A local woman was found dead in her home on Tuesday night and police are investigating her death as a murder.

According to state police reports, Mary A. Hinton, 86, of Livingston was pronounced dead at the scene by Rockcastle County Coroner Marvin Owens.

A Rockcastle County deputy sheriff responded to Hinton's residence last night around 11 p.m. to conduct a welfare check on Hinton, which is where police are dispatched to the residence to check on their wellbeing.

Police found Hinton dead inside the home. Officers suspect foul play from a possible home invasion. However, the cause of death has not been released at this time. Hinton's body has been transported to the State Medical Examiner's Office for an autopsy.

No changes in statewide or county recanvass

By: Doug Ponder

There were no substantial changes in the county and statewide recanvasses in the republican primary elections for governor and commissioner of agriculture.

The recanvasses were a result of Republican gubernatorial candidate James Comer and Republican commissioner of agriculture candidate Richard Health, both filing for the recanvasses.

According to Secretary of State Alison Grimes' office, no votes were recounted in the recanvassing process. It is only a method to verify the accuracy of all the absentee ballots and vote totals from all precincts in the state's 120 counties.

Rockcastle County Clerk Danetta Allen reported no changes for the recanvass in Rockcastle County. The county's totals still showed Comer with 1,034 votes, Hal Heiner with 353 votes, Matt Bevin with 295 votes and Will T. Scott with 71 votes. Health also defeated his opponent Ryan Quarles in the county, 978 to 581 votes.

Grimes office said the statewide recanvass didn't change the results of the elections. The original results showed Comer trailing Bevin by only 83 votes and Health with a 1,427 vote deficit to Quarles. The recanvass

RICDA discusses bylaws and strategic planning at monthly meeting Monday

By: Doug Ponder

Several items of business were discussed at the monthly Rockcastle Industrial Development Board meeting on Monday, including a discussion about the organization's bylaws and strategic plan.

RICDA Executive Director Holly Hopkins told the board she could apply for an $8,000 ARC Flex grant to have a third party come in and oversee their strategic planning.

Board member Corey

Craig said he believed establishing bylaws and a strategic plan was important as they still don't have either one. He said bylaws would formally establish things such as who signs the checks, how many signatures are needed on checks, rules for special called meetings, etc. He said working on a strategic plan would naturally bring out the discussion of bylaws.

"Strategic planning would help us as a group define what success is, what we define as a good job and other issues like that," Craig said. "We tried to do this twice in the past and it fell by the wayside but we need to formally establish our plans, objectives, etc."

Craig said that it's a big process and that everyone will have to be willing to commit some time to the strategic planning meetings.

"It's a process and everyone has to be willing to commit time. To do it right, there needs to be input from everyone and ownership from everyone," Craig said. "I have also learned from being a part of strategic planning in the past that there needs to be a neutral third party facilitating the discussions. It's much easier for a third party to be open minded."

Board member Sam Hamilton agreed with Craig and said that a strategic plan and bylaws were important if they were going to be "serious about bringing industry in and helping better the lives in the county."

"To be serious, you got to have a plan and know where you are going. It helps us stay focused and more importantly it also evaluates where you are at currently," Hamilton said. "Whatever we come up with has to be approved by the fiscal court."

He said if the fiscal court doesn't approve it

Rockcastle County family featured in Halfway to Hazard music video

By: Doug Ponder

A local family is featured in a well-known band's music video of their forthcoming single.

Renowned Country music band "Halfway to Hazard" filmed their music video for their single "American Outlaws" in a recreated western-style town called "Possum Trot" near Winfield, Tennessee. The song and video are based on outlaws, including the notorious Kentucky outlaw "Bad Tom Smith." The music video was directed by Showhouse Productions of Jackson, Kentucky.

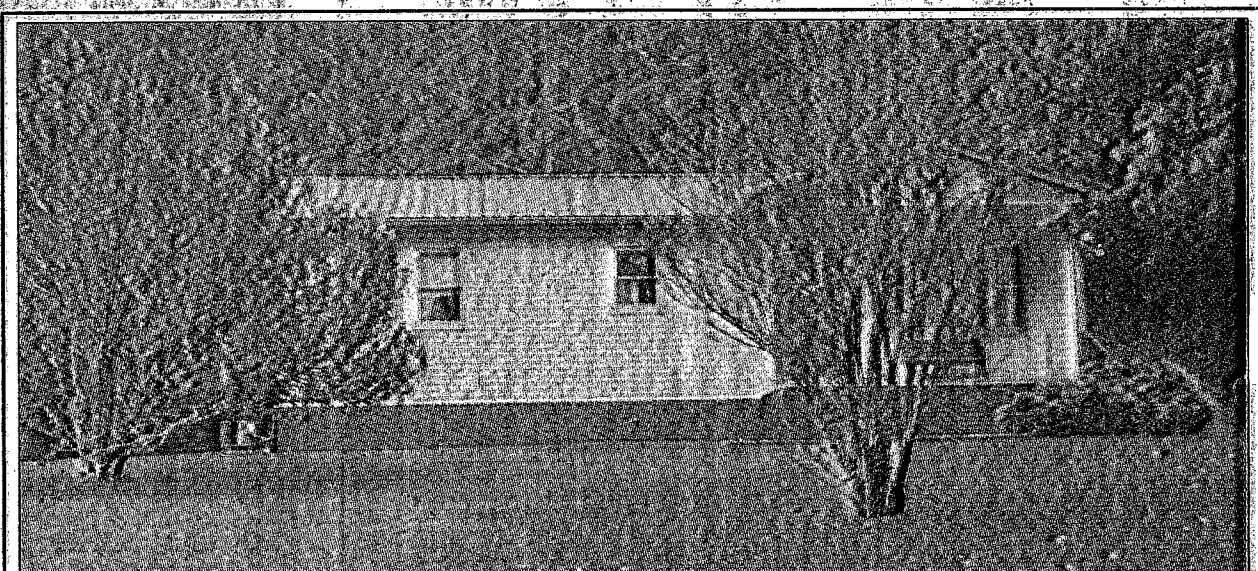

Local reenactor Phillip McLemore, 36, of Orlando said Showhouse Productions President Charlie Shouse remembered him from a previous filming and contacted him to play a part in the music video. McLemore said he also was a reenactor for Showhouse Productions in their documentary "The Untold Story of Bad Tom Smith," which was partially filmed at the Brush Arbor Cabins in Kenfro Valley in 2013.

"Charlie Shouse remembered me from the filming at Brush Arbor and he also saw my Facebook profile picture of an outfit I wore with a top hat," McLemore said. "He wanted me to come help with the music video and wear the clothes from my profile picture. This is something big for me. It's not every day that you get asked to be in a music video that will possibly be aired on CMT or GAC."

McLemore starred in the music video as a poker player in a bar scene and was featured in several other scenes as an extra. Shouse was also looking for other extras to star in the music video and McLemore said he asked his sister, Janetta McLemore Begley of Orlando if she wanted to be in the film as well dressed in outfits from the time period.

