Fatal Accident on I-75 Monday

A truck driver for Somerset Food Service was killed in a wreck on I-75 early Monday morning. The Food Service transfer truck hit the interstate bridge pillar at Brindle Ridge as it traveled north. The impact from the crash completely ripped the trailer from the cab, leaving debris from the trailer and its contents all over the interstate. The northbound lane of I-75 was closed for nearly nine hours because of the accident and the southbound lane was closed for about six and a half hours.

At left, Jason Hansel, Steve Griffin, Bryan Hansel and Jack Weaver, all members of the Rockcastle Rescue Squad, hook up the Jaws of Life in order to remove the body of Tommy Kelley, 48, of London, who was killed in an accident at the interstate bridge overpass at Brindle Ridge on I-75 around 12:45 Monday morning. Kelley was driving for Somerset Food Service and traveling north on the interstate. It took rescue workers about 2 1/2 hours to remove Kelley's body from the wreckage. A passenger in the truck was seriously injured in the wreck and taken to Berea Hospital for treatment.

London man dies in traffic accident

Two separate collisions, involving four vehicles, resulted in the tragic death of a London man early Monday morning. According to a news release from the Kentucky State Police Public Affairs Officer Don Trosper, the accidents occurred at approximately 12:45 a.m. at the 68 mile marker on Interstate 75.

Tommy Kelley, 48, of London, driver of a Somerset Food Service tractor trailer who was involved in the second accident, died at the scene.

Trosper said traffic crash reconstruction Trooper Greg Hill had determined that a Chevrolet passenger car was southbound on I-75 when it made contact with a Chevrolet van. The passenger car came to a controlled stop on the south-

Rockslide on US 25 causes two wrecks

Two people received minor injuries Tuesday morning, after their vehicles became entangled in a rock slide on U.S. 25 at the Rockcastle-Madison County line.

Rockcastle Deputy Sheriff Joe Rush said Marty Burton, 39, of Brodhead and Connie Bowman, 58, of Lambert Road were driving separate vehicles, going in different directions, when their cars hit large rocks which had fallen in what is commonly known as Boone's Gap, around 3:45 a.m.

Burton's Ford Ranger pickup and Bowman's Dodge Neon both had to be towed from the scene because of the damage to the vehicles.

Burton said in a published report that he drives US 25, instead of I-75 because he considers Hwy. 25 the safer route. But, after what happened Tues-

Facing $522,000 shortfall

Fiscal Court's financial crisis brings visit from state officials

"The Tax Man Cometh," (from the State Finance Office) and the Rockcastle Fiscal Court was given very little choice at their regular meeting Tuesday, as to what they must do to cover a projected $522,000 shortfall in their 2008-09 budget.

Lonnie Campbell, State Local Finance Officer, met with the court to lay out their options to meet the shortfall and be able to present a mandated balanced budget to the state by the June 30th deadline.

Mr. Campbell's meeting with the court followed a meeting last Thursday between him, and representatives of his of-vice, Judge Buzz Carloftis and County Treasurer Joe Clontz. At that meeting, the county's budget for next fiscal year was gone over with a fine-tooth comb by Campbell and every item that was not a mandated expenditure was tallied and it was found that the county was still going to be very short of a balanced budget.

In fact, while going over the budget, Campbell added several expense items, including more money for the jail's food budget and repayment to the road department, from the gen-

Primary election is next Tuesday

For the first time in several Presidential primary elections, Kentucky voters will have a say in who might or might not be the Democratic nominee for President.

Next Tuesday, the primary election ballot will have races for the Democrat and Republican candidates for President and the Democrat and Republican candidates for U.S. Senator.

Although five names appear on the ballot for the Republican nominee for President, John McCain has already secured the nomination, but that isn't the case in the Democrat Primary.

The 2,277 registered Democrats in the county will choose between Senators Hillary Clinton and Barack Obama.

The Democrats will also get to choose from eight candidates who will try to unseat four term Republican Senator Mitch McConnell. Well known businessman Bruce Lunsford is the front runner in that race.

Burton steps down from school board

After 16 years on the Rockcastle County Board of Education, Terry Burton has stepped down.

Burton, who represented Division Two, comprised of Brown, West Brodhead and North Brodhead voting precincts, attended his last meeting as a school board member on Tuesday night.

Burton, who is stepping down because his future son-in-law is employed by the school system, served as Chairman of the Board for five years of his 16 year tenure.

Kentucky law does not allow immediate family of board members to be employed by the school system or vice versa. In this case, Burton opted to step down instead of his future son-in-law seeking employment elsewhere.

Burton's replacement will be made by the state's Commissioner of Education.

"The process will begin with the advertisement of the opening on the school board and qualified persons interested in the job will then have to make

School Board approves 1% pay increase

At Tuesday night's regular monthly meeting of the Rockcastle County Board of Education, the school board approved a one percent raise for the school system's certified and classified employees for the next school year.

School Finance Officer Richard Bray, said the one percent, the smallest increase in wages in the system since he took over as finance officer several years ago, was brought on by a lack of funding by the last session of the Kentucky General Assembly.

"We wish we could have given a bigger raise, but it was impossible this year," Bray added.

The Rockcastle school system has approximately 500 regular employees with an annual payroll of approximately $16 million.

State Highway Department employees Stephen Jones and Paul Mason are shown working to cleanup a rockslide on US 25 at the Rockcastle-Madison County line on Tuesday morning. The rockslide completely closed the road for about three hours. Two motorists received minor injuries because of the rockslide. (Front page photos by: Richard Anderkin).

Rockcastle County School Superintendent Larry Hammond, left, presented school board member Terry Burton with a plaque on Tuesday night in recognition of his 16 years of service on the Rockcastle County Board of Education. Burton is stepping down because he will soon have a son-in-law working for the Board of Education. State law does not allow school board members to have immediate family working for the Board of Education.

Rockcastle Memories

By David J. Griffin

How Sweet It Was
Our family loved candy, and it was always in our home. A few weeks ago, I was reading an old magazine and noticed ads for candy which can no longer be found. Four of the brands are: Sen Sen (Licorice breath fresheners), Safe-T-Pops (suckers with soft loop handles), Necco Wafers (multi-flavored wafers in a tube), and Bassett's Licorice Twists (long red strings).

It brought back memories of the kinds of candy that were popular and available when I was growing up. Almost everyone can tell you what kinds of candies were consistently in their homes or that were their special favorites during their youth.

