Two jailed for stealing 80 Lortab

A man and woman, accused of stealing 80 Lortabs from a Orlando man on September 11th, are still being held in the Rockcastle County Detention Center under a $10,000 cash bond each.

According to Rockcastle County Attorney Billy Reynolds, Jonathan S. Northern, 29, of Village Street, London and a companion, Angela Newcomb Medley, 25, of Livingston, are accused of stealing the Lortabs from Edward McGuire, who lives on Big Cave Road, when the two went to his home on the 11th.

Reynolds said Medley apparently knew where the pills were kept and, when McGuire went to a bedroom to put clothes on, Northern took the pills from McGuire's medicine bottle which he kept in the kitchen.

Reynolds said Medley told McGuire she would get the pills back from Northern, after McGuire found the empty pill bottle, but instead, Medley left with Northern in a vehicle.

When Northern and Medley were first arrested, they were placed under a $25,000 cash bond, which was reduced on October 1st to the current $10,000.

Both defendants have a December 1st court date, to see if they are indicted by the Rockcastle Grand Jury.

LPC Public Forum for schools is Thursday

The Rockcastle County School system's local planning committee will conduct a public forum on Thursday night (tonight), at the Rockcastle County Middle School Library at 6 p.m.

Rockcastle School Superintendent Larry Hammond said the purpose of the meeting is to develop a new four year district facility plan for the school system.

Hammond said the school district had amended their facility plan for the past several years and met most of their goals on that plan.

"We've got to develop a new plan for the state which will show what our needs are now, and especially down the road," Hammond said.

Hammond said the state will not appropriate funds, unless up-to-date facility plans are on file.

The superintendent said the local planning committee will look at every need in the district, including pre-school and more technology.

"It is a never-ending process to keep our facilities as up to date as possible - good facilities helps us to provide a bet-

Open forum on annexation next Thursday

The newest business in Rockcastle Industrial Park #1 has issued an open invitation to all those interested in the annexation of property, currently being proposed by the city of Mt. Vernon.

Company officials said the forum will be held next Thursday, October 16th at their facility beginning at 7 p.m.

A spokesperson for PD3 said the forum is being held to help citizens determine the pros and cons of an annexation ordinance passed by the city on September 15th and published in the Signal on September 25th, which will annex property southwest of the city limits, including both Industrial Parks.

Company officials at PD3 said specific invitations have gone out to officials of the city of Mt. Vernon and the Rockcastle Fiscal Court.

The spokesperson for PD3 said, Rex McDonald, President of PD3, will moderate the forum, and that all points of view will be welcome.

According to a release from PD3, the discussion will be moderated, but not limited, and is for the purpose of obtaining information only.

McDonald, who was one of many people who attended a Mt. Vernon council meeting on September 15th to ask questions about the city's proposed annexation, said the day after the meeting that the city should have provided much more information.

McDonald said those affected by the proposed annexation should have gotten projected revenues and a budget as to how any additional money from the annexation would be spent.

McDonald said the annexation matter was being held in an "anti-democratic" fashion.

Several residents, who are being affected by the annexation, have already begun collecting signatures to have the matter placed on the 2010 ballot.

One of those residents, Connie Riddle, said she and about eight other people had

Intramural soccer begins at RCHS

By: Kevin Canterbury

Football is about to get a little competition when it comes to Fall athletics in Rockcastle county.

Intramural soccer is being introduced this year at RCHS due to the interest that's been shown in the Upward Bound soccer program for Kindergarten through sixth grade children.

With help from Matt Sherrow, a member of First Baptist Church in Mt. Vernon, what started at the church just four years ago has quickly turned into a delight for the community.

Upward Bound soccer is a family-friendly church-oriented program that teaches players the values in living each day for God and that there's more to sports than just winning, according to another church member Julie Phillips, who helps coach one of the soccer teams.

"Without keeping score, Upward Bound soccer allows kids to go out and just have fun without feeling bad about losing or showing too much pride in winning," she said.

The end of the regular season came to a close on Saturday September 27th, with 172 kids enrolled, and it's easy to see why the sport is migrating to RCHS.

After recently being approved by the RCHS Site Based council, intramural soccer will be meeting every Monday and Wednesday for students to learn the basic rules of soccer.

If enough interest can be generated, it will go before the school board and could possibly become another sport for the Rockets to compete in beginning in the Fall of 2009.

Robbie Phillips, who teaches at the middle school, and coaches an Upward Bound soccer team, will be at the helm for the RCHS soccer program.

"We can now offer an alternative sport for those who don't play basketball, football or volleyball and are interested in soccer. It's another way for kids and parents to get involved with sports here in Rockcastle county," says Coach Phillips.

It is truly an exciting time

Editor's Notes

By Richard Anderkin

Most polls in this country indicate that the majority of us are still proud to be an American.

Quite frankly, if you're not you could try to do what the majority of Americans do not do -- vote -- and try to change things to suit yourself.

Just because our government seems to be somewhat ineffective and incompetent these days, I doubt if you'll find it much better elsewhere.

The fact that I am able to share some of my comments and thoughts with the general public about our government, and not be concerned that I may land in jail, is simply one of the many basic freedoms that we, unlike citizens in many other countries, enjoy.

Of course there should be some restrictions on the way we conduct ourselves as Americans and if we initially violate another person's rights we should be held accountable.

Our simple system of the way we do things has obviously worked for the past 230 plus years.

The economic problems on Wall Street have a lot of people worried. Those worries have been passed on to the rest of us, especially those of us in small business. But if you read and understood Corey Craig's op ed, you understand that the financial situation in our area is solid.

Craig explained the situation better than most people could and provided a lot of information to back up his remarks.

The bottom line is that community banks have, by and large, not been involved in some of the risky activities that the large Wall Street firms have and that if you need a loan and qualify, it will be business as usual. You'll get that loan and our local banks are as solid as they have ever been.

I am certainly no financial analyst, but my family, including myself, have been in business for over 40 years, so here is my take on what really happened.

Oil companies and their greed, combined with the greed on Wall Street and what we average Americans can afford, has led this meltdown.

They say that everyone wants to own a home. I'm satisfied that is true.

The bottom line is that we want a place our families can call home, whether we can afford it or not. You can fill out a budget that includes a house payment, but does not take into account, how fast and how high gas prices are going to rise, which will completely destroy that budget.

Just go sky to when gas began to skyrocket in 2007. For this simple country boy it is not hard to figure out.

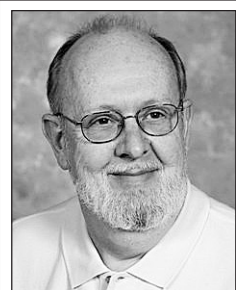

There was less money for mortgage payments, credit card payments, car payments and even food. Then the price of food went up because it took more money to transport food to the locations where it was sold at a much higher price.

Oil companies reported record profits and home ownership continued to decline.

Missed mortgage payments sent the obviously fragile markets into a tailspin, that even billions of dollars in taxpayer's money has not been able to rescue.

Oil companies were making billions in profits and those investing in oil, were doing quite well, while those people who wanted a home and had figured right down the penny how they could pay for it, were taking

"The Good Wife's Guide"

Several weeks ago a reader brought me some vintage magazines to read in order to assist me with ideas for this column. One was a copy of Housekeeping Monthly from May of 1955. In the magazine was an article called "The Good Wife's Guide." As I looked it over, I was amazed at the dated advice. Following is a list of four such ideas: (Remember the date was 1955.)

1. Over the cooler months of the year, you should prepare and light a fire for him to unwind by...after all, catering for his comfort will provide you with immense personal satisfaction.

2. Let him talk first - remember, his topics of conversation are more important than yours.

3. Don't complain if he's late home for dinner or even if he stays out all night. Count this as minor compared to what he might have gone through that day.

4. Remember, he is the master of the house and as such will always exercise his will with fairness and truthfulness. You have no right to question him.

Before you pick up the receiver to call me, please read on. Another good friend of mine shared a cartoon with me recently that demonstrates the opposite view of the above words of advice. It read:

HUSBAND - I've been thinking...I'm the man of this house, so starting tomorrow I want you to have a hot, delicious meal ready for me the second I walk through that door...afterwards, while I am watching television and relaxing in my chair, you'll bring me my slippers and then run my bath. When I'm done with my bath, guess who's going to dress me and comb my hair?

WIFE - The funeral director.

It's obvious we have "come a long way, baby!" As a matter of fact, there is no way my wife could remotely be called a "good wife" under these standards. Nevertheless, I think she is a great wife!

We have managed over the years to divide the chores between the two of us - because we both have always worked outside the home. I don't dis-

Success(ful) stories help Kentucky writer fulfill lifelong dream

Compared to most successful authors, Ann Gabhart has always been the outsider.

A high school dropout and mother of two at 19, she seldom expanded her horizons beyond the small Kentucky farm where she was raised.

She did finish high school through correspondence courses. Another course, in writing, was discovered on the back of a magazine.

In her youth Ann was such a big fan of the Hardy Boys and Nancy Drew mysteries that at age 10, she decided to write a mystery of her own. That started her down the writing trail she's traveled ever since.

Although little in Ann's background suggested she would become a published author, she always had that dream and goal before her.

