Thinking About Cleaning Your Carpet? Some things to think about...
 What is the best way to clean my carpet, should I use the old technology of steam cleaning or the new technology of dry foam?
 Test results from Consumer Report, 2008.
Option 1: Steam Cleaning-How does it work?
 A. Steam Cleaners saturate your carpet and floor pad with hot (150° degree) soapy water containing lye and bleach to help dissolve stains.
 B. After your carpet reaches its maximum saturation point the solution is then extracted by means of a commercial shop vacuum.
 The results: Removes less than 20% of the soil from the carpet driving the remainder down deeper into the carpet fibers. The lye/bleach solution used by steam cleaners to dissolve stains fades carpet colors. Drying time is 1 to 5 days depending on the carpet texture. As a result of the water saturation, carpet fibers harden and the floor pad remains damp, which promotes bacteria growth and mildewing, causing carpet threads to rot, shorting the life of your carpet. Carpet manufacturers recommend that you do not steam clean carpets.
Option 2: Dry Foam-How does it work?
 C. Carpet fibers are agitated with carpet combs to separate the fibers loosening dirt particles, which are then dry cleaned with an industrial strength vacuum.
 D. The carpet is then shampooed with horse hair brushes using Dry-Foam lather, a solution that contains six different cleaners and fabric softener, color brightener, deodorizer, disinfectant, crystalline agent, scotch guard, & degreaser. Does not contain lye or bleach.
 E. Carpet fibers are then groomed to fluff up worn walk areas to give a uniform look to the carpet.
 The results: Removes over 90% of carpet soil. Rejuvenates and brightens colors and patterns of carpets. Drying times is less than 2 hours. Floor pads remain dry-Fabric Softener makes carpets soft again-Promoting the life of the carpet.
 Carpet manufacturers recommend Dry Foam to clean Carpets.

Rockcastle Regional receives award for excellent patient care

Rockcastle Regional Hospital & Respiratory Care Center has received an Excellence in Patient Care award given by outcomes firm Studer Group®. Cynthia D. Burton, RN, Chief Nursing Officer, accepted the award at the 11th annual What's Right in Health Care® conference on October 21, 2013 in Atlanta, Georgia.

Studer Group® gives its Excellence in Patient Care awards to select partners based on various categories. Rockcastle Regional Hospital was selected for their HCAHPS composite results (a nationally standardized survey for measuring how patients perceive the care they receive in hospitals).

"It was my privilege to accept the award on behalf of Rockcastle Regional Hospital," said Burton. "Our team is focused on quality patient experiences and this award recognizes our efforts. HCAHPS are important to us because they come from the patients."

Rockcastle Regional Hospital's outstanding results ranked them among the highest from a database of over 850 organizations coached by Studer Group. Rockcastle Regional Hospital was recognized for results for third quarter 2011 through second quarter 2012 for the "communication of medications" or "Staff always explained about medicines before giving them to patients" composite.

"As Rockcastle's Studer Group Coach, it is no surprise to me that they have achieved this incredible award," said Clay D. Linkous, MBA, Studer Group. "Their commitment and attention to detail in implementing and hardwiring best practices is demonstrated in every interaction I have with them!"

"Service excellence and quality improvements are embedded within the framework of Rockcastle Regional Hospital," said Stephen A. Estes President & CEO. "Studer Group is assisting us on the journey to improve patient outcomes and satisfaction, based on their years of experience and work at major healthcare facilities across the country. It is an honor to be recognized by Studer for our patient satisfaction scores."

Studer Group's mission is to change the face of healthcare by creating a better place for employees to work, physicians to practice medicine, and patients to receive care.

Mt. Vernon man dies in bizarre accident Thursday on Highway 150

By: Doug Ponder

A Mt. Vernon man was killed in a four car accident around 6 o'clock last Thursday morning at the intersection of Dug Hill Road and Hwy 150.

According to state police reports, a 2009 blue Toyota Corolla driven by Gregory S. Fulton, 50, of London was traveling westbound on Hwy 150 when he rear-ended a gray 2005 Chevrolet Colorado driven by Timothy E. Taylor, 50, of Mount Vernon. Due to the absence of turning lanes at the intersection, Taylor was stopped in the roadway, waiting for oncoming traffic to clear before turning left onto Dug Hill Road.

After the rear-end collision, Taylor's vehicle traveled into the eastbound lane where it was struck a second time by a maroon 1997 Toyota Tacoma driven by Rena M. Hopkins, 46, of Crab Orchard who was traveling eastbound on Hwy 150. After the second impact, Taylor was hit a third time by a 1994 lime-green Chevrolet Tracker driven by Paul D. Kidwell, 52, of Brodhead who was also traveling eastbound on Hwy 150.

