Could cost county taxpayers in excess of $200,000 EPA cleaning up old dump site on Buffalo Hollow Road

By: Richard Anderkin

A Nicholasville company has been working for the past few weeks to clean up a 13 acre dumpsite on Buffalo Hollow Road, in an effort to elminate what officials call a threat to public health and welfare.

According to public documents the US and Kentucky EPA began investigating the dump site in 1977, after complaints from area residents who reported that the site contained materials that could be hazardous to the public. Records show that the site was cleaned up in compliance with state and federal laws in 1977 and was not visited again until 2005 when Kentucky Department of Waste Management revisited the site.

The 2005 investigation re-odor in some areas of the site.

According to the U.S. EPA's website, in March of 2005 the Kentucky EPA Division of Waste Management found lead, PCBs and arsenic concentrations in the surface soil to be very elevated.

According to the EPA report soil samples were also taken from ditches leading into Roundstone Creek. According to that report, the levels of contamination, while higher than normal, did not pose a threat to the water in Roundstone Creek, which empties into Rockcastle River.

And, the report also says that to avoid a more hazardous situation the site should be cleaned up immediately.

One landowner Clyde Prichard said on Tuesday that he did not know the site was contaminated when he bought it, but that he had seen oil from the waste come to the surface of the road bed after a heavy rain. property as a business investment with the intention of selling the dumped materials, especially the copper wiring, for a profit.

Prichard said he had also cooperated with EPA and that he had not allowed anyone to dump hazardous materials on the dumpsite since he bought it. He also said that EPA officials had told him he would not be responsible for any costs connected with the clean up.

According to EPA documents, the former Goodyear Aerospace plant in Berea dumped most of the waste at the site in the 1960s and early 1970s, with the permission of the landowners at the time.

Morehead.

Colson said the county's bill for disposal could reach well in excess of $200,000.

"This is a prime example of a county without regulations and laws concerning hazardous waste, because there haven't been, and currently are not, any regulations about what you can and can't do with your property. All taxpayers in Rockcastle County are going to have to pay dearly for the cleanup on this 13 acre site on which someone years ago probably made a profit by allowing the dumping of the hazardous materials on this property, " said Carloftis, who has visited the site twice.

The federal government has authorized $425,500 to pay for the soil cleanup, but the county

At Monday's regular monthly meeting Council does not approve budget for City of Mt. Vernon

By: Richard Anderkin

By a vote of 5-1 on Monday night, the Mt. Vernon Council again voted against Mayor Clarice Kirby's 2010 budget proposal.

That vote came during the council's regular monthly meeting and was the second no vote on the budget in as many months.

Council member Clark Mullins opened the discussion on the budget proposal, asking Mayor Kirby why administrative salaries for the city were going to increase from $70,000 a year ago to $135,000 this year.

Mayor Kirby said salaries for possible new hires were included in the budget and that she did not know exactly how much of an increase in pay current employees were getting. Mullins said that at a time

However, according to current budget figures, the city has already spent much more than was appropriated last year and this year's budget for the most part simply attempts to catch up with last year's excess expenditure on salaries, with a slight increase for current employees.

For the 2008-09 fiscal year, the city spent over $110,000 on city government employee salaries and at least two employees, who were not em-

Rockcastle Emergency Management Director David Colson said on Tuesday that it was his understanding that Goodyear would not be responsible for the cost of cleaning up the area. But, apparently, the Rockcastle Fiscal Court will have to pay for much of the cost because of federal regulations.

EPA officials have told County Judge/Executive Buzz Carloftis and Colson that the county will be responsible for the testing and disposal of at least 100 tandem truck loads of metal and other debris being taken from the site. "The U.S. EPA is only responsible for cleaning the soil of any possible contaminants and they have told us we are responsible for getting rid of the materials they take from the site, such as the metal and other debris," Carloftis said. "Right now, the Nicholasville company is piling up the waste so we can have it tested and shipped away," he added.

Colson said most likely the 100 truck loads would have to be taken to an approved dumpsite in Jeffersonville, Kentucky, which is near Carloftis said the Kentucky EPA has not committed any money toward the project because of state budget cuts, but that an official with that office has told Soild Waste Coordinator James Renner that he would attempt to help the county with the cost of the final cleanup and disposal bill for the 13 acre site.

I-75 traffic stop results in arrest of couple with drug connection in Florida

A Georgetown man appeared on the Rocket Docket in Rockcastle Circuit Court on Monday and pled guilty to first degree possession of a controlled substance and agreed to 18 months in jail.

Besides the possession of a controlled substance charge, Jacob Maclean, 25, had been charged with operating a motor vehicle under the influence, possession of drug paraphernalia, driving on a suspended license and other minor crimes after a July 5th traffic stop on I-75.

Authorities say State Trooper Jason Vanhook received a complaint around midnight that Maclean was swerving from the emergency lane to the edge of the median on northbound I-75.

Last year the annual event attracted approximately 800 people, including 400 students.

Count me among the skeptics on this global warming business. I live in Kentucky and on July 19, at midnight, we set a record low temperature of 50 degrees here in central Kentucky which is something like 20 below normal for this time of year.

I suppose we ought to count our blessings but I always thought that "a cold day in July" was an old saying until last Saturday. The temp got up to 70 here on Lowell Branch on July 18. We call that cold in here in the valley. That night it dropped to 50. We call that freezing if you're growing anything except cabbage.

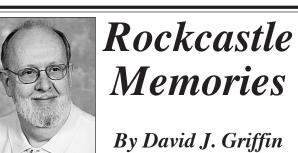

Three times this month, Loretta has woke me up in the middle of the night and wondered how mad I'd get if she turned off the air conditioner and the heat back on. And I have consistently advised that she snuggle up to my shivering carcass because switching from air conditioning to heat is a big deal on the system we have. You either have heat or cool and it takes about three days for the system to switch from one to the other without messing up its innards.

It's a complicated system that involves computers and I'm pretty sure it works. Sure enough that I ain't going to mess with it until November. Nor am I about to admit that we turned the heat on in July. And I do love sleeping under quilts.

We have blankets. We have quilts that our mothers made to warm us and we have tarpaulins for the heavy stay, should we need them, to shelter us from the cold and, to be perfectly frank, I find 50 degrees in mid July to be perfectly comfortable, if not a treat. I wish we could lock this weather in. In other words, I'm not about to turn the heat on in July but since this cold spell has set in I've set the AC at 80 and it won't be working for awhile.

In the meantime Loretta is looking for recipes for pickles that will keep for months and still be crisp and crunchy. We have cucumbers. Buckets and buckets full of cucumbers picked when they ought to be. Wagon loads if they get to big, but Lo is figuring out a pickling recipe and we are giving them away as fast as they come on. Email her at: LorettAD@aol.com.

We also have a cool and quiet fan that makes the air go through the house but lately, when she goes to sleep, I turn it off and open up the windows.

Trading away my Schwinn for a shortwave radio

In 1959 I was a freshman at Mt. Vernon High School. That was the same year that Estill Hodges opened the Western Auto store on Main Street. I was in Mt. Vernon last week and ran into his son Tommy. He and I discussed the store and the many purchases I made there.

My mode of transportation at that time was a Schwinn Black Phantom bicycle that my grandfather (Pop) had purchased for me when I was about 10 years old. I have never seen a bicycle that even came close to that "slick" ride.

This week I discovered one for sale on E-bay. The owner has restored the bike and is asking $2,700. I always have mixed emotions when I find something like this. I am thrilled that a bike of that style is still around – but I am a little sick at heart that I don't still have my own.

As a freshman, I was in that stage of life where I could not enjoy the bike as much as I did as a youngster because I was looking too forward to getting my driver's license. A fella is antsy to start driving a car at that age.