While she enjoyed being a farmwife and mother, she never stopped working toward her goal of seeing her work in print.

After several of her articles and stories were published in small magazines, Ann's goal was realized in a big way in 1978 when Warner Books published her first novel.

A Forbidden Yearning is a historical romance focused on the settling of Kentucky.

Over the next three decades, her published works would include another historical romance novel, nearly a dozen fiction books for young readers, and more recently, four inspirational fiction novels.

Her only work of non-fiction, Angels At The Crossroads, was published in 2006.

At age 60 she has gained a measure of notoriety for all the aforementioned, but also for writing The Outsider, a historical Christian fiction novel published this fall.

The book with the colorful cover featuring a beautiful Shaker girl was ranked at number 20 for Christian fiction books in September.

The book may be new to the market, but not to its author.

"I wrote The Outsider 25 years ago, but they (the editors) didn't like it," she says while sitting on a sofa in her rural Anderson County home.

"My editor came to see me after my first inspirational novel, The Scent of Lilacs, came out. I told her about the Shakers having a village in Mercer County and how I had written a book about them.

"I had to dig it out of my closet and do a major rewrite for the inspirational market, but they liked it so well that I'm now under contract to do a second one," she says.

The Shaker books require tons of research to make them historically accurate, making for a very time-consuming endeavor, according to Gabhart.

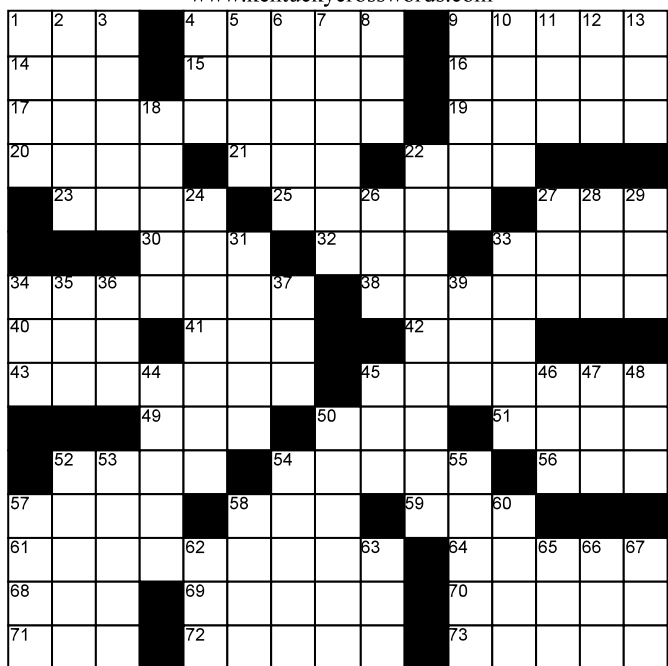

Angels At The Crossroads, which is Jerry Shepherd's story of redemption and love, required little research, but a lot of listening.

Jerry, a Kentucky native, had been singing alongside Gabhart's husband in a quartet for four years. During long bus

Causes of Alzheimer's Disease

Presented by Dr. George W. Griffith

What causes Alzheimer's disease? People have blamed heredity, aluminum cooking bowls, viruses, and numerous other things.

Many comments have been made about the possibility of aluminum causing Alzheimer's. Yet, there are no studies that show that aluminum plays a role, and most experts state that there is absolutely no need to worry about using aluminum cooking bowls or aluminum-containing medicines and deodorants. Nor have other chemicals been proven to be a cause.

Alzheimer's Disease is definitely not the same as aging, although increasing age is the biggest known risk factor. The older a person gets, the more likely he will develop Alzheimer's.

The brain can maintain its capabilities throughout life much better than most other organs in the body. For a person who does not get Alzheimer's, his mind should continue to function normally, although perhaps slower and be a bit more forgetful.

Besides aging, we know that heredity plays a role at times. A few cases appear to run in families. And among identical twins, if one gets Alzheimer's disease, the other has a 40% chance of developing it. Persons with certain genetic abnormalities, such as Down's Syndrome, are much more likely to develop Alzheimer's disease. Yet, 90% of cases appear not to be related to any genetic factor and their cause remains unknown.

Researchers have identified a protein, called b-amyloid, that is elevated in Alzheimer's, but have not found its exact relationship to the illness. Medicines which may affect this b-amyloid and other medicines that may be useful for Alzheimer's are undergoing trials but are not yet available.

Dear Editor,
Attn: Tonya Cook
Our sincere thank you to the Mt. Vernon Signal for the courage to publish Tonya's column of 9/25/08 and to Tonya for the COURAGE to write it. This Country had better wake up before November 4th and realize exactly who and what "NOBAMA" really represents. Like Tonya we would vote for Clarence Thomas or Colin Powell without a moments hesitation. Race is not the issue as much as left leaning liberals would have you believe. The issue is the simple fact that Obama is a sham and is all that Tonya described him to be.

Please Kentucky, THINK before you vote.

Financial crisis is costing us billions...

Dear Editor,
This "newly uncovered?" financial crisis is costing us billions in economic instability and retirement assets.

Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac are at the rotten root of all of this. There's ample blame to go around, and frankly I think the entire congress should be cleaned out. We'll start over from scratch, and THERE WILL BE TERM LIMITS!!! as our founders intended.

What we are being asked to believe from House Banking Committee Chairman Barney Frank, and other banking and housing committee members like Chris Dodd and Chuck Schumer, is that the fault lies with the Bush Administration's lack of "regulatory oversight" that would have fleshed out the greedy crooks. Pelosi & Reid are saying the same.

But correct me if I'm wrong -- haven't the democrats been at the helm and chaired these vital congressional oversight committees since 2006? Beginning in 2004 these very same people insisted that Fannie & Freddie were perfectly sound and solvent!! In January 2005, legislation was introduced by Senator Chuck Hagel, Republican of Nebraska, and co-sponsored the same day by two Republican colleagues, John Sununu of NH and Elizabeth Dole of NC, exposing what regulators had found -- that there was financial recklessness at Fannie Mae & Freddie Mac; and that a regulatory agency filed a report charging that Fannie Mae had inflated its earnings, winning big bonuses for its executives - (Franklin Raines, Tim Howard & Jim Johnson??). Look it up for yourself and you can start here - <http://www.swnebr.net/newspaper/cgi-bin/articles/printversion.pl?159402>

So -- If "regulatory oversight" should have caught the dirty rascals who were cooking the books at Fannie & Freddie, as the democrats are saying. And -- If "regulatory overseers" had indeed reported gross irregularities and phony-bolonie in 2005 & 2006 -- then there can be only three conclusions here...

1) President Bush conspired with (democrat party) CEOs at Fannie Mae (Raines, Howard & Johnson) to fleece the public and leave with millions in their pockets, hiding it from Frank & Dodd & Schumer & Reid & Pelosi. That rascally George Bush out-smarted them all once again. Being repeatedly out-smarted by a boob like George Bush (their own opinion of Bush) proves they are not smart enough to sit in those powerful seats.

2) The democrat leadership and committee chairmen were simply too ignorant to recognize what was going on right under their noses, and being reported by the "regulatory overseers" and news papers - which also would prove they are not smart enough to sit in those powerful seats.

(OR)
3) Frank, Dodd, Schumer and all the others, while at the helm of the Banking & Housing Committees for the past two years, heard the reports from the "regulatory overseers" and chose to do nothing -- ignoring the warnings while they profited themselves at the expense of our nation's financial security.

But the funniest thing is - that these democrats then teamed up with President Bush and touted the Paulson Plan as the BEST & ONLY solution to stop the sky from falling!! The same Bush Admin. the democrats say is too lame to pour water out of a boot? they said the Bush Admin.'s BIG $700B bail-out MUST be passed quickly to "save the world's financial markets?" Uhhhhh...

Frank, Dodd and Schumer are at the fore-front of bail-out legislation to stick this slimy mess to the tax-payers - a mess that they've not only been negligent in, but helped to create. While Pelosi and Reid shake their fingers at everyone but themselves. And not only that -- but the "dirty crooks" (Raines, Howard & Johnson) whom the democrats infer should have been fleshed out by "tougher regulatory oversight" are in financial advisory positions in a potential Obama Administration. And we're supposed to be just fine with that???

How long are we going to allow these people - democrats and republicans - to insult our intelligence as they take our money??-?!!

McConnell helped cause financial problems...

Dear Editor,

I'm sure we are all gratified to hear that Mr. Craig's bank is doing so nicely (Facts about the State of the Economy, Oct. 2nd). But the real financial crisis for us is on Signal page A15 where another $250,000 of Rockcastle property was ordered sold to payoff bad mortgages. Every week, we see those boring "notices of sale" and forget that they represent another step down for our county.

It is easy to say that those who bought homes in the past years are to blame for our problems. We know that realtors and mortgage brokers would never pad their wallets by aggressively selling sub prime loans. We know that all home buyers are sophisticated investors who should have known better. But the truth in this editorial is "if not for grace, there go I."

Senator McConnell helped cause this problem by currying to the credit and financial industry by making it impossible for many Kentuckians who declare bankruptcy for whatever reason (including sickness and medical bills) to keep their homes. Is it easier or harder for our neighbors to get back on their feet when we sniff at them being turned out of their homes?