Begley said she accepted the invitation to be an extra and that her children, Tessa and Tristan

Points East

By Ike Adams

I am not, normally much of an early riser unless a fishing trip is involved, in which case, I have been known to go for several consecutive days without sleep if very short siestas don't count.

However, at the onset of relatively warm weather in early March, I started setting my radio alarm clock to honk at me at 4:45AM on Mondays so that I could get up, polish off this column and get it into cyberspace before the editors turn on their computers. I also rigged up my coffee pot to commence brewing at 4:30 a.m. so that I'd have something to finish the process of coming awake.

I soon discovered that I really didn't need the alarm to rouse me because the complex aroma of coffee drifting from the kitchen to our bedroom did the trick. Not using the radio had the added benefit of not waking Loretta which meant she'd have one less thing to fuss about and, apparently, she is unable to smell in her sleep.

Even when the March and April mornings were crisp with frost, I found it enjoyable to head out to the front porch and get a nicotine fix to go with that first shot of caffeine. I'm told that one should not mix drugs but I do confess that I have been dependent on the combination of these two to start my day for about 50 years and that I don't intend to try to break the habit anytime soon.

Before I even have time to wiggle my backside into comfort on the swing, two roosters start crowing. I'm reasonably sure they crow whether I'm out there or not, every morning when they think it's time for the day to start, but I like to think that they are welcoming me into their day as well and that makes me glad that I'm up. I'm pretty sure that one of the roosters is a big domineer belonging to my neighbor, Katie Rollins, and that the other is a big Black Australorp who belongs to Ramie Taylor's father-in-law and lives about a quarter mile around the hillside from our place. I can't remember Mr. Spark's first name but I do know that when he moved to our neighborhood a couple years ago, he brought a bunch of chickens with him.

In any event, the roosters make me feel more at home, as if I were sitting on the front porch in the head of Blair Branch where more than a dozen roosters, up and down the holler, bellow out wake-up calls before the crack of dawn 365 days a year.

My dad and 2 of my younger brothers worked night shifts for many years and the used to say that they went to work when the chickens were going to roost and quit when they started crowing. Mom said it didn't matter which shift Dad was working. She still had to wake up with the roosters to fix breakfast.

When Loretta and I first married, we kept chickens too. We had Buff Orpingtons including a rooster named Mr. Wattle, half a dozen hens as well as one huge White Jersey Giant hen named Polly. I'm sure the kids had all the Orpington hens named but I have long since forgotten what they were. I'm talking about 1982 here and I can't even remember the names of anybody I met at the Step-Out Walk last Saturday where I was introduced to at least 25 people, I hadn't previously met.

Anyway, our first place in Paint Lick had a big barn under construction but the previous owners had decided they didn't need horses after all so it was just sitting there about 80%

Life in the 1950's
A reader of my book (View from the Mountain) recently asked if I truly thought that the 50's were the best decade of my generation. My reply was a resounding yes, causing me to formulate the following reasons for my answer.

Teenagers growing up before the advent of the 50's were not necessarily expected to attend college. College was for a select few. The reason for this was basically financial. Teens had limited freedom, not a great deal of money, and were urged to find a job to pay their own way.

Along with the post-war posterity of the 50's, the expectations of teenagers changed drastically. Parents who grew up in the shadow of the stock market crash wanted their children to have the means to live better lives than they did; therefore, most urged their children to finish high school and to pursue college. Some parents even paid for their children's college educations.

Because many teens wanted to achieve better lives than their parents, they found jobs on weekends and during the summers to finance their own needs. Some were even given allowances to help with their lifestyles. The newly liberalized culture allowed teenagers to make decisions for themselves, and those decisions were often at odds with their parents.

Music was one of the first subjects which caused a rift between teens and their parents. Before the 50's, parents listened to what music was being played on the radio, which was called popular, swing, or the blues. Children generally followed suit. Rock and roll changed all of that. Teens developed their own unique listening pleasures.

Pop singer Jo Stafford was quoted in Billboard magazine on October 13, 1958: "Rock and Roll is an economic thing. Today's nine-to-fourteen year old group is the first generation with enough money given to them by their parents to buy records in sufficient quantities to influence the market. In my youth, if I asked my father for 45 cents to buy a record, he'd have thought seriously about having me committed."

Teens began to purchase their own radios and record players and even used the family television for entertainment. Shows like American Bandstand allowed teens to develop a sense of "ownership" of the new wave of rock music. The music was easy to dance to, a feature that appealed to the younger generation. The songs were uplifting, encouraging, and about young love.

Even clothing and hairstyles were influenced by the 50's teens. The "flat-top" haircuts were usually found on teen boys, a style that has come back into fashion again today. Boys usually wore jeans and tee shirts. And yes, we even rolled our cigarette packs up in our sleeves, just as it is portrayed in the movies. It was cool to smoke. We wore white socks with our "Weejuns" and usually did not wear a belt. Our jeans were "pegged" so tight that we had to take off our shoes to get our pants off and on.

Teen girls mostly wore skirts cut below the knee with Bobby socks and saddle oxfords. Under their full skirts were crinoline half-slips which caused the skirts to bell out, better known as "hoop skirts." Girls were never permitted to wear shorts to school. A few schools would permit the girls to wear slacks if the weather was particularly cold, but most did not. If slacks were allowed, they usually had to be worn under a skirt. (It would take the influence of Mary Tyler Moore on the Dick Van Dyke Show to make slacks on women acceptable as proper attire.)

Teens of the time also developed a love of cars that was not heard of before the 50's. Cars and rock-and-roll music went hand in hand.

T.J.'s Journal

by: Tonya J. Cook

In Remembrance
Dear Journal,
It has only been a few days ago that my family and I went to the cemeteries to place floral arrangements on our departed loved ones' graves. It has been a long and almost sacred tradition to honor our loved ones in this manner.

In the days of long ago, families looked with anticipation to this outing, making it somewhat of a family reunion. On cold wintry days, my Grandma Melvina Bustle-Norton and her four daughters, Nell, Sula, Myrtle, and Orla would pass their spare time on their farm in Wadd making flowers from papier mache'. They probably didn't last particularly long, but it was all they had, and it was the thought that counted. They would bring a picnic lunch and have "dinner on the ground" with everyone sharing their food. I've even heard rumors that once, my Aunt Myrtle tripped over a tree root, breaking a huge crock of banana pudding. I can only imagine her trying to get up, wallowing around in all of that pudding and wearing a big long dress and several petticoats. Oh, don't forget the spat boots.

These old traditions are slowly dying with my generation. The youth feel that it is a waste of good time and money...the dead don't know, anyway. They may not, but we do. It is only once a year we are expected to honor our deceased loved ones and give their memory respect.