According to State Police reports, Taylor was not wearing a seatbelt at the time of the collisions and was ejected from his vehicle. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Rockcastle County Coroner Billy Dowell.

Hopkins was also not wearing her seatbelt at the time of the collision and was flown from the scene to the UK Medical Center where she is being treated for non-life threatening injuries.

Man arrested for drug possession Monday night

By: Doug Ponder
A Georgia man was arrested for drug possession Monday night after police made a traffic stop on I-75 northbound near Mt. Vernon.

Arrested at the scene was Yachov B. Yisrael, 20, of Hampton, Georgia.

According to state police reports, Trooper Adam Childress made a stop on Yisrael's vehicle after observing him driving 83 mph in a 70 mph zone.

Yisrael told Childress that he didn't have a driver's license and that his name was Jason Carr. After further investigation, Childress confronted Yisrael about giving him a false name and Yisrael admitted that his

Rockcastle's Got Talent is this Saturday

The annual Rockcastle's Got Talent show is this Saturday at 7 p.m. in the Rockcastle County High School Auditorium.

Tickets are $6 for adults and $5 for senior citizens and students. Children 4 and under get in free. The overall winner will receive a trophy and a cash prize of $100.

the deadline, which was scheduled for April of 2014 with notice by Anchor to the county required by January of 2014. The company is in the process of a complete evaluation of their corporation and the evaluation is not expected to be completed in time for the original out date on the lease. The original lease also called for a $200,000 penalty if Anchor chose to exercise their two year out option.

The Rockcastle County Industrial Development Authority met in special session before the fiscal court meeting to decide on their recommendation to the court concerning Anchor's request. IDA members decided to recommend the extension with an increase in the penalty for exercising the option to $300,000. Should Anchor decide to leave in October of next year, the penalty would cover a year and a half of lease payments and give the IDA that much time to find another tenant for the building. Anchor is present working with Jackson Energy and CSX to lower their utility and transportation costs at the local facility.

The change to SourceHOV's lease will raise the lease payment to $30,000 a month from $25,400.

The amended lease includes forgiveness for SourceHOV for monies owed the county for occupational taxes. SourceHOV's original lease called for the company to make up the difference in occupational tax in the actual number of employees to a benchmark of 250 employees for a specified period of time and amounted to somewhere around $60,000.

Also included in the amended lease is recompense to SourceHOV for $60,000 in alterations/improvements to the facility thru a reduction in the lease payments of $3,000 per month for 20 months begin-

By Ike Adams

In my ongoing quest to read every book I can lay my hands on written by central Appalachian Authors, I recently came across a wonderful work of fiction just released by a fellow one would not normally suspect to be a story teller.

The novel is entitled Clinch River Justice, by Alfred Patrick and the setting is 1930's and 40's in and around a fictional small town called "Creedy" located on Clinch River in the rural, southwestern-most corner of Virginia near eastern Kentucky. It is a combined murder mystery, romance and action-adventure tale laced with numerous, humorous anecdotes and filled with characters that I'd almost swear I'm kin to.

I don't often run across books that I can't lay down but this one kept me up turning pages for the biggest portions of two consecutive nights. I found myself dreading the end of the book, not because I was fearful of the outcome, but because I felt so absolutely at home between its covers. It is a rare talent, indeed, for writers to accurately capture Appalachian, culture, dialect and language in writing as well as it's done in Clinch River Justice.

Too often writers wind up making a condescending mockery of the language and fools of themselves when they try. I firmly believe that one has to have actually lived the language to write it and the author of this book did just that.

Alfred Patrick grew up in the time and place of which he writes. A swinging bridge suspended high over the rushing narrows of Clinch River is central to the story as is a one-room, one-teacher school that he attended through fourth grade. Large groups of World War II bombers and fighter planes fly over the story's hardscrabble farms on their way to fight both German and Japanese enemies. In his formative years, Al worked those farms and saw those very planes. And, truth be known, he most likely experienced there, the joys and heartbreaks of first love so warmly described in the book.

The geographic terrain and the agrarian/mining/timbering lifestyles so vividly described in Clinch River Justice could just as easily have been eastern Kentucky and Creedy, Virginia could just as easily have been any town in Pike, Letcher, Bell or Harlan Counties.