So, Mr. Craig, I'm glad you and your bank are so blessed. But for the rest of us, who are not bank presidents, and especially for those whose land and property are now gone, the rose-colored glasses just don't seem to fit.

Sincerely,
Bob Coffey

their mortgage payment and putting that money into the gas tank, so they could go to work to buy food to feed their family.

I hate to be a band wagon jumper, but in my opinion, George W. Bush has not been an effective President. Anyone with any intelligence and a sense of patriotism would have responded to 911 the way he did and everyone knows we need the best national defense possible. Really. If you think Bush has done a good job, and there are some of my friends, who still do, maybe you should reconsider that you shouldn't just get behind someone because they are a Republican or even for that matter, a Democrat.

I have people I call friends involved in the U.S. Senate race in Kentucky. One young man, who is a fine person and who will do well in life, is a member of U.S. Senator Mitch McConnell's staff. He is, as he should be, loyal to his employer but that doesn't change the facts.

That race is much like the Presidential race, who do you have to vote for.

While I was leaning toward McConnell, it bothers me that he will not debate the issues and the fact he would probably jump off the George Washington bridge if the powers-that-be of the National Republican Party told him to. At least he would be doing something honorable and taking one for the team.

Although he has reflected somewhat on his 24 year record in the Senate in his campaign ads, he has spent millions attacking his opponent, Bruce Lunsford.

If you had done everything you could and voted the way you thought was best for your state, after concerns from your constituents were considered, both Republican and Democrat, then you wouldn't have to attack a wanna-be politician, who it seems would spend every dime of his fortune, simply to be called, Senator, or Governor -- or whatever statewide race was on the ballot.

The bottom line, we have as about as much to choose from in the Kentucky Senate race, as we do in the Presidential race.

From one very interested and, at times, cynical man, who is still very proud to be an "American," this country as always will prevail in a different, very difficult time.

I simply wish every voter in the county would not just vote for a candidate because they are a Republican or Democrat but would instead look at the issues and vote their conscience.

I'd venture to say this year, if you vote either way, it will be a shot in the dark.

Good Luck!

"Ken & Tucky"

rides, he would share bits and pieces of his tumultuous life of wrongdoing and eventual redemption.

"Angels At The Crossroads is the fastest I've ever written a book," says Gabhart, who describes herself as a category fiction writer.

"I like writing and reading fiction because it makes you see things in a different way. You think deeper thoughts, and your mind is opened to new ideas. It's just a way to go into another world."

The success of The Outsider has opened up a whole new world for Gabhart. The once painfully shy country girl is traveling and speaking often to groups about the book.

"I'm over the nerves and ready to get into even more speaking. If they boo and hiss, so what?"

With the glowing reviews and popularity of her new book, booing and hissing isn't likely.

Besides, that would not be a nice thing for book lovers to do to an insider.

"What Is Written"

In James 4:11-12 we read, "Speak not evil one of another, brethren. He that speaketh evil of his brother, and judgeth his brother, speaketh evil of the law, and judgeth the law: but if thou judge the law, thou art not a doer of the law, but a judge. There is one lawgiver, who is able to save and to destroy: who art thou that judgest another?" In the kingdom of God, Jesus is King, the absolute monarch. Jesus has all authority, legislative, executive, and judicial in the kingdom of God. As Jesus said, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." Matt.28:18. Now some folks want to edge in on Jesus's authority. They want to be the lawmaker for the Lord, or to be the judge and jury in human redemption. Folks try decide that Jesus did not know what he was talking about, for instance in the plan of salvation. They decide that men can be saved other ways other than what Jesus said. This is a very presumptive and arrogant on their part to de-throne Jesus from his exalted position. Who am I that I can withstand God. Who am I to legislate new ways for man to be saved. Who am I to be judge and jury in evaluating the spiritual destiny of folks, with my human standards of thinking, Is.55:8, "For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the LORD." I think I will let the Lord be the lawmaker and the final judge.

First Christian Church installs new elevator

First Christian Church in Mt. Vernon is raising people up, and now more than ever in a very powerful way.

The building of their new elevator has enabled people to get to every level of the Church building and completes a nine-month project.

Some of the first to ride the new elevator were longtime, elderly members, Miss Julie Taylor and Mr. Joe Henderson. In addition to them, many others have enjoyed an effortless trip from the back of the first floor to the second floor for worship and the third for classes and other events.

The elevator, which costs more than $250,000, was dedicated back on July 13 when it was originally thought it would be completed, but finishing touches and inspections actually took the finish date well into August.

First Christian would like to thank Billy Dowell for his tireless efforts in the design, progress, and completion of the project. Others to thank include Clifford and Michael Collins and their great crews. Many have given gifts toward the completion of this project and their generosity is gratefully acknowledged as well.

Preaching Minister Bruce Ross says, "First Christian would like to invite you to come to our building located at 160 West Main Street and enjoy friendship, Bible study and worship with us."

And if you need a lift to get to our 2nd-floor auditorium, we can now give you that, too!

Sunday School is at 10 a.m. each Sunday, followed by worship service at 11 a.m. and Sunday evening services at 6 p.m.

Wednesday night Bible Study is at 7 p.m.

For more information call the church at 256-2876.

Longtime First Christian Church member, Julia Taylor took advantage of the new elevator at First Christian Church in Mt. Vernon. First Christian has roots in the county dating back to 1781.

Tom Darst released balloons at the First Christian Church's dedication ceremony for their new elevator held in July. Darst's father-in-law, the late Ed Hunt, was a long-time elder at the church.

First Christian Church elder and chairman of the board Leo Hopkins, cuts the ribbon at dedication ceremonies for the new elevator, held at the church in July. Behind Hopkins are from left: deacon Rick Bryant, elder Don Bowen, deacon Bill Dowell, deacon Joe Mullins, deacon Roger Reynolds, deacon David Henderson, deacon Jason Coguer and preacher Bruce Ross.

On hand at the dedication ceremony for the new elevator at First Christian Church was Dr. Joe Henderson, right, a retired dentist and one of the oldest members of the church, who has and will get a lot of use from the church's latest asset.

Points East

By Ike Adams

The early morning drive from Berea down I-75 to London where you head east on the Daniel Boone is pleasant enough on a cool Saturday morning, especially if you have a big and big-eyed, yearling golden retriever pup sitting in the passenger seat making sure that you hold your truck in the road and doing the subdued, growling "woof" when an 18 wheeler pulls right up beside you in the opposite lane.

Mars came from a litter named for the planets (sisters named Uranus and Venus and brothers named Jupiter and Pluto I'm told) but he is a marvelous dog and I had acquired him for brother Keeter who lives there at Red Star which is a major suburb of Ulvah, there in Letcher County.

Keeter is one of those people who can't live without a golden retriever underfoot and his faithful old companion, Jake, recently departed to the other side and my little brother has been in the deep doldrums ever since. Like most of us Adamases, Keeter has not had the financial capacity to shell out big bucks for a new dog but I had put the word out that he was looking for an affordable pup.

And it all came together last Friday. I have this wonderfully, well-connected, friend whose name is Jackie who has this wonderful friend named Holly who has a cousin who had a dog and 20 then got allergies and it turned out the dog was the cause of her plague. I have another friend named Layne and she knows Jackie and they were doing lunch last Friday with my friend Terry and Jackie was talking about this beautiful golden retriever that her friend was trying to find a home for.

And Terry said, "Ain't Ike looking for a golden for his brother?"

I talk a lot and apparently nobody listens but Terry but all of a sudden my friends started putting it all together. Somebody remembered that I've been looking at the golden retriever rescue magazine.

Somebody remembered that I've been saying golden retriever ten times a day for months. Somebody recalled that my current goal in life was to find my little brother a dog because I was grieving for old Jake almost as much as was Keeter.

Bingo! Jackpot!!! I don't remember who called who first but it was a flurry or calls soon thereafter. Suffice to say that that I was at Holly's house here in Garrard County and that Mars was perfectly content with Holly's chickens there in the front yard but it was also obvious that he knew it was a temporary situation.

I'd have kissed Holly if she'd let me but her husband was right there in the yard but I almost did anyway and then Mars and me were loaded up in the truck. And I was thinking that I'd go back and kiss her when he ain't there.

So he spent the night, did Mars, cuddled up at the at the foot of the bed at our place on Charlie Brown Road last Friday night and we pulled out at dawn on Saturday. And at daybreak, Loretta was saying to me, "Honey, if you'd really like to keep him instead of taking him to Letcher County, we could probably work it out."

Loretta fell in love with old Mars too. But, you see, he was meant to be Keeter's dog from the day that he was born.

When we hit the Clay County Line at 60 mph and the sumacs were vivid red and the sycamores so gold and the mountains just kept getting higher and higher and fog was lifting out of every little hollow and we were listening to religious music on WMMT, old Mars looked over at me from the passenger seat and nodded up and down. We were being swallowed up like Jonah to the belly of the whale and loving it!

"Home!"

"We're going home!" And he wiggled and wagged all over the truck because he knew that whenever we stopped he was going to be home and that he already loved it.

And that's just what we did. We went home.

I came back to Paint Lick on Monday evening but I left Mars curled up at Keeter's feet there on the hillside at Red Star and I can promise you that I've never seen a happier couple in my life.