My grandfather (Eugene Stokes) or Pop, as we called him, was a traveling salesman for Louisville Grocery Company. One of the perks of his job was to get a discount on groceries if he purchased a case of a particular brand.

It was Mommie Katie's practice to have Pop order a case at a time of Brach's Chocolate Cherries. I cannot remember not having a box of Brach's cherries in the refrigerator. I also recall Mommie Katie sitting in the living room watching TV with a box of them in her lap. She would be insulted if we did not help her consume the delicious concoctions.

The history of candy dates back to the first men on earth. Cavemen dug honey from bee hives to enjoy a sweet treat. During ancient times, the Egyptians, Arabs, and Chinese prepared confections of fruit and nuts candied in honey.

Licorice was found in the treasures of King Tut and dates back as far as 5,000 years. During the Middle Ages, the high cost of sugar made candy a delicacy available only to the wealthy.

Cacao, from which chocolate is made, was discovered in 1519 by Spanish explorers in Mexico. Boiled sugar candies were enjoyed in the seventeenth century in England and in the American colonies.

With such a vast history, it is easy to see why certain candies are more or less adopted by families as their own favorites of the time.

Pop loved the taste of horehound drops. It was his practice to combine horehound, sugar, and bourbon to produce his famous cough medicine. When anyone in the family came down with a cold, out came the horehound cough medicine.

That taste alone would make a person quit coughing. Pop even sucked on the horehound drops when everyone else was eating regular candy. I always thought it tasted like two-day-old coffee.

Pop also kept sassafras-flavored hard candy in our home. I loved the taste of sassafras, too. He and I would sometimes find a sassafras tree and pull off a small twig to use as a toothpick, allowing the sassafras flavor to linger in our mouths. No one else in the family agreed with us about that hard candy.

I even remember the name of the company that produced those drops – it was Claeys Old Fashioned hard candy, and it came in a variety of flavors. The side of the package claimed that the drops were soothing to the throat and relieved dryness.

Mommie Katie also kept a variety of bags of assorted candy in the pantry. She always had: orange slices, chocolate cream drops, candy corn, and those orange-colored marshmallow peanuts. Any time we were watching television, she went to the kitchen and produced several bags of assorted candy. To this day, I think candy and TV should be enjoyed at the same time.

There was one night involving candy that I will always remember. Mommie was sitting in her big platform rocker watching TV and eating a bag of candy corn. The rest of the family was busy doing other things around the house.

All at once, we heard a scream. We all dashed into the living room, half fearful of what we would find. It was a spectacle to behold: Mommie Katie's rocker turned over backward with her feet pointed toward the ceiling. Candy corn literally covered the living room floor. When we asked what happened, she simply replied, "I got interested in the show and just rocked too high."

I also remember one embarrassing event that occurred when I was a senior at Mt. Vernon High School. The senior class was having a cook-out, and I was asked to bring the marshmallows to roast over the open fire.

I asked Mommie Katie to

Faithful Friends (Even Rats) Deserving of Dignity in End

Even a real rat deserves to be treated with dignity and respect at the end of life.

Same goes for turtles, hedgehogs, and bunnies.

Especially if they were someone's faithful friend.

That's why Lorie Clary started Faithful Friends Pet Memory Center in Boone County.

The native Canadian and husband Brian relocated their family to northern Kentucky about 12 years ago. Brian was in the business of managing funeral homes and now works in the casket industry.

"It was his idea to start Faithful Friends," said Lorie. "He really wanted to open a hockey arena, but that was too expensive," said the former lab technician.

In his line of work, he began noticing a growing market for caskets and crematory items for pets.

The couple also became aware of a woman in Indianapolis who operates a free standing pet funeral home. "We hooked up with her and got some ideas for how to go about starting our own business," she said.

Lorie, who grew up on a farm and once had a blind calf for a pet, was also influenced by the loss of two cats to feline leukemia.

"The vet took their little bodies away for disposal and that was that," said Clary, noting no other options were available. "That experience helped us to see the need for a place that would offer a loving and respectful end to our faithful friends' lives," she said.

The center, located in a strip shopping center to the rear of Florence Mall, has served more than 170 families in Northern Kentucky since opening last year.

According to a company brochure, for varying fees pet owners can receive respectful and dignified removal service, private cremation with return of remains, burial arrangements, pet caskets, personalized urns, jewelry, stones and markers, picture/memory frames, remembrance cards, funeral services and visitation, and a certificate of death.

Pre-planning is available and encouraged.

Cremation options range between $125 and $425. Both choices include pick-up of the pet, fur clipping of the pet's hair and a clay paw print. The higher price option includes return of remains in a platinum-lined urn, a pet loss package, and woven throw personalized with the pet's picture.

For those choosing to bury their pets, casket prices range from $125 to $365. All caskets are sealed and include a lined bed.

Kentucky residents may bury their pets close to home, but there are laws governing the details. Burials must be a minimum of four feet deep with the body covered with two inches of quicklime and at least three feet of earth.

In addition, the site must be more than 100 feet away from any watercourse, sinkhole, well, spring, public highway, residence, or stable.

Pet cemeteries are scattered

T.J.'s Journal

by: Tonya J. Cook

Dear Journal:

The last few days has been outstandingly beautiful...the kind of days that would be perfect for almost anything. I've been enjoying sitting on the front porch, and while sitting there, I've read a little but mostly have been watching the wind blowing through the trees, and daydreaming.

There is a lot to be said about daydreaming. I think it's necessary for good mental health. It's a type of stress relief for our over-burdened minds. I'm sure most think it is due to boredom in such places as a school classroom, or even at a church service, but I'm sure that most of us who find ourselves in this process were overburdened with stress before going to the school classroom or the church service, or wherever else we find ourselves daydreaming.

Sometimes I watch the Travel Channel on TV. During the commercials, I occasionally wonder what it would be like to go to some of these wonderful places in far away lands. Can you imagine sailing down the Nile en route to see the pyramids, climbing the peaks of the Swiss Alps, going on a safari in Africa, watching the sun set on the beaches of South Pacific islands, or seeing the sights in Paris, London, or Rome?

I suppose there are a lot of things to daydream about. Other things I find myself focused on are events of the past, and imagining different outcomes. Each outcome could have potentially changed the future in my life ahead.

Then there are the people...people who have touched our lives in so many ways. What have become of old friends we've lost touch with along the way, our former classmates, our former work colleagues, neighbors who have moved away, former boy-friends or girlfriends, and others who were once important to us?

