Rockcastle Memories

By David J. Griffin

As a child, do you recall having a special place that you liked to spend time—whether alone or with a couple of friends? I was lucky enough to have that place in the attic of my own home. The house itself was built several years before I was born. My mother (Bea) and my dad (Hobe) had it built after ordering some portions of the house from Sears.

Be explained to me as a child that parts of our house actually came from Sears delivered on a flatbed truck. My brother, Al, is ten years older than his little brother and, he recollects the digging of the foundation. The structure itself was just a basic design and was constructed by Pop's brother, John Bill Stokes, and his son, Floyd, in 1939 or 1940.

The original house only contained four rooms. The attic space was entirely unused except for a tiny space that my brother, Al, requested be floored and separated for a playroom. The walls of the playroom were made like a wooden fence which meant that you could see into the rest of the attic. It was kind of spooky looking at the ceiling joists and the darkness from the tiny playroom of our attic.

Al and his friends used that attic until he went away to college, and I inherited the space when I was approximately 7. There were two entryways into my playroom. Steps had been nailed to an unfinished closet wall so that you could climb up from the inside of the house. There was also a steep, outside stairway with a door to the playroom.

An extension cord had been run up through the closet, providing electricity for a lamp and, of course, a radio. The room contained two Army cots, a small table, and some wooden ammunition boxes which served as storage for "secret" things.

My closest friends and I loved to crawl up the closet wall and "hide out" in our cool room to play. We would lie on the cots and read comic books, including Superman, Batman, Dick Tracy, and The Lone Ranger. The brick chimney was located near the playroom, and during the fall and winter, the bricks kept the room "toasty" warm.

Because the room was in the attic, it was impossible to stay there for any time when the outside temperature was hot. On a few occasions, my friends and I did try to play there during the summer months. We found it intolerable for two reasons—the heat and the wasps. So we saw the wisdom in leaving the secret hideout for cooler times of the year.

I loved going into that room when there was a big snow on the ground. Many afternoons, we went spent there alone reading my comics and playing with my toys. All of my heroes (Lash Larue - Johnny Mac Brown - Gene Autry - Red Rider) spent time with me in that dark, small, fenced-in area. It was a room that appealed to the imagination of a small boy. Each day after my homework was completed, up the closet wall I vanished. I kept my treasures in a lockable box under one of the cots.

When I was a teenager, the radio began to play a more important role in my time there. As I listened to rock and roll tunes and tried to play adventurous waltzes. Every once in a while, I could actually get some far-away station on my AM radio where "Wolfman

Rockcastle Middle School teacher Pam Martin, who is one of many staff members at RCMS who helped with Friday's Veteran's Day Celebration, put it best when she said to me Friday morning, "if it weren't for these people there wouldn't be any books."

Mrs. Martin and I were talking about the program the middle school has held each of the past four years to honor veterans and their families and how it has grown into a special event and how much the students at the middle school learn from the experience.

"There is more to school than just learning from a textbook," she said with a smile.

I'm satisfied most the students and staff came away with more of an appreciation of our veterans and the respect and knowledge gained through the events of the celebration for the veterans -- I know I did.

When you can put a face and name with the word veteran and when you hear some of the hardships of them endured during their time serving their country, you find little reason to complain about how bad you think things are in this country.

Because of our armed forces, and the men and women who have served and are serving our country, we still enjoy freedoms that much of the world only dreams of.

When you sit and talk to a veteran, it only takes a moment to realize that others just like them weren't as lucky and not their lives fighting for this country and, almost in the same thought, you realize each one of those men or women were will to do the same. It is a humbling experience.

Everyday at RCMS should be proud of Friday's celebration and I'm sure, by the reaction of the veterans and their families, that many, if not all, were touched by the events of the day.

If you haven't done so lately thank a veteran for their service and sacrifices that have helped us preserve this great nation.

I wasn't wrong about last week's election, but I didn't think Beshear's margin of victory would be as big.

However, the people of Kentucky have spoken and possibly a lot of that margin of victory came from supporters of the case gambling. If that is the case, since I am an advocate of voting on important issues, in this case, we still have to put on the ballot.

Most politicians are fence-siders anyway and by putting the issue on the ballot they won't have to get involved unless they have a deep desire to vote on their own opinion on the matter.

I don't think casino gambling will generate the staggering amount of money Beshear's camp claims it did - but I've been wrong before.

One of the folks who think casino gambling is wrong, I'm sure there is no state law enacted requiring you to take part.

After all we still live in a democracy, which was evident by last week's general election, and in most cases, we still have the right to choose what we do and don't do. I'm satisfied you won't be forced to go the casino if it does pass.

Pardon Me, Where Do We Go From Here?

Kentucky voters will anxiously await Governor-elect Steve Beshear's efforts to fulfill promises made during his campaign this year's gubernatorial campaign. Few of the many bold, debated campaign issues will draw more attention than the new administration's approach to the constitutional prerogative of the governor to issue pardons.

The decision of Governor Fletcher to issue pardons to members of his administration involved in the merit system investigation prompted protests from many groups, not all of which could be characterized as politically aligned with Beshear's. Inevitably, this issue became a central theme of the election.

Judge David Epp

As recently as November 4th, Beshear's promised to seek a constitutional amendment prohibiting the governor from granting a pardon prior to conviction for a crime and require that each person seeking a pardon submit a personal application. Of course, a similar movement last spring failed in the legislature.

Nevertheless, there is little doubt that the merit investigation generally, and the pardoning of administration officials specifically, contributed to Governor Fletcher's defeat. What remains to be seen is whether Governor-elect Beshear will affirm his campaign promise by seeking to limit the pardon power.

Limiting that authority may not be nearly attractive now that it is solely within the Governor-elect's discretion as to when and where the pardon power will be exercised. And in all candor, a constitutional amendment may not be such a good idea.

Criticisms of granting clemency prior to conviction are not new. In discussing the presidential pardon power, Yale law school professor Charles Berger voiced concerns similar to those heard after the merit-system pardon: "[A] president may cover up damaging information about his administration or himself personally by a timely grant of executive clemency. By pardoning his cronies before trial... the argument goes, a President can prevent such damaging disclosures from coming to light."

If you have needed to have your sinuses cleared out over the last week or so, our kitchen would have served that purpose well. The aroma of drying herbs is so heavy in our house that you can almost feel it.

One night last week, what a day it was that we had a freeze warning. Loretta and I were out in the garden with flashlights gathering the last of the green tomatoes, eggplant, peppers and okra.

An hour later she held the light while I set garden shears to harvest the herbs that relatives can expect from us for Christmas. Parsley (2 varieties), sage (3 different kinds), rosemary, and English thyme along with sweet marjoram, Italian oregano, Greek and Italian basil, Texas tarragon, dill, chives, cilantro along with lemon grass, chamomile and catnip for tea. We also have three flower pots with Bay plants that we bring inside during winter because some need a bit of sun and steam is inferior if it doesn't have a bay leave cooked with it.