As I have previously said here, that Roberta Webb's The Dark and Bloody Ground should be required reading for Kentucky seventh graders, Clinch River Justice should likewise be part of Virginia's middle school curricula. Both are historically and culturally accurate and the stories are fascinating, delicious reading. They depict our mountain heritage the way our grand children need to know and learn it.

The reason that Al Patrick would not have been among my usual group of suspects for penning a work like this is largely due to the career he enjoyed for more than fifty years. With a PhD. In Business Administration from the University of Tennessee after completing under graduate and Masters Degrees at Bluefield College and Virginia Tech, respectively, he began teaching in 1965 in the Business School at Eastern Kentucky University. He later chaired and then became Dean of EKU's Business School for several years before his recent retirement.

During his spare time, Al enjoys hiking and has completed both the John Muir Trail in California and The Appalachian Trail which runs through 14 states from Maine to Georgia. Al and his wife have lived in Richmond, KY since 1965 but they frequently "go home" to visit relatives on Big A Mountain in Virginia.

Clinch Valley Justice can be ordered for $22.00, including shipping costs, from my favorite little Bookstore, Heritage Nook Books, 8009 Main Street, P.O. Box 373,

ROCKCASTLE MEMORIES

BY DAVID J. GRIFFIN

Fun With Fireworks

When I was very young, I developed a love for fireworks that has remained a joy of mine for over sixty years. I suppose that my first exposure to pyrotechnics was from watching my brother Al and his friends set off firecrackers in our yard. In those days, fireworks were illegal in Kentucky; they either had to be acquired in Tennessee or purchased on the "black market." Teenagers were constantly on the lookout for any type of firecrackers that could be obtained. I have no doubt that part of the lure resulted from their illegal nature.

One of my earliest memories of fireworks came as the result of a gift to me from Clinton Helton. Clinton was a wonderful friend of our family even before I was born. He lived just across old US 25 from my grandfather's house. He was slightly older than my brother, and they became great friends.

Clinton was in the military and was stationed overseas for a considerable portion of his duty. Every time he came home on furlough, he always brought me a toy or gift. On one occasion, he was returning from Burma and presented me with a toy helicopter. It became one of my favorite toys.

He also gave me the first package of fireworks that I can remember. They were very unusual. When I opened the package, I found a sack of tiny black balls, about the size of pinto beans. Clinton explained, "David Joe, throw one of those against a rock in the yard and see what happens." He also described how careful I must be and how I could only use the gift with the permission of my mother, Bee.

I reached into the bag and carefully removed one of the black beans and held it tightly in my hand. I then walked to a spot in my grandfather's yard where there was a large rock next to the garden. Clinton instructed me to "hit the rock with that bean." To my surprise, it exploded with a great retort and formed small bundles of sparks. I was thrilled! It was the greatest gift Clinton had ever given me. I ran into the house to get Bee so that I could show her. She came into the yard, and quickly I grabbed another bean to toss. When it exploded, she let out a tiny squeal. I felt like I was a dynamite specialist. Clinton could tell from my reaction that his gift was a real hit. He definitely became one of my first heroes.

I remember another time when fireworks played a role in my youthful development. Kenneth Hansel and I acquired (not sure how) a bag of Cherry bombs, and we kept them a secret from our parents. We actually stored them in a box under my bed so they would be secure. You must remember, Cherry bombs had magnesium fuses, meaning that they could be detonated under water. Kenneth and I decided to see if we could catch some fish from Dr. John D. Henderson's pond where we played on a regular basis.

We put a few Cherry bombs in our pockets and walked to the pond. Dr. Henderson's pond was large, so we decided to do our fishing on the end where we had caught fish before. We looked all around to make sure we had no witnesses to our plot. Kenneth lit one of the bombs and tossed it into the water. After a few seconds, we heard a muffled sound followed by a huge pillar of water shooting into the air. Immediately, approximately ten medium-sized bluegill and sunfish rushed onto the bank of the pond.

Kenneth and I were "jumping for joy" as we gathered our catch for the day. Neither of us had expe-

On Call

By: Rick Branham

We covered the different classifications of fire last week and your question was, how many stages does a typical fire go through? The answer is four stages and I am going to go through these stages this week.

The first stage of a fire is called the incipient stage and it starts with ignition. Once combustion begins, the development of the fire depends on the amount of fuel involved. During the incipient stage of fire, radiant heat warms the fuel around the fire and continues the process of pyrolysis. Hot gases and flame start to rise from the fire and mixes with cooler air within the room. As this plume reaches the ceiling it begins to spread across the ceiling and this is what we call mushrooming. In this stage the fire has not significantly changed the surrounding environment, the temperature is increasing and the concentration of products of combustion is low. In the incipient stage a fire can typically be safely extinguished with a fire extinguisher.