Of course, there are family and friends who are now dead and out of our lives, but not very far away, at least in thought. How many times have they come to mind, especially at family gatherings, the holidays, or just the yearning for daily contact with them?

However, most of the time our thoughts are more common and ordinary. They usually go like this. I sure have a lot to do, and I sure dread having to get started. Luckily, we can day-dream while we are doing our chores, as well.

Points East

By Ike Adams

Ever since moving here to 249 Charlie Brown Road I have waged an ongoing battle with dock and thistles. I would also take up fighting dandelions but I am so discouraged by my failure with the other two that it seems pointless. I've similarly given up on ever ridding the place of honeysuckle vine.

Besides that, if I was able to kill off all the dandelions, our yard would look basically like the surface of the moon. Lots of pits and craters but not much sign of life. At least the humming birds seem grateful for the honeysuckle vines that are beyond my control. And I wonder what the moon would look like now if the landing gear of that first lunar craft had been accidentally stuck in a honeysuckle vine before it left the earth.

Actually the thistles are pretty easy to deal with. One little squirt of name your favorite weed killer and they die off in a day or two. However, my house is surrounded by hundreds of acres of graze land and it would be more than a full time job to keep down all the thistles that spring up in fence rows, alongside ponds, inside brush piles etc.

And only one or two plants need to survive the growing season because the flower heads on these things contain hundreds of thousands of seeds that can travel for miles anytime the wind blows. Not only that, but there are at least 4 different and very distinct varieties here in Lowell Valley and the biggest things they have in common is that they sting like yellow jackets if you get too close to them and they spread like wildfire.

John F. Anderkin

John F. Anderkin, 81, of Mansfield, died Saturday, evening May 10, 2008 in his home following a short illness. He was born August 30, 1926 in Mt. Vernon to Jake and Minnie (Hamilton) Anderkin. A WW II Army veteran, John served in the Asiatic and Pacific Theater and was honorably discharged in November of 1946. The promise of steady work brought John to the Mansfield area in 1949. Shortly thereafter, he married Irene Carter on July 26, 1950. Together they celebrated 57 years of love and commitment. He proudly worked 32 years for General Motors as a tool and die maker, retiring in 1989. His co-workers would agree "Big John" could be cantankerous and liked to tease, but only to be sure everyone was on their toes.

John was an active member of Mansfield Baptist Temple where he served the congregation as an usher. He enjoyed attending regular services with his wife and church family, and found great joy in gospel sings. He also loved spending time working in his garden and around the yard. John or "Gpa" was always a proud supporter of his grandchildren and the activities in which they were involved.

John will be remembered for his uplifting spirit, as he was never one to complain. A man of great character and integrity, his kind ways and gentle guidance truly impacted everyone who knew him.

He is survived by: his loving wife, Irene Carter Anderkin of Mansfield; his daughter and son-in-law Sondra and Paul Doucher of Dublin; two grandchildren, Elizabeth Doucher, and Paul Doucher, II; a step granddaughter and her husband Kimberly and Bob Piascik of Hilliard; two great grandchildren Alexis and Jamison Piascik; two sisters-in-law, Edith Anderkin of Florida, and Bertha Anderkin of North Carolina; and several nieces, nephews, and a host of friends in Christ.

He was preceded in death by: five brothers, Roy, Bill, Herbert, Clarence, and Jake, Jr. Anderkin; and a sister Laura Haskins.

A worship service celebrating the life of John F. Anderkin was held Wednesday at 11 a.m. in Mansfield Baptist Temple with Pastor Dale V. Adkins officiating. Burial, with military honors conducted by the Richland County Joint Veterans Burial Detail, followed in Mansfield Cemetery.

The Marion Avenue Snyder Funeral Home (formerly Finefrock Funeral Home) assisted the family with arrangements.

Memorial contributions to Hospice of North Central Ohio, Mansfield Baptist Temple, the American Cancer Society, the American Heart Association, or the American Diabetes Foundation may be made at the church.

Online condolences to the Anderkin family may be made by visiting www.snyderfuneralhomes.com

Recording Artist Erica Martin to perform at Brodhead Homecoming

Nashville Recording Artist Erica Martin, and her five-piece band, Kickstart, will be performing at the Brodhead Homecoming on Saturday, May 24th at 9 p.m.

Erica and Kickstart offer something for everyone with her powerful voice and an energetic stage show, along with a large variety of music, ranging from the classic country hits of Patsy Cline and Loretta Lynn to the edgy new country sounds of Miranda Lambert, Carrie Underwood and Gretchen Wilson. They also cover lots of classic rock such as Heart, Prince and Lynyrd Skynyrd, along with several of her own tunes. With a single expected to hit the radio soon and a fall tour in the works, this is an opportunity to see one of Kentucky's own country stars before they go nationwide.

"What Is Written"

In I Cor. 16:22 we read, "If any man love not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be Anathema Maranatha." The word anathema means accursed, (damnation, condemnation). This word Maranatha means when the Lord comes. So Paul is telling us, that if we do not love the Lord Jesus, we will be accursed (damned, condemned) when the Lord comes again. Notice Jn. 14:15, "If ye love me, keep my commandments." People who truly love Christ, will humbly obey and follow the Lord. John says, "And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments. He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. But whoso keepeth his word, in him verily is the love of God perfected: hereby know we that we are in him." I John 2:3-5. Jesus is the only solution to our sins. If we fail to love and serve him, we will die and be in lost our sins. Now if you claim to love and know the Lord, and keep not his commandments, John said, "is a liar, and the truth is not in him." We have every reason to serve him, and none to reject him. Do you love the Lord Jesus Christ?

throughout Kentucky.

Nearly all require the purchase of a grave site and a casket and also charge for the opening and closing of the grave.

Faithful Friends Pet Memory Center can facilitate all the arrangements with the cemetery on behalf of people using their services.

Lorie, the lone employee of Faithful Friends, also provides grief support to family members.

“I have no formal training in that, but usually people just need someone who will listen. The death of a pet can cause other hurts to resurface in many instances.

I just offer a sympathetic ear and a hug if they are receptive to it,” she said.

Thus far, services have been provided mainly for cats and dogs with the ratio about 50-50, but Lorie is willing to accept other pets as well.

“We’ve had one bunny, a hedgehog, a rat, and even a 20-year-old turtle,” she said.