For several weeks, I had been eyeing a brand new, shortwave radio at Mr. Hodges' store. One day I went in and inquired if he would trade my bike for that radio. He pulled the Schwinn into the store and walked around it for several minutes.

Of course, I had taken excellent care of the bike, so it was in fine condition. Finally, he told me to get the radio off the shelf and bring it to him. The cost of that radio was $99. To my delight, Mr. Hodges said that he would trade even. I gladly accepted his offer and left with the radio tucked under my arm.

I was happy to find that the radio came with a book explaining that "shortwave radio frequencies are capable of reaching any location on the Earth because they can be reflected by the ionosphere." That night I each other from distant places. The term for this type of chatting is known as "DXing." Even though I did not know any of the individuals who were talking on the two-way transmissions, I found it fascinating to listen to their conversations.

One night I was scanning the dial and found two airplanes talking to each other while experiencing weather difficulties. Because they were using codes for their location, I could never decipher where they actually were located. One pilot explained that he was going to increase his altitude, and I never heard the other one again. It made me wonder if he actually made it through the storm or not. This was adventurous stuff for a 14-year-old boy.

Because amateur radio operators had to learn Morris Code in order to apply for a license, many of them actually broadcast in code. Of course, this only piqued my curiosity, and I purchased a book to learn something about what they were saying. (It was 2007 before the Federal Communications Commission actually eliminated Morse code from the requirements for amateur radio operators.)

Many amateur radio operators increased the power of their radios and could be heard from miles and miles away. Unless they actually informed listeners where they were located, many times you just had to guess. At other times, the transmissions provided the names of cities or states and it was easy to determine the location of the broadcast. At night, frequencies can travel longer distances than they could during the day. Because I only listened to my radio at night, it was possible to hear transmissions that originated from great distances. I remember hearing one gentleman who lived in the Yukon province of Canada talking about a special dog team that he owned. He discussed how he had been in the bush for days with only his dogs to entertain him. I was thrilled with this broadcast. After I told my mother (Bee) about hearing the man, she often came into my room to see whom I was listening to that particular evening. My friend Kenneth Hansel loved listening to my new radio. Once he spent the night with me, and we set up all night listening to distant radio transmissions. I dozed off a couple of times, but he would shake me awake exclaiming, "Listen to this!" I eventually took that radio with me to college, but I cannot recall what happened to it after that. It, too, would probably be worth a small fortune by this time. If only we had known which items to hang on to all these years.

Judge's statement is red herring... Dear Editor.

Judge Carloftis' insistence of "How can I possibly support or be in favor of something that I have never seen for Rockcastle County" is a red herring, in other words, something that draws attention away from the central issue.

In the February 28, 2008 Signal, Carloftis is quoted as saying "they (Fiscal Court) are going to be involved and informed from day one because, in the end, they will have to make any type of final decisions concerning all of these issues," referring to the Rockastle County Industrial Development Board's plans for the county. In that same article, Jim Holton, the Development Board's consultant, said he would meet with any group "to explain the importance of Land Use Master Plan and planning and zoning for Rockcastle County." Lastly, Mr. Carloftis stated he would bring up the issue of the Land Use Master Plan at the next Fiscal Court meeting for discussion...

Serious Sting Reactions

Presented by Dr. David Bullock

There are different kinds of reactions to bee stings but the one that people fear the most is called anaphylaxis. This is when a person's airway closes off and his blood pressure drops. Each year, about 40 people die from bee stings. That's more than from any other kind of animal encounter in the United States.

While it is usually children who get stung (and many children appear to have the severe kind of reaction), it is actually more often adults who die from these reactions. In about half of these cases, the person was not aware that he was extremely allergic to bees. Children, on the other hand, often grow less allergic to stings with time.

When a person knows that he is sensitive to hornets or wasps he should have an emergency bee sting kit available which contains epinephrine and antihistamines that can be taken immediately after being stung and before going to the hospital. Allergy testing and desensitization shots may also be indicated since they can ameliorate a life-threatening reaction and give a person time to reach medical help.

The biggest problem is from yellow jackets. These are the wasp-like bees that live in cracked foundations and under stones and logs. They are solitary and very aggressive. If you show up in their territory they may charge out and sting you without provocation.

When a person is highly allergic to bees or wasps he should be very careful not to disturb them by kicking rotten logs or digging around foundations. A person should also wear gloves, shoes and long sleeves whenever there is a risk of stirring up bees.

placed the antennae in the window of my bedroom and positioned the radio on a table next to my bed.

The instructions also made note of the fact that my new radio could receive transmissions from aircraft, weather reports, ships at sea, and countless numbers of amateur radio operators. It's hard to describe how excited I was to be listening to such broadcasts.

One of the first transmissions that I could plainly receive was a ship on Lake Michigan talking to someone on the shore. He was giving instructions about his arrival at some port. The message was "as clear as a bell." After that, I was hooked on shortwave radio. Each night I turned off the lights in my room and stared intently at the glow of the dial on my new radio.

Most of the communications that I listened to were amateur radio operators chatting with Recently, I read an article in the Kentucky Explorer that was so interesting and was such a vital part of the history of Rockcastle County, I feel that I must share it with you. It was highly recommended by Bobby Harper, formerly of Mount Vernon. It was written by David W. Owens in 2009, and certainly goes "like a hand in a glove" with the history of this county. I'll summarize it in my own words, except for the occasional direct quote.

Long before the famous gunfight at the OK Corral was the not-so-famous gunfight at Pine Hill, in Rockcastle County, Kentucky. It occurred in 1875. As many in the county have heard or may possibly remember, Pine Hill was a major community in Rockcastle County, the largest of any at that time. It was a railroad stop on the L&N Railroad, and it could boast of a large coal and timber business.

According to David Owens, there was a William Russell Dillon, a postmaster who also had a timber business and owned the Dillon Boarding and Dining House at Pine Hill. It seems that he was rather violent. He, during the Civil War, had been accused of and stood trial for the murder of Durrant White, who was a suspected rebel spy. White met his untimely death at a "house of ill repute" at Big Hill, which is near the Rockcastle/Madison County line, past Scaffold Cane.

Meanwhile, in Clay County, Missouri, the Younger-James gang was planning a trip to Huntinton, West Virginia, for the purpose of robbing the Bank of Huntington where an Adams Express package containing $100, 000 was to arrive in a few days.

The Younger-James gang had been a part of the Confederate cavalry known as "Quantrill's Raiders". They had made their fame by robbing trains and banks containing the payrolls of Federal soldiers.

Of course, to get to West Virginia, they were to pass through Kentucky, coming and going. Word had already leaked of their mission, and the law enforcement in Kentucky was posted and watching for them. Some of them were posing as traveling ministers, and gained passage to Huntington, which was run by Collis P. Huntington without incident. Mr. Huntington was a big railroad man, and a member of the "Big Four", partners of the Missouri-Pacific Railroad, a favorite target of the gang.

Upon arrival in Huntington, Cole Younger and Jesse James were met by Calvin Reece, a Baptist minister who assumed they were in town for a Methodist conference. While being escorted around town and even taking a tour of the bank, they were able to draw suspicion off the rest of the gang, who were checking into the Huntington Lodge House. Robert James, Frank and Jesse's father, was an ordained minister from Georgetown College, and the brothers drew from their experiences with their father in their younger years.

The gang had arrived in Huntington on September 3rd and managed not to bring suspicion to themselves, until September 6th, when they hit the bank at precisely 2:00 PM, as was their trademark hour.

Robert Oney was the teller on duty that day at the bank when the Younger-James gang came calling. They had their escape plan down pat, complete with gunmen on the roof of the building, and saddled horses waiting at the local blacksmith shop. They had everything calculated, except the $100,000 not being there. The Adams Express package had been rerouted to Cincinnati, Ohio, when the word leaked out that the Younger-James gang planned on stealing it for themselves.