The second stage is called the growth stage. The fire is beginning to change the surrounding environment. The gases are spreading and rising creating the mushrooming effect until it reaches the walls and begins to bank down. These gases are starting to layer on themselves. We call this thermal layering or thermal balance. The hot gases are in the top layer while the cooler are the lower layer. That's why when there is a fire you are taught to stay low and exit your house. All the heat and smoke is rising and tends to stay in that top layer. In those hot gases an amazing site to see is what we call ghosting. You can see pockets of flames move the smoke almost looking like fingers of fire. Ghosting is an indication that a rollover may occur. Now, a lot of people may have heard of the term flashover but rollover and flashover are two different terms. In a rollover only the fire gases in the upper layer are involved whereas in a flashover not only are the gases involved but all of the contents in a room all at once. In a rollover you will see fire roll over your head through the smoke. A flashover everything in the room reaches its ignition temperature and breaks out in flame all at once. The probability of a firefighter surviving a flashover environment is slim at best. A training prop in the fire service called a flashover chamber allows us to experience a rollover and watch for signs of a flashover in a controlled environment. This training is invaluable to us in protecting our lives. The temperature at which a flashover occurs has perienced such a bountiful mess of fish with so little effort. We strung the fish and headed home to clean our catch. Our parents were rather surprised to see the number of fish we had caught. Neither of us ever disclosed how we caught so many.

I was amazed to learn that pyrotechnics were first developed in China during the 7th century. America's early settlers brought their enthusiasm for fireworks to the United States. George Washington's inauguration was accompanied by a fireworks display. This early fascination with their noise and color continues today, especially with celebrations of patriotism.

Currently, the largest annual pyrotechnic display in North America is located right in Kentucky: Thunder Over Louisville, which kicks off the Kentucky Derby Festival. Another interesting fact: the Walt Disney Company is the largest consumer of fireworks in the United States. Currently, twenty-four states, including Kentucky, permit the sale of all or most types of consumer fireworks for their residents. It seems to me that there has been a growth in fireworks displays in small towns across the state since the laws have changed.

I have remained a fan of fireworks for most of my life. My wife and I live on top of Furnace Mountain in Powell County, where we have a breathtaking view of several counties, including Powell, Montgomery, Clark, and even some of Fayette. On the fourth of July, we can sit on our back deck and watch multiple firework displays from Clay City, Stanton, Winchester, Lexington, and Mt. Sterling. (We often say we have a modest home with a million-dollar view.) Being able to continue to enjoy the fireworks displays from our home is just one of the many assets of living on a mountain ridge.

Won't be long before the next holiday with fireworks rolls around: New Year's Eve. Believe me when I tell you, it'll be here before you know it.

not been pinpointed however a range between 900 degrees and 1,200 degrees has been accepted. Carbon monoxide has an auto ignition temperature of 1,128 degrees. Carbon monoxide is the most common gas produced by pyrolysis. Hence smoke is unburned fuel that is ready to ignite.

The third stage is the fully developed stage. This stage occurs when all the materials are burning and the structure is fully involved with fire. The fire will continue to consume everything in its path until it runs out of a fuel source or oxygen. The final stage is the decay stage. As fuel is consumed or if oxygen levels are insufficient the fire will begin to decay. This stage is very dangerous to firefighters because of the possibility of a backdraft occurring. A backdraft is an instantaneous explosion that occurs when oxygen is introduced into a confined space where oxygen has been depleted. So in a backdraft situation you have low oxygen, high heat, a smoldering fire and high fuel vapor concentrations. Then a firefighter comes along itching to break some glass and BAM they introduce fresh air into the room and causes a backdraft. This is a very powerful explosion and can seriously injure or kill a firefighter. Here are some indicators of a possible backdraft situation; puffs of smoke leaving the building, little or no flame visible, black smoke becoming grey-yellow, smoke stained windows with heat induced cracking and inwardly drawn smoke (which you probably saw in the movie Backdraft). Watching for these signs before we ventilate is key in avoiding a backdraft situation.

Over the past few weeks I have taught you about fire behavior which involved the fire tetrahedron, pyrolysis were it is not the wood burning but the gases it produces, the different classifications of fire and the stages of fire growth. Now I move into building construction. Knowing how a building is constructed will tell us how a fire will spread throughout that structure. In the fire service we have building construction listed into different classes. How many classes are there? The answer in next week's edition.