It was with particular honor and privilege that a wreath was placed at the Newcomb Cemetery, "that little black cemetery", probably for the first time in the name of the DAR by my niece, Karen Adams, and myself.

The cemetery contains three black Union troops who fought not only for their freedom, but the continued unity of America. Upon further investigation, we found that one of the troops was Andrew Bustle, who was probably from Rockcastle County. He was also probably, at one time, owned by some of the Bustle family, our ancestors. Stanley, who was also on hand, descends from a line of Bustles.

I stood and pondered this man's life. How did he become a soldier? What were the circumstances of his death? Most importantly,

A Note of thanks...

Dear Editor,

As I prepare for my retirement, I wanted to write a note of thanks to all of you who have welcomed me over the past 25 years here in Rockcastle County.

First I want to thank Shelby Reynolds for his encouragement and assistance with my Special Ed. certification. Next I want to thank the administrators I've worked with at RCHS...Ronnie Cash, Connie Hamm, Ruth Allen Hamilton, John Hale, Jennifer Mattingly, Barry Noble, and Becky Smith. I have counted on your help and support too many times to count and appreciated it every time.

I spent 17 years working in the Special Ed. Department and next I want to thank the teachers who took me under their wing, set the stage, and helped me through my beginning years...Jewel Davidson, Janet Burke, and Judy Bradley. Your kindness and patience will long be remembered.

During those 17 years, I collaborated with several teachers...Scott Adams, Chris Bishop, J.D. Bussell, Debbie Cash, Stephanie Harman, and Jennifer Mattingly...along with a few teachers no longer working in our county...Misty Barker, Cindy Witt Ham, and Jason Wilson. I appreciate you making us all feel welcome. I can't tell you how helpful you were to me and how much I learned from you. Being in your classroom made me a better teacher. We certainly had some enjoyable and memorable moments.

The past 8 years have been spent in the Physical Education Department. Thanks so much to Clayton Cash and David Riddle for making my transitions smooth and uneventful. You were both great co-workers and I appreciated all your assistance and friendship.

My first encounter with the folks of Rockcastle County occurred with a two-year stint as a teacher's aide at Roundstone Elementary School. This was such a welcoming environment. Thanks to Lisa Reams for letting me "tag along". Thanks to Bill Jack Parsons who gave me my first chance. Thanks to Faye Rucker and Connie Woods for befriending me and showing me the ropes on my first job, and also thanks to the entire RES staff for their warmth.

I really owe a huge debt of gratitude to the parents of my basketball teams while at RES. These folks truly made me feel welcome and I can never repay them for their kindness and support. The Coffey, Cummins, Himès, Mink, Robinson, and Sigmon families, all went out of their way to make me feel at home. THANK YOU! Also, thanks to my ball players at RES. We all definitely had some fun times.

I didn't get to know all my colleagues as much as I would have liked. But I made some lifetime friends and want you all to know how much I appreciate each of you...Debbie Cash, Jennifer Goodin, Dana Singleton Hamilton, Glenna Bullock Carter, Jill Ponder, Sara Coguer, Tammy Reynolds, and Allene Cornelius. You all served as my sounding board and you helped keep me focused on the task at hand. We have experienced some GREAT times together and I will always treasure your friendship.

I hope everyone involved with the school system realizes how important they are. There is no job that is more fulfilling. There is no job that is more rewarding. There is no job that is more important. Thanks for the time and energy that you are giving to our future...because our future rests squarely on the shoulders of our public education system. You are ALL special people...good luck to each of you!

I could not have asked for a better place to spend my educational career. I loved RES and RCHS...I loved the teachers and staff I worked with...and I loved the students who crossed my path. I hope that you learned as much from me as I learned from you. I will miss you all. I can honestly say I never dreaded going to work and I enjoyed each and every year. Now I'm ready to enjoy my retirement!

"Points East"

complete. I was still able to fix up a shelter inside it for the chickens to roost.

One fall weekend we were at Loretta's Dad's place on Blue Lick in Madison County. "Daddy" Embree had hens who had hidden nests and hatched off two or three broods the previous spring. He'd had fried chicken, baked chicken, chicken casserole and chicken & dumplings until he was tired of anything chicken and he still had over a dozen grown roosters on the place.

Much to my wife's chagrin and muttered protests I agreed to take them off his hand. Loretta was having no part of this "foolishness" so I had to talk Jeanette Todd into going back that night to catch, as I recall, 16 roosters off the roost. We hauled them home and put them to bed with the rest of the chickens. Everything had gone all right until about 2 hours before daylight on Monday morning when Wattles and 16 others of his ilk made a clamor that folks living in Berea, 10 miles away, could have heard if they had their best ear turned toward Paint Lick.

This went on for 2 or 3 days until an older gentleman decked out in kakis and a pith helmet knocked on our door, introduced himself as Dan Ledford, our neighbor three doors up the road and proceeded to explain that he had been appointed by a delegation of other neighbors to see what could be done about the roosters before somebody burned down the barn while the chickens were in it.

Dan told me that the neighbors had reluctantly agreed to tolerate one rooster but the rest of them had to go and that, if it was him, he'd do sooner than later.

A subsequent call to Jeanette resulted in our catching all the roosters other than Mr. Wattles that night, tying their legs and hauling them to her garage. I called in sick to work the next day because I didn't have the nerve to explain the emergency I had to cope with.

Jeanette and I heated a #2 washtub with over 10 gallons of boiling water and spent the morning butchering roosters.

"Memories"

Although we were not able to purchase new cars, we bought hot rods and customized them to suit our needs. Loud music and loud cars were our trademarks. Fast cars and rock music was our style. We wanted exotic paint jobs, chrome attachments, large V8 engines, and loud "glass packed" mufflers. We wanted everyone to know that we had arrived.

Yes, I do believe that life in the 50's for teenagers was the best part of my youthful development. Times were simple, crime was infrequent, and we took care of each other. Of course, we still had chores to do, but they were not so numerous or so difficult as to require all of our free time.

Instead of gangs, we had tons of friends who occupied our time. We loved to spend time together having good ole clean fun. We weren't drunks or dope-heads. We gathered at the "Dinner Bell" restaurant, shared our cherry Cokes and potato chips dipped in ketchup, and poured quarters into the juke box.

Although we may not all have excelled in school, our curriculums were more than sufficient to prepare us well for college or trade schools. We had goals, and we were willing to work and to sacrifice in order to achieve them because we had been raised to have a strong work ethic. That alone was a large factor in the prosperity that our nation experienced during the sixties.

It is true that life was much simpler then. Children were permitted to have their innocent childhoods, unencumbered by fears of crime, deceit, or hatefulness. Teenage suicide was practically unheard of. Even juvenile "delinquents" were not really perpetrators of serious crime; they were what we now call petty criminals.

Even hunger was not a significant issue. The majority of children were headed by two-parent families, and one of them working was enough to enable a decent standard of living. (About the only thing that kept us from living in utopia was rampant prejudice, but we kids in Rockcastle County did not see much of it simply because there were hardly any black folks around there.)