Dear Journal,

From out of the darkness and the flickering candles came a booming voice saying, "If you have lost your reading glasses, we have them at the DJ's station." Stanley, even through all of the pain he was in, started to laugh. He then leaned over to me and said, "If you have lost your reading glasses, and have no idea where they are, it could be you're at your thirty year reunion."

Yes, indeed, that's where we were. It was the second night of my thirty year high school class reunion. The first night was held at the Levi Jackson State Park. It was an informal type of a gathering, and the food was kept simple, just hot dogs, chips, marshmallows for roasting, and drinks. There was music in the air. Somebody had brought a CD player that was pumping out a lot of 70s tunes, and that meant a lot of disco.

Of course, the most exciting and anticipated aspect was seeing old friends. There were a few classmates on hand that I hadn't seen since graduation night in 1978. Most of the class was local, but we had a good representation from out of state, as well; California, Florida, Ohio, Maryland, Georgia, Colorado, Pennsylvania, and Texas, were all represented, that I know of.

The conversation drifted to the usual topics, as it always does at such gatherings; where so-and-so lived, what they did, who they married, how many children they had, and for the past two reunions how many grandchildren they had. The record is ten grandchildren. We reminisced about the old days, the various teachers and classes we had, the mischievous things that we did, and the list went on and on. Most of the girls hadn't changed a lot. I guess we can thank our hair dressers and Mary Kay and the like for that. A lot of paint on an old barn goes a long way. Quite a few of the boys were beginning to look a "little long in the tooth" About half of them had either gone bald or turned almost gray and most all of us had picked up a spare tire around the middle. There were a lot of us beginning to feel the pangs of arthritis, took high blood pressure pills, and compared surgeries. It sounds like the "Saturday Night Fever" gang is about to collapse into a Sunday morning fizzle.

As the evening wore on, the temperature got chilly, but the spirits were high. One highpoint of the evening came when one classmate arrived rather late, and announced that he had just returned from Keeneland, where one of his horses that he owned had won a purse of over five hundred thousand dollars.

The main event of the weekend was the Saturday night dinner dance at the London Community Center. It was set in a formal atmosphere, and catered by a local French restaurant. I was on the reunion committee this year, and helped decorate the tables, among other things. I'll have to say that they looked really nice, especially the ostrich-plumed topiaries. The music was good. One of our classmates is a DJ, and had an unlimited amount of 70s music, a mirrored disco ball, a smoke machine, and all the "bells and whistles." If we didn't know better, we would have thought that we were at a nightclub.

The whole evening was simply outstanding. The fun and fellowship continued from the previous Friday night, and we had even planned a farewell breakfast at the Golden Corral for Sunday morning. As I left the Community Center that night, I briefly paused and looked back in a bittersweet mood. I looked beyond the festive atmosphere, and knew that almost undoubtedly that this would be probably the last time all that were here would be together.

respect her by staying out all night – and vice versa. It may be a good idea to let the husband talk first, but a good wife will be interested in discussing things as well. Ideally, each will be concerned enough about the other that they want to be together and to converse with each other.

One of the most important blessings that I have with my wife is that we are each other's best friends. I never consider discussing some important topic with anyone without first hearing how she feels about the subject. She offers me the same consideration.

Another blessing we both share is our love of wildlife and spending time in the woods, especially if those woods are on a mountain top. We both agree that the finest six weeks we ever spent together was when we drove from Stanton to Alaska. For over 10,000 miles we were in each other's company exclusively. Our memories of that occasion and the miles covered are all exceptionally fond. Every trip we take is the same. We bond when we are alone together.

T.J.'s Journal

by: Tonya J. Cook

I would like to offer my own "Good Wife's Guide" as it pertains to my own situation. There will be some who agree and some who disagree with my perception of how a good wife should act. This is just my personal opinion.

1. Be loyal – love only him just as you have vowed. Put him first in your life, second only to the Lord.

2. Be supportive – and show him the respect that you expect from him. Remember this is a partnership.

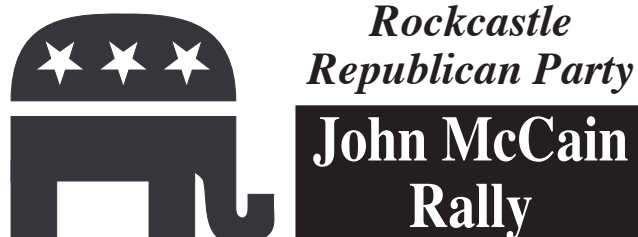

3. Keep yourself attractive to him.

4. Be a good companion –

do things that he likes to do; teach him about things that you enjoy.

I am positive that each couple will have different ideas of what is pleasing to them. The above list is only how I feel and how I understand my wife feels also. We have been together for 30 years, and we both feel blessed that we have had this time together.

We also look forward to spending the rest of our lives together and, in the meantime, trying to improve our relationship with each other. She is truly My "Good Wife," and I thank the Lord for her each day.

Rockets blow Patriots off football field 35-13

The Rockcastle County Rocket football team is 4 and 2 on the season after a 35-13 win over Lincoln County on Friday night.

The Rockets wasted little time getting on the scoreboard, enroute to ruining the Patriots homecoming.

The Patriots, now 0-5 on the season, managed only 155 yards of offense against the Rocket defense, which has played superbly all year long.

The Rockets scored all five of their touchdowns in the first half, to take a 35-0 lead into the locker room at halftime.

Rocket scoring began when senior Jared Smith recovered a fumble and returned it 46 yards for a touchdown, after only three minutes had ticked off the clock.

Five and half minutes later, senior Casey Hayes scored on a one yard run to give the Rockets a 14-0 lead with 3:30 still left on the clock in the first period.

With 7:30 to play in the second period, Hayes scored again, this time on a 14 yard run from scrimmage and the Rockets led 21-0.

Senior Cody Mize added another score on a 12 yard run with 5:00 to go in the half and junior Matt Bullens picked off a Patriot pass and returned it 35 yards for the touchdown and the final score of the first half.

Junior quarterback and placekicker Dustin Bishop made all five extra point kicks he attempted in the first half.

The Patriots had the only two scores of the second half.

One score came on a 35 yard interception return and the other was a 76 yard touchdown run from scrimmage.

Offensively, the Rockets had 252 yards - 206 on the ground and 46 through the air.

Hayes had 143 yards on 26 carries and scored two touchdowns. Mize had 44 yards on 8 carries, Jon Miller got 5 yards on 4 carries and Jadon Brock had 2 yards on one carry.

Bishop was 5 for 14 passing with one interception.

Smith caught two passes for 18 yards, Dustin Bullock had one catch for 17 yards, Jamie Todd, caught one pass for 8 yards and Mize caught one pass for 3 yards.

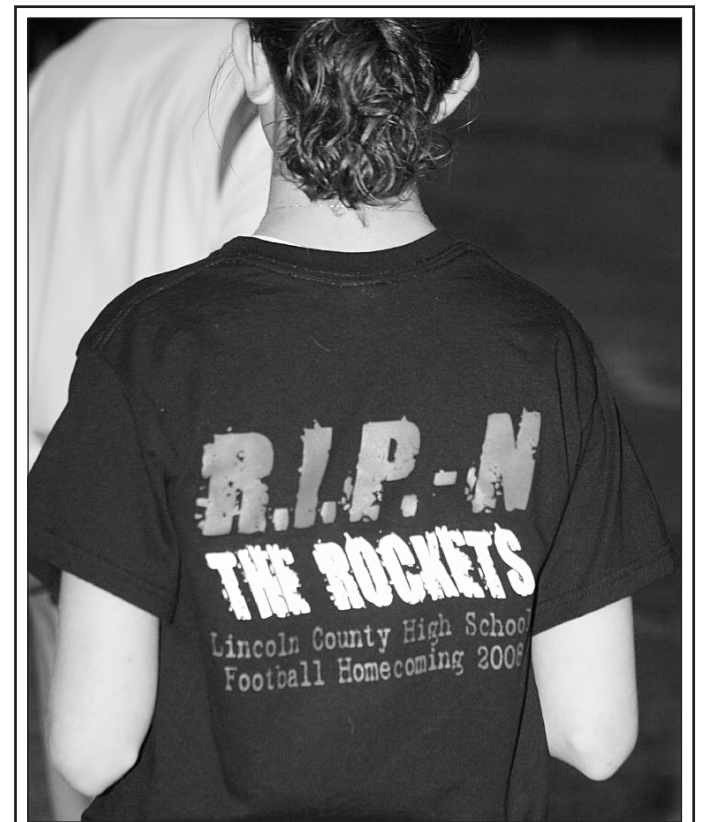

The Rocket defense was led by Mize who had 9 tackles and assists.

Rocket senior Jared Smith #6 narrowly missed blocking this Lincoln County punt on Friday night but he blocked one later in the game. Smith also scored the first touchdown of the game for the Rockets on a 46 yard fumble recovery in the first quarter. The Rockets defeated Lincoln County 35-13 for their fourth win of the season, against only two losses.

Lincoln County fans had high hopes for homecoming on Friday night, when they printed these special t-shirts to show just what they were going to do to the ROCK. Unfortunately for the Patriot fans, the Rockets spoiled their homecoming 35-13.