The History of the Jack O' Lantern

At this time of year, you can drive all over the country in every state to see practically the same thing: porches and yards decorated with fall mums, fodder shocks, scarecrows, gourds, and colors of the season. One of the central figures of the season is the carved pumpkins known as the "Jack O' Lantern". Children as well as adults enjoy carving a face, or in some more decorative scenarios, a landscape or such on the pumpkins, and then placing a candle on the inside. However, have we ever stopped to wonder about the history or the meaning behind this time-honored tradition?

According to some sources, the tradition is at least three hundred years old and goes back to Ireland. The term originally meant "night watchman", and is closely associated with the "will o' the wisp" as was discussed earlier in this series. The first-known written use of "jack o' lantern" is from 1663. In the 1800s, it became associated with carrying a light.

Legend has it that there was a man named Jack who was a drunkard. He loved to play tricks on people. One night, he played a trick on the devil himself. He tricked the devil into climbing up in a tree. While he was "treed", so to speak, Jack carved a cross on the tree trunk, trapping the devil up the tree.

The devil and Jack made a deal, so when Jack finally died, he was too evil for heaven and the devil refused him in hell.

This left Jack in a peculiar situation. The devil tossed Jack an ember from hell, and Jack hollowed out a turnip to store the ember. Jack was forced to wander the earth for all eternity. Some say the face on the pumpkin is Jack, and others say it is the devil.

Other legends say that Stingy Jack tricked the devil into changing himself into a coin by telling him that if he would change himself into a coin, that Jack would buy them a drink. The devil changed himself into a coin, but Jack put the coin into his pocket, thereby tricking the devil. Jack also had a silver cross in his pocket that trapped the devil there. Jack bargained with the devil, and finally released him. Jack made a deal with the devil not to take his soul at death. One day Jack finally died, but once again, he was too evil for heaven, but the devil kept his end of the bargain. The devil gave him an ember to light his way, as he had to wander the earth forever. He became known as "Jack of the Lantern".

Hopefully, this will "shed some light" on the "jack o' lantern".

senior R.C. Kirby with 3 and one-half sacks, Hughes with two and one interception, senior Koty Bengé and freshman Lucas Jones with two each and freshman Devon Robinson and Adams were both credited with one each. Head Coach Scott Parkey said that it was a great win for the team, especially on senior night. "The team played great. We executed on offense and made plays on defense," Parkey said. "We actually played just like we have been playing for the past two or three games. The only difference in this game was the scoreboard." Parkey went on to say that all the seniors had a tremendous game and that they rose to the occasion knowing it was the last time they would play in front of a home crowd. "Harper and Hughes did a great job of catching the football. Bengé, Kirby and Lake held the line of scrimmage on both sides of the ball," Parkey said. "Blaine Amyx contributed on special teams, Jones had the best game of his career and McPhetridge was on target all night leading our offense. I couldn't be happier with each senior's performance." The Rockets will travel to Monticello this Friday night to take on the Wayne County Cardinals. Kickoff is at 7:30 p.m. Parkey said the Cardinals are a good team and they are one of the remaining few teams who remain undefeated in Kentucky 3A football. "The Cardinals are by far the most physical team we have played all season. They don't make many mistakes so when we can force a turnover we will have to take advantage of it," Parkey said. "They will pressure the line of scrimmage with six to seven players to get our offense out of rhythm. We need to stay patient with our running game and use our pass game to loosen them up if we want to come out with a win." ning in February of 2014. In other business, the court voted to comply with a state law that requires that 50% of CDL drivers working for the county be tested annually for drugs. The motion also included random drug testing of all county employees. Refusal to take the test or a positive result (following a second test) are grounds for dismissal according to the county’s personnel policy.

The court also approved a list of 21 roads for bituminous patching with flex funds. Several roads originally on the list, were not approved by the state. The county has $368,000 in flex funds to use.

Roads (and mileage) approved include:

Medical Center where he was treated for non life-threatening injuries and released Monday.

Fulton was wearing his seatbelt at the time of the collision and was uninjured.

The accident was investigated by Troopers Delzie Kelly and Craig Reed. Kelly was in charge of the investigation and reconstructed the accident. State Police were assisted by Rockcastle County Sheriff’s Department, Rockcastle EMS, Mt. Vernon Police Department, Brodhead Fire Department and Mt. Vernon Fire Department.

After examining Taylor’s body, Rockcastle County Coroner Billy Dowell said Taylor had marks across his chest and left shoulder indicating that he was wearing his seatbelt at the time of the accident.