All in all, life was good! Frankly, I don't know how it could have been much better. And I defy anyone to top my description of living as teenagers during the fifties. Even if you allow that there are both good and bad elements that define any generation, I still believe that mine has them all beat.

"Journal"

was he mistreated by my family? I can only hope and pray that he wasn't. In any case, all I could do was stand there with a single thought in my mind: on behalf of our family, I'm so very, very sorry.

Graduation Etiquette

By David W. Owens

Well, another school year has come and gone and this past Thursday Rockcastle County High School released their 43rd Graduating Class upon the world. There was much pomp and ceremony for the students, parents, family and friends to sit through. In fact very little has changed in the commencement ceremony from the first graduating class of 1973 till now.

I remember my class, RCHS 6th Class of 1978. I had the honor of marching with one of the prettiest young ladies in our class, (I won't reveal her name but her initials were KJB), and she asked me, "Why do we have to wear these stupid hats and gowns?"

Somewhat belated and since it is graduation time I would like to take a crack at answering her question. Wearing those stupid hats and gowns has been an age-old tradition of graduates in America and Europe. In a way, the cap and gown symbolizes how special the day is in that only those who have toiled and persevered are given the right to wear them.

As graduates walk down the aisle to their respective seats, the cap and gown adds to the feeling of pride that finally one chapter of their life has been successfully completed and that they can now advance to the next stage—thus, the term commencement, which means beginning rather than the end are what many people attribute the graduation ceremony to.

However, do you know how the wearing of the symbolic cap and gown started? The gown, which is technically called an academic dress, was first worn for tertiary education and later on, secondary education. The tradition of wearing an academic dress to graduation started rather as a necessity rather than as official wear to the rite of passage.

The custom started during the 12th century when early universities were still beginning to be formed in Europe. These universities were tasked to validate degrees as well as list the names of scholars who were officially enrolled, and they were to record the progress of students to the next degree.

At that time, no sufficient heating system was provided in such universities, and as such, students were forced to improvise to keep warm.

The scholars, who were usually aspiring clerics or already clerics, started the practice of wearing a long robe with a hood for heat. Later that century, gowns were made the official dress of academics to prevent excessive apparel.

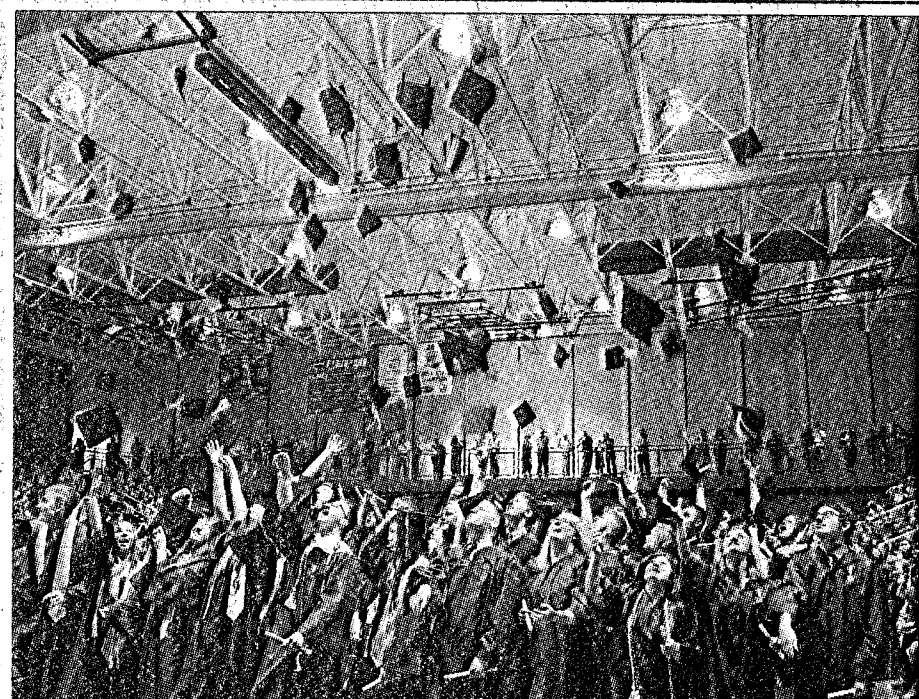

On the other hand, the square academic cap also called a mortarboard because of its resemblance in shape to the device utilized by masons to hold mortar was reputed to have originated from a biretta worn by scholarly clerics, which was used to signify their superiority and intelligence. These hats became popular in the 14th and 15th centuries and were only worn by artists, humanists, students, and all those learned. They usually came in the color red signifying blood and life, hence, power more than life and death.

What about the tassels that hang from mortarboards. The tassels have the school year with the school's colors. At other times, special tassel colors are used to represent sub-junct areas or achievements.

It has become a tradition at many schools for all graduates to wear the tassel on one side until receiving their diplomas. After the graduating class is announced, the students then switch the tassel to the other side. After switching their tassel, many graduates also toss their caps into the air to celebrate. The tassel is usually kept as a keep sake after the ceremony.

The hat-tossing tradition got started in Annapolis, Maryland, in 1912. That year, students at the U.S. Naval Academy became officers for the first time (instead of having to serve two more years as midshipmen) and flung their hats into the air spontaneously.

Since that time, the tradition continued each year, and it has become a ritual at schools throughout America. With that said, I hope I have finally answered her question. And to this year graduates I would like to take the opportunity to say, "Congratulations, this Thursday is your time to wear those stupid hats and gowns. It's a wonderful milestone and something you can take pride in having earned."

The RCHS Band performed "Pomp and Circumstance" as graduates walked into the gymnasium. The band also provided special music during the ceremony playing "Sheltering Sky."

The RCHS Honors Choir provided special music at the graduation ceremony last Thursday as they sang "Homeward Bound."

JROTC cadets attend Leadership Camp

Submitted

On May 23rd, 12 cadets from the mighty Rocket Battalion of Rockcastle County High School traveled to the Junior Cadet Leadership Camp at the Bluegrass Army Depot for training in leadership, discipline, teamwork, and the experience of what enlistment in the US Army would entail.

Some of these Junior Cadets were given the opportunity to lead a unit as a way to develop their leadership skills in practical, tangible situations. From marching their units to "chow" to ensuring their safety and organization, those selected to be leaders in different positions faced a multitude of challenges that those enlisted in the US Army could expect to face. They were thrown into situations where they had little to rely on but their own wits and those of their units to carry out specific tasks given by their superiors and instructors.

There were obstacle courses of sorts that the cadets were required to traverse with limited materials to slightly alter the course. Another type of course was 40 feet above the ground, in which cadets conquered challenges on thin wires and boards, held safely by harness and guiding wires. The challenges were extremely difficult and required an exorbitant amount of teamwork and leadership skills in addition to their own mental abilities. After these tasks were completed (either successfully or not) those who underwent the challenge were led in a reflection by their instructors and determined what worked effectively and what did not, and the groups were able to develop both as teams and as individuals.