The bandits, however, did get away with only $9,000 in cash, and a $5,000 Certificate of Deposit. After the holdup, they decided to split up, making trailing them a little more difficult, and later to meet in Louisville, Kentucky. After meeting, they hoped to slip unnoticed back to Missouri.

James and Robert Younger, Frank James, and John Larette headed for Nelson County, Kentucky, to the section called Chaplin Hill. Meanwhile, Jesse James, Cole Younger, Tom Webb, and Thompson McDaniels headed for Rockcastle County. Frank and Jesse James had kinfolk on their mother's side, Anna Arzella Woodson, who was married to Andrew Johnson living in the area at Red Hill.

They planned to hide out in the hills and hollows of Rockastle County until the "heat was off" and board a train for Louisville at Pine Hill or Livingston.

Their plans had failed yet again upon reaching Kentucky, due to a fifteen-man posse. They were engaged in an unexpected and heated gunfight. The air was thick with the exchange of gunfire, and blood was shed.

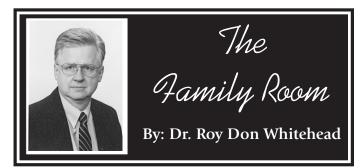

Remember that I'm looking for good stories about the county, people and the events in their lives. I may be contacted through the Mount

that Mr. Carloftis followed through with his statement but surely he did, as it seems very important to him. Also, when citizens attended a planning meeting and voiced their opposition to the idea of zoning for Rockcastle County, they wanted the matter put on a ballot. However, according to KRS 100, planning and zoning must be implemented by a Fiscal Court...and cannot be placed on the ballot.

She looked at the clock with dread. It was 4:30. He would be home from work soon, and she wondered what kind of mood he would be in. If he had a bad day at work, the night would be a long one. Usually she could tell how angry he was by how he closed the car door.

She told the kids to go to their rooms and be very quiet. They immediately began fighting noisily, as if they sensed her anxiety and reacted to it. Her husband often complained that they were too loud and got on his nerves. She warned them again to be quiet and not bother Daddy. She wanted everything to be perfect when he came home from work.

She checked on dinner and saw that everything was ready. Dinner had to be on the table the minute he got home or there would be trouble. The biscuits would be done in two minutes and the table was set. She had made his favorite - fried chicken and mashed potatoes.

The knot in her stomach grew larger as the clock inched toward 5:00. Having been married to him for ten years, she thought she ought to be used to this by now, but she had never grown accustomed to the tension. If anything, the knots in her stomach were worse than they used to be. Her doctor had given her medication to calm her stomach, but it was not helping. This was the third medication the doctor had tried, and he was puzzled as to why none of them helped. She had not told him about her husband.

Finally, she heard the car in the driveway. She took the biscuits out of the oven and put the meat and vegetables on the table. She checked herself in the mirror. With no makeup (he would not allow her to wear any), she did not like what she saw. She decided he was right when he told her no other man would have her. Besides, how could she support herself and the children? She knew she had to stay with him.

The car door slammed-hard. That was not a good sign. As the door opened she greeted him with a smile and asked about his day. He grunted and headed to the bathroom. She called the children for dinner and reminded them to behave themselves, because Daddy had a hard day at work.

He entered the kitchen, sat down and began to eat. The children ate quietly, never looking up from their plates. He commented that the chicken was dry, and she apologized. He also told her there were lumps in the mashed potatoes.

Her oldest said she liked the potatoes just the way they were. He told her to shut up and eat.

Suddenly he stood up and threw his plate on the floor. He said he was not going to eat this slop and ordered the kids to go to their rooms. She began to clean up the mess on the floor. He told her to leave it, and maybe the dog would eat it, though he doubted even a dog would want it.

She began to cry without making a sound. He told her that she was a big baby and should just grow up. She started to stand and he pushed her to the floor. She curled up in a fetal position as he began to kick her. She had endured this many times before and just lay there as he kept on kicking. She knew the bruises would come tomorrow and last for a week. She just hoped the kids would stay in their rooms and not see what he was doing to her.

So the CCFFG and our petition signers against zoning are not so misguided after all, as Judge Carloftis thinks. My grandpa was mentioned in the Fiscal Court meeting by Mr. Carloftis to show that, as in the past, elected officials sometimes do what the people are against. What he didn't know is that when Grandpa Charlie did that to build the new courthouse, he paid the price of losing the next election for County Judge. Claretta Carter Hodges

Courtney shares views on city and Mayor again...

Dear Editor,

For the last two weeks I've seen several letters thanking the City, County and Tourism Commission for the Renfro fireworks.

I "AGAIN" want to remind everyone that your taxes (App. $36,000) paid for them. In years past they were paid for by the VFW and Tommy Mullins when they were at the lake. I have to keep asking the question "why buy the cow when the milk is free!"

Also, it should be clear to everyone the mayor "never" misses a PHOTO oppourtunity. I'm guessing she won't like the ones that may appear in the near future!

Sincerely, Rick Courtney

R.A.I.N. News...

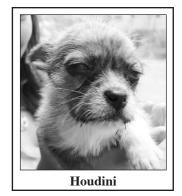

Things at the foster farm are really busy. Thanks to our 1st Annual Kids and Kritters, R.A.I.N. membership has grown, as well as several new volunteers assisting at the foster farm. The dogs residing at the farm have looked forward to the adults and children who visit and spend time playing with them and helping clean the kennels. R.A.I.N's newest members and volunteers include Anthony and Christi Cahill and family, Rob and Tia Rogers and family, Chris Trump and family, Crystal Holt, and Danielle Denny and family. These people have worked tirelessly at any task put before them, but we could use many more volunteers. Napoleon, our lab/Doberman mix, has to be every visitors' favorite but no one seems to be interested in taking him home. He greets everyone with a wagging tail and a "smile," eagerly waiting for a treat or some well deserved attention. Napoleon hopes that soon he will be adopted so that he can have his very own human to spend endless hours with playing or relaxing. He seems to be suited for any person, adult or child.

Recently, a precious dachshund mix and her little one have become residents at the farm. Houdini, the youngest one at the farm, will steal anyone's heart. Her mother, Hannah, looks on with pride and hope as he wobbles over to visitors and snuggles up to whomever holds him. Both Houdini and Hannah would make perfect indoor companions. She loves to have her belly rubbed and Houdini loves everything!

The R.A.I.N. foster farm is home to several lab mix, young adult dogs. Apollo, our resident dalmation mix, is an excellent dog and has soared through basic training with high marks. He enjoys hugs and play time; however, he is becoming sadder each day as other dogs are adopted while he is overlooked. He feels that because of his quiet nature and soft heart no one believes that there is a playful and faithful friend inside. R.A.I.N. volunteers and foster farm dad, Wolf, continue to shower him with love and assurance that there really is a family out there waiting for him.

It has been wonderful to see the community support this last month. RAIN will be seeking to build a facility starting next year. We are looking at the designs for a 'green shelter' that will house our canine and feline friends. There will also be a separate area for the quarantine of puppies.

We at RAIN wish we could do more. We refuse to give up on any of our fosters, including longtime residents Osiris and Rusty. None of us at the farm can understand how anyone would overlook these two handsome young men. Osiris, with his tri-colored mask and energetic nature, would make a perfect pet for any family. Rusty, our red and black lab mix, is our resident "macho" man. He loves to play but also wants everyone to know that he is "here to serve and protect."

Many of our volunteers have taken a keen likeness to several of our foster farm dogs. Ramses, Becky, Freckles, and Ken Doll are other long time residents who seem to be overlooked for one reason or another. All of these dogs are great with kids and adults, as well as other animals. They are kennel and crate trained, and housebroken. Who wouldn't want the hard work of housebreaking taken care of before they bring the new member of their family home?