Kelly later said it was possible that Taylor had his seatbelt on after the first collision but that he likely took his seatbelt off and turned his dome light on before being hit a second and third time causing him to be ejected from his truck.

Kelly said witnesses to the accident said they saw Taylor’s dome light on inside the cab of his truck before the second and third collision. He also said that the dome light was turned to the on position inside the truck and that damage to the vehicle indicated that he had been ejected from the vehicle sometime after the second or third collision.

There are also several other inconsistencies about the wreck. Fulton reportedly told police and witnesses at the wreck that he sneezed. However, he reportedly told police later in the day that he had swerved to miss a deer.

Kelly said that he was told both versions by Fulton. Regardless of how it actually happened, Kelly said it was evident that Fulton rear-ended Taylor’s vehicle and the collision propelled his vehicle into the eastbound lane.

A complete obituary for Mr. Taylor appears in this week’s Signal.

Trout stockings underway for great fall fishing in KY

The severe dip in the jet stream this week brought Kentucky its first blast of cold winds since last spring. Folks are acting like we've never had winter weather before now.

People grumble under their breath about being cold and hate the idea of getting their jackets out of the closet because it means warm weather is another long winter away.

Unlike us, rainbow trout don't mind the cold. They bite willingly all year long. Trout strike baits fished through holes in the ice on lakes and in mountainous streams ringed with ice along their banks in the dead of winter. They laugh at this little bit of unpleasant weather.

The fisheries division of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is catching up on delivering these tasty, fun fish to waters all over Kentucky.

"We are behind on our trout stockings due to the federal government shutdown as all of our trout come from Wolf Creek National Fish Hatchery just below Lake Cumberland," said Gerry Buynak, assistant director of fisheries for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. "We hope to complete all of the October and November trout stockings by the week of Nov. 18. Check our website at fw.ky.gov for exact dates of the upcoming stockings."

These stockings include all 13 seasonal catch and release trout streams scattered across our state. These streams provide productive winter fishing as anglers may not harvest trout in these flows from Oct. 1 through March 31 annually (except the catch and release season on Swift Camp Creek in Red River Gorge National Geological Area runs until May 31). Anglers may only use artificial lures on these streams during this season. The fisheries division usually stocks these streams each October.

Yesterday, Beaver Creek and Elk Spring Creek in Wayne County received 500 and 400 rainbow trout, respectively. The fisheries division will today stock Otter Creek in Meade County inside Ft. Knox with 500 rainbow trout and in Otter Creek Outdoor Recreation Area with 1,250 rainbow trout. Clear Creek in Bell County received 400 trout yesterday as well. These streams fall under seasonal catch and release regulations.

Cannon Creek Lake in Bell County received 3,000 rainbow trout yesterday. Bert Combs Lake in Clay County and Beulah Lake in Jackson County both received 1,000 trout as well as Mill Creek Lake in Powell County received 1,500 trout yesterday.

The lakes in Jefferson County enrolled in the Fishing in Neighborhoods Program (FINs) get stocked with rainbow trout today. Tom Wallace Lake gets 2,500 rainbow trout as does Waverly Park Lake. Lakes 3 and 4 in Fisherman's Park get 1,000 trout each.

Green Heron Lake (formerly known as Miles Park Lake #3) and Angler Lake (formerly known as Miles Park Lake #4) in Beckley Creek Park of the Parklands of Floyds Fork get 500 and 1,500 trout, respectively. Watterson Park Lake and Cherokee Park Lake both get 1,500 trout.

Floyds Fork Creek receives 1,200 rainbow trout today while the Taylorsville Lake tailwater gets 500.

Tomorrow, the fisheries division will place 12,000 rainbow trout in Lincoln County's Cedar Creek Lake and 3,500 trout in Greenbo Lake in Greenup County.

The Cumberland River below Wolf Creek Dam recently received 16,500 9-inch rainbow trout and will receive 19,700 trout of the same size in November. The fisheries division also stocked nearly 13,000 fast growing sterile 15- to 17-inch rainbow trout in the river.

"The reason we put in the larger fish is to get them into the protective slot limit so they won't be harvested immediately," Buynak said. "We are trying to jump start the Cumberland River trout fishery again after the effects of the drawdown of the lake."

A white, chartreuse, orange or red 1/16-ounce in-line spinner fished on a spinning outfit spooled with 4-pound line makes a highly productive combination for rainbow trout in both lakes and streams. In lakes, work the in-line spinner in a steady retrieve at varying depths until you find trout. On streams and tailwaters, cast the in-line spinner at the head, middle or tail of pools with a fairly quick retrieve to keep the lure from hanging the bottom. Trout will come from a good distance to hit this lure in streams.