In Track and Field Thacker signs with EKU

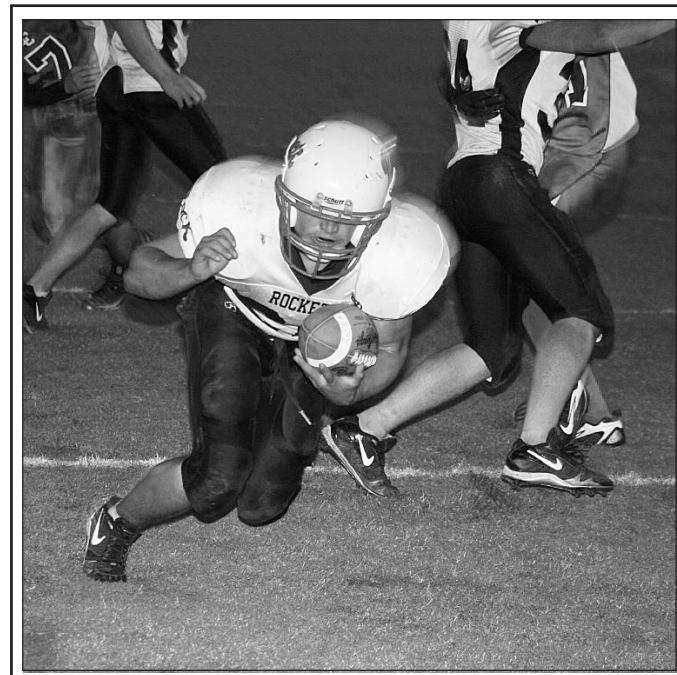

Former RCHS track and field standout Morgan Thacker recently signed with Eastern Kentucky University after receiving a full scholarship to participate in track and field. Morgan graduated from RCHS this past year after having distinguished herself as one of the greatest track and field athletes in RCHS history.

After eleven years of track and field experience, Morgan has compiled many records and awards at RCHS. She is the all-time record holder in both indoor and outdoor long jump with a career best mark of 18'3.5" and was ranked 26th in the U.S. in the event during the 2008 indoor track season. She went on to win her second Class 2A State Championship title in the event, narrowly missing the state record. Morgan is also the all-time indoor and outdoor record holder in triple jump, having leaped a career best 35'3" at last year's state championships. Besides her dominance in the field events, Morgan also holds all-time RCHS records in the 55 and 100-meter dashes, and is ranked # 2 all-time in the 200. She has also been a part of many record-setting indoor and outdoor relay teams. In 2008, Morgan won the Kentucky Indoor Field Event Athlete of the Year award for a 3rd straight season and has won the award in each of the three seasons since its inception in 2006. Morgan has also garnered many all-state athletic and academic awards in her illustrious career.

Morgan comes into EKU's division I track program in great position to make an impact right away. She's nearly one foot better than their best long jumper from a year ago.

RCHS senior Casey Hayes crosses the goal line for his second score of the game on Friday night. Hayes had 143 yards on 26 carries and two touchdowns.

A part of RCHS football history, the 1977 team was 8-2 "The Rock is Hard" phrase has been around for 31 years

Article Submitted

When the 1977-78 season opened, then Head Coach Glen Polly, who was the first head coach at RCHS, had every reason to be optimistic.

He and assistants Jim Cox and Larry Travis had a foundation, of 13 seasoned seniors and six equally seasoned juniors, of talented players which gave them every reason to expect good things for the sixth team at the ROCK, since the consolidation of schools.

One word could only describe the Rockets of 1977 - Power. The Rockets had an offensive line that was big for that era of high school football and they were fundamentally sound. The Rocket's offensive line blew most of their ten opponents off the line of scrimmage in 1977, which attributed much to their success. The line was made up of center Robert Owens; guards, Dusty Carloftis and Casey Hines; tackles, Mark Holbrook and Bryan Stokes and ends, Rick Anderkin and Harold Ballinger, Jr.

Polly's backfield was one of the best fielded by any Rockcastle team he had had. The leadership of quarterback and offensive captain Earl Lewis Hammons, who was often referred to as the team's heart and soul, was outstanding. A tough hard-nosed runner, coupled with a strong arm, made him a force to be reckoned with. Hammons had a stable of running backs, possessing strength and speed, that, at the time, any high school school would have loved to have.

The one-two punch of Billy Hackworth and David Owens gave defenders fits. Hackworth, who was named All-State in 1977 and Owens a two-time All-Stater in 1976 and 77, along with sophomore Steve Mitchell, was one of the best ever assembled at RCHS.

Hackworth led the team in rushing with 1,183 yards and he also led the Rockets in scoring in 1977. Owens also had a 1,000 yard rushing season his senior year, with 1,003 yards, helping him to a total of 2,387 yards for his career at RCHS, which was the most during Polly's era.

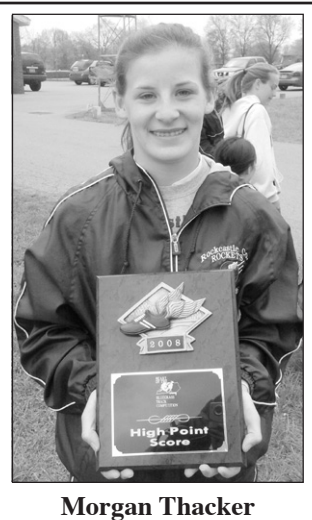

The Rocket offense as a whole scored 276 points in 1977, during a time before spread offenses and rule changes favored offensive teams.

Great teams always have great defensive units and the 1977 bunch certainly had plenty of defense.

Led by defensive captain, and all-state linebacker Mike Miller, the 1977 team gave up few first downs and fewer points (116) for the entire season.

The good defensive play by the Rockets prompted defensive nose guard Robert Owens to coin the phrase, "The Rock is Hard!" which is still the Rockcastle football cry. Other members on the 1977 Rocket roster were: Danny

“Thacker signs with ECU”

Most impressive is the fact that Morgan's all-time best long jump mark would rank her 5th on ECU's all-time indoor best records list. She will have a great chance to not only make the top five this season in both the indoor and outdoor all-time long jump lists, but will also be looking to put her name at the top of both lists. She will need an indoor mark of 19-0.75" for the indoor record and 19'6" for the outdoor mark, both attainable goals for her freshman season.

Morgan will also make an impact in triple jump having performances comparable to the best ECU has to offer.

Marks of 36'3" and 36'10" will be needed to break into the top five of the indoor and outdoor all-time lists. Morgan will also likely compete in the short sprints and relays for ECU.

With a new and very accomplished field events coach joining ECU's track staff, Morgan sets her sights on a possible berth in the 2012 Olympic trials, where she hopes to have an opportunity to make the Olympic team. Morgan's progress this season can be tracked at www.ekusports.com. She is the daughter of Kenny and Sheila Thacker of Copper Creek.

An Indiana couple escaped serious injury on Monday morning, when they wrecked their Chevy Trailblazer in the northbound lane of I-75, between the Burr and Renfro Valley exits. Above, Mt. Vernon fire and rescue workers, Adam Bales and Mike Muncy use the Jaws-of-Life apparatus to cut off the driver's side door to free one of the two people in the vehicle. Rockcastle Sheriff Mike Peters said the driver told him he hit the guardrail, after overcorrecting while attempting to pass. The Trailblazer flipped several times before coming to rest on its top. At right, EMTs Steve Griffin and Jennifer Deatherage, with the help of firefighters, Brian Bullock and Chief David Bales, load the driver into one of the two ambulances dispatched to the scene. Both victims were transported to Rockcastle Hospital for treatment. (Photos by: Richard Anderkin) been collecting signatures since September 25th.

Riddle said the group had divided the proposed annexation area up so that neighbors could talk to neighbors and see if they wanted to sign the group's petition.

Riddle said the group was collecting signatures of resident voters and of property owners, so that the group had all their bases covered.

A petition seeking the placement of the annexation question on the ballot must be received in Mayor Clarice Kirby's office 60 days after the ordinance was published on September 25th.

Riddle said she had only been turned down by one person when she asked them to sign the petition.

The group was scheduled to meet again this Wednesday to go over their petitions and see how many signatures they currently have.

According to state law, if 50 percent of resident voters, or owners of real property within the proposed territory to be annexed, petition the Mayor in opposition to the proposal, the annexation question would be placed on the ballot in 2010.

"We simply want the people who are being affected by the annexation to have a say as to whether or not they want to be in the city," Riddle said.

Hammond said once the facility plan is finalized by the local planning committee it will be sent to the state for final approval.

Given the current state of the economy, and the recent cuts in the state's education budget, the superintendent doesn't anticipate any projects being funded any time soon.

"We simply have got to be ready with a good plan when there is money available to do the work," Hammond said.

Roundstone's 4th Grade Quilt Block Project

Written by 4th Grade, student reporter, Cassie Poynter

On September 8-23, the 4th grade classes at Roundstone Elementary worked on a quilt block for the Kentucky Quilt Trails Project. They loved it! One student, Ashton Ashcraft, said that she enjoyed painting the different designs on it. Another student, Callie Powell, said she really liked it and she had never done anything like it before. Two ladies, Hazel Jackson, Rockcastle County Extension agent for Family & Consumer Sciences and Lydia McLemore, a community volunteer helped us with this project. Also Mrs. Craig, Mrs. Fairchild and Mrs. Peavie supervised the project. The purpose of the project was to help the community to teach the history of quilts, to practice math and art. The completed quilt block was hung on the Hysinger building in Mt. Vernon.