That someone would be grieving over a pet rat may come as a surprise to some people, but not Lorie. “Our daughter has rat-sat for a friend, so we know they can be sweet and have lots of personality,” she said.

Other than the odd assortment of animals, the only other out-of-the ordinary circumstance so far has been the occasion when a family had their dog exhumed and brought the remains in for cremation.

Lorie, who has four kids, four cats, and four dogs to tend to at home, says she has “held up pretty well” so far in what can be a stressful occupation.

“I do fine until people start telling me stories about their pets. That tears me up,” she said.

One such story concerned a family pet who got blamed for carrying socks from bedrooms and piling them up in the living room. Not long after the alleged sock-stealing dog died, the family returned home from an outing one day to discover socks scattered about the living room floor.

“Now that one really tore me up,” said Lorie.

get me several bags of them to take to the cookout. A few days later, she handed me a grocery bag containing the packages. Unfortunately, I failed to actually look inside. When I got to the party, I handed the bag to one of the sponsors, who almost immediately remarked, “David Joe, how do you intend for us to roast miniature marshmallows?”

My mother (Bee) preferred to make fudge instead of eating the candy Mommie Katie bought at the store. As I must have said before, Bee’s fudge was the best ever.

Her recipe was one that had been passed down from Mommie Katie and her mother. It included the addition of cocoa to a list of other ingredients such as sugar, butter, and fresh walnuts or hickory nuts.

Bee would often ask me to take the hammer and sit near a large rock and hull a bag of hickory nuts for her wonderful home-made fudge.

I miss her for a multitude of reasons, but oh how I would love to taste a piece of that fudge right now!

Candy – it’s a personal thing, isn’t it? I’ll bet that at this moment you are recalling your own favorites.

“Points East”

I’ve already gone through 4 gallons of weed killer spray aimed specifically at thistles this spring and I figure I’ll need at least four more just to make it safe to walk barefoot through the dandelions. You may get foot cancer from all the chemicals in my lawn but you’re not apt to cripple yourself by stepping on a thistle.

Dock, on the other hand, is a much tougher customer. Dock puts down a taproot as much as two feet deep. The leaves and stems will wrinkle up into ugly contortions and you can tell the plant is suffering mightily when you triple dose it with RoundUP. It’ll turn yellow and brown for a few days and the original leaves may even all off but as soon as the next rain comes along, it comes right back with a vengeance.

If anything, weed killer just makes it tougher. I don’t use weed killer in my vegetable garden so what I’ve done is dig it up by the roots by the five gallon buckets full. On three occasions this year I actually used post hole diggers which is why I know for a fact that the tap roots will go down two feet deep.

Once I’ve finished digging out all the roots I can see, I flood the hole with a couple gallons of boiling water to cook anything that might be left. I’ve learned the hard way that if I leave one little sliver of dock root in the ground, it’ll sprout right back in a few days and the next plant will be far more determined than the first. A good scalding seems to be the one thing dock can’t survive.

Of course, once you dig the roots out, you need to boil them too, otherwise they’ll just sprout right back and take over wherever you discard them.

Last weekend Loretta and I were in Lowes and I swear to you that they had dock roots for sale at $5.99 each!! It was all I could to keep from piling them up in the middle of the garden center and setting them on fire.

Believe it or not, there are many seed companies that will sell you thistle seed so you can get a start of the stuff. Honey-suckle vines start at $5.00 and go up at any number of nurseries and I’m tell you that the owners of these businesses need to be imprisoned. You can even buy dandelion seed!

If you are reading through seed and nursery catalogues, you will find on almost every page one variety or another of something that says “sorry but we can’t ship to California, Washington, Arizona and a couple of other states.” In other words, it’s against the law to ship honeysuckle, dock, thistle and several other noxious weeds, and that is in fact what we’re talking about here, to states where the residents have a little common sense.

And if you live at least ten miles from me and you really can’t live without honeysuckle, dock, thistle and dandelions, please come on over to 249 Charlie Brown Road and help yourself. If you live any closer than that, don’t bother because we’re trying to eradicate this stuff in the southern end of Garrard County.

Of course, when all this stuff spreads to your neighbors’ lawns and gardens they may shoot you. And as far as I’m concerned, they’d be well within their rights.

Cornerstone Fellowship Church established in Mt. Vernon in '29

In 1929, a group of individuals decided to purchase property and construct a church.

A suitable lot, located in the center of Mt. Vernon, was purchased from Dr. Walker Owens.

During the construction phase, a building was rented for the purpose of holding worship services. Ben Doyle was the first pastor of the church and served for many years. George Murphy followed Ben Doyle and served as pastor until 1962. The church was officially incorporated as Mt. Vernon Pentecostal, while under the direction of George Murphy. Charles Shivel was elected pastor in 1962 and served until 1983.

The church underwent many improvements during this time. Central heat and air, a new fellowship hall, carpet, restrooms, and new pews were part of the improvements to the church.

A lot across the street from the church was purchased for additional parking. Gary Gerriatano served as pastor from 1983 to 1988 and many new members were added.

Buford Parkerson served as pastor from 1988 to 2001 and the church continued to prosper during his ministry.

Ryan & Jennifer Lewis

served from 2001 to 2005 and the youth ministry expanded during that time.

The name of the church was changed from Mt. Vernon Pentecostal, by the board of directors.

Agricultural News

By: Warden Alexander, FSA Director

May 31 Final reporting date for small grains

The Farm Service Agency (FSA) reminds agricultural producers of the acreage reporting requirements that must be met prior to receiving program benefits. Filing an accurate acreage report for all crops and land uses, including failed acreage and prevented planting acreage, can prevent the loss of benefits for a variety of programs. The final date to certify small grains is May 31.

Producers must report acreages to maintain eligibility for Price Support Programs, Noninsured Crop Assistance Program (NAP), and Conservation Reserve Program (CRP). All cropland on all farms must be certified to remain eligible for these programs. Producers are encouraged to report all crop acreages for eligibility to participate in future farm programs.

Producers are reminded that other final crop acreage reporting dates are:

- July 15 for certification of all other crops, except small grain and value loss crops. • For Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program (NAP) acreages, earlier of:

15 calendar days before the onset of harvest or grazing of the specific crop acreage being reported, or

July 15 for all crops except small grains and value loss crops.

Livestock Programs
Are you a rancher or livestock producer of Rockcastle County?