Fall is one of the best trout fishing times. The fish are coming so get out and enjoy them before the actual cold weather hits.

One ton of medications removed from UNITE drop box locations

More than one ton of outdated or unwanted medications was collected by Operation UNITE as part of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration's seventh National Prescription Drug Take-Back Day this past weekend.

A total of 2,021.5 pounds of prescription and over-the-counter drugs were collected from permanent drop box locations in 34 southern and eastern Kentucky counties – an increase of 850.3 pounds from the Take-Back Day held this past April.

This total does not include any medications brought to other special locations – such as Kentucky State Police posts – established for the four-hour take-back event.

"We are very pleased with the response from citizens who wanted to get rid of their outdated or unwanted medications in a safe and responsible way," said Dan Smoot, UNITE's president. "Getting these pills out of the medicine cabinet will reduce the potential for their abuse and misuse."

According to the 2011 Substance Abuse and Mental Health Administration's National Survey on Drug Use and Health, more than 70 percent of people abusing prescription pain relievers got them through friends or relatives, a statistic that includes raiding the family medicine cabinet.

That study also found that twice as many Americans regularly abused prescription drugs than the number of those who regularly used cocaine, hallucinogens, heroin and inhalants combined.

With the abuse comes a corresponding increase in drug-related deaths.

A report released earlier this month by the Trust For America's Health found that Kentucky had the third highest mortality rate of prescription drug overdoses in 2010 (23.6 per 100,000), with the number of all drug overdose deaths more than quadrupling since 1999 (4.9 per 100,000). Nationally the rate has doubled, with 50 people dying from an overdose of prescription drugs every day.

Another benefit of the drop-box program is protecting the environment.

For years, the generally accepted method for disposing of old or left over medications was to flush them down the toilet. This practice, however, has been strongly discouraged because of concerns about potential health and environmental effects of antibiotics, hormones, painkillers, depressants and stimulants making their way into our water system and soil.

It's Not Too Late

Operation UNITE has helped establish 41 permanent medication drop box sites in 34 counties that are available free to citizens during operating hours that vary by location.

Residents are asked to please remove all identifying labels from prescription bottles before bringing them to the drop-off sites.

"Every county in our region has at least one permanent drop-off site that can be used year-round," Smoot noted. "We hope more and more people will take advantage of this service."

With this weekend's collection, UNITE has collected 4,614.7 pounds of medications since the drop boxes were first established October 1, 2012.

- For a list of permanent drop box locations in the UNITE service region visit <http://operationunite.org/investigations/med-drop-box-sites/>.

- For a list of permanent drop box locations statewide visit the Kentucky Office of Drug Control Policy website at <http://odcp.ky.gov/Kentucky+Prescription+Drug+Disposal+Sites.htm>.

The National Prescription Drug Take-Back Day, which began in October 2010, aims to provide a safe, convenient and responsible means of disposal, while also educating the general public about the potential for abuse of these medications.

While totals from this past weekend were not yet available, more than 2.8 million pounds (1,409 tons) of pills were removed from circulation in the first six DEA Take-Back Days.

For more information about Operation UNITE visit their website at www.operationunite.org

RCMS Unite Club member Evan Hendrickson is shown holding a lantern during the UNITE ceremony and balloon launch at halftime of the UNITE Bowl last Friday night. UNITE collected 6,400 rolls of toilet paper that were taken to three different centers: Chad's Hope in Manchester, Oasis Center in Somerset and Hope in the Mountains in Prestonsburg.

State Senator Jared Carpenter, Operation UNITE President Dan Smoot, State Representative Jonathan Shell, Western Rockcastle firefighter Jessica Clark, State Senate President Robert Stivers and District Director for Congressman Hal Rogers Karen Kelly are shown walking onto the field for the UNITE festivities.

Rockcastle EMS, and several other local Rockcastle volunteer fire departments, honored Whitley City fallen fire fighter Arlie (Pooh) Hill as his body traveled through the county from Cincinnati, Ohio to Whitley City Tuesday. Hill died on Sunday from burns he suffered over ninety percent of his body when he made entry into a burning home to look for victims on August 30th. Memorial Services for Hill are this Saturday at 2 p.m. at McCreary County High School.

Expanded bear hunting regulations receive final legislative approval

Hunters in Kentucky now have an expanded area and seasons in which they may attempt to harvest a black bear.