Haunted House still has plenty of rooms left

Dear People,

Welcome to your nightmare. Maw and her boys are back. It's a nocturnal vacation. A necessary sedation. We want to make you feel right at home. The boys have invited a few friends along and brought their pets. I think you will enjoy.

I thought it would be a good idea for the boys to bring their favorite toy to share again this year. It was a scream last year, everyone wanted to know where the toys were.

I hope to get one or two of the boys married off this year. They are still looking for that special someone. It could be you.

You are welcome to have a breakdown we plan to scare you so your visit may be our keeper.

That's what we look forward to this time of year. We have built a maze just for you to wonder in with a few surprises just to mention a few. No guides and very little light. You know "it is a night time vacation."

We will bring you a nightmare of sweat, laughter and screams to share cause life on these nights are just a dream away from here.

We really want you to feel that you belong in your nightmare.

We will make sure the lights are out and you are all alone with your breakdown inside of our nightmare.

No need to reserve your room. In Livingston, we have several days still open starting Saturday, October 11th and every Friday and Saturday thru November 1st. Waiting just for you. Check in time for ages 9 and under and those who are afraid of the dark is 7 to 7:30, will receive a semi-lite guided tour for $2.50. Parents are free, without parent $3. Maze closed. Check in time for your nightmare is 8 to midnight. The maze is open, full scare, find your way out thru the darkness, creatures and my boys and me. Ages 10 and 11 with adult only. No exceptions. Your room cost, $6.

We give a discount of $1.00 off if you bring the Haunted House ad in this paper or two cans of food. We give the food to a local help center.

Now you can't beat those prices it is a done deal. Before I close something you need to know, we don't offer turning back or refunds. But you can purchase rescue insurance for fifty cents.

Please say you will come and break down in your nightmare with us.

Rockcastle Hospital to host "Rocket to a Health Career" at high school

Rockcastle Hospital is teaming up with Rockcastle County High School to show students that the healthcare field offers them great career opportunities right here in Rockcastle County.

The hospital is hosting "Rocket to a Health Career" at the high school during this year's parent teacher nights.

At the event, students and parents may talk with representatives of the hospital, area colleges, GEAR UP, AHEC, and the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority about health careers, health science college programs, admission requirements, and college funding opportunities.

After talking with the exhibitors, students may register to win a free laptop computer, one of which will be given to a student from each grade. Two of the computers have been donated by Rockcastle Hospital, one by the University of Kentucky, and one by the Southern KY Area Health Education Center.

A particular scholarship of interest that students will learn about during "Rocket to a Health Career" will be the new Rockcastle Hospital scholarship. Each spring, that scholarship, which may be worth up to $3,000, will be awarded to two qualified seniors who are pursuing a health career.

"At Rockcastle Hospital we are committed to education and the future of our community," said Carmen Poynter, the hospital's human resources director. "This event is a reflection of that commitment. It is also an effort to make students more aware of the many careers we offer at the hospital. Every time a local student pursues a health career and goes to work for us, it's a win-win for both parties."

Application forms for the scholarship will be available, as will other valuable information that could direct students toward a rewarding future. Parents are encouraged to attend with their children.

The event will be held at the same time as parent/teacher nights. Those nights are Oct. 21, 3 - 6 p.m., for sophomore, juniors, and seniors. The freshman academy parent/teacher night is Oct. 28, 4 - 7 p.m.

On September 17, 2008, Ms. Betty Lewis from the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife came to Roundstone Elementary to talk to the fourth grade students about fish and wildlife. She talked about animal and human adaptations and the different characteristics of mammals. For example, she discussed how baby deer need to be protected from predators, and how the mother deer will try to hide the baby. She also talked about how people can protect animals. For example, people should not place a sick fish back into the water, because it can make the other fish sick and create an unhealthy habitat. Ms. Lewis will be returning to Roundstone in October to continue fish and wildlife education with the fourth grade students.

JROTC attend camp at Bluegrass Army Depot

Submitted by Ericka Isaac

This summer 13 Rockcastle JROTC Cadets embarked on a journey to the Bluegrass Army Depot for the Junior Cadet Leadership Camp. The camp gave us leadership skills we will use through the rest of our lives. Those cadets were freshman Caitlin Burke, Isaiah Bullens, David Lunceford, Ben Whitaker, Cullan White, and Rachel Halcomb, sophomore Anthony Alcorn, and juniors Buck Blair, Ericka Isaac, Charles Dickerson, and Colton Walker.

At the Bluegrass Army Depot we completed events that tested our strength, endurance, courage, and leadership abilities. We were all split up from our friends, therefore destroying our comfort zones. On the first day many of us were placed in leadership positions ranging from squad leader to company commander. That evening we were taken to complete a Physical training (P.T.) test, which consisted of pushups, curl-ups, and a one mile run.

Our motivation and courage were really put to the test when faced with the water events and EKU high ropes course. Many tears were shed over the water survival training and high ropes course due to the fear of things we had not experienced before.

A couple of our own cadets should be spotlighted for their outstanding performance and dedication to camp. Buck Blair won the second highest leadership award for his exceptional performance as the Alpha Company Commander. Caitlin Burke helped her squad win first place in the cross country rescue competition. Anthony Alcorn was one of the highest scoring cadets on the P.T. Test and was awarded the third place trophy.

The Bluegrass Army Depot is a very special place that holds many new memories for us all. I know this experience has changed us all forever. It enabled us to meet many new and interesting people. We overcame some of our biggest fears of water and heights. We now have more confidence in ourselves and know that we can do anything life throws our way, with the help of teamwork, planning, and problem solving skills we learned at the Bluegrass Army depot.

Local teacher is recipient of achievement award

Rockcastle County Middle School teacher, Melissa Singleton, was one of 24 outstanding Kentucky educators selected by the Kentucky Department of Education and Ashland Inc. as a recipient of the 2009 Ashland Inc. Teacher Achievement Awards (TAA). These teachers will now compete for the 2009 Kentucky Teacher of the Year Award, which will be announced next month.

All 24 teachers will be honored at a ceremony in Frankfort October 22 in the State Capitol Building. Representatives of the Kentucky Department of Education, the Governor's Office and Ashland will be on hand to honor the teachers and to recognize the Kentucky Elementary, Middle and High School Teachers of the Year. From that group of three finalists, the Kentucky Teacher of the Year will be named and will represent the state in the National Teacher of the Year competition.

Ashland will present the 24 TAA recipients with cash awards and framed certificates at the awards ceremony in Frankfort. The three Kentucky Teachers of the Year also will receive cash awards and custom-designed glassware commemorating their accomplishments, and all 24 educators will be honored at a special luncheon that day.

The Kentucky Teacher Awards program combines the best elements of the Ashland Inc. Teacher Achievement Awards and the Kentucky Teacher of the Year programs. This marks the eighth year the Department of Education and Ashland have jointly honored Kentucky educators.

Judging was conducted in August by a blue-ribbon panel of veteran educators, many of whom have more than 30 years of teaching experience. Applications included information on the nominees' teaching philosophies, their teaching experiences and involvement in their respective communities, as well as letters of recommendation from peers, students, parents, administrators and others.

Ashland has recognized outstanding Kentucky teachers with its Teacher Achievement Awards since 1988. More than $550,000 has been awarded to nearly 350 teachers of grades K to 12.

Eagle Echoes

Submitted by Ciana Owens

On Friday September 26, 2008, the amazing Roundstone School had a fun reward day. We had an award day because we, Roundstone, scored in the top four percent in the state on the CATS test.

Mrs. Darla and the lovely Mrs. Patty Renner called the third, fourth and fifth graders into the gym. All the classes had all of these weird faces because circus music was playing. Mrs. Renner was standing there with a microphone, and a lot of kids thought they were in trouble. We were not in trouble. We were having a celebration to thank us for trying our best on the test last year!

Then Mrs. Darla talked to us in the new and improved gym about what the third, fourth and fifth grade were doing outside and how the activities would be done. After we talked about all of the activities we were going to do, all of the classes went out to the shed to grab some cool aid and one cupcake, our choice, chocolate or white.

The third grade went to the football field to play kickball, boys versus the girls. The lovely Roundstone staff did not take score, but I'm pretty sure it was a tie. Every twenty minutes the lovely Mrs. Darla would blow the whistle to rotate where each class could go.

Fourth grade was on the basketball court playing all of the games you could think of. I saw Callie Powell in Mrs. Craig's class counting how many times each person was jumping. Anna in Mrs. Craig's class jumped 55 times without stopping! The second game fourth grade was playing was with the sponges and water, and Ciana Owens' flip-flop fell off when water got on it, because it was plastic. Fourth grade was also playing water balloon toss.