Did you suffer feed losses due to a natural disaster such as drought in 2005 or 2007?

If so, you may be eligible to receive benefits through the Livestock Compensation Program (LCP) being offered by the U-S Department of Agriculture.

Have you already received the LCP payment for 2005 but think you had a greater feed loss in 2007? If so sign up again-you may be eligible for additional money.

losses due to a natural disaster such as excessive heat in 2007? If so, you may be eligible to receive benefits through the Livestock Indemnity Program (LIP) being offered by the U-S Department of Agriculture.

At this time no deadline has been established for these programs.

County Committee Election

The election of agricultural producers to Farm Service Agency (FSA) county committees is important to ALL farmers and ranchers with large or small operations. It is crucial that every eligible producer participate in these elections because FSA county committees are a link between the agricultural community and the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

Committee members are a critical component of the operations of FSA. They help deliver FSA farm programs at the local level. Farmers and ranchers who serve on committees help with the decisions necessary to administer the programs in their counties. They work to make FSA agricultural programs serve the needs of local producers.

Committees provide local input on:

- Commodity price support loans and payments;
- Conservation programs;
- Incentive, indemnity and disaster payments for some commodities; and Emergency programs.

FSA committees operate within official regulations designed to carry out federal laws. Committee members apply their judgment and knowledge to make local decisions.

June 15, 2008 - Nomination period begins. Request nomination forms from the local USDA Service Center or obtain online at: <http://www.fsa.usda.gov> under News & Events/County Committee Elections.

August 1, 2008 - Last day to file nomination forms at the local USDA Service Center.

To become a nominee, eligible individuals must sign nomination form FSA-669A.

The form includes a statement that the nominee agrees to serve if elected. This form is available at USDA Service Centers and online at: <http://www.fsa.usda.gov> under News & Events/County Committee Elections.

Nomination forms for the 2008 election must be post-marked or received in the local USDA Service Center by close of business on Aug. 1, 2008.

Agricultural producers who participate or cooperate in an FSA program may be nominated for candidacy for the committee. Individuals may nominate themselves or others as a candidate. Additionally, organizations representing minority and women farmers or ranchers may nominate candidates. The nominee must reside in the county or multi-county jurisdiction.

A crowd of over 100 listened to a brief presentation exalting the possibilities for the site and the hard work that had gone into the restoration over the past five years.

The restoration was made possible with a state grant to the Jackson County Fiscal Court and the original purchase and idea for the project was through the Kentucky Chapter of the Nature Conservancy.

Local craftpersons are welcome to exhibit their wares in the facility, which will be open from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday.

Three fallen Rockcastle County Law Enforcement officers to be honored

The Department of Criminal Justice Training will honor a former Rockcastle County Sheriff's Office, in Sheriff Noah J. Tipton, Dep. Charlie Ramsey and Dep. Leonard Davis along with 22 other officers killed in the line of duty at its annual law enforcement memorial ceremony to be held at the Kentucky Law Enforcement Memorial, located at DOCJT in front of the John W. Tipton died Jan. 16, 1932, Ramsey died Nov. 27, 1943 and Davis died Dec. 4, 1952.

The agency will dedicate the officers' names on the memorial monument during the ceremony, Wednesday, May 21 at 11 a.m.

Kentucky State Rep. Harry Moberly will be the keynote speaker.

Of the 25 names that have been added to the monument this year and will be dedicated at the ceremony, three are of officers killed in 2007.

Forest Hills Chief Randy Wells was killed on Oct. 29, 2007 when his patrol car was hit by a box truck. Wells was blocking traffic when the truck crashed into the back of his vehicle.

The other 22 lawmen whose names will be dedicated at the memorial ceremony were killed in the line of duty between 1875 and 1995, but their names were not added to the national memorial until recently. Trp. Johnny G. Adkins, Kentucky State Police, died Nov. 24, 1995

The Kentucky Law Enforcement Memorial monument is the only monument in the commonwealth that recognizes all Kentucky peace officers who have been killed in the line of duty. This year's additions bring the total number of names on the monument to 407.

The names of the two Kentucky law enforcement officers who were killed this year will be added to the memorial in 2009. Bell County Dep. Sheriff Sean Pursifull was killed January 10 when his patrol car was intentionally rammed by a suspect fleeing the scene of a robbery.

Harlan County Constable Joe Howard suffered a fatal heart attack April 1 after making an arrest and transporting a man to the county detention center.

The memorial foundation was established in 1999 to build the unique memorial. Once the memorial was completed in 2000, the organization expanded its efforts to include an ongoing financial endowment program, which helps Kentucky peace officers and their families with educational, medical and emergency needs.

Lights of Love Brighten the Night

During this year's American Cancer Society Relay For Life, participants will have the chance to remember loved ones and honor those battling cancer with a special luminaria ceremony. This ceremony will be held at Rockcastle County Middle School Track on June 20, 2008 at 10:00 p.m. Each luminaria represents the love that families and friends have for a survivor who has won the battle against cancer or for the memory of someone who lost the fight.

The American Cancer Society Relay For Life began in 1985 and remains a celebration of survivorship and remembrance that raises funds for and awareness of the fight against cancer. The Relay's luminaria ceremony symbolizes the hope and courage with which we continue to work toward a cure for this deadly disease. After sunset at each of the more than 4,200 Relay For Life events nationwide, luminaria decorated with the names of those who have battled cancer are lit and left glowing throughout the night to remind everyone of the incredible importance of their contributions.

Luminaria can be ordered for a minimum donation of $5.00 before the event by calling Betty Purcell at 256-2195 or use the order form below. Luminaria can also be purchased at the event on June 20.

eral fund, of a little over $225,000 borrowed in the last two fiscal years and not repaid. Those items brought the total deficit of the county to the $522,000 figure, higher than the county's own projected deficit of $400,000, a couple of weeks ago.

Campbell told the court Tuesday that the county “needed a pot full of money.” He explained to the magistrates that the reason for last Thursday's meeting was the complaint of a food vendor for the jail who had called his office to say that the jail owed him $180,000 and he could not get his money.

“The bottom line is you must come up with a balanced budget or county government will have to shut down July 1st, but we are not at that point yet,” Campbell told the magistrates.

Campbell did paint a bleak picture, “If you cut every expenditure not mandated by law from the budget, including aid to fire departments, ambulance service, health insurance for employees, library aid, etc., you would only come up with $267,796 in savings and that would still leave you with a net deficit of $254,531,” he said.