Developing themselves individually was also a large part of the camp. Participants learned to operate boats and watercrafts, they learned to improve themselves physically and mentally, either by exercises or by going on "information scavenger hunts" where they had to talk to re-enactors at Fort Boonesborough to learn various things about the Fort and the area around it to complete an assortment of questions on a worksheet.

At the camp, two of RCHS's Cadets were awarded for their performance. Cadet Marina Blevins was awarded a medallion for being a part of the squad that won the physical "Raider Challenge" and Cadet Timothy Henson won an award for being voted best leader of his 14-man squad and a trophy for second runner-up in a Battalion Leadership Board. Congratulations to those cadets.

JROTC Adventure Team hike at Sheltoewe Trace

Submitted

On May 7th the Rockcastle County's JROTC Adventure Team went to Sheltoewe Trace Trail. Cadets were bussed out to the trail and then divided up into teams in the areas of trash pick-up, people to record trail status, and a trail clearing crew.

The group learned how to efficiently use the GPS to navigate through the hiking trail in order to record the coordinates of any major obstacles such as waterholes or fallen trees. This use of the GPS helped cadets to be aware of how far from the starting point they were at any given time.

Throughout this hike, a total of seven miles, it enabled students to be aware that they should make an effort to keep their environment clean as well as assessing their physical endurance while learning to effectively navigate through such. SFC Keith Graves reminded our group that a hike is not a stroll but an exercise that required the group to move at a fast pace.

Dotson, Courtney, Douglas win individual state events

RCMS girls' track team wins Middle School State Championship

At the KTCCA Middle School State Track and Field Championships in Louisville, with 142 schools entered in the competition, the RCMS girls' team won the team state championship title by a close score of 56 to 55 over a very strong, talented South Marshall team. RCMS battled back from an early deficit with several strong individual and relay performances and took the lead for good after 6th grader Natalie Kirby's 7th place finish in javelin, the final event of the evening. This gave RCMS a clean sweep of state titles this school year since the girls also won the indoor state championship in March.

7th grader Tori Dotson led the girls' team to the state title win with several outstanding performances. The state meet is so packed with talent that it favors elite athletes. Amazingly, Tori scored 27.25 points and would have placed 10th as a team by herself; however, she has some great teammates that helped put RCMS over the top with their own outstanding performances. In her first event, the 1600-meter run, Tori ran an awesome race and finished as state runner-up with an incredible time of 5:26.38. She followed that great performance with another in the 800-meter run. Tori won the state championship title in the event with a sensational race and an incredible time of 2:21.28, just missing the all-time state middle school record by 35 hundredths of a second. In the 3200-meter run, Tori ran another awesome race, finishing as state runner-up with an exceptional time of 12:12.67. It should be noted that most of her toughest competitors chose to concentrate on one or two events at state. She was the only female competitor to compete for the win in all three and nearly pulled it off even though it's next to impossible against such talent. To cap off her unbelievable day, Tori ran anchor leg of the girls' 1600-meter relay almost immediately after the 3200-meter run with the team championship on the line. She ran a blistering final leg to help the relay to an awesome 4th place team finish with an incredibly fast season's best time of 4:34.56, securing the team state title win for RCMS. A nearly 11 hour meet in hot temperatures with tornado warnings and rainy, humid conditions is difficult to deal with, especially for distance runners. Tori met every challenge head on and with astounding success.

7th grader Autumn Courtney had several outstanding performances of her own that greatly contributed to the team's state title win. Autumn got off to a rough start in the meet in long jump, failing to hit the take-off board on her three attempts, even though her actual jumps were amazing. Since she was ranked 2nd in the event and the odds-on favorite to win it, that would seemingly spell disaster for her and any chance for RCMS to win the state title.

For almost anyone else it would have. She likely learned more from that event than anything she's ever won. With the poise of a professional athlete, Autumn regained her composure quickly for the 100-meter hurdle finals. She blazed her way to an awesome 6th place finish with a very impressive time of 18.0 seconds, one of her best of the season and less than one second away from the state title. That would pale in comparison to what she did next in triple jump. After making the finals, Autumn entered her final attempt in 2nd place, but nearly two feet behind the leader from the girls' strongest team rival, South Marshall. Autumn's final jump was pure perfection. She leaped an unbelievable all-time personal best 34'2.25" and captured the state title in the event, scoring an extremely important 10 points for RCMS. That created a 4-point swing that would eventually play a huge role in RCMS winning the team title. She continued her brilliance into the final running event of the day, the 1600-meter relay. She ran an incredibly fast lead leg to help the relay to an awesome 4th place team finish with an exceptionally fast season's best time of 4:34.56, securing the team state title win for RCMS. Autumn displayed rare composure for a middle schooler in the face of adversity. As one official excitedly put it in reference to her after her amazing triple jump, "That one's going to be special!"

8th grader Samantha Douglas had a huge performance in the discus competition that helped lead the girls' team to the state title win. With a personal best of 88'2" coming into the meet, Samantha was ranked 5th overall. She put on an absolute throwing clinic, hitting amazing distances of 95' or better three times. Her unbelievable throw of 99'7" won the state championship title in the event by nearly 5' over the defending state champion from last year and wasn't far away from the all-time state record. Not only was it an all-time personal best for Samantha, but it also broke the all-time RCMS discus record held by former Lady Rocket state champion and all-time great Amy Johnson. Her win gave RCMS another 10 points and was another crucial turning point in the meet since she also defeated South Marshall's best thrower. In shot put, Samantha also had a great performance, finishing 14th overall with an awesome throw of 30'1".

6th grader Natalie Kirby also greatly contributed to the state title win with several outstanding performances in the field events. One of the most talented and versatile athletes ever to compete for RCMS, Natalie qualified for state in long jump, as well as discus and javelin. She had an extremely hectic schedule since long jump and discus were at different venues close to half a mile apart. As a result, she was forced to throw discus about an hour before the actual state meet started for everyone else. She was easily up to the task. On her second throw, she launched an amazing all-time personal best throw of 88'4" that got her into the finals. That awesome throw would stand as her best, earning her a 5th place state championship medal. Immediately after her preliminary throws, she rushed back to the track for long jump. She finished with a great jump of 12'2", despite fouling on her last two jumps after standing and waiting 45 minutes for her second attempt and becoming somewhat tight. She should easily hit 16' plus as a 7th grader next year. Natalie's performance in her final event, javelin, was one for the ages. With South Marshall's girl coming in as the top-ranked javelin thrower, it was a foregone conclusion that she would win the event and give South Marshall the overall team state title by one point over RCMS. With this being the final event of the competition, their thrower delivered as promised, launching a throw that won the event and gave South Marshall the lead in the team standings by one point. Natalie, who entered the meet ranked 9th in javelin, had only practiced sparingly and thrown one time in a meet. With the pressure of winning the team title falling squarely on her shoulders, she came through with a performance the Rocket faithful will never forget. She threw an incredible personal best throw of 78'7", shattering the RCMS all-time record by over 7 feet. Amazingly, she actually had five throws that broke the school record. Her unbelievable performance gave RCMS the two points they desperately needed, giving them the team state championship title win over South Marshall by a score of 56-55. Talk about being calm, cool, and collected under immense pressure.