July has seen a great increase in our number of rescued canines - RAIN was able to save 73 animals since July 1and the month is not over. Unfortunately, our farm is full of dogs of all sizes and breeds and we cannot taken in new borders at this time but hope to soon have room for more. We can barely keep up. We are asking for more volunteers to come and play with the pups, and there is a great need for bleach, trash bags, and paper towels.

Local student graduates from Rogers Scholars

Submitted by Sharon Dodson, The Center for Rural Development Thirty high school students. Six days of unlimited possibilities.

One unique youth program. The Center for Rural Development recently brought together some of the brightest, most creative, and energetic high school students from across Southern and Eastern Kentucky at the first 2009 summer session of its flagship youth program, Rogers Scholars.

For one week in June, those students developed skills in leadership and entrepreneurship, and worked to reach their potential as the region's next generation of leaders.

The 30 graduates of the first session-all rising high school juniors in The Center's 42county service area-also earned offers of college scholarships from 13 colleges and universities in Kentucky and Tennessee.

One of those graduates was 15-year-old Justin Poynter of Rockcastle County.

Poynter, a junior at Rockcastle County High School, said the experience taught him the value of community service.

He said he is interested in getting more involved in community service work in his home community.

Lonnie Lawson, president and CEO of The Center, presented Poynter and other Rogers Scholars in the first graduating class certificates of completion recognizing their participation in the program at a graduation ceremony held July 3 at The Center in Somerset.

Creativity is all about taking risks, taking chances, and being willing to fail," Lawson told the graduates. "Learn from ship, an entrepreneurial spirit, and a commitment to rural Kentucky.

"Being chosen as a Rogers Scholars is an honor for the students, their schools, and their communities, as it is a highly competitive, blinded selection process," Jessica Melton, associate director of education and training for The Center, said. "These students truly represent the best and brightest minds in our region."

The program provides opportunities for students to grow their leadership and entrepreneur skills and receive professional development in three program majors: engineering, video production, and information technology. Rogers Scholars receive 12 hours of professional instruction in one of these areas taught by college professors or experts in the field.

A favorite activity of the week for most Rogers Scholars is the climb up the corporate ladder of a 55-foot Alpine Tower ropes course at the Team Leadership Center in Wayne County.

In this exercise, Scholars learn how to set goals and work toward reaching their goals by climbing as far as they feel increasingly more comfortable on the course. Many of the Scholars climbed to the top of the platform receiving cheers of applause from their team members.

Poynter said the team-building exercise helped him to develop his communication skills and realize the importance of communicating with others.

Other activities included a community service project that involved picking up litter and debris along the shores of Lake Cumberland, and inspirational messages from former University of Kentucky Wildcat basketball player J.P. Blevins and

The Rogers Scholars program was developed by The Center, a non-profit economic development organization, in 1998 as an action step toward fulfilling the goal of U.S. Congressman Harold "Hal" Rogers (KY-05) "that no young person will need to leave home to find his or her future."

Lawson encouraged Rogers Scholars to remain true to their Kentucky roots and take pride in their home communities.

'You are now a representative of the Rogers Scholars program," he reminded the graduating class. "You are now a representative of The Center for Rural Development. And you are now a representative of Congressman Harold Rogers."

Rogers Scholars emphasizes the development of technological skills and builds in participants a sense of leaderothers who shared their stories of success with Rogers Scholars.

"After spending a week with the Rogers Scholars, I know great things lie ahead for Southern and Eastern Kentucky," Melton said. "These students have exemplified strong leadership skills and a commitment to our region."

FFA Chapter attends Leadership Training

Submitted by: Nichole Roberts Chapter Reporter

Every summer the officers and assistants from our local FFA Chapter travel to the Kentucky FFA Leadership Training Center in Hardinsburg for a week. During this week they have the opportunity to participate in several athletic events, bond with their chapter, take classes to help them serve in their office more effectively, along with many more enjoyable activities.

Athletic events always keep everyone well entertained. For several hours a day you are separated into athletic groups and have the chance to play volleyball, softball, basketball, tennis, as well as canoeing, swimming and several other minor sports. From each athletic group two members are chosen to play on an All-Star team. Members chosen from Rockcastle were B.B. Cameron, Joel Lakes and Robert Reynolds for the softball team; Brittany Adams for the volleyball team; Jackie Alexander, Nathan Bullock and Dustin Reynolds for the basketball team. As a chapter we competed in a water ball tournament, which is basically basketball in the pool, and a volleyball tournament. Water ball didn't turn out as we had hoped but we made it to the semi-finals in volleyball.

Congratulations everyone!

The classes taken aren't like a typical class at school; you have an officer class which helps you to understand the duties and responsibilities of your office more in depth; along with classes of your choice, "special interest", classes which range in a wide variety of things, just to name a couple: Parliamentary Procedure, Photography, Communications, Swimming, Canoeing, Tractor Driving and lots of others.

We are proud to say that our chapter treasurer, Amanda Swinney, ran for camp council and our chapter asst. secretary, Skylar Holcomb, was a delegate. Megan Martin, our regional quiz winner competed in the weekly FFA Quiz Contest and placed 2nd. Amanda Swinney was chosen for a Leadership Award; Brittany Adams and Jackie Alexander were chosen for Outstanding Leadership Awards, which are given to campers who go above and beyond throughout the week. RCMS gets new flagpole

Thanks to the efforts of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Student Council, and the Administrative Staff, Rockcastle County Middle School now has its own flagpole on campus.

For several years, students and staff have expressed their desires for a flagpole to fly the American flag daily as well as to gather for the national annual See You At The Pole event. Their dream has finally come to fruition.

This milestone would not have been possible with the contributions of several people and organizations. Special gratitude is extended to the following: Mary Ann McNew and Woodmen of the World, Sgt. Keith Graves and the RCHS ROTC, and RCMS Student YMCA club. Mr. Coguer worked tirelessly to organize this venture and the students and staff deeply appreciate his continued efforts to make the middle school the best in the state.

We look forward to the inauguration of the new flagpole for See You At The Pole, September 23, 2009 at 7:30 a.m.

We look forward to seeing you!

To: Parents and Guardians of Brodhead Elementary students From: Brodhead Elementary School staff and PTA

We are gearing up for the upcoming school year. We look forward to working with you and your child. I am sure that together, we can give your child the best education possible.

We will host "Back to School" night on Tuesday, August 4, 2009. Each grade level has a specific meeting time (see schedule below). At that time, you will meet all of the teachers in that grade level. They will go over information that you will need to know about how things work at school, the curriculum that will be taught, what your child will need to know before moving on to the next grade and who your child's teacher will be.

After this brief meeting, you and your child will be able to go to your child's classroom and spend some time with your child's teacher. The purpose of this is to help your child be ready for the first day of school. This is your opportunity to see your child's class, meet many of their classmates and their teacher. On the first day of school, parents are not allowed to accompany their child to the classroom.

Kindergarten/Preschoo	1 3:00	Third Grade	4:30
First Grade	3:30	Fourth Grade	5:00
Second Grade	4:00	Fifth Grade	5:30

School supply lists are available in the office this summer from 8:00 to 3:00. You may drop off supplies on Back-to-School night. Every child will also need a standard size backpack that is clear or mesh and not on rollers. Please write your child's name on all school supplies, especially the backpack.

PTA will provide cookies and punch for those in attendance. You will also have an opportunity to join PTA at this time.