Regulations passed by the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission in June recently received final legislative approval. The new season structure expands the bear zone and the bear chase areas, establishes an archery/crossbow season and increases opportunities for hunting with dogs.

The changes are not reflected in the current print version of the Kentucky Hunting and Trapping Guide due to the publication's deadline in late spring. Bear permits are available to residents only; a drawing for the 2013 quota hunt with dogs was held earlier this month.

"The department has intensively studied and monitored our bear population for over a decade," said Steven Dobe, bear program coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "Data clearly indicate that bears can sustain an increased harvest and we are excited to offer these opportunities to our sportsmen and sportswomen."

The change that will affect most hunters is the expansion of the bear zone - the area in which a person may hunt bears - from four to 16 counties. Kentucky's Bear Zone now includes Bell, Clay, Floyd, Harlan, Knott, Knox, Laurel, Leslie, Letcher, Martin, McCreary, Perry, Pike, Pulaski, Wayne and Whitley counties. Another change for this year is the creation of a separate archery/crossbow season. This season will take place from Nov. 23 through Dec. 1. The quota for this hunt is 10 bears or five female bears, whichever limit hunters reach first. The season will close if the limit is reached.

Successful archery and crossbow hunters must telecheck their bears by 8 p.m. on the day of harvest. Hunters also must call the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources within 24 hours to arrange for an employee to check the bear.

"A physical check of all harvested bears is required so that we may provide a harvest tag and collect valuable biological information from each animal taken," Dobe said. "These data allow us to document sex, weight, age, and reproductive condition. We also can determine if we have handled a bear before by the presence of tags."

Dates for the existing modern gun season remain unchanged. Hunters during this season may use modern firearms, muzzleloaders, bows or crossbows. This year's hunt will take place Dec. 14-16 and remain open until a quota of 10 bears or 5 female bears is reached, whichever limit hunters reach first. All bear seasons are closed the day after a quota is met.

Hunters in the gun season must bring bears to a department-operated check station upon retrieval to be issued a harvest tag. Unless license exempt, any person participating in the archery/crossbow or modern gun season for bears must be in possession of a hunting license and bear permit.

Hunting permits for the modern gun and archery/crossbow seasons are available over the counter or online. These are not quota hunts. A hunter may use one permit for either season; a hunter may not take more than one bear a year.

During July and August, residents may obtain a permit that allows them to only chase bears with dogs. A person wishing to hunt bears with dogs must have this bear chase permit and then apply for the bear quota hunt with dogs in September.

Houndsmen will also have increased opportunities this year as the bear chase areas are expanded to three units encompassing more than 340,000 acres.

Chase areas include a new 73,000-acre chase area located east of Fishtap Wildlife Management Area (WMA) in Pike County, located in Kentucky along the tri-state border with Virginia and West Virginia. The largest chase area includes 222,000 acres spanning portions of Bell, Harlan and Letcher counties. The third chase area is comprised entirely of public land and encompasses approximately 45,000 acres in Bell County.

From Aug. 1-31, bear chase areas are open as a chase-only season in which houndsmen may pursue bears with dogs without the intent to kill. Unless license exempt, a person must be in possession of a valid hunting license and bear chase permit to participate in the chase-only season.

This winter will also mark Kentucky's first separate bear quota hunt with dogs. Previously, this season was only open if the state's bear quota was not met during the modern gun season. Changes approved this year establish a season that will be held regardless of whether the quota for modern gun season is met.

The bear quota hunt with dogs will take place from Dec. 23-27, or until the annual quota of five bears is reached.

Participants must apply in September for this hunt. The application is open only to Kentucky residents with a valid bear chase permit; up to five people can apply as a hunting party.

All members of a party drawn for a quota hunt with dogs must buy a bear permit before participating. Two additional youths can join the hunting party for a total of up to seven people; youths do not need a bear chase permit, but are required to obtain a bear permit if they are 12 years of age or older.

The chase-only season and bear quota hunt with dogs are each restricted to bear chase areas; individual parties may not have more than eight dogs.

Hunters are not allowed to take female bears with young or bears weighing less than 75 pounds during any season. Bears may not be hunted over bait or in area where bait has been present for at least 30 days. All bear hunting activities are prohibited on Hensley-Pine Mountain WMA, Big South Fork National River and Recreation Area, and Cumberland Gap National Historical Park.

"Bear hunting is a relatively new pursuit in Kentucky," Dobe said. "Support from the League of Kentucky Sportsmen, United Bowhunters of Kentucky, Kentucky Bear Hunters Association and the Kentucky Houndsmen Association provided valuable insight into the development of our growing season structure."