Before Natalie's state title winning throw in javelin, the girls' 1600-meter relay team, made up entirely of 7th graders, ran an awesome race at a very crucial time. Autumn Courtney ran an awesome lead leg to begin the race for RCMS while keeping them up front as a strong contender for the win in their heat. Shelby Newland kept up the fast pace with a tremendous second leg to keep RCMS in contention. Grace Gardiner ran great with an incredible third leg and kept the girls close. Victoria Dotson, fresh off her state runner-up performance in the 3200-meter run with very little time to rest, put RCMS in front and ran a magnificent final lap to give the girls a 4th place finish overall in a superb season's best time of 4:34.56. Their awesome performance earned the team 5 more points which would prove vital for securing the team state title win for RCMS. With everyone returning next season, they should be a strong favorite for a relay championship and possibly have a shot at the state record in the event.

The girls' 3200-meter relay team had an incredible team finish for RCMS at state, finishing 20th overall with an amazing time of 11:45.18, their second fastest this season and fastest without Tori as a member. 6th grader Hannah Davis got the race off to a fast start with a great 800-meter lead

RCMS 7th grader Victoria Dotson led the girls' team to the state title win with several outstanding performances. Dotson won the 800-meter run and placed runner-up in both the 1600-meter and 3200-meter runs. She scored an impressive total of 27.25 points.

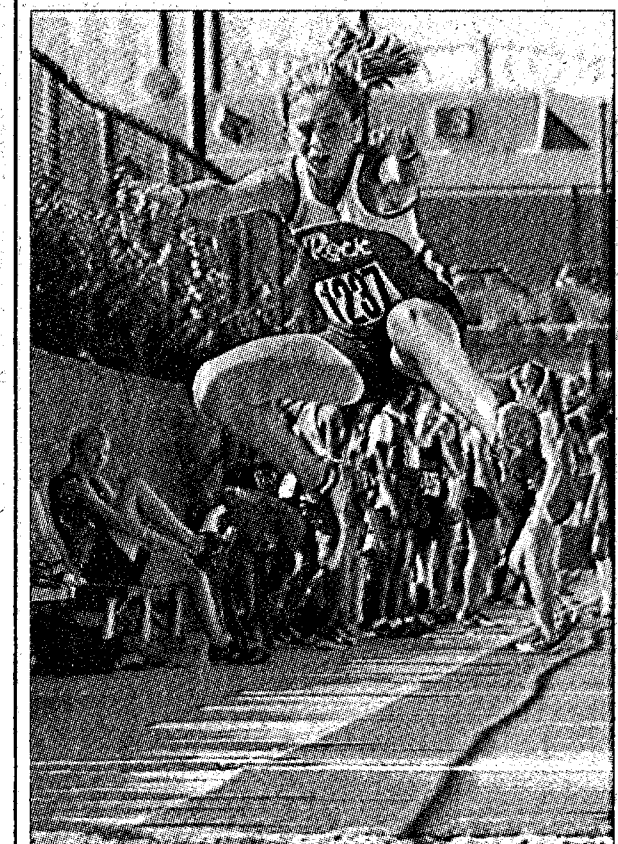

At the KTCCA Middle School State Track and Field Championships in Louisville, with 142 schools entered in the competition, the RCMS girls' team won the team state championship title by a close score of 56 to 55 over a very strong, talented South Marshall team. RCMS battled back from an early deficit with several strong individual and relay performances and took the lead for good after 6th grader Natalie Kirby's 7th place finish in javelin, the final event of the evening. This gave RCMS a clean sweep of state titles this school year since the girls also won the indoor state championship in March. Team members are from left: Kylie Martin, Brianna Owens, Savannah Thacker, Allie Martin, Tori Dotson, Karalinn Loudermilk and Jasmine Ashcraft. Back row from left: Aliyah Lopez, Gracie Spoonamore, Erin Hindman, Natalie Kirby, Samantha Douglas, Kensie Sheffield, Autumn Courtney, Shelby Newland and Grace Gardiner. leg. 5th grader Karalinn Loudermilk ran an awesome 2nd leg, while 5th grade teammate Kylie Martin completed an exceptional 3rd leg to keep RCMS close. 8th grader Kensie Sheffield ran a phenomenal anchor leg to close out the race and give RCMS a top twenty relay finish. Interesting to note, they were the top team with two 5th graders competing. They'll be a strong contender in the event next season.

The girls' 800-meter relay team ran an awesome state race. 6th grader Aliyah Lopez got the team off to a great start with an incredibly fast first leg of the race. 5th grader Gracie Spoonamore ran a blazing fast second leg for RCMS. 8th grader Kensie Sheffield ran a sensational third leg to set up 5th grader Allie Martin who had an unbelievably fast finish. With the youngest team competing in the event, the girls impressed 27th overall with an impressive time of 2:03.63, just missing their season's best time. They should also be strong contenders next season in the event.

The girls' 400-meter relay team also ran an incredible race at state. 7th grader Brianna Owens got the race off to a great start with an awesome first leg. 6th grader Alexa Bussell ran a blazing fast second leg, while 5th grader Savannah Thacker ran an exceptionally fast third leg. 6th grader Erin Hindman had a strong anchor leg finish for RCMS, helping the team to a great time of 1:05.04, barely missing their season's best time. This group also has youth on their side and should be a strong contender in the event in the coming years.

Besides her impressive performance in the 800-meter relay, 5th grader Allie Martin showed why she's an up and coming track star with awesome performances in the short sprints. In the 100-meter dash, Allie was the top 5th grader that competed and blazed her way to an awesome time of 15.09 seconds, just missing her personal best. In the 200-meter dash, Allie came through with another amazing performance and finished once again as the top 5th grader with an awesome time of 31.07 seconds, her all-time personal best in the event. Most 5th graders in the state were not fast enough to meet the qualifying standards for each event.

6th grader Aliyah Lopez, another future star for RCMS and the lead leg of the girls' 400-meter relay team, had a sensational performance in the 400-meter dash. Aliyah sprinted her way to an awesome time of 1:12.69, just missing her all-time personal best in the event. She'll be an integral part of several teams hoping to bring home state titles over the next six years.