If your child will be a new student at BES this year we must have the following documentation before your child can attend school:

- Immunization Certificate (Ky. form) Eye Exam (Ky. form)
- Physical (Ky. form)
- Copy of birth certificate • Social Security Number (not hospital copy)

I look forward to a future working together to provide your child with a great education. Please arrange now to attend Back-to-School night during your child's grade level meeting time. If you have any questions, please call the school at 758-8512.

> Respectfully, Mrs. Caroline Graves, Principal

Frequently Asked Questions about Addiction and Abuse

1. "Do alcohol and other drugs cause abuse?" Not really. Drugs may make the abuse worse or make it more likely, but the drugs do not cause the abuse. Many men drink and even get drunk without abusing anyone. The same is true of other drugs. The abuse happens because the abuser is an angry and potentially violent person. Alcohol and other drugs may make the release of that anger more likely.

2. "Why would a victim use drugs?" Victims sometimes become users in order to deal with the pain of the abuse. If they are using, they do not have to feel the awful physical and emotional pain that accompanies abuse. (Most victims say the emotional pain is worse than the physical.)

A victim might start using drugs to if her abuser is using. "If you can't beat 'em, join 'em" seems to be the motto in this situation. Sometimes the abuser entices the victim into using. He then holds the drugs over her head in order to keep her with him, i.e. if he is her supplier, it is more difficult for her to leave. Some abusers have even ordered their victims to join them in using drugs. Some have used their victims as couriers when selling drugs. This involves the victim in illegal activities and that information can then be used against her. Whatever her reasons for beginning to use, the victim can become addicted herself.

3. "My abuser has quit drinking and says he won't hit me anymore. Should I go back to him?" Each situation is different, so one answer will not fit all. How long has he been clean and sober? Six days

Rogers secures funds for tourism development

U.S. Congressman Harold "Hal" Rogers (KY-05) announced that $685,000 was approved by the House of Representatives last week for continued support of the Southern & Eastern Kentucky Tourism De-Association velopment (SEKTDA). As part of the FY 2010 Financial Services and General Government Appropriations bill, the funding for SEKTDA will sustain critical tourism-based economic development, training, and promotion.

"At every turn, families are looking for less expensive and more convenient closer to home vacation options," said Rogers. "Because of our coordinated tourism initiative, southern and eastern Kentucky is well poised to draw these would-be visitors to fish our wild rivers, enjoy rich family entertainment at Renfro Valley or the Mountain Arts Center, camp along Buckhorn Lake, or hike Pine Mountain. Our region has an endless number of attractions and SEKTDA is leading the way in promoting these eye-catching and adventure-seeking spots around the world. With these funds, SEKTDA will continue its fine efforts at training up entrepreneurs, building up local tourism coalitions, and keeping visitors coming back to Appalachia."

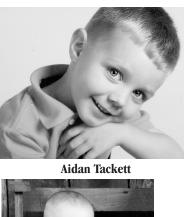

Over the past five years, Rogers has secured nearly $6 million for SEKTDA. In 2007, the tourism and travel industry contributed over $1.3 billion annually to the region, supporting 20,000 jobs. Statewide, there is a $10.1 billion annual impact from tourism.

SEKTDA is a nonprofit organization created in 1987 to promote and coordinate tourism throughout Southern and Eastern Kentucky in an effort to contribute to the economic and cultural growth of the region. SEKTDA, through its 47-county service area, utilizes these funds to train small business operators, community leaders, and entrepreneurs in hospitality, marketing, customer retention, and business plan development.

This legislation favorably passed out of the House of Representatives on July 16, 2009 and awaits Senate consideration this summer. As a senior member of the House Appropriations Committee, Rogers works to secure funding for important initiatives in the Fifth Congressional District.

I would first like to thank all of the wonderful people I have already met for welcoming me into your community.

I look forward to meeting everyone and continuing the quality chiropractic care that Dr. Meyer has provided to the area during his time here. Thank you and God bless. Dr. Matthew Tackett

Thinking About Cleaning Your Carpet! Some things to think about... What is the best way to clean my carpet, should I use the old technology of steam cleaning or the new technology of dry foam?

Test results from Consumer Report, 2008. Option 1: Steam Cleaning-How does it work?

A. Steam Cleaners saturate your carpet and floor pad with hot (150* degree) soapy water containing lye and beach to help dissolve stains.

B. After your carpet reaches its maximum saturation point the solution is then extracted by means of a commercial shop vacuum.

The results: Removes less than 20% of the soil from the carpet driving the remainder down deeper into the carpet fibers. The lye/bleach solution used by steam cleaners to dissolve stains fades carpet colors. Drying time is 1 to 5 days depending on the carpet texture. As a result of the water saturation, carpet fibers harden and the floor pad remains damp, which promotes bacteria growth and mildewing, causing carpet threads to rot, shorting the life of your carpet. Carpet manufactures recommend that you do not steam clean carpets.

Option 2: Dry Foam-How does it work? C. Carpet fibers are agitated with carpet combs to separate the fibers loosening dirt particles, which are then dry cleaned with an industrial strength vacuum.

D. The carpet is then shampooed with horse hair brushes using Dry-Foam lather, a solution that contains six different cleaners and fabric softener, color brightener, deodorizer, disinfectant, crystalline agent, scotch guard, & degreaser. Does not contain lye or bleach.

E. Carpet fibers are then groomed to fluff up worn walk areas to give a uniform look to the carpet.

The results: Removes over 90% of carpet soil. Rejuvenates and brightens colors and patterns of carpets. Drying times is less than 2 hours. Floor pads remain dry-Fabric Softener makes carpets soft again-Promoting the life of the carpet. Carpet manufacturers recommend Dry Foam to clean Carpets.

"WHAT IS WRITTEN"

The past few weeks we has been discussing Bible baptism, the correct mode, immersion, the correct purpose, a condition of salvation. Today we want to talk about the false forms of baptism. There are people who practice sprinkling or pouring as a form of baptism. The problem with this practice is, that it is based on human wisdom, the doctrines and commandment of men. Jesus warns about following the doctrines of men, "But in vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men." Matt. 15:9. Again in Matt. 7:23, "And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity." Then we have folks in the religious world that say that "baptism is outward sign of an inward grace." "People should be baptized to show to men that you have been saved." I have asked several who make these kind of statements, where does the Bible say such? Book, chapter, and verse please? False teachers proclaim this kind of nonsense over and over & folks begin believing it as the "gospel truth." Why not believe what Jesus said, would that not be easier? Jesus said, "And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." Jn.8:32. The truth of Jesus will liberate men from sin, not the lies and falsehood of religious error!

On July 16th and 17th, students from Christian Churches of Wildie and Mt. Vernon took part in an iServe project. Matt Chaliff and Eric Barton led various service projects throughout Mt. Vernon, from porch reconstruction to projects at the Rockcastle Regional Hospital.The group wanted to give back to their community and show their love of God in a practical way.

Mrs. Ann Abney, and part of the group, weeded the Healing Garden at the hospital, then collected sticks and gathered them in a pile in the outside garden to help the cosmetic appeal and overall look of the garden.

It was a wake-up call to arise and begin a long day that would take us north from Jerusalem through the Judean mountains and Samaria to Galilee and back to our hotel at the end of the day.

We reached the Sea of Galilee at lunchtime. Ford Bros. wins national award

Creativity and professionalism in auction marketing was celebrated by the world's largest association for auctioneers est association for auctioneers and auction marketing this past week in Overland Park, Kansas. The National Auctioneers Association (NAA) announced the winners of its 2009 Marketing Competition and Ford Brothers Auctioneers-Realtors with offices in Mt Vernon, Somerset and London Kentucky won the Best Broadcast / Audio Visual ...AV/DVD Presentation Award.

Each year, the organization holds the competition for its members to allow them to face off in a competition against their colleagues, and vie for top awards for their marketing materials and programs. This year's competition drew entries from throughout the United States and other countries all over the world.