All of this is grown in a culinary herb bed that I built ten or so years ago right beside the kitchen door. It's 8 feet long, 4 feet wide, and has a 1/2 inch built out of a 3 inch deep support posts. I simply filled the soil as deep as my tiller would plow, put the rectangular frame on top of it and then filled it up with a 50-50 mixture of compost, top manure, and cheap potting soil and a hum-ded pounds of sand.

To look about an hour or cost less than $25 for lumber manure and potting soil. With out making a long story out of it, just let me say that most of this stuff comes back year after year without me paying plants and I love it. The stuff that isn't perennial (basil, cilantro, dill) re-seeds itself actually has to be thinned out. I do save seed of the mature annual plants and drop a few into the bed every three weeks so throughout warm weather so that we have a constant fresh supply. We use basil an cilantro, especially, on every thing except cornflakes an honey oat cheerios.

I usually have to buy new marjoram and summer savory plants and I have discovered that is more practical to purchase 3 or 4 parsley plants than to fool around starting them from seed. I also replace my Rosemary plants every three years or so when they start looking like the bonsai trees that herb propagators sell.

Fifteen or 20 years ago I got sucked into calling an 800 number while a TV ad was running by one of those companies that is always trying to sell you this miracle contraption that slims you. I discovered that this was for a food dehydrator at $199.99. Of course when they get you on the phone they tell you that if you really need a dehydrator you ought to see the one that costs a hundred Medical aesthetics is redefining beauty!

"Beauty," I think, is a very key term. My focus is on encouraging individuals to define beauty in their own terms and on their self perception rather than conventional standards or the opinions of others. Given the many treatment options available, clients can often feel overwhelmed. In this article I will discuss what to expect in the first medical aesthetics consultation, which is always the first step toward obtaining those services.

The overall goal of this consultation is to help the client identify reasonable goals for his or her unique circumstances and to allow the provider to identify what treatment options are indicated. Clients should consider what reasonable means to them in terms of clinical outcomes and expense. The consult is also an opportunity to ask questions and learn more about medical aesthetics, the experience of the provider and the cost.

Often clients reply, "What do you think is best?" The philosophy that the client must fully understand that medical aesthetics is not another's opinion, but rather about how she perceives herself. A common mistake that can lead a client a wrong treatment path is to agree to a plan of care that is not based on his or her self perception.

After goals are identified, the provider will begin to elaborate on the different treatment protocols that are available. The client or the provider identifies potential medical issues, such as skin lesions, then the client will be referred to her primary care physician. On occasion, the medical aesthetics provider will require written consent from the primary physician. Also, clients should know that the minimally invasive treatments provided by most medical spas are considered cosmetic and are not intended to diagnose or treat any medical conditions.

First and foremost, the initial consult should be considered an opportunity to become educated about available services rather than an obligation to purchase them. The first step toward giving the provider the ability to answer questions is to give a complete physical history. This allows the professional to identify any past medical aesthetics services or any contraindications to specific treatments. It is important for the client to be comfortable with the history. If a client is uncomfortable with a question in the history, then she should not hesitate to ask about its relevance.

In summary, a consultation with an experienced medical aesthetics provider/educator is recommended as a first step for those seeking to make improvements in their personal appearance. The following is what to expect during the initial consult:

1. A comprehensive medical history.
2. Determination of a need for treatment by a written consent from primary care physician.
3. Education on medical aesthetics options including pre and post treatment expectations.
4. Establishment of a treatment plan by the team effort of the client and provider.

After the history is reviewed, the provider will ask about the improvements being sought.

I have seen an angel on this earth. This angel came to my family and has made a strong impact. This angel came to be my step-mother, my dad's true soulmate. When he met her a smile came to his face. Asmile was something I feared I would never see him do again, but he found this angel and he fell deeper in love with her than I could ever imagine. When they married, she accepted me and my sister as her own kids. Loving this angel my dad said death do us part so did she. Standing strong next to my dad through the loss of his mom and his dad, this angel loved him to her last breath and to the day he dies my dad will love her true. Jack" was spinning the tunes. That was a thrill that could cause goose bumps. On most nights, I could listen to Dick Bondi on WLS out of Chicago as he introduced the most popular songs of the time. Sometimes the volume would be turned up just a little more. I was as lost myself in the music. When it eventually got too loud, Bee could be heard yelling up the closet space. "Turn that noise down!"

Although Bee allowed me to use the room for my own listening time, she would not let me spend the entire night sleeping there. I think she was afraid that the house could catch on fire and that she might not be able to get me to safety. At any rate, when it was time to go to bed, she yanked up the closet door and simply said, "David Joe come down and get ready for bed."

Of course there were times when I begged for additional time in my warm and cozy room. The she would demand, "You get out here before my heart don't still have a yearning for something similar—it's just too bad that something that satisfying would have a hard time capturing a boy's attention these days."

Some can reach me at mtvsn@ms.net. Thanks for your many responses.

bucks and to make a long story short, that's the one that I wound up buying.

I put it on the credit card and my marriage just barely survived what Loretta considered a convulsive act of total stupidity and a huge waste of money. But it turned out to be a smart move because it would take at least twice what I paid for it to get it out of our kitchen now and only if we knew we could another one that works as well.

The herbs alone, that she has dried in batches over the last few days would cost three hundred dollars at the grocery store far in inferior products. Don't get me started on drying tomatoes, apples, carrots, beans, venison jerky...

Anyway, we use herbs in something every time we cook, but I'd tend my herb bed if we didn't use anything out of it simply for the satisfaction of watching it grow and just to pinch off a leaf of something to sniff whenever I go out the door. If there's a serious cook in your family, may I suggest that you build him or her an herb bed now and tie a bow around it for Christmas. Come next spring start filling it with whatever herbs your cooks like and soon they'll tell you that they don't know how they ever got along without it.

with examples where the perception existed that a pardon, granted prior to conviction, interfered with the disclosure of information regarding a matter of great public interest. During the hearings prompted by President Ford's pardon of Richard Nixon, Representative John Bingham (D-NY) summarized the country's reaction: "Millions of people are outraged by the pardon not simply because it seems to reward Nixon from being summoned before a court to answer for his conduct, but because it might forever protect the full story of the... administration's violations of the law... from full disclosure." Not surprisingly, the Nixon pardon also prompted calls for a constitutional amendment limiting the President to post-conviction pardons.

Efforts to limit the President's pardon power have failed. Maybe that is a good thing. Better not that the framers of the federal constitution rejected proposals limiting the pardon power to post-conviction because they believed pre-conviction pardons could be used to encourage accomplices to testify against their cohorts in crime.