As to the support for the sheriff's and county clerk's office, Campbell said it would not be fair to them to cut their support in the middle of their budget year since the court approved their budgets in January, based on the support being available.

Campbell pointed out that the county could not increase their 4% insurance tax since the window of opportunity for this is in January each year and that raising property taxes would be subject to recall. So, that leaves an occupational tax which, at 1% would generate an estimated $829,000 plus about 10% more for a net profits tax on businesses. This would leave the county about $250,000 to invest in economic development in the county, at least the first year, after which naturally rising expenses would, no doubt, eat into that surplus.

On question, Campbell said that his office was presently dealing with four or five other counties in the same situation as Rockcastle and, because of the economic hard times in the state and county, other counties are having to dip into their surplus to balance their budget.

Magistrate John Holbrook said that the county's current financial condition was due, in part, to past fiscal courts' reluctance to avail themselves of the 4% increase of the tax rate each year. “When I was on the court in 1993, I made a motion to take the 4% increase and didn't get a second,” Holbrook said.

Campbell agreed that this action would have helped since taking the 4% increase each year -- which only amounts to about $8,000 to $10,000 additional revenue each year -- would have increased the county's tax base over the years and created more operating revenue. “Action, or no action by the fiscal court, can make a difference in a county,” Campbell said.

Holbrook also pointed out that when the $2 tax on phones in the county was put on to finance 911, “we were told at the time that that would be plenty to operate the program. Well, it isn't plenty now (a $41,000 deficit for 2008-09 is projected for 911) and we need to make sure that if we put on an occupational tax it is ‘plenty’ for some time so we don't have to come back and do this again in a couple of years.” Holbrook added that “1% may get us through this year but what about next year, the next two years and on down the road.”

75 of the 120 counties in the state have an occupational tax, Campbell told the court, with at least 10 of those added in the last two years.

Carloftis pointed out to the court that a county's economic health can be found by looking at the number of transactions recorded in the county clerk's office. He said that before Laurel County levied an occupational tax, they were receiving about $100,000 a year in excess fees from their county clerk. After the tax was added, and some of the money invested in economic development, the court now receives $400,000 in excess fees from the county clerk because of the additional buying of homes, cars, etc. with more and better wages provided for residents by the county's investment in economic development.

Campbell gave the court a deadline of June 10th to begin the process for additional revenue and promised “you can count on us to be at your meetings until this thing is resolved.”

After Campbell's presentation, the court took up other business and there was no discussion about the tax. However, a special meeting will have to be called at some point to meet the June 30th balanced budget deadline.

Wednesday, Judge Carloftis released the following statement concerning the financial crisis:

“Let's face one simple fact as outlined by the state: Rockcastle Countians do not pay enough local taxes to maintain the state's required mandated expenditures for this county. As provided by the state's finance officer, if the fiscal court cut every single item from the budget that is not state mandated (such as ambulance service support, fire protection, support for the county clerk and sheriff, the library, etc) the taxpayers still do not support the county enough to meet state requirements for the county. After all, the average property tax collection from all the county's tax bills amounts only to only $2 per month for the county from each taxpayer, one of the lowest in the state.

How did we, as a county, get into this predicament? In all honesty, the problem did not arise with this fiscal court. Rather, it is a problem that has been festering for generations. Rockcastle's citizens have allowed, for close to 60 years, a political culture to develop that opted for the cheapest government possible, resulting in a local government that has always had problems meeting state required mandates. And, a local government that has always had to rely, almost solely, on grant just to provide citizens with what most of us expect in today's society.

In yesterday's fiscal court meeting, reality was finally brought to the light of day. And this provides us, as members of the court, with a wonderful opportunity to turn back the political quagmire that has engulfed this beautiful county for generations. We must now do what the state says is necessary to carry on the state's required functions of local government.

But, we must take this opportunity to do much better. We must use this opportunity to fully invest in Rockcastle County's future. Even more importantly, these new revenues must be put to use for jobs retention and expansion in the private sector. In other words, strong economic development.

Our citizens deserve much better than having to take second-best and go begging for everything from top-rate facilities for our youth to creating much better paying local jobs right here at home. In all honesty, this would be the very best use of funds by our local government. This can be the key to Rockcastle's future and, if done properly, will become Rockcastle County's most defining moment in history.”

Anglin Falls Road complaint heard

Robert Smith, a resident of Anglin Falls Road, was before the Fiscal Court Tuesday to once again bring to their attention the condition of the road.

Smith said that the road has been deteriorating for the past 18 months and presented several pictures to back up his statement.

“The four foot culvert in the road won't carry the water off and a tree, 8 foot long and 10 inches thick, floated down from the falls and is laying on the road. The blacktop is breaking off after being covered with water,” Smith said.

“If I don't get any action, I might have to have Channel 36 come down and take some pictures,” Smith told the court. Magistrate Bill McKinney retorted that “that might be the best thing then Frankfort might take pity on us and send us the money to fix the road.”

Smith said that a lot of the problem was that the road bed was not in good shape when the blacktop was laid and that the “blacktop wasn't any good to begin with.”

According to Smith, the blacktop started breaking up within months of being laid in 2005.

However, the court could offer no ready solution to the problem, saying that it was next to impossible to get Greer Bros. who laid the blacktop back to repair the job and the county didn't have funds to make repairs at this time.

Smith told the court that he was “very displeased with the situation and will probably go higher.”

The court did get a little good news from a representative of KACO, the county's insurance company. Larry Denney told the court that the county's total premium for next fiscal year would be $177,889, down from $179,465 in 2007-08.

The Boone Gap Railroad Extension Dump will be cleaned up, beginning July 1st. The court had put the job up for bid and received only one, from Keaton Excavating from West Liberty, for $70,000.

The project will be paid for from a Super Grant given the county by the state Natural Resources Department and is expected to be completed by September first of this year.

The court also approved a transfer of up to $7,000 to 911 to meet upcoming payrolls.

Cromer hired as new road chief

In executive session at the end of Tuesday's regular meeting, the court hired Coy Cromer as the new road supervisor to replace Everett Renner who will be retiring effective May 31.

bound shoulder of the roadway while the van crossed the median and came to an uncontrolled stop in the right northbound lane, against the guardrail. No one was injured in either of those vehicles, according to Trospser.

The reconstructionist said that as the northbound traffic was avoiding the Chevrolet van, a second traffic crash occurred between the Somerset Food Service tractor trailer and a Ford pickup truck.