The marketing video was written, directed and produced by Chuck Crawford of Rainmaker Advertising in Lexington, Kentucky. The video showed excerpts from auctions held in the Southeastern and Central Kentucky area and highlighted the care and due diligence and professionalism that Ford Brothers takes with every auction from the planning stage through the marketing of the property, the actual sale... and the closing. Ford Brothers Auctioneers-Realtors is a long time member of the Kentucky Auctioneers Association and the National Auctioneers Association, and Sam Ford is a past president of the National Auctioneers Association. This is the most recent in a long line of state and national awards for Ford Brothers print, radio and television marketing. Accept-

Create a Stunning Hillside Landscape

Trying to grow grass and keep it mowed on a steep bank is a difficult proposition. Trimming under varying conditions, including slippery wet ones, is inviting an accident to happen over an extended period of time. Let's investigate the matter and find some other options besides lawn for steep areas. Let's make a stunning landscape where there used to be a troubling place.

I am going to cover seven possible solutions in dealing with steep slopes in today's column. But first, let's consider what you have now. Do you have a bare eroding hillside? Do you have an spot of lawn that is unsafe to mow? Do you have gullies, rocks, and impending landslides...or do you have thickets of weeds and bushes? The prudent way to proceed is to get several ideas, asses what the current situation is, and choose a course of action to deal with it that will vield solutions and hopefully a lovely landscaped area as the plan comes to fruition.

The big professional landscape company, the one with the degree on the wall from state college, may want to bring in a dozer and clear off the area for starters, then come up with a very high dollar proposal to landscape your bare hillside. That may not be all bad, but not everyone has the dollars to spend and the prospect of erosion while the new landscape is being constructed is of great importance I would think.

Make no mistake, turning steep areas into works of art are going to require extra effort and extra costs.

A steep area that is eroding, that is in grass but is dangerous to mow or weed-eat, can become an amazingly delightful part of a landscape, and be low-maintenance as well compared to the mowing proposition. To obtain a successful and sustainable result, make a plan, create a realistic budget (which may dictate that the plan has to be completed in steps or phases), and create a workable timeline for the project.

Here are six ideas to help with your problem hillside or sloped land. 1) Retaining walls or terraces, 2) Groundcover plantings such as carpet juniper, 3) woods—trees and shrubs hold back erosion in nature, 4) Rock Gardening, 5) Decking and stairways, 6) Waterfalls, streams or just dry creek beds.

The lawn mowing guy/gal, whether yourself or someone you hire, may think of slopes as trouble. A creative landscaper will see steep areas as holding amazing possibilities and opportunities. Whether you think in terms of hiring a professional or studying up on the subject and coming up with your own creative solutions, I hope these six ideas will be helpful.

First, terracing is popular with lanscapers, because not only will this stabalize the slope, but it will create useful flat areas between the hardscaping. Gardens, lawn, flowers, even a spot for your favorite sport may be created where once there was a hill. Simple dry stack stone walls, walls of retaining wall blocks or timbers, maybe large boulders partially submerged into the ground...these are options that come to mind.

Another way to deal with a slope is to plant it in groundcover. That might be creeping juniper, wintercreeper or ivy, a few trees scattered around, and mulched with cypress or hardwood bark (or even free mulching chips from the truck of the tree-trimming companies).

Thirdly, woods is a natural solution. Could your slope be let naturalize? Trees, understory trees such as dogwoods and service berries, shrubs like azaleas for color or laurels for winter greenery. With careful plant choices, and smart planting practices, this may be the easiest solution of all to your slope. Certainly it will stop soil and wind from eroding soil, and esthetically it will offer pleasing greenery and interspersed color.

A fourth consideration is to rock garden. Probably there are already some exposed rocks if the slope is steep and you're having trouble stabalizing the soil. Add boulders. Add one and two-man stones, and a few smaller ones to make the look natural as possible. Between the boulders, (which should be anchored into the slope so they don't tumble easily), you can plant grasses, yucca, perennial bloomers, a few evergreens, drought-tolerant plants such as sedums and artemesias and herbs such as sages and rosemary.

Then we come to a subject dear to me, waterfalls, streams and dry creeks. A natural slope almost begs for a waterfall or a babbling brook. People pay top dollar for a building site beside a mountain stream in the forest! I assure you, it would be cheaper to build the forrest and the stream at your current residence is you already have the sloping land than it would to pull up root and move to the new mountain development being subdivided and sold. So, why not? And if the cost of the waterfeature with the recirculating pump seems to be prohibitive, how about taking the gully, the rill, the bare channel water is already carving ... and enhance it some, and line it with stones of varying sizes and descriptions to make a "dry creek". That way, you'll have a controlled run-off of the excess water when it rains, and a nice looking solution with stones in any event.

The final suggestion today is to build decking and stairways up (or down) the slope, to create useful spots.

And, it would not have to be wood, it could even be stone stairs and patio areas. Either way, planting nooks, planting boxes, and container gardening can enhance the beauty of this option. Trellises, pergolas, seating, building around a tree to have shaded deck area, are all extensions of this theme. The more you can utilize what you have, you'll save a ton of money. The more heavy machinery you have to get involved in the project, the bigger the bucks you can look forward to spending. (Actually, investing would be a better word here—for, truly, a hillside landscape to die for is a great investment, not an ex-

With these ideas in hand, I encourage you to have a wonderful time creating a beautiful landscape where you now have a unruly steep slope.

Firefighters extinguish Monday fire at Red Hill

Seven members of the Livingston Volunteer Fire Department were able to extinguish a Monday afternoon fire at a Red Hill home.

Livingston asst. fire chief Russell Barron said no one was at home when a motorist noticed smoke coming from a residence, reportedly belonging to a McMillen family, five miles from Livingston.

Barron said it was apparent that no one had been staying at the residence for some time and that the fire was in a couch and wooden sink cabinet.

"We think mice may have ignited some large matches we found at the scene. That is really the only explanation for the cause of the fire," Barron said.

The house received minimal smoke and water damage and was extinguished a very few minutes after firefighters arrived.

ployed a year ago when the budget was approved, are now on the city government's payroll.

The $135,000 salary figure questioned by Mullins for next year does not include increases in salaries for police or water and sewer department employees or salaries for fire chief David Bales or asst. chief Jack Weaver.

Under the proposed budget, Bales would receive $12,480 and Weaver would receive $8,320 for their work on the fire department. Both salaries are based on 16 hours per week. Bales has also submitted a budget of his own for the fire department which was discussed briefly on Monday night.

In his request for funding for the city fire department, Bales asked for $45,000.

The big ticket item is $21,000 for new hoses on the city's old truck. The $45,000, combined with Bales' and Weaver's salary, would make the fire department's actual budget, $65,800.

Mayor Kirby said in her budget proposal and message to the council that "we want to provide good police and fire protection."

Council member Don Jones said he thought the council should support the fire department and that fire department members should not have to hold hats at road blocks to raise funds for a service they are willing to provide as volunteers.

Council member Shelley Lewis also voiced her support of the fire department's budget and said it should be included in the city's budget.

Other big ticket items in the city's 2009-10 budget are $579,000 for the city's police department and $5.7 million in the water and sewer fund for operating costs and new equipment, primarily $400,000 for new meter reading equipment.

By the numbers, if the city's 2009-10 budget is approved at a special called meeting on August 3rd, it will exceed $8.4 million, which would be the largest budget ever approved for the city of Mt. Vernon.

Also in the budget is revenue in the amount of $128,000, from a four percent insurance tax the city will now collect instead of the county.

"As far as I am concerned, this budget is a long way from being passed, there are still too many unanswered questions," Mullins said on Tuesday. Mullins is the longest-tenured council member, serving over 20 years.