Moreover, history teaches us that post-conviction pardons may not be practical in cases where dozens, hundred or even thousands of individuals are affected. Certainly, conviction of each and every Vietnam draft dodger would have been near impossible prior to President Carter's grant of clemency for violation of the Selective Service Act. Nor could the Union government, weakened by four years of bitter internal strife, have withstood the bitter acrimony which would have accompanied trial and conviction of every Confederate soldier who was to benefit from the subsequent presidential pardons which commenced in 1865.

In 1910, Charles Bonaparte, writing for the Yale Law Journal, observed that "the who holds and uses... so delicate and far-reaching a power as that of pardon must be ready at all times and to all legitimate critics to render a just account of his stewardship." Perhaps the solution to the dilemma that Governor-elect Beshears must now face lies not with a constitutional amendment, but with recognition that the ballot-box ensures accountability for all executive decisions.

Control Your Blood Pressure

High blood pressure is an extremely common illness—especially as people age. And there are a great number and variety of medicines and treatments for hypertension. But in spite of all the wonderful medicines, it is extremely common for people not to take hypertension seriously. Why should you take hypertension seriously? Because it is the main risk factor for strokes and is a major factor in heart attacks, heart failure, and in diabetic kidney disease. These are the major causes of death and disability as a person ages.

Why don't people take hypertension more seriously? Because it causes so few symptoms until there is a stroke or heart attack, the cost of medicines can add up, there can be side effects from the medicines, and many people just have not had their blood pressure checked.

New guidelines recommend starting with life style changes and an old-fashioned, inexpensive diuretic. Life style changes include an improved diet with reduced salt and fat content, an increase in physical activity to improve the function of the heart and blood vessels, and weight reduction to within 10-15% of one's ideal weight. If a person smokes, it is extremely important to quit.

For a person with hypertension, a combination of medicines is important too. A single drug is seldom adequate. Medicines can be chosen depending on a variety of factors. For example, ace-inhibitors are particularly useful in diabetes because they protect one's renal function. And in someone with angina, beta blockers are a very good choice.

"WHAT IS WRITTEN"

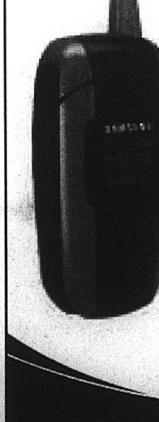

Let's notice from Jesus in John 14:15, 23, "If ye love me, keep my commandments... Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him." Now, beloved, it is clearly taught by our Lord in these passages, that loving Jesus, involves keeping his commandments. It's sickening to hear sectarian preaching like "Hark if you love Jesus!" or "You don't have to do anything to receive salvation, just believe." No, real love and faith moves one to obey the Lord and keep his commandments. People who love Jesus, will want to do exactly what Jesus says. Folks who reject his commandments, but claim to love him and know him, are called liars in the scriptures! "He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him." 1 John 2:4. Notice the promise to those who love Jesus, "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." 1 Tim 4:8. Now observe the warning if we don't love the Lord Jesus, "If any man love not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be Anathema Maranatha." This last phrase means to be accursed when the Lord comes. Jesus' great love for us ought to compel us to want to love him, "We love him, because he first loved us." 1 Jn 4:19.

BES students help to fight hunger

In recognition of October 27th "Make a Difference Day," Brodhead Elementary students held a month long food drive. Students were asked to bring canned food and other non-perishable items to donate to the local mission. Collected food items would help those families in need during the Thanksgiving holiday.

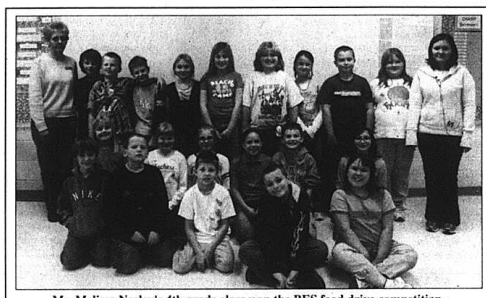

Encouraging students to participate in the food drive was simple. The class with the greatest number of collected items would receive a pizza party. Students were excited about the good spirited competition and tried to collect as many cans as possible for their class.

By October 12th, Brodhead students had already surpassed their goal of collecting 1,000 nonperishable items. This was a great accomplishment for a school with less than 500 students. Since there were several days still left in the October month, a new goal was set. Students were now encouraged to collect a total of 2,000 nonperishable items.

Once the new goal had been determined, the competition between classes really started to heat up. Students were bringing in more and more items each day. "My students were determined to bring in more food than any other class," explained Ms. Melissa, a fourth grade teacher at Brodhead Elementary.

When the food drive finally came to an end on October 31st it was Ms. Melissa's class who came out on top with an astounding 411 items. However, her students were not the only ones with a reason to celebrate. The entire student body had shattered the new record by collecting 2,496 items. Evidence that students at Brodhead Elementary know how to make a difference in their community.

Ms. Melissa Neeley's 4th grade class won the BES food drive competition.

On Friday, November 9, 2007, students from Rockcastle County Area Technology Center traveled to Levi Jackson State Park in London for the Southeast Regional Fall Conference. With 59 students attending, Rockcastle had the largest attendance of any school in the Southeast Region. All students from Rockcastle received their state pin. To receive this students must recite the Skills USA motto, creed, and pledge, explain the components of the emblem and the program of work, and know the Skills USA colors and what the represent. Regional officers were elected with all seven being from Rockcastle. Students elected to serve as officers include: Mitchell Weaver, President, Angel Smith, Vice President, Cody Carpenter, Secretary, Thomas McClure, Treasurer, Brandon Childers, Parliamentarian, Jonathan Gadd, Reporter and Gary Caldwell, Historian. Students attending were from the Automotive, Electricity and Welding programs. Rockcastle Co. Area Technology Center serves 350 high school students enrolled in Automotive Technology, Electricity, Health Science, Office Technology and Welding.

Chamber of Commerce presents "Three Springs and a Wilderness Station"

Mt. Vernon is unique among all other towns in the former Wilderness area of pioneer Kentucky—it is the only one, which began as a frontier station. Langford's Station, founded by Stephen Langford around 1792, was an unusual enterprise in that it was not a military post, nor was it a fort. It was a station without a road leading to it until Langford built one, in the process developing an important river crossing and establishing perhaps a second, forgotten outpost deeper in the Wilderness. The story of early Rockcastle County and Mt. Vernon begins with a conflict over a couple of natural springs in 1780, features a falling-out between a Longhunter and a Revolutionary War veteran, and is partly preserved by fragments left from the 1873 courthouse fire. If you want to be learn more about Rockcastle's history, join us at the Tuesday, November 20th Meeting of the Rockcastle County Chamber of Commerce to hear from historian Jeff Renner. The meeting will be held on the third floor of the Rockcastle County Courthouse at noon. Rockets defeat Panthers in first round of playoffs

By: Richard Anderkin
The Rockcastle County Rockets traveled to Knox County last Friday of playoffs and did just what they wanted to do -- avenged a 15-0 loss in the regular season, beating the Panthers 14-0 on their home field.