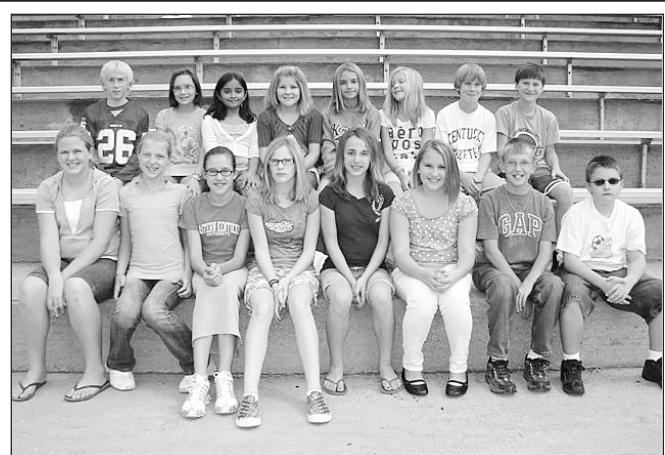

The fourth grade went to balloon toss and the fifth grade went to kickball. When we changed again, fifth grade was in the open field playing with sponges to see which team could fill up buckets. I also saw a water bust on Sarah Callihan in Mrs. Craig's class.

Mrs. Fairchild found a balloon with a tiny hole in it and started squirting the Roundstone students, and even the amazing Roundstone staff teachers.

This was an amazing day for Roundstone third fourth and fifth graders, and we were grateful to Mrs. Patty and the Roundstone staff. I bet that we are going to do even better on the CATS test this year!

Marching Rockets prepare for another doubleheader

Submitted by A. B. Sharpe
The 2008 Marching Rockets took a much needed break from rehearsals and competition last week, but they are back in full swing now with many long rehearsals scheduled for the final push toward State Semi-Finals on November 1st. The Marching Rockets have been working toward the Semi Finals for the past four months and there are now only two regular season competitions remaining. Class AAAA East Regional Quarterfinals are scheduled for October 25th in Rowan County. The Marching Rockets qualified to compete in Regional competition on their first time out at East Jessamine. This Saturday, October 11, the Rockets travel to Grant County High School for their second "doubleheader" of the season. They are scheduled to perform in the preliminaries at 2:15 pm with finals scheduled to begin at 6:30 pm.

Percussion - The Heartbeat of the Marching Band
The human voice was probably the first musical instrument, but percussion instruments such as hands and feet, then sticks, rocks, and logs were almost certainly the next steps in the evolution of music. Percussion instruments are musical instruments that are struck (or sometimes shaken or scraped) to produce sound. This category includes instruments whose own hard substance is made to vibrate (idiophones) and instruments that include a tight membrane that vibrates (membranophones). Percussion instruments may produce tones of definite or indefinite pitch. Their primary function is often rhythmic, but many are used as melody instruments.

The "backbone" or "the heartbeat" of a marching band is the percussion section. The percussion section in a marching band is usually quite large. In a KMEA Marching Contest percussion is judged as part of the whole program and also by itself for a separate score. Scoring guidelines used by judges are complicated and details are included at the end of this article.
Percussion in a marching band is subdivided into two separate functioning parts - the drum line and the pit. Percussion instruments with indefinite pitch (unpitched) are generally used on the drumline. It is the beat of the bass drum that keeps the marchers in step and at a regular speed, and it is the snare drum that provides that crisp, decisive air to the tunes played. Snare drums have two heads, with the top head, called the "batter head," being the one the player strikes. The "snares" of a snare drum are strings of plastic or twisted wire that run across the center of the bottom head ("snare head") and vibrate furiously against it when the drum is struck. The tenors consist of 4 or 5 single-headed tom toms of varying size arranged in an arc that are carried as a set.
THE DRUMLINE of the 2008 Marching Rockets consists of two bass drums, a snare and tenors. The section leader for all percussion, pit and drumline is Tony Potter. He is a senior and this is his fifth year marching and his second as percussion section leader. He played in the pit his first year and has marched drumline ever since. This year he marches with the snare. The best part of band for Tony is, "Going out and having something to do. Belonging to something." His least favorite band activity is "practice." He feels that NIGHTSCAPES is "more energetic than past shows. It's different." He's planning to pursue a career in criminal justice.
Kyle Hayes, section leader for the drumline, is a junior. He marches the bass drum and this is his 3rd year with the Marching Rockets. He played in pit during his freshman year and also plays a full set of drums on the side. The best part of band for Kyle is "Going to competitions and having fun and eating all the food." His current favorite song to play is Waking the Demon by Bullet for my Valentine. He is not so fond of "having to get up early for competitions and band camp." About NIGHTSCAPES he said, "I really like it." Just before walking out on the field in competitions, Kyle will "slap himself in the face." He is currently planning to major in a computer field in college and is hoping for a music scholarship to help finance that goal.
Brandon Bullock is an eighth grader and this is his first year marching with the Rockets. He also plays the big bass drum. He enjoys playing the guitar, bass and a full set of drums in his free time. His favorite song right now is Back in Black by AC/DC. The best part of band is "is getting in free to all the football games." His least favorite band activity is practice. When asked about this year's show, NIGHTSCAPES, he said, "I like it better than PHYZYX." He prepares for competitions by relaxing and "listening to my Ipod." He is also involved in a metal band that is just starting up called License to Kill. This band includes kids from both the middle and the high school. Brandon plays the drums and some guitar in the band.
The fourth member of the drumline is freshman Jarrett Hamm. He marches with the tenors. This is his 2nd year marching. He also "fools around with the guitar and bass". His favorite band activity is "competitions" and his least favorite activities are "practice and band camp." His favorite music to play is "80's stuff".

NIGHTSCAPES "is a lot better than I thought it would be. It's better than I was expecting with all the new people." His preparation for competitions always includes "putting my hair up into the hat." He wants to be a rock star and currently is part of a metal band called Failure to Conform.
THE PIT PERCUSSION section has some very unique and exotic instruments. It was a fact that brought the bass drum, cymbals, and triangle from Turkey into popularity first in Europe and then in the United States. The personal guards of the Turkish Sultans, the Janissaries, were renowned for their bands, which relied on the bass drum, cymbals, and triangle. During the eighteenth century, military bands all over Europe copied their style and imported their instruments. After Beethoven used them in the finale of his Ninth Symphony in 1824 to evoke the sound of a military band on the march, they became a staple of marching bands.

Other instruments found in the pit of the Marching Rockets are the timpani, the bongos, the marimba, the xylophone, the cabasa, and various bells. The timpani, also called kettledrums, are the original percussion instruments of the orchestra and were first used in cavalry bands. The "kettle" of a kettledrum is called the "bowl" and is made of copper or brass. The "head" of the drum, the surface that the player strikes, is a piece of calfskin or Mylar plastic stretched over the rim of the bowl. The timpani are a pitched instrument and are tuned by adjusting the tension of the heads. Timpanists can vary the sound of a drum by using drumsticks with harder or softer heads, and by striking the drum at different distances from the rim. Bongos are of Afro-Cuban origin and are a pair of permanently attached small single-headed drums the larger of which is tuned about fifth below the smaller drum.
The xylophone is a percussion instrument consisting of a row of chromatically tuned wooden bars, arranged in the manner of a piano keyboard. The bars are supported by a wooden frame over resonator tubes and they are sounded by being struck with mallets. Playing the xylophone well requires great precision to hit just the right bar at the right time, which produces a musical tone. The marimba is of African and Latin American origin. The modern marimba is a mellower version of the xylophone, but it's bigger and has a wider range of notes. The cabasa (or cabaca), is a percussion instrument of Afro-Brazilian origin that is a small cylinder covered by several strings of beads that is shaken with a circular motion. It provides a metallic, rattling sound when shaken or twisted, similar to the sound of a rattlesnake.
Mallory Harper is the section leader for the Marching Rockets' pit this season. She is a sophomore and this is her 3rd year with the band. She plays the marimba, xylophone and bells and also plays pit percussion during concert season. The best part of band for Mallory is "going to the competitions", while her least favorite is "band camp." Her favorite song to play is Moonlight Sonata by Beethoven. When asked about NIGHTSCAPES she said, "It's pretty awesome. It's one of the best shows we've had." It was watching her older sister Morgan perform at band competitions that inspired Mallory to also get involved with the band. "It looked like fun."

Sophomore A.J. Rehor is in his second year with the Marching Rockets as a pit percussionist. He plays the bass drum, the cymbals, the cabasa and the cowbells. For his own enjoyment he also plays a full set of drums, a little guitar, sings in the RCHS choir, and is involved in 2 metal bands; one, Super Dupers, as drummer and one, Aneurysm, as manager. AJ enjoys band because he likes "hanging out with my friends and having a good time". His favorite song to play with the band is Hey Baby. His least favorite part of band is all the "practice". He thinks NIGHTSCAPES is "the best show we've had". Before competitions he likes to "take it easy and try not to stress about it". Last week he watched the EKU Marching Band perform and was impressed with their professionalism and hopes that he can continue with marching band through college.
Sarah Morgan, also a sophomore, is new to the band and Rockcastle County. She just recently moved here from Leslie County and plays the xylophone and bells in pit percussion. She also enjoys playing the violin at home. The best part of band for Sarah is "Hanging around friends", and she really likes to play Scream by Jay Dawson. It's her first season but she thinks NIGHTSCAPES is "a fun show. It's really interesting." She plans to pursue a career in medicine but also likes "the idea of playing music. I would like to play in college."