The tractor trailer struck the pickup in the rear, overturned and slid into the concrete bridge pillar of the Brindley Ridge interstate overpass bridge.

Kelley was pronounced dead at the scene by Rockcastle County Coroner Bill Dowell.

A passenger in the tractor trailer, who managed to get out of the cab after the wreck, was taken to the Berea Hospital by an ambulance from Clay County, which was traveling south on the interstate, just moments after the wreck.

Police said the driver of the Ford pickup was also injured and he was taken to Rockcastle Hospital by EMTs with the Rockcastle Ambulance Service.

The impact from the crash tore the trailer completely away from the cab, scattering its contents all over I-75.

Members of the Rockcastle Rescue Squad had to use the Jaws-of-Life apparatus to remove the victim's body from the crash and I-75 was shut down in both directions for several hours so the wreck could be reconstructed.

The southbound lane of the interstate reopened around 6:30 a.m. and the northbound lane was reopened around 9:30 p.m. Traffic was rerouted along US 25 from Mt. Vernon to Berea while the interstate was closed.

day morning, he's not sure anymore.

“I just saw the mountain cave in. There wasn't anything I could do. I couldn't get away from it. It covered the whole road,” Burton said.

Officials are blaming the large amount of rain in the area in recent weeks for the problems, which have apparently eroded the steep rock bank.

Both lanes of US 25 were closed, because of the rockslide, for almost three hours and state highway department employees spent all day Tuesday, and a portion of the day on Wednesday, cleaning up the roadway and shouldering.

While we all have different things we desire, who among us does not desire a roof over the heads of our family, plenty of food for them, adequate health care, clothing and the education necessary for them to do well in their work and in life.

In Rockcastle County, we are fortunate to have the benefit of a strong education system provided by the Rockcastle County School System. With regularity, Rockcastle County Schools, and their students, are honored for their achievements, collectively and individually, in education. We are fortunate to have a group of strong leadership and educators within that organization who are truly committed to the education, growth and development of the young people of Rockcastle County. We continue to see improvements made in the overall education programming and the physical facilities to meet the needs of our young people.

Recently, the Rockcastle County School System completed the construction of the new $9.2 million Technology Center. This state-of-the-art facility has been designed with the latest engineering available to be energy efficient. The facility has also been designed to meet the needs of developing the trade skills necessary to help our young people get the best jobs available. Also, the facility will house a new program committed to the development of tool and die skills in our young people so they will have job opportunities at one of three tool and die facilities located in Rockcastle County. The tool and die training program will help create an opportunity for young people to stay in Rockcastle County and have a good job.

The training program also creates an opportunity for the tool and die companies to hire local young people, looking for better job opportunities but not having to go outside of Rockcastle County for those opportunities.

Finally, the Technology Center also is a critical ingredient in the community's economic development puzzle to be able to offer specialized training needed for new business and industry which could potentially locate in Rockcastle County.

Without the availability of this facility, we would lack a vitally important resource to train our young people for existing and future job opportunities.

Rockcastle County also has the benefit of being located in close proximity to a number of two-year and four-year colleges. Somerset Community College, Berea College, Eastern Kentucky University and the University of Kentucky are just a few of the public and private education institutions we have available as resources to offer our students and potential industries who would locate in Rockcastle County.

These two and four-year institutions are critical supplemental education resources to ensure we are a viable contender for business and industry who are considering Rockcastle County for their potential industry locations.

In the future, the community will need to stand ready to provide the additional support needed for growing our job training and education opportunities in Rockcastle County.

In recent years, there has been talk of a facility which would house those colleges interested in offering additional education opportunities to the people in Rockcastle County.

Not only would this facility be a great asset to the people who live here already, it would be yet another great recruiting tool for potential business and industry considering the area for business locations.

If Rockcastle County is going to be a community committed to economic development, we must ensure that we, as a county, can provide the support needed for the Rockcastle County School System and other education institutions to offer whatever the needs might be of existing and potential new business and industry.

As existing business and industry have a need to change HOW they do business, they have a need to retrain their people. As new business and industry consider communities as potential locations for their companies, the support provided by the education community is essential.

As we think about community economic development in Rockcastle County, we cannot forget the responsibility we have of making sure our young people, and our existing workforce, are trained to have the best opportunities available to them. And, we want to make sure that with their skills developed through education and training, they will have a better opportunity to continue to be a part of the population and community of Rockcastle County.

And, as they live here, buy their homes, groceries, clothes and other services needed, they too become contributors to the growth and development of a strong and diverse economy in Rockcastle County.

application to the commissioner,” said Superintendent Larry Hammond.

Hammond said applications for the job will be available at the central office in Mt. Vernon at a later date.

Hammond said once the application process is complete a committee, appointed by the commissioner, will conduct interviews and then make a recommendation to the commissioner.

Hammond said that if only one person applies for the board position the job will be re-advertised. If still only one person applies, they will be appointed.

Whoever is appointed will serve on the board until the November general election, when races for Divisions Two, Four and Five will be held.

Anyone interested in applying for the seat, should call (606) 256-2125.

The deadline to seek election to the school board in any of the three races that will be on the November ballot is August 12th.

Those filings must be made in County Clerk Norma Houk's office.

that it is too late to register to vote or change voter registration for next week's election. Houk also said 57 applications for paper absentee ballots had been picked up and that 14 people had already voted on the absentee machine set up in her office.

Although the deadline for paper absentee ballot applications has come and gone, voters who will be out of the county next Tuesday and unable to vote, can do so in Houk's office until 4 p.m. next Monday.

Because of the election next Tuesday, there will be no school in the county.

May proclaimed National Drug Court Month

Citizens of the Commonwealth of Kentucky are fortunate to live in one of the beginning few, and now many, states which are recognized for having successful drug courts. Kentucky Drug Courts were implemented by Chief Justice Joseph E. Lambert of the Kentucky Supreme Court. Under Chief Justice Lambert's leadership, the first Drug Court began in 1996 in Fayette County. Since that time, Drug Courts have been implemented throughout the Commonwealth, including Pulaski, Lincoln and Rockcastle counties, and by 2009 there will be a Drug Court in each of the 120 Kentucky counties.