The Rocket defeated head Knox Central to just 37 yards, and gave up only four first downs to the Panthers who had gained 212 yards the first time the two teams met in week five of the regular season.

On the other hand, the Rocket offense, which was all but non-existent in their first meeting, had a respectable 171 yards and ten first downs Friday night.

162 of those yards were on the ground and quarterback Dustin Bishop completed one pass for nine yards.

Casey Hayes led the ground game with 102 yards on 22 carries and he scored both of Rockets' touchdowns.

Hayes scored in the first quarter on a 26 yard run and again in the fourth quarter on a two yard run, with just 4:34 on the clock. Zach Burkhardt and Bishop connected on a two point conversion pass to end the scoring.

Besides Hayes' 102 yards, Cody Mize picked up 33 yards on seven carries. Abe Kirby had 17 yards on one carry; Dakota McFerron had six yards on four carries and Bishop carried the ball 11 times for four yards. His only completion was to Matt Bullens for the nine yards.

"Our offense was clicking on a few more cylinders Friday night compared to the first game. One thing we did was move the chains and keep Knox Central in bad field position more this game than in the first," said head coach Tom Larkey. "But our offense still needs to improve in order to score points this week at Bell County," Larkey added.

In week four, Bell County shut-out the Rockets 24-0. Larkey also said he was proud of his defensive coaching staff for the game plan against Knox Central.

"Coach Saylor and Coach Martin had a great defensive game plan and the players carried it out to perfection," Larkey said.

Defensively, Hayes also turned in just as good a performance on that side of the football as he did on offense.

The junior led the Rockets with 13 tackles and assists, followed by Kirby and Burkhardt with six each. Brian Mize and Steve Trimble got five each and Bullens had four.

Scott Daugherty, Trenidy Coffey, Dustin Bullock and Cody Mize each had two and Devon Mason and Cole Abney each were credited with a tackle.

Kirby recovered a Panther fumble and Bullock and Trimble both intercepted passes.

"This was the sweetest victory I have experienced against Knox Central in my years at Rockcastle County. The entire team worked hard all week to make sure everything would go to perfection during this game. The mental attitude of the players was entirely different from the first game we played," Larkey said.

If the Rocket's play-off success is to continue they will have to have the right mental attitude when they travel to Bell County on Friday night. The Rockets play the Bobcats at Log Mountain in the championship game of the district at 7:30 p.m.

Bell County is 11-0 on the season and defeated McCreary Central last week 72-0.

After Friday night's win the Rockets are 6-5 on the season.

The Rockcastle County High School Rocket football team defeated Knox Central 14-0 in the first round of district play on Friday night. The win on the road avenged an earlier 15-0 loss to the Panthers and upped the Rocket's season record to 6-5. Senior Abe Kirby was hammered on this pass play on Friday night at Knox Central, but it didn't knock him out of the game or keep him from turning in an excellent performance. Kirby carried the ball once for 17 yards and he had six tackles and assists, which included a sack and a fumble recovery.

Dollins finishes 11th RCCHS girls' cross-country team place 10th at state championships

The RCCHS girls' cross-country team entered Saturday's Class 2A State Cross-Country Championships looking for their first-ever state title after coming really close two of the past three years. In 2004, the RCCHS girls lost a close one to Highlands, finishing as state runner-up. In 2005, the girls lost the state title by only seven points, finishing a very close 3rd overall.

The previous weekend, RCCHS recorded its 5th regional championship title in the last six years, with sophomore Laura Dollins capturing the individual regional title and five RCCHS competitors placing in the top fifteen to seal the win.

After a relatively healthy regular season for RCCHS that culminated in a 3rd in the final rankings, the state meet would take its toll on the young team. RCMS seventh grader Michaela Hunter developed a stomach virus the day of the race and struggled to compete after a tough morning. Even though she wasn't her normal self, Michaela prepared to do her best.

RCCHS got the race off to a great start at the very beginning. About two hundred yards into the competition, more disaster struck. Sophomore Deana Gabbard and freshman Jessica Albright went down in a huge pile of runners that was reminiscent of a NASCAR crash-one runner went down with everyone directly following her adding to the pile-up. It took so long for everyone to get going again and to recover from the unexpected fall, that RCCHS had already lost eighty to one hundred position points before the first half mile of the race was approached. An uphill battle for RCCHS ensued with three of their top five either injured or sick. The team would never fully recover.

Laura Dollins closed out one of her best seasons' ever with an awesome state meet performance. Laura remained in the top ten for most of the race before finishing 11th overall. Her awesome time of 20:16 represented a new personal best. Laura's performance will likely earn her a 1st or 2nd team all-state award.

Freshman Sara Hammond, operating on just one day of cross-country practice a week over the last month, demonstrated her unlimited potential with an unbelievable state meet performance. Sara finished 3rd in the race with an awesome new personal best time of 20:39. As with Laura, Sara will likely earn all-state honors. Both girls defeated the number one ranked runner in the state, who slipped to 29th place overall at the state meet.

RCCHS freshman Justin Poynter finished 70th in the Class 2A Boys' State Cross-Country Championships with an incredible new personal best time of 18:18.

Michaela Hunter shook off the effects of her illness just enough to manage a solid 47th place finish overall in an exceptional time of 21:16 - an amazing feat considering how ill she was. Last year, Michaela ran the best race of her career, finishing 3rd overall in 19:59. She will also have a chance for all-state honors due to her 7th place regular season ranking.

Deana Gabbard ran a hard-fought race despite her hard fall early on. Although she lost around fifty places total, Deana still managed a 101st place finish with an excellent effort of 22:29.

Jessica Albright also struggled after her hard fall and lost at least fifty places in the race. Nevertheless, she kept fighting to catch back up and finished 132nd overall with a tremendous effort of 23:00.

Both Deana and Jessica

showed a great deal of heart and determination to finish as they did, despite being battered and bruised from their early collision.

Senior Courtney Bullock finished her last state cross-country championship race with an awesome performance. Courtney knocked over a minute off her season's best time, finishing 156th overall in a very impressive 24:12. Courtney has been an integral part of many regional championship teams in cross-country

RCCHS sophomore Laura Dollins led the RCCHS girls with an outstanding 11th place finish at the Class 2A Girls' State Cross-Country Championships with a new personal best time of 20:16. Laura's performance will earn her at least a 2nd team all-state selection and may make the 1st team considering her 8th place seasonal ranking.

RCCHS freshman Sara Hammond finished second for the RCCHS girls' team at the Class 2A Girls' State Cross-Country Championships with a 23rd place finish and an awesome new personal best time of 20:39. Sara's performance will likely earn her all-state honors as well.