The RCMS boys' team had several outstanding individual performances against some very tough competition. Lack of team depth makes it difficult to compete in a meet the size of state, but the boys' have been very competitive all season. These talented young men 8th grader Jonmark Loudermilk had a great performance in javelin for RCMS. He came through with an awesome all-time best throw of 93'11", shattering his own RCMS school record mark by over 7'. He finished an impressive 11th overall, but since each team is only allowed one scoring competitor, North Oldham and Scott County had competitors that won medals but were not allowed to score points. As a result, Jonmark took the 8th scoring position earning a point for his great throwing performance.

8th grader Evan Hendrickson had several outstanding performances in the sprints for RCMS, as well as in the long jump competition. In his best event, the 400-meter dash, Evan had an incredible performance, finishing in the top twenty with a 19th place finish overall with an exceptional time of 58.4 seconds. In the 200-meter dash, Evan also ran a great race, placing 24th overall with an awesome time of 26.49 seconds. On the field event side of the meet, Evan placed 24th in long jump with one of his best jumps this season, 16'2.5".

8th grader Jaden Payne had exceptional performances in the field events for RCMS, qualifying in shot put and discus, along with long jump. In discus, Jaden finished 29th overall with an awesome throw of 86'1". In the warmup for preliminaries, Jaden had a very impressive throw of 115 plus feet, but had difficulty launching it that far as the day wore on. In shot put, Jaden had his top performance of the meet, finishing 21st overall with a great throw of 35'8.5". He also finished 28th in long jump with a great leap of 15'6".

6th grader Jacob Lopez was one of only a handful of 6th grade boys that qualified for state and he actually qualified for two events. In the 1600-meter run, Jacob had an outstanding performance, finishing with a new all-time personal best of 6:21.75 in the event. Hours later, he followed that with an incredible 800-meter race in which he finished close to his personal best with a great time of 2:55.96.

The track season will come to a close next Saturday with the 6th grade and under elementary school state championships at North Oldham High School in Goshen, Ky. Rockcastle has several talented and hard-working younger athletes that will look to continue the recent success of their high school and middle school counterparts. The meet begins at 11:00 am.

Yards to Paradise

By Max Phelps
Fragrant Landscaping
The scents and smells of our homes and surrounding can create profuse and diverse reactions with different people. The stimulus of smell may linger in memory way beyond other sensory experiences. A certain smell may remind us of a loved one, a fun experience (or an unpleasant one sometimes), or may grab our attention for myriads of reasons. Today we will explore mostly pleasing smells, with the thought of selecting some of them to grow in our landscapes.

Landscaping in general helps define and establish our homes, with quality landscaping enhancing the appearance and value of them. Some fringe benefits may be shade, fruit, fall colors, lovely aromas, windbreaks, etc. With many landscape designs, the plan was rapidly arrived at, and if fragrance was considered it was either by whimsically putting in a "fragrant plant" or happened totally by accident.

When we think of some new landscaping we should, of course, think in terms of adding value to the home. However, we should also add value from our unique perspective. Such as what our likes are, what would help us enjoy our home, our castle, in our landscape—our interpretation of paradise painted on the canvas of our own yard.

Appearances and good first impressions are important functions of a landscaped yard. Lovely mixes of greenery of various sizes and textures, arranged to show the home in a favorable light to others, help accomplish that mission. Functions of shade, security, wind flow, longevity, ease of maintenance, lovely flowers and sweet fragrances would also be wisely considered in a landscape arrangement.

Fragrance is the cardinal point in today's column. So what are some plants with highly desirable fragrances we might want to install in our yards? What are some "pluses and minuses" of some of the trees, shrubs and flowers we might select? We will not cover all possibilities by any means, but for the mid-Atlantic region of the country many of the following trees and smaller plants may work for your yard.

Let's discuss trees with aromatic blooms first. I think of the Southern magnolia as one of the first on any list, along with sweetbay and other magnolias. Basswood, black locust, and the Chinaberry tree are others to be considered. As with most trees, weigh the positives and the negatives to arrive at a selection. Black locust has thorns, is 'weedy', has roots that affect lawn mowing, and sends up suckers and sprouts to make thickets if not controlled. Magnolias, especially magnolia grandiflora, have big leaves that take forever to rot, have messy seed heads, and grass will absolutely refuse to grow underneath them. But, the blossoms on both these trees have exceptionally lovely smells!

Then, how about trees with aromatic leaves, needles or sap? It's hard not to want a fir tree! Why buy green limbs and hang them for decorations for winter holidays—you can experience those same lovely fragrances anytime, especially when mowing around or brushing against the limbs and needles. Hot humid nights or dry windy heat may kill some fir trees, but there are probably several that will grow in your locale. Acidic, organic and well drained soils also help. Pine trees often have a delightful smell to go with the singing in their branches when the wind is up. The katsura tree produces a cinnamon/ginger sort of aroma when it's leaves separate from the limbs in the fall. I know a little research will reveal other possibilities, but those come to mind at the moment.

Some shrubby and vining plants that have lovely smells are next. How about wisteria—besides the lovely blooms, what a super scent-sation to walk downwind of a large vine in bloom on an arbor or in a tree. Daphne, lilacs, mock orange, roses, honeysuckle and jasmine have pronounced pleasing scents, too. Privet hedges can be overpoweringly sweet in full bloom. I think gardenias are hard to beat, and some are now being grown successfully in zones 6 and 7. One of my landscape customers has 3 or more cultivars of gardenia surrounding a table for two at the end of a stone path—how romantic! Clethra (summersweet) and itea (Virginia sweetspire) and calicanthus (Florida sweet shrub) are welcome additions to my personal surroundings, even if they do tend to sucker and not stay where you plant them. Other shrubs with a nice odor would be Korean white forsythia and several of the viburnums. Viburnum burkwoodii cultivars, v. carlesii (Korean spice viburnum), v. carlcephalum, especially cultivated variety "Eskimo". Viburnum Juddii, v. farreri, and v. trilobum, the American cranberry bush viburnum (which has edible fruit to boot).

Fragrant perennials, annuals, bulbs with exceptional aromas include: the old fashioned common hosta with green leaves and aromatic white flowers, hyacinths, daffodils, peonies, some iris, most marigolds, lavender and thyme. Many a water lily bloom is fragrant; if you're able to be close to several blooms at once you may notice them.

Not all fragrances are delightful, at least not to everyone alike. Some of the viburnums stink. Some folks think ginkgo, persimmons or other decaying fruits stink. Almost universally, the smell of a skunk is considered unpleasant. And even among those that are considered pleasant smells, not everyone will be in agreement as to which "smells best". Let your own preference along with a bit of research or a walk among the plants at bloom time in a large arboretum help you make your choices.

Pronounced scents among our modern landscape plants are not as common as you might think.

When a nursery or a university has a plant breeding program, often they mix two varieties or two species hoping for something better. In the quest for a prettier bloom or healthier plants, often several other traits will become less special or recessive. Often fragrance is among the traits traded away.

(The same can be said for taste—in fruits and vegetables.)

Perhaps you will be inspired to select some plants based upon fragrance next time you are looking to do some landscaping. And as it is with variegated plants, you'll want to put aromatic ones as close to the path, front door, or the seating areas as you can for maximum impact and enjoyment.