In other business, councilman Mullins also questioned the purchase of 43 prints from Roy Beasley at a cost of $2,600 by Mayor Kirby, without council approval.

Mullins told the Mayor that he thought "$66 each for pictures was too much to be spent" and he (Mullins) wanted to know the exact city ordinance that gave the Mayor the authority to spend that kind of money without the council's approval.

Mayor Kirby said she was sure that such a city ordinance was on the books and that she would have her staff find it.

As of press time on Wednesday, the ordinance had not been located.

The pictures are mostly of flowers at the Beasley farm in the Brindle Ridge area and the Mayor said they would be placed in city buildings such as city hall, the fire department and water and sewer buildings. Some of the pictures hang in the former fire department area where Monday night's meeting was held.

Rockcastle Tourist Commission board member and treasurer Jerry Pensol told the council on Monday night that the tourist commission was going to form a committee to study ways the boat dock at Lake Linville can be improved.

Pensol said the purpose of the committee would be to improve the boat dock so that more tourists would be lured to the boat dock and that current boat dock operator Tommy Mullins wanted to be on the committee.

Pensol said the main goal was to help the city and Mullins improve the appearance of the boat dock, which has deteriorated over the past several years.

Council members Lewis and Sharon Saylor offered to join the five member committee, which will be chaired by Pensol.

The special meeting of the council will be on August 3rd at 7 p.m. when they will attempt once again to pass a budget for the 2009-10 fiscal year, which should have been approved prior to July 1st. For now, the city is operating on last year's budget.

According to court documents, the charges against Cromer resulted after a joint investigation between the Federal Drug Enforcement Agency, FBI and the Rockcastle Sheriff's office.

Cromer, who was arrested in July of 2007, has been detained in a detention center since his arrest and was never allowed bond in the case.

According to court documents, Cromer was involved in the drug trafficking case along with John Riley Watkins of Fayette County and Michael Joe McFerron of Mt. Vernon.

Both Watkins and McFerron have pled guilty in the case and are serving time in federal prison.

According to court documents the men were distributing methampehtamine in Kentucky from a supplier in Georgia.

Controlling ants in the home

Family and Consumer Sciences Hazel Jackson

Rockcastle County Extension Office

No one wants to wake up in the morning, go into a kitchen to grab some breakfast and find ants invading your home. Ants are one of the most common pests found in homes, but many misconceptions exist about their control.

In addition to being irritating, ants may contaminate food, build unsightly mounds on your property or cause structural damage to your home by hollowing out wood for nest-

The most common mistake people make is spraying only the ants they see. Colonies house anywhere from several hundreds to millions of ants and can be located inside or outside the home. By only spraying the ants you see, you may not be getting the entire colony. It is more effective form of control to find and destroy the colony.

One way to do this is to set insecticide bait. The ants will take the bait to the colony and feed it to the queen ant(s) and other members. Many times the bait will destroy the entire colony. Baits usually are user friendly and can be purchased at most stores. Many of them come in child-proof containers, while others are applied as granules or via syringe. Various species prefer different types of bait at different times throughout the year. If ants are not eliminated on the different kind. If the bait works, vou should see more ants feeding around it. While it may be tempting, you should not spray the ants while they are feeding on bait. They will likely take the bait back to their queen and others in their colony. Do not spray household cleaners and insecticides near baits because they could make them less appealing to the ants.

If the ants are not gone after several attempts to control them, you may want to consult a professional pest control firm.

You can prevent or lessen the number of ants invading your home in the future by caulking or sealing around openings in your home that are easy entryways for ants. This includes door thresholds, windows and openings where wires enter the building.

For more information on eliminating common household pests, contact the Rockcastle County Cooperative Extension Service at 256-2403.

The Rockcastle County Recycling Center is now providing recycling drop-off opportunities in outlying areas of Rockcastle County. These recycling trailers will be at the City of Livingston (gravel lot across from old gym) and the City of Brodhead (gravel lot across from Citizens Bank) July 27th thru August 10th and at the Western Rockcastle Volunteer Fire Department and the Pongo Volunteer Fire Department August 10th thru August 24th.

The following items may be put in these trailers: mixed paper, mixed plastic #2-7, #1 plastic bottles, clear milk jugs, steel and aluminum cans, glass bottles and jars and cardboard.

Please help us make this a successful venture by being clean and/or neat with our recycling habits. Do not put anything in the individual bins except what is labeled on them. If you drop something on the ground, pick it up. Absolutely no trash is to be put into the bins! Remember, camera surveillance is utilized in Rockcastle County and it is illegal to improperly dispose of trash.

Marching Rockets begin 2009 season

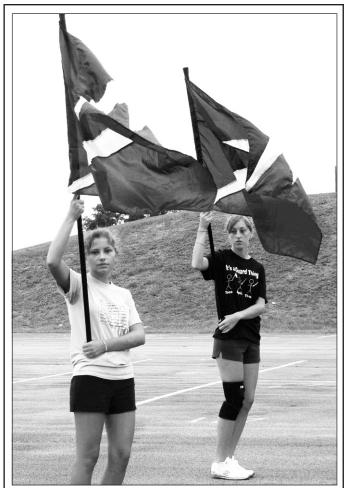

Submitted by A. B. Sharpe The 2009 Marching Rockets are here! Well, not really "here" this week... They are in deep training at Camp Crescendo in Lebanon Junction. After several days of Band Camp Lite, held at RCHS last week, they are now in that state of preparation that all must endure. Up before dawn each day, they march and drill in the fresh crisp air of a new day. After a hearty breakfast they march and drill in the warmer atmosphere of full morning until lunch. Afternoons are filled with marches and drills in either full sun or imminent downpour, while the cooler breezes in the evening are maximized for more marches and drills until well after dark. It doesn't take long for the troupe to figure out that time no longer matters – morning looks like afternoon which looks like evening and becomes the next day.

This week, all this will end and the 2009 Marching Rockets will give a brief hint of their repertoire as they perform for the other schools also attending camp and all the parents who make the drive to Lebanon Junction. The difference a week makes is remarkable. What will emerge from this intense weeklong exercise is a dedicated and bonded unit ready for anything, ready for the 2009 season! Go Rockets!

Band Director Greg Daugherty adjusting the flute of Jodi Hellard.

Parents & Teachers School Bus Safety Alert

A child's clothing can be dangerous when getting off the bus. A number of children have been injured or killed when their clothing became caught when exiting the bus.

Dangerous clothing that can get caught in handrails, doors or other areas include:

Jackets or sweatshirts with drawstrings

Backpack straps

Scarves or other loose clothing

Please talk with your children about these Safety Rules:

Stay away from Danger Zones around the bus

If you drop something near the bus, don't pick it up. The driver may not see you. Tell the driver and follow his/her instructions.

Remember that motorists don't always stop for the school bus. Use extreme caution when getting on or off the bus.

Bluegrass Balloon bust held at Buck Creek Gun Club

By: J.R. Carter

The Eighth Annual Bluegrass Balloon Bust was held at Buck Creek Gun Club in Whetstone, Ky. on May 9th. The banter had been hot and heavy on the Internet website: The Varmints Den

(www.varmintsden.com) for several months over the Savage Arms domination of the Factory Class the last several years. Things got so heated that shoot organizer George Coleman of Mt. Vernon offered a $50 prize to anyone firing a Remington rifle who could dethrone Savage Arms from the top spot. Bill mcMurry of Rogersville, TN offered to donate a case of his homemade apple butter to anyone firing a Ruger rifle that could do the same.