Cromer Ridge is no place to ride

After years of unregulated off-highway vehicle (OHV) use, the area known as Cromer Ridge is getting an environmental facelift. A restoration project is underway to improve wildlife habitat and water quality by restoring vegetation, controlling erosion, and eliminating illegal OHV use.

Located in the northernmost section of Laurel County, within the watershed region of the Rockcastle River, the landscape of Cromer Ridge is scarred from years of motorized vehicle use. Thousands of off-highway vehicle riders, who once frequented the area, created user-developed trails that occur extensively throughout Cromer Ridge.

"The vegetation, the water quality, the wildlife...it's all been impacted," said District Ranger John Strojan with the Daniel Boone National Forest. "The Cromer Ridge area is not designated for legal OHV riding," said Strojan. "Thanks to a partnership effort with local government and law enforcement officials, the illegal motorized use in the area has been significantly reduced."

"Because of the widespread recreation use in this area, both public and private land at Cromer Ridge has suffered severe soil erosion problems," said Forest Hydrologist Jon Walker.

"As a result, heavy sedimentation from runoff continues to adversely affect the water quality of the Rockcastle River and its tributaries.

"The restoration efforts are expected to improve water quality in the area once the vegetation and ground cover has a chance for growth," said

Walker. The restoration of Cromer Ridge is funded in part by a grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency under the Clean Water Act through the Kentucky Division of Water. Partners in the project include the Daniel Boone National Forest; Kentucky Division of Conservation; The Nature Conservancy; Laurel County Government; and private landowners in the Cromer Ridge vicinity.

Some roads in the Cromer Ridge area are temporarily gated to prohibit motorized access and allow natural recovery of the land. It is illegal to tamper with or go around these gates.

and has received some offers to continue her running career in college; however, at this point, it appears that she will concentrate solely on her education at the University of Kentucky.

Freshman Jasmin Johnson ran a great race as well. She covered the 3.1-mile course in an impressive 26:16 and finished in 180th place overall.

The RCHS girls' team finished 10th overall, despite all of the difficulties they encountered.

tered. This marked the fifth time in the last six seasons that the girls' team has finished in the top ten at the state championships in cross-country. Freshman Justin Poynter ran a spectacular race in his first-ever state cross-country championships. Justin got the race off to a great start, but had some difficulties working his way through the crowded field of runners. He finished in an incredible 70th place overall, impressive for a freshman. His awesome time of 18:18 represented a new personal best effort.

"I'm very proud of our girls' team and of Justin for their impressive state meet performance." Coach Mark Brummett said. "The girls faced some adversity today, but they never quit. If they continue to approach this sport with that kind of attitude, great opportunities will come their way. Justin will certainly continue to develop into a force in our class as he grows and gets stronger with more weight training. Hopefully, we will be back in the position to have another shot at the state title next season."

The Family Room

By: Dr. Roy Don Whitehead

"Why do I get men like this?" she asked. She had been in three relationships and all three of the men were abusive addicts. She had been miserable with all of them. "They seem so nice at first," she added, "but then they turn into monsters. I don't understand why this keeps happening to me."

No victim consciously goes looking for someone to abuse her. She is looking for love, affirmation, affection and kindness, but not abuse.

Abusers know how to play upon the feelings of vulnerable women. Abusers are men who can be charming and wonderful for several months or longer. The victim is showered with more attention and kindness than she has ever felt before. It is only after she falls in love, moves in with and/or marries the abuser, that he becomes controlling and abusive. At this point it is very difficult for her to escape from the abusive relationship.

There are many reasons a woman may be vulnerable. 1) Her prior relationship may have just ended, and she may be feeling lost and alone. 2) The previous relationship may have been abusive, and she may not have felt loved in a long time. 3) An unhappy, dysfunctional childhood may have crushed her self-esteem and left her feeling unloved. Her childhood may have involved abuse and addictions. She continues to seek love as an adult and may be "looking for love in all the wrong places."

A woman who is vulnerable may miss the warning signs that her new love will become controlling and abusive. She may be so desperate for love and affection that she overlooks indications that he has a temper or drinks too much.

One reason the victim may miss these signs is that the abuser often rushes her into a commitment. He encourages her to move in with him or to get married before she really has a chance to get to know him. This means she does not have time to see any of the warning signs.

What can a victim do to break the cycle of relationships with abusers?

1) She can take a "vacation from men." It takes time to heal from the breakup of a relationship and jumping into another relationship too quickly may mean that she does not have time to heal.

2) She can spend time trying to understand herself and working to change herself. This can happen through reading or keeping a journal of her thoughts and feelings. She may also be helped by seeing a counselor who can help her understand why she has made certain choices in her life. She may benefit from participating in a group with other victims and learning from their wisdom.

Domestic violence shelters often provide these kinds of opportunities.

3) She can work to improve her life by going back to school, making new friends or joining groups that interest her. She can take classes in parenting or other topics that would help her in her daily life.

4) She can stop focusing on a relationship and focus on herself. As she works on herself and becomes more self-confident, she becomes less vulnerable to the abusers of this world.

[If you or someone you know is in an abusive relationship, call Family Life Abuse Center at 800-755-5348.]

Stay safe on the water Tips for Winter fishing

The pleasure boats are gone and the water is now all yours. But don't venture out for your next winter fishing trip without following these top ten tips from Boat U.S. Angler, a membership program that offers services, fishing tips and safety information just for trailer boat anglers:

1. Check the bellies of fish you bring up and if you find still, that's an indication the fish has been glued to the bottom. So take your time presenting the bait or lure, stay in one spot for a longer time and use presentations with smaller baits like drop shot or shaky heads. Find the deepest water close to shore and fish more vertically than horizontally.

2. With the pleasure boating season over there are fewer potential rescuers to assist you in an emergency, so never fish alone. Leave a float plan behind with your spouse, friend, or anyone else who is willing to call authorities if you haven't checked back in at a predetermined time.

3. A spray of line conditioner, such as Reel Magic, will help keep your lines ice-free. Use a smaller line size so you can get better hooksets with less line resistance. Low stretch line is best in the winter as well.

4. Wear layers of clothing - preferably synthetic or wool - but never cotton. It's a poor insulator when wet.

5. Use attractants such as Jack's Juice, which can spray on a soft plastic lure. Fish are sluggish and attractants encourage them to hold on longer.

6. Bring along high-energy foods such as granola bars and warm drinks. It's important to keep hydrated in winter's dry air. Stay away from alcohol, which dilates blood vessels and cools your body's core.

7. Cold water drains energy and body heat rapidly. If you fall overboard, a life jacket can give you the time you need to pull yourself back in the boat before the effects of hypothermia set in. West styles can provide warmth both in and out of the water while automatically inflating life jackets allow great freedom of movement and fit over bulky winter clothing. Also, make sure you have a method to get back in the boat, such as a built-in boarding ladder or a short length of rope with loops for footlocks that is firmly attached to a cleat or other fixed object.