Kyle Shelton is a freshman and this is his first year with the Marching Rockets. He plays several pit percussion instruments including the gong, the triangle, the concert bass drum, sleigh bells and the suspended cymbal. He says, "Being in the pit is fun. We do a lot more than the rest of the band." His favorite song to play is the drum break in NIGHTSCAPES because we dance with it. His least favorite part of band is "all the after

Rockcastle Scouts receive cinematography training

Boy Scouts representing two troops in Rockcastle County received hands-on training and professional instruction from the video production department at The Center for Rural Development in Somerset that will help them earn their merit badges in cinematography.

Dennis Busher, video production manager at The Center and a Scout leader, taught a cinematography class on Saturday, Sept. 20, at The Center's video production studio for a group of Scouts working on their merit badges in this field of study.

Scouts from Troop 256, Rockcastle County; and Troop 199, Hustonville, gained hands-on experience operating video cameras in the studio and even produced a short film at the conclusion of the program. This is the first time Busher has used the studio to teach a cinematography merit badge class.

The training was part of the Lake Cumberland District Merit Badge Camporee held Sept. 19-21 at East Somerset

Baptist Church in Somerset. Approximately 100 youth and adult leaders representing 10 Boy Scout troops from Pulaski, Wayne, Madison, Rockcastle, Lincoln and Casey counties participated in the program.

Boys were able to select from 17 different merit badges, ranging from astronomy to wilderness survival, taught by volunteer instructors from the public and private sectors. In all the boys began work on 140 merit badges during the weekend.

In addition, 13 adults participated in leadership or CPR training classes.

Those attending the camporee were treated to a special presentation by a Native American Indian group from Casey County and a concert by the Somerset band "Live Fish." They also competed in a main meal Dutch oven cook-off.

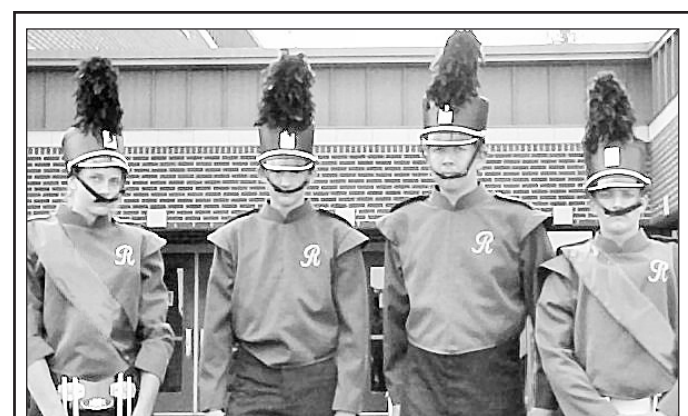

The Center, headquartered in Somerset, is a non-profit economic development organization that serves 42 counties in Southern and Eastern Kentucky.

Good grades and planning make college possible

College requires more than big dreams and good grades. It also calls for making plans that students and their parents can make together, one step at a time, with help from a new campaign called KnowHow2GOKy. "It simplifies the steps to get into college," says Bruce Brooks, who manages the campaign for the Council on Postsecondary Education.

Kentucky legislators believe Kentuckians want a better quality of life and one way to achieve that is through post-secondary education and training, especially a college degree. How can a degree help? When comparing those who don't graduate from college and those who do, college graduates earn a higher salary, have more secure jobs and find increased opportunities for exploring their interests and expanding their horizons.

Yet, sending a child to college can be overwhelming, especially for parents who haven't attended college themselves. Brooks emphasizes that the new campaign provides resources that eliminate the need for parents and students to have all of the answers to their questions about college. KnowHow2GOKy can direct them to the resources they need step-by-step.

One easily accessible source for KnowHow2GOKy information is the local GEAR UP coordinator.

In Rockcastle County, the coordinator is Nancy Hale (phone 606-256-4816, nancy.hale@rockcastle.kyschools.us).

Another way for parents to learn about these resources is through the campaign website (www.knowhow2goky.org). The "Are you ready for college?" quiz helps students begin to understand the long-term planning they need to undertake and the classes they should sign up for to be admitted to college.

KnowHow2GOKy offers four steps to college and details about how students can take those steps. The steps include: be a pain; push yourself; find the right fit and put your hands on some cash.

Parents are oftentimes most concerned about that final tip because it involves the life of the entire family. Brooks says parents can do their children a favor by asking them to sit by their side when they pay the family's bills or balance the checkbook. Those tasks can help children understand why education is important and how to manage their own affairs when they leave home.

"Unfortunately in our state there's a large contingency of people who think they can't afford it and don't recognize the fact that there are lots of funding options and if you start early enough everyone can go," Brooks says. The site helps users understand some of these funding resources and how they work.

Brooks says there are also hurdles other than finances. He hopes parents will use the campaign resources to understand those hurdles and give their child a reality check about them. The four tips can provide a starting place for those conversations.

One myth Brooks hopes the campaign will help clear up is about the role the school will play in the child's preparation for higher education. "Most parents will say the guidance counselor is going to take care of this. But the reality is the guidance counselors don't have that kind of time," he says. Guidance counselor caseloads average 500 students each.

Of course, parents are busy, too. But if they can help their children begin the college planning process and keep a list of the questions that must be answered by a high school guidance counselor or college admissions counselor. When meeting with those people, students can have their specific questions answered more efficiently to best meet their individual needs.

Brooks wants parents to know, "They don't have to know the answers. They just have to know where to find the answers." KnowHow2GOKy is a good step to discovering those answers.

school rehearsals—Definitely." The show NIGHTSCAPES "is really good. It has a really great big sound." Kyle is planning to become a police officer and since seeing the EKU Marching band performance last week, is hoping to play in the marching band at college as well.

Johnathan Portwood is also new to both the Marching Rockets and Rockcastle County. He recently moved here from Laurel County and while new to the Rockets, he marched with North Laurel last year. John is in pit percussion and plays the marimba, bass drum and bongos. He also plays a full drum set and guitar at home. The best part of band for John is "being with a lot of friends". The part of band he doesn't like is "having practice four days a week". His favorite song to play is the drum break in NIGHTSCAPES. To prepare for competitions, "I just practice a lot." When asked about his future plans, he said, "I would like to play drumline in the marching band in college.

Seventh grader Jordan Hensley is a pit percussionist. He plays the timpani and the suspended cymbals. This is his first year in the Marching Rockets as a musician but Jordan spent last year as a prop mover for the 2007 show, PHYZYX. His favorite part of being in the band is "the competitions because we get to see other bands and how good they are." His favorite song to play is Night on Bald Mountain by Mussorgsky. His least favorite band activity is "practice". About this year's show NIGHTSCAPES he told me, "I like it. I think we might make it to state again." At this time, his future plans are to become a crane operator. He is hoping to join the drumline of the Marching Rockets in high school.

Eating smarter at work leads to healthier lives

Anyone wanting to lose weight can get off track by the temptation of unhealthy foods in the workplace. For people to lose weight and effectively stick to a diet, they often need to change their home surroundings by dumping out the candy dish and replacing it with fruit or replacing soda with water in their refrigerator. However, many times the food environment at work cannot be controlled. In the workplace, food is everywhere from pastries at morning meetings to the tempting snack drawers and vending machines.

According to the 2003-2004 National Health and Nutrition Examination Survey, almost 66 percent of the U.S. adults are overweight or obese. Kentucky has the fourth highest obesity rate in the nation. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention states that individuals who are overweight or obese are at a higher risk for high blood pressure, high cholesterol, high triglycerides, osteoarthritis, diabetes, stroke, sleep apnea and gall bladder disease.

While not all weight is gained on the job, changing the workplace eating environment can help dieters stay focused and keep others healthier. There are several things people can do to change how food is offered at the work environment. One of the first things adults should consider is bringing their lunch to work rather than eating out every day. Most of us know a turkey sandwich is healthier than a hamburger, but we are a rushed society and fast food can seem more convenient than packing a lunch to those who live on the go. Oftentimes, meals at fast food restaurants tend to be in larger portions than adults really need, but the extra calories are consumed because they are easily available and accessible. Packing a lunch will also help limit the size of the meal and also create healthier food choices. Consider packing a lunch the night before, if you feel too rushed to do so in the morning.

Portions can also be limited when serving pastries, cakes or soda at meetings and events. Allowing employees to help themselves at these functions can also help them consume smaller portions. If you are concerned about the food choices at these gatherings, talk to the person who orders the food or the caterer and ask if they can replace the some of the current food offerings with healthier options such as fruit and vegetable trays or at least offer fruits and vegetables as alternatives. Many times the caterer can offer baked or broiled options instead of only fried foods. Also make sure there is water available at meetings and events. A healthy employee potluck meal is also an option when sharing lunch with co-workers.

Vending machines also pose a problem for dieters. Many times when employees go to the vending machines for snacks, the only options they are given are candy bars, potato chips, cookies, soda and brownies. Find out who stocks the vending machine and talk with them about offering healthier snack options such as pretzels, baked or low fat chips and water.

Eating healthy at work can be a challenge, but it is possible and can help to achieve weight loss goals in the New Year. To receive more information about healthy and nutritious foods, contact the Rockcastle Cooperative Extension Service at 256-2403.

Educational programs of the Cooperative Extension Service serve all people regardless of race, color, sex, religion, disability or national origin.