Whetstone, on Hwy. 1003, is off the beaten path for sure but there were shooters from as far north as Saginaw, Michigan and as far south as Georgia. Actually, the main attraction of the annual event is the chance to renew old friendships and make new ones. The event has been an annual one since 2001 and most of those attending know each other.. This year was one of the most successful shoots ever with nearly 60 shooters taking part in the events. Most everyone brought their families and pets as this event has a truly family type atmostphere. Teresa Snow of Dixon, TN even brought her pet, Bennett (Red Necked) Wallaby. Just what kind of Wallaby would you expect to fine in Tennessee but a "Red Necked Wallaby??" A great lunch was catered by Sonny's Bar BQ in Somerset.

Buck Creek Gun Club is an alcohol and smoke free facility, consisting of 12 covered, handicapped accessible bench rest rifle stations. Rangemaster and shoot organizeer, George Coleman of Mt. Vernon, was in charge of safety. Hearing and eye protection are mandatory and no ammunition is loaded into any rifle until on the line and ready to fire. When finished, the bolts are moved from the rifle before leaving the firing line. There are separate classes for female shooters who more than hole their own with the men. Young shooters are encouraged, as long as parents are close at hand to assist them with safety.

Things got underway about 9 a.m. with the Heavy Custom Class firing first. this includes most any type and calibre full custom rifle that you wish to bring. This class fires at 400 yards. Targets are small waterfilled balloons, some as small as two inches in diameter. Any type of telescopic sight is permitted and 36X to 45X were the most common. First place was claimed in a shoot off by John (Voldoc) Stone of Celina, TN firing a Mot Yelrom engineered Viper actioned rifle in caliber 6BRX with a Broughton barrel and Nightforce 42X scope. Second place was Todd Lynn, also of Celina, TN, firing a Stolle Teddy action rifle in caliber 22 Dasher. Steve Jaynes of Rosehill, VA took third place, firing a Grizzly action Kreiger barrel rifle in caliber 6 BR with a Leupole 40 X scope.

Youth class positions are awarded to shooters who fire all three classes and are under 18 years old. First place was Shawn Harris of Jonesville, VA. Second place was taken by Wade McMurry of Rogersville, TN and thid place went to Amanda Harber of Jonesville, VA.

Factory Class fires at 200 yards and is the most popular with over 60 contestants taking part. These are regular factory mass-produced rifles in any caliber made by any manufacturer. Only very minor modifications to the rifle are permissible but any scope is allowed.

This year, 31 shooters chose rifles made by Savage arms Co; 12 chose Remington and Ruger was chosen by 13 shooters. Several other makes were also represented. Savage has won over 10 shoots in a row at Buck Creek (counting KY Top Gun and Quarter Mile shoots) and a lot of people were rooting for their particular favorite brand to replace Savage at the top of the heap. Donnie Harber of Jonesville, Virginia is the unelected leader of the "Rugermites" and promised everyone that Ruger would be crowned the new champion. "Coyote Geoge" Coleman of Mt. Vernon is a diehard Remington man and "wouldn't be caught dead firing a Savage." He offered a $50 cash prize to any fellow Remington shooter who could shut out the Savages. Nine shooters broke all their targets at 200 yards and a shootoff ensued. Ruger and Remington were both represented in the shootoff but the majority of shooters firing a perfect score were firing Savage rifles.

The tiebreaking targets were IBS paper score targets with the winner being decided by two shots closest to the X in the 10 ring. The competition was so close they had to be measured with a dial caliper to determine the winner.

I suppose it would make a better story to be able to report that Ruger or Remington upset Savage Arms to claim the top spot but, it was not to be, as Savage Arms Co. swept the first four spots. First place was Todd Lynn of Celina, TN, firing a Savage M M 12 in cal .223. James Hacker of Crab Orchard was second, firing a Savage M 12 in .223 and third place was taken by Ricky bell of Woodbury, TN, firing a Savage F Clss in 6BR caliber.

The Tennessee team claimed the State Team Trophy wit the highest score of any state. The Iron Man Trophy is awarded to the shooter compiling the best score in all three classes. This year, there was a tie, with Doc John Stone and Todd Lynn both scoring a tie of 28 points. They both live in Celina, TN and said they would hang the trophy in the Happy

NOTICE OF SALE

Pursuant to the Decree of Dissolution of Marriage entered in this action on June 29, 2009 for the purpose of satisfying the party's property agreement. I will offer at public auction the herinafter-described real property in Rockcastle County, Kentucky.

At the Courthouse on East Main Street

Sak Market in Celina.

We had a lot of fun this year with the big controversy over the factory class rifles. Rumor is that next year the prize will be doubled to knock Savage out of the top spot with $100 being offered to any Remington Shooter who can "Get'Er Done." Ruger Mountain in Jonesville, VA will surely echo with the sound of rifle shots as the Rugers are tuned up by the Harber clan for the next shoot. I know one thing for sure, there is going to be a lot of smack talk on the internet between now and next May, or at least the Kentucky Top Gun Shoot Labor Day weekend.

The following described property located in Rockcastle County, Kentucky towit:

A certain tract of land located in the waters of Renfro Creek in Rockcastle, Kentucky, approximately two miles north of Mt. Vernon, and more particularly described as follows:

Lot No. 1 of the Renfro Valley, Inc. Subdivision, as shown by plat of record in Plat Book 2, Page 49, in the Office of the Clerk of the Rockcastle Court, Mt. Vernon, Kentucky, and to which reference is hereby made for a more particular description.

Lot No. 2 of the Renfro Valley, Inc. Subdivision, as shown by plat of record in Plat Book 2, Page 49, in the Office of the Clerk of the Rockcastle Court, Mt. Vernon, Kentucky.

Being the same property conveyed to Carolyn Durham, unmarried, by deed dated July 20, 2006, executed by Glen E. Vanwinkle, et ux and recorded in Deed Book 212, page 279 in the Office of the Rockcastle County Clerk.

The property shall be sold on the following terms & conditions:

1. Lot No. 1 and Lot No. 2 shall be sold together as a whole.

2. The real property shall be sold for cash or upon a credit of thirty (30) days with the purchaser required to pay a minimum of ten percent (10%) of the purchase price in cash on the date of sale and to secure the balance with a bond approved by the Master Commissioner.

3. The bond shall bear interest at the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum until paid in full. The bond shall have the force and effect of a judgment and shall be and remain a lien upon the property sold as additional surety for the payment of the purchase price.

4. Unpaid taxes of record at the time of entry of judgment shall be paid out of the proceeds of the sale.

5. The purchaser shall pay the 2009 local, county and state property taxes.

6. Full satisfaction of the plaintiff's judgment shall be paid out of the proceeds of the sale.

7. The purchaser shall have possession of the real property upon compliance with the terms of the sale.

8. In the event that the plaintiff is the successful bidder and the sale price does not exceed the amount of the plaintiff's judgment, no deposit or bond shall be required.

9. The sale shall be made subject to all easements, set back lines, restrictions or covenants of record or otherwise and shall be sold "as is".

The Rockcastle County Recycling Center is now providing recycling drop-off opportunities in outlying areas of Rockcastle County. These recycling trailers will be at the City of Livingston (gravel lot across from old gym) and the City of Brodhead (gravel lot across from Citizens Bank) July 27th thru August 10th and at the Western Rockcastle Volunteer Fire Department and the Pongo Volunteer Fire Department August 10th thru August 24th.

The following items may be put in these trailers: mixed paper, mixed plastic #2-7, #1 plastic bottles, clear milk jugs, steel and aluminum cans, glass bottles and jars and cardboard.

Please help us make this a successful venture by being clean and/or neat with our recycling habits. Do not put anything in the individual bins except what is labeled on them. If you drop something on the ground, pick it up. Absolutely no trash is to be put into the bins! Remember, camera surveillance is utilized in Rockcastle County and it is illegal to improperly dispose of trash.