8. According to U.S. Coast Guard boating fatality statistics, January's and February's cold weather represent the greatest fatality risk. Always check the weather before you go. With hypothermia a very real threat, sudden squalls can be deadly.

9. Now is the time to disconnect water pressure and speed hoses behind the helm gauges to prevent freeze damage.

10. When you're done fishing and before you leave the launch ramp, turn the outboard motor all the way down, remove the kill switch and turn the engine over for just a second to pump out any water that may still be inside the motor. Remove any mud or plant debris from the boat or equipment and thoroughly drain livewells or anywhere else water may have pooled to stop the spread of invasive species. Storing the boat high and dry for two days before fishing in a different body of water can also help. Remember, it's your fishery.

Boat U.S. Angler is a program from the nation's largest association of recreational boaters whose mission is to protect the interests of boat-owning freshwater anglers, increase boating safety, provide consumer assistance and ensure fishing remains worry-free. For more information, go to <http://www.boatu.sangler.com> or call (866) 906-0013.

The Cromer Ridge area is prohibited. Motor vehicles must remain on roads. Under a Forest Supervisor's order, the operation of motor vehicles on roads and trails of the Daniel Boone National Forest must be in compliance with Kentucky motor vehicle laws.

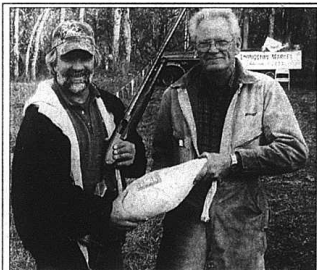

Under Kentucky state law, off-highway and all-terrain vehicles are prohibited on private land without permission from the landowner. On open public roads, motorized use is limited to motor vehicles and operators in full compliance with the Kentucky Department of Transportation. State regulations require strict legal motor vehicles that are properly equipped, licensed, and insured. Vehicle operators must have a valid state driver's license.

"I believe this will have zero impact on area water supplies," she said.

Glueckert figures he'll need about 16,000 gallons to create a layer of ice 2 to 3 inches deep across a rink 64 feet wide and 115 foot long.

If that kind of math leaves you cold, try this: that's enough water to slosh to the top of a pool 16 feet wide, 20 feet long and 5 feet deep.

The rink also will have about 5,000 gallons on hand which is about a kiddie's pool worth, which can be frozen to buttress this two-month in the rink during its two-month run. The rink will be open through Jan. 6, 2008.

King, who owns King Bottling Company at Climax, with his children, David Lynn King and Talona King Rogers, said Glueckert found his water-bottling company on the internet. "He's very happy to find us and to find out we were set up to ship in bulk," King said Tuesday.

King said three tankers hauled the 16,000 gallons from his plant this week, with the last one going out on Tuesday morning.

The lights come on this Saturday at the park. When they do, they'll shimmer in the reflection of some special ice, thanks to some special spring water from Climax.

King Bottling Company has been in operation for four and a half years and sells bottled spring water under the labels of Climax Spring Water, Rocket Fuel, AquaPerfect and other specialty labels such as Centre Colleege.

The plant produces about 3,000 cases of water per eight hour shift and has nine full-time and part-time employees.

students' behavior on school buses and, since that issue is always a concern for school officials, a closer look will be taken.

Each of the county's nearly 50 school buses are now equipped with cameras.

"We have done that in order to help student behavior and to help our bus drivers do a better job," Hammond said.

Hammond also said that the entrance at the Rockcastle High School was also questioned, because of the direct access to the stairs leading to the second floor, and that school administrators would address that issue as well.

"Overall it was a very complimentary audit," he told the board.

In other business, board member Martin Vanzant again questioned a fundraiser for the band at the high school, but even went so far as to vote against it.

Vanzant said he was all for the band but, because their funds do not go into the activity fund at the high school, he was voting against it.

"There shouldn't be an exception," Vanzant said.

Vanzant then asked Hammond to place the subject of the activity fund at the high school on the January agenda.

Principal Jennifer Mattingly and assistant principal and athletic director Barry Noble discussed the fund with the board at an earlier meeting this year. At that meeting, Noble asked for time to get all teams, clubs and organizations, who raise funds at RCIS, to participate in the activity fund, which is administered through the school.

Currently, only the band, football team and boy's basketball team do not run their finances through the school.

Vanzant asked Hammond to have a draft policy of the board ready for them in January. That policy would ensure that all funds at the high school go through the activity fund. "I may be the only board member to vote for that policy but I want it presented to the board," he said.

The agenda item the board also approved emergency substitute teacher applications for: Susan Gray, Amber Bobo, Beverly Wenzel, and Jennifer Alsip.

"Livingston"

Altogether, Griffin told the commissioners that the two projects, replacing water lines and the new water tank, came in at about $225,000 less than expected. That money will have to be returned to the state, Griffin said, unless he can talk them into letting the city keep it for other needed projects. The original grants were for the new water tank and to replace water lines, not construction of new lines.

One such project that Griffin said was needed is the Wildcat Mountain Project. Griffin told the council that the seven residents on 490 and up Gauley Branch would like to have water service and that it would be about a $213,000 project. The distance would be 7.10ths of a mile and would require the city running the line under the railroad tracks and the river.

Griffin said the commission needed an employees handbook and to have an audit for 2006 done for the city to facilitate the two projects. City Clerk Tammy Martin is in the process of acquiring copies of the city's 2006 bank statements for the audit. The financial report compiled by Martin was encouraging for the commissioners. All funds were in the black with all bids received so far in November being paid, including the biggest one for water service to Wood Creek.

During the meeting, Griffin expressed his appreciation to outgoing Governor Fletcher and his administration, saying that during their four year period, Livingston had received $1.3 billion dollars in grants.

Griffin said this was also due, in large part, to efforts of Rep. Danny Ford and Senator Ed Workley.

In other business, the commission set Sunday, December 16th at 2 p.m. as the date for the Community Christmas Dinner. The dinner will be held at the Livingston School gym and the city will supply the turkey, hams and drinks and the rest of the meal will be potluck.

Mayor Griffin also told the commission that he had been informed that the city would be receiving between $3,000 and $4,000 from the recent car show held in Renfro Valley by the Kentucky Music Hall of Fame and Leadership Rockcastle. Proceeds from the event are always split between the three cities and can be used for any project the cities choose. Griffin said the money would be used on Main Street projects.

Griffin also very low interest loans available from Kentucky Infrastructure Authority (KIA) that Livingston had been encouraged to apply for. However, Griffin said that although he might make an application for the funds, he wasn't sure the city should take on the obligation of another loan since their financial situation was not solid enough to be sure the city could repay the loan. "We're doing better than we are at long way to go," Griffin told the commission. "We're still in the belt-tightening stage."