The mission of the Drug Court is to provide a court-supervised treatment alternative to end illicit drug use and related criminal activity and to promote a positive life change through substance abuse education and treatment. Drug Court began in conjunction with OPERATION UNITE, through U.S. Congressman Hal Rogers, as a means for addressing the substance abuse issues confronting our communities. Drug Court proves to be a positive solution to a serious social problem. The program significantly impacts the reduction of re-arrests, re-convictions, and re-incarceration rates. Drug Court has resulted in increased payment of delinquent child support, and improvements in employment rates. For every dollar spent on Drug Court graduates, the Commonwealth saves $2.72 of tax-payer money that it would have otherwise spent incarcerating these individuals. Drug Court coordinates the efforts of the judiciary, prosecution, defense bar, probation and parole, law enforcement, social service, and treatment communities.

Locally, Drug Courts are successfully being held in the 28th Judicial Circuit and the 28th Judicial District. The Circuit Drug Court, which is for adult offenders, is held in Pulaski, Rockcastle and Lincoln counties. Juvenile offenders participate in the District Drug Court in Pulaski and Rockcastle counties.

Circuit Judge Jeffrey T. Burdette implemented the Rockcastle County Drug Court. Currently, Circuit Judges Burdette and David A.

Tapp, in addition to their regular court schedule, preside over weekly sessions of Drug Court in Pulaski, Lincoln, and Rockcastle counties. On a daily basis, Ryan Tucker, the coordinator for the Circuit Drug Court, supervises drug court participants. Additionally, the drug court "team", consisting of various volunteers who work in the judicial system or in the substance abuse field, works with the judges and the coordinator on an equal basis. They volunteer their time and efforts, in addition to their daily schedules, to help achieve successful results for the program.

Prior to the Circuit Drug Court's implementation, the previous Family Court Judge Debra H. Lambert began offering Drug Court for juveniles in 2000. In June 2007, the Juvenile Drug Court was put into service through District Court by District Court Judge Katie Wood. In addition to her regular court schedule for Pulaski and Rockcastle counties, Judge Wood presides over the Juvenile Drug Court. The Drug Court Program Supervisor for the Juvenile Drug Court is Kevin M. Slone, who supervises the youth participants on a daily basis. The District Court Drug Court volunteers countless hours to address and remedy substance abuse issues for the youth in our communities.

RCMS UNITE Club working to help addicts receive rehabilitation

After the United States Congress cut millions of dollars from the UNITE Coalition's budget, some members of the RCMS UNITE Club decided to "Go the Extra Mile for UNITE".

During a meeting earlier this year of the county's UNITE Coalition, a few members of the Club announced that they were forming the campaign, "A Mile of Pennies", which would be used to help pay for drug rehab in the 29 counties of the Lake Cumberland UNITE Coalition. They challenged those in attendance to do the same to "Go the Extra Mile for UNITE".

After the cuts in funds by Congress, only 15 vouchers were being issued per month for the entire 29 counties in the Lake Cumberland Coalition. Each voucher is good for one 90 day stay in a Kentucky rehabilitation facility, which cost approximately $5,000. "But the need is much, much greater than that," said Nancy Hale, a member of the coalition and the advisor for the middle school's UNITE Club.

Hale said before the cuts that whenever someone needed a voucher in order to get help at a rehab facility, it was given. "That is not the case now," she said.

RCMS UNITE Club Captain, Emily Clark, said the group came up with the idea for the name of the campaign, after they calculated that it takes 84,480 laid out end to end to make a mile of pennies. "And pennies add up," she said. The mile of pennies translates into $844.80.

So far the RCMS UNITE Club themselves has raised just over $3,000 through their efforts. All of the other UNITE Clubs at each of the county schools are also involved in the fund raiser, with RCHS raising just over $200 to date.

UNITE Clubs in five other counties, Pulaski, Wolfe, Bell, Harlan and Wayne Counties and the UNITE Club at Berea Community, are involved in the fundraiser.

All of the funds raised will be earmarked for drug rehabilitation and go into the UNITE Coalition's budget.

Work on the campaign at each school will end at the end

Some members of the Rockcastle Middle School UNITE Club have organized the "A Mile of Pennies" campaign to help raise money to financially aid those who are addicted to drugs and need rehabilitation. The average cost for a 90 day stay in a rehabilitation facility in Kentucky is $5,000. Those spearheading the effort at RCMS are shown above, front row, from left: Heather Clontz, McKinzie Todd and Emily Clark. Back row, from left: Hannah Bullock, Hannah Eaton and Katie Cowan.

A dedication ceremony and open house were held Saturday at the new Big Hill Welcome Center on Hwy. 421 where Rockcastle, Jackson and Madison Counties meet. The new center will promote tourism and the Heritage of Eastern Kentucky. Kentucky's Lt. Governor Dan Mongiardo, left, was the guest speaker at the event. Willetta Owens, of Mt. Vernon, presented the Lt. Governor with a Bird House, which was crafted by her son Ron Owens, a nationally known creator of unique Willow Furniture. Owens lives on Mockingbird Hill in Rockcastle. Owens has been making Willow Furniture since the late 1980s. (More photos from the event appear in this week's A-section).

GED graduation at the courthouse

On Friday May 9th, the Courthouse was a happy place for eight inmates from the Rockcastle County Detention Center. Jailer James Miller brought eight GED graduates into the Technology Room to participate in a graduation ceremony. All of the students participated in the Christian Appalachian Project's Adult Education program and had earned their GED credentials.

The traditional Pomp and Circumstance graduation march was played while the graduates entered the room and took their seats. The ceremony was opened in prayer by Tom Conner from CAP and later Jennifer Napier, Director of Rockcastle County Adult Education and Judge Buzz Carloftis gave inspiring speeches. The graduates were presented with certificates of achievement and were applauded by family and friends. In celebration of this special occasion, all in attendance joined in eating pizza and graduation cake. The Christian Appalachian Project Adult Education staff wishes to thank Jailer James Miller for his cooperation in making this a memorable and enjoyable event.

Owens to give class at CAP

David Owens, United States Military Historian, will present a free 90 minute Community Education class on the political, cultural and religious differences between Iraq and the United States. He will have lots of pictures and artifacts from Iraq to enhance his presentation and for those in attendance to examine. The location of the event will be at the Christian Appalachian Project Adult Learning Center at the top of the hill above Renfro Valley Entertainment Center. Please call (606) 256-5307 for more information. This event is FREE and open to all adults in Rockcastle and surrounding counties. This is a great opportunity to learn about living history! No need to register for this event.