The mayor also gave a report to the commissioners on the five-day PRIDE Roadside clean-up event.

Griffin said that five roads were clean, U.S. 25 South and U.S. 25 north, along with Main Street in Livingston, Hwys. 490 and 1955 for a total of 21 miles cleaned. 543 bags of trash were collected with 42 volunteers, including 12 students from Notre Dame, donating 205 hours of work.

The commission also agreed to purchase more Christmas decorations with money left over from the park project.

"Court"

Mrs. McCreary that she would be able to put in a driveway that would cross a water line but that the county didn't decide which side of the road the water line was laid on. "This is Eastern Rockcastle Water's decision," Carlotis told McCreary. Carlotis also told McCreary that the county had a right to take a private road and make it a public road, as long as there were, at least, four houses on the road. "We don't mean to play hardball but this is not going to affect you in any adverse way," Carlotis told Mrs. McCreary.

McCreary was not happy and told the court, "I can get my own lawyer (to contest the proceedings)," and left the court meeting complaining of the onset of an anxiety attack from the stress caused by the court's decision.

After McCreary's departure, County Attorney Billy Reynolds said that following obtaining easements from other landowners on the road and then filing of the condemnation suit by the county, three commissioners would be appointed by a circuit judge to assess the value of the property, so Mrs. McCreary could receive com-penation for the property taken, and then a judge would make a ruling. However, Reynolds said, it was settled law, that private land can be condemned for public use. "We don't institute these proceedings willy-nilly," Carlotis said "but based on whether or not the public will be benefited."

Carlotis added, "I truly respect private property ownership but multiple landowners will benefit from this proceeding with public utility and a public road and in the end, Mrs. McCreary will benefit from an increase in the value of her property."

The court also approved a Memorandum of Agreement with Eastern Rockcastle Water Association for a 20,000 gallon water storage tank on Hwy. 1249 at a cost of $174,300. The money for the project will come from the county's share of coal severance funds and from the state's multi-county coal funds. The new tank will increase pressure for some Eastern customers and the expansion of water lines.

One such expansion the court is particularly interested in is the Lower River Road, off Sand Springs Road. Residents along the road have deposits twice but, both times, the money has had to be re-funded because financing to lay the water line could not be obtained.

Dale Ponder, a member of Eastern's board of directors, told the court that the project would cost approximately $100,000 and that the association's board had agreed to investigate and see what they could do to provide service to residents. Carlotis said that the county would provide labor to dig the ditch for the line to help the project along.

The court also approved a lease agreement for construction funds for a building for the Pongo Fire Department. The final bid price for the building was $87,232 and Tim Sizemore was the successful bidder. The project is expected to be completed within about five weeks, according to David Hawk, who was at the meeting representing the fire department.

The court also awarded a construction contract for labor for a building at Quail Park to Alan Cromer. Cromer's bid of $7,500 was the lowest of four bids submitted, the highest of which was for $16,000. The contract is for complete construction, excluding plumbing and electrical work.

Mr. Dogwood goes to Washington

Chapter 6
Hi, fellow Americans! We didn't think anything could be better than the Archives, Smithsonian, or monuments, yet the Capitol Building was just as impressive! Chloe and I were thrilled to learn we could tour the Capitol. Like other buildings in Washington, we went through security before entering.

The guards searched my backpack before smiling and saying, "Enjoy." We listened as our guide gave us information about the Capitol. Located in the center of D.C., the Capitol is where Congress makes laws. "There are three main areas of the Capitol," the tour guide explained. "The Senate chamber, the House chamber and the Great Rotunda - the area under the dome where ceremonies are held. Any questions?" My heart fluttered. Mom always said there weren't any dumb questions, so I raised my paw. "My name is Dogw... I mean, no sign, or veto the bill. Even if he vetoes the bill, there's still a chance it could be passed and you would get your 'No Eating Hot Dogs' law."

I was thinking about the Hot Dog Bill when we arrived on the third floor of the Capitol. "Here we can watch Congress," informed the guide. I was amazed as I looked down and saw people actually making our laws. "Why is that person banging a hammer?" The guide explained it was called a gavel, which was struck at the beginning and ending of a session, or to call order. Maybe I could be in charge of the gavel when I grew up. That would be a dream job!

I was still thinking about my gavel career as we exited the Capitol and were inside the U.S. Botanic Garden and saw more than 4,000 plants. "Woody, these are not trees in our back yard, if you know what I mean. Keep all four on the ground at all times!" Dad didn't have to explain that twice, though I was now sorry I had drunk so much Jungle Juice earlier. Mom and Dad must have been worried because we didn't stay there long.

Woody, and I wondered what the Senate and the House of Representatives do? "I thought I heard some snickers, Smithsonian, or monuments, yet the Capitol Building was just as impressive! Chloe and I were thrilled to learn we could tour the Capitol. Like other buildings in Washington, we went through security before entering. The guards searched my backpack before smiling and saying, 'Enjoy.' We listened as our guide gave us information about the Capitol. Located in the center of D.C., the Capitol is where Congress makes laws. 'There are three main areas of the Capitol,' the tour guide explained. 'The Senate chamber, the House chamber and the Great Rotunda - the area under the dome where ceremonies are held. Any questions?' My heart fluttered. Mom always said there weren't any dumb questions, so I raised my paw. 'My name is Dogw... I mean, Shaking, I handed the card to the gentleman. Since I wasn't supposed to talk to strangers, I felt I should know their names, so I quietly and respectfully asked, "We're Secret Service," he answered, "Secret Service?" I repeated, "I love secrets! You can tell me! I won't tell anybody!" The two men looked at me and I knew I was in deep trouble. "We're not in the business of telling secrets, son. Our job is to protect the President of the United States and you just posed a threat. Let's find your parents."

Oh no! The trip had gone so well - a dream come true, yet this was a nightmare and I was praying I would wake up! I don't know what's going to happen, but I know it's not going to be good. I have a feeling the doghouse is in my immediate future. Keep your fingers crossed for me and work and dream like a big dog!"

MVES, Lambert and Hale honored at UNITE Excellence Awards program

Operation UNITE coalition volunteers and students from across the Fifth Congressional District were honored Friday, November 9, for outstanding efforts during the past year. More than 800 people attended the second Education Conference and Excellence Awards program, held at the Eastern Kentucky Expo Center in Pikeville.

Among the awards given out during the ceremony were MVES UNITE Club winning UNITE Elementary Club of the Year, Kentucky Supreme Court Chief Justice Joseph Lambert, of Mt. Vernon, was honored with the Hal Rogers Special Recognition Award and John Hale, of Mt. Vernon, won the Abner Bolin Community Leader of the Year Award.

Lambert was honored for his vision to understand the value of Drug Court as an alternative for non-violent drug offenders.

Drug Court is about hope and opportunity instead of a jail sentence and addiction," said Bob Mitchell, district administrator for Congressman Harold "Hal" Rogers, who was unable to attend the ceremony because of a last-minute schedule change in Washington, D.C.

Lambert, who was involved in the creation of UNITE in 2003, insisted Drug Court be part of the anti-drug program, Mitchell said. At the time, only five Drug Court programs existed in the 29-county Fifth Congressional District. In partnership with the Administrative Office of the Courts, UNITE has added 30 new Drug Court programs.

UNITE's success with Drug Courts has shown the rest of Kentucky what is possible, Lambert said, noting most of the state now has a Drug Court program.

Others award winners were:

- Roy G. Eversole Middle School in Hazard - Middle School UNITE Club of the Year.

- Jackson County High School - a repeat winner as High School UNITE Club of the Year.

- Martha Breeding of Laurel County - UNITE Substance Abuse Counselor of the Year.

- Charley Dixon of Knox County - Recruiter of the Year.
- The Paintsville Aquatic Drug-Free Swim Team in Johnson County - Innovative Project of the Year.

- Braxton King, founding director of the Lord's Gym Sports Outreach Center in McCreary County - Mentor of the Year.

- Cecil and Shirley Gephart from Wayne County's Defense Action Against Drugs - Cornerstone Award.
- Pike County Schools Substance Abuse Task Force under the direction of Superintendent Roger Wagner - Community

Impact Project of the Year.

- SouthEast Telephone Company - UNITE Appreciation Award.

"Day in and day out, we are overwhelmed and saddened by the destruction of this deadly epidemic," Engle told the conference attendees. "Today we celebrate victories - however small they may seem in comparison to this massive problem. We have come to realize that progress begins by taking the first step, and I am proud to say that all of you are taking steps every day."

"Community coalitions are the backbone of UNITE," Engle continued. "They are made up of volunteers that understand this core principle - you're either part of the problem or you're part of the solution. Our coalition members have resolved themselves to being leaders charging toward a solution."

Keynote speaker at the awards luncheon was Mike England, a Northeast Georgia pastor who helped spearhead that region's fight against drugs.

The UNITE model combining law enforcement, treatment and education initiatives can - and should - be implemented in every county in the United States, said England, who learned about UNITE after seeing a program about Clay County's efforts to battle drugs on a 700 Club broadcast.

Inspired by what he saw, England and his wife, DeDe, traveled to Southeastern Kentucky to learn more. Since August 2006, more than 11,000 citizens in four Georgia counties have held marches and rally events to raise awareness.

The day's activities included workshops by Youth to Youth International's Ty Sells, U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration Agent Shannon Argetsinger, WestCare Kentucky's Erdi Loomis, and the Pike County Youth Leadership Council.

For more information about Operation UNITE visit their website address on the internet at www.operationunite.org

A Mother and Grandmother's tribute

A story of a Military Career from 1988-2008

Contributed by Glenis McBee Dick
A very proud mother
Beginning with basic training in 1988 and first stationed at Ellsworth Air Force Base, Rapid City, South Dakota, Stephen M. Dick, formerly of Mt. Vernon and a 1983 graduate of Rockcastle County High School, began his career working with the cabling to the missile sites in the western states and on the Pacific coast.

He and his family resided in base housing during those years at Ellsworth AFB. When the government agreed with other countries to dismantle the missile sites he chose to go into the field of communications. He and his family were sent to Keesler AFB in Biloxi, Mississippi. There he received further training in his new field of communications. He and his family purchased a home in Ocean Springs, MS and through the next years, in his new field, he has been across the "big pond" many, many times working on and laying out communication plans for many sites in Europe and in the U.S.

His first "in harms way" was to Saudi Arabia in 1996. He and his men were sandbagging and preparing their tent with protection from enemy fire and to keep it from blowing away. Through the Red Cross I was able to notify him his Grandfather McBee had passed away. The military put him back on a plane to attend his grandfather's funeral. After the funeral he returned to Keesler AFB in Mississippi.

Through the years he has done communication work in places that are small dots in the middle of oceans, Germany, numerous bases in the U.S., Baghdad and Kfirkuk, Iraq, Kabul, Afghanistan where he is currently working with NATO. His team consists of men from, Denmark, Australia, Germany, England, etc. Interpreters are available to help with the language difficulties. These are people who are trained in the communication field as he is.

Currently his home base is Spandahlern AFB, Germany. He will be returning there the last of November. He has turned in his request for retirement and will be leaving Germany in March and returning to the states.

He will become "Mr." again in June 2008. He is retiring with 20 years, at age 43, as a Master Sergeant and acquired this rank with studying diligently, working hard and making this rank at a younger age than most.

Please remember our men and women in uniform with prayer and congratulate them for being such devoted and honorable men and women in their service to this wonderful United States of America.

Honoring those who serve

I married a young man, who with a Naval Reserve Officers Training Corp scholarship and five years of college, earned a degree in Mechanical Engineering from the University of Louisville.

At graduation he was commissioned into the Marine Corps as a Second Lieutenant. After basic training at Quantico, Virginia we were sent to Camp Pendleton, California and from there to Twenty Nine Palms, California. After three years he was discharged and we returned to Kentucky.

I am very proud of those years and encouraged my sons to serve.

My oldest son, Jerry, entered the Army and served in the desert of California and in Alaska. From his experience he brought home mechanical knowledge of heavy equipment. His experience and training has helped him establishing his own business.

My youngest Stephen has served in the Air Force for twenty years and brings home a wealth of knowledge in Fibre optics in communications.

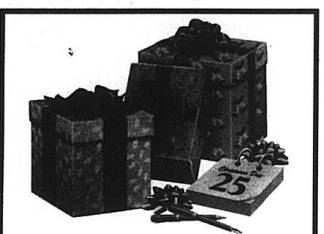

Now I have a granddaughter who attended the University of Kentucky on a scholarship from the Air Force and was commissioned after graduation as a 2nd Lt. She is currently stationed at Wickenburg AFB, England and has the rank of 1st Lt. She married Captain Patrick Kelly in July 2007 and Capt. Kelly is now serving in Kirkuk, Iraq.

Stephanie's parents are MSgt. Stephen Dick and Doris Renee Owens Dick. In England and has the rank of 1st Lt. She married Captain Patrick Kelly in July 2007 and Capt. Kelly is now serving in Kirkuk, Iraq.

Stephanie's parents are MSgt. Stephen Dick and Doris Renee Owens Dick.

Emergency Conservation

Rockcastle County will begin a 20 day sign-up period to implement practice ECP6, Drought Emergency Measures for damage due to drought in the county beginning Nov. 13th.

If so, you may be eligible to receive benefits through the new Livestock Compensation Program (LCP) being offered by the U-S Department of Agriculture.