Mamaw's Kitchen

By Regina Poynter Hoskins

SNAPPER TURTLE SOUP

I generally don't include recipes I have not tried, but these are the exception. However, they are from family who have tried them and liked the results.

Neal James, also known as Banjo Neal, is my first cousin—his mother was my father's sister. He and his friend Turtleman are stars of Animal Planet's "CALL of the WILDMAN".

4 pounds snapping turtle meat, cut into small pieces
3 quarts chicken stock
2 carrots, chopped
2 stalks celery, chopped
3 white onions, chopped
3 cloves garlic, chopped
1/2 teaspoon each salt and black pepper

2 cups tomato puree
1/2 cup unsalted butter, melted
1 and 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
3 eggs, hard boiled and chopped
1 cup sherry or water
2 lemons, halved, seeded, and thinly sliced

In a large soup kettle, bring snapper and chicken stock to a boil; reduce heat and simmer for 1 hour. Add carrots, celery, onions, garlic, salt, pepper, and tomato puree. Simmer for 30 minutes; strain.

Mix melted butter with flour to form a paste. Whisk into strained broth until smooth. Return snapper, carrots, celery, and onions back to thickened broth. Stir in chopped hard boiled eggs, sherry and lemon slices. Simmer for 30 minutes then

JACKIE'S BAKED TURTLE

(another one of my Poynter cousins)

Cut up turtle meat into serving sized pieces and soak for several hours in water containing a little salt and vinegar.

Wash in clear water; drain and dip each piece in lemon juice, then in beaten egg. Salt and pepper and roll them in a mixture of flour and cornmeal. Put in hot fat and brown well on all sides. Add 1/2 cup hot water; cover and bake at 350° slowly until meat is tender. Add a little water at intervals, if necessary.

JANICE'S FRIED TURTLE (Neal's sister)

Soak turtle in strong salt water.

Roll it in seasoned flour and fry like you would chicken—about the same length of time!!

Some people use corn meal but flour is much better.

“Video”

Begley, also wanted to be in the film. She said as the word spread around the family, McLemore and Begley's mother, Lydia McLemore, decided she wanted to be an extra in the music video.

“We enjoy reenacting as a family. Phillip does it quite often in and out of state. Mom, my kids and I just usually reenact at the Battle of Camp Wildcat,” Begley said. “Tessa loves to dress up in what she calls her enactment dress and mom wore a skirt that she made herself. Extra-curricular activities such as this music video are just an added bonus to a family-oriented hobby.”

Shouse said that he has known the McLemore family for years since the filming of “The Untold Story of Bad Tom Smith” documentary they shot at Brush Arbor. He said that he has always “kept up” and stayed in contact with the McLemore family through social media and knew they would be great for playing parts in the music video.

“They are always professional and on time. They even showed up on set already in costume,” Shouse said. “Hopefully, if we make the feature film about Bad Tom Smith, there will be parts in there for them as well.”

Halfway to Hazard is still on tour and in the studio working on their upcoming album. No release dates have been set for “American Outlaw” or the music video.

“RCIDA”

they end up not accomplishing anything. He said “it's going to take everyone involved, the fiscal court and RCIDA.”

Rockcastle County Judge Executive Doug Bishop also attended the meeting and told the board that the fiscal court is willing to work with the board on the plan in order to bring more industry into Rockcastle County and better the lives of Rockcastle Countians.

“If you work with us, we will work with you,” Bishop said. “We both need to work together to sell this plan to the community.”

The board agreed to pursue bylaws and a strategic plan for RCIDA to apply for an $8,000 ARC grant to help with the strategic planning process.

Hopkins also gave an update about SourceHOV. She said rumors are currently spreading around the community about SourceHOV losing their government contract, jobs being lost, etc.

Hopkins said the current seven year contract for the partnering company of SourceHOV will end in November 2017. She said only thirteen companies in the country are qualified for the contract and that SourceHOV will be able to partner with whoever gets the contract in 2017.

Hopkins said that SourceHOV is a subcontractor for one of the thirteen companies and the companies are currently working on their “request for proposal (RFP).” She said SourceHOV is possibly thinking about building another storage facility adjacent to their present lot.

Hopkins said that when they receive the RFP, they will be able to look at everything from a full perspective. She said the RFP should be released within the next few months and they should know where SourceHOV stands “way before” November 2017.

Hopkins once again reminded the board that SourceHOV eliminated the weekend shift last month and gave those employees the option to be laid-off or switch their hours. She said it was the employees' choice and that no one was forced to be laid off.

Hopkins went on to say that the government contract works on seven year terms with a one year review during the first year of the contract. She said if companies don't meet the demands within the first year, that the government would pull the contract. She said SourceHOV passed the review.

Hopkins went on to say that two industrial realty companies recently made their pitches to the fiscal court about their marketing plans for the former Anchor Packaging building in the Rockcastle Industrial Park.

Hopkins could not attend the first presentation by Binswanger out of Atlanta Georgia but was given their proposal. The fiscal court decided to wait until a future meeting to decide which firm they would use to dispose of or lease the former Anchor building.

Sheriff's Department and the Rockcastle County Coroner's Office.

KSP Public Affairs Officer Lloyd Cochran said

there is no suspect at this time but that they are currently interviewing neighbors who might have seen something suspicious before the incident occurred.

“Election”

results only showed some minor changes of less than five votes in each race.

Comer announced on his social media accounts last Friday that he had conceded and contacted Bevin to congratulate him. Comer went on to say that he endorsed Bevin for governor and pledged to “do everything possible to see that he gets elected.”

Bevin also released a statement last Friday saying he was “proud to be the GOP nominee for Kentucky governor.”

Heath previously released a statement saying if the results remained the same after the canvass, he would give Quarles his full support.

“Funds”

The amount appropriated for the 2015-2016 road fund was $1,367,486. Some of the larger amounts on the fund were $410,000 for road workers salaries, $102,000 for petroleum products, $100,000 for road materials and $75,000 for road department equipment repairs.

After no discussion, the board approved the LGEA fund and road fund.

The court approved training for county elected officials and supervisors in Prestonsburg for $625.

The court also approved election commissioners and workers' pay for the primary election. That amount was $3,040.

In the final item of business, the court approved the reimbursement of coal severance funding for the Kentucky Music Hall of Fame in the amount of $12,500.

Police investigate burned semi-truck

By: Doug Ponder

Police are investigating a melted shell of a semi-truck found Monday afternoon on Lower River Road in Livingston near the Rockcastle and Laurel County line.

According to Kentucky State Police reports, officers received an anonymous tip about the burned Semi-truck after someone spotted the truck's melted shell over an embankment on Lower River Road.

KSP Public Affairs Officer Lloyd Cochran said the semi-truck belonged to Jennings Transport of London and that they are still looking for the driver.

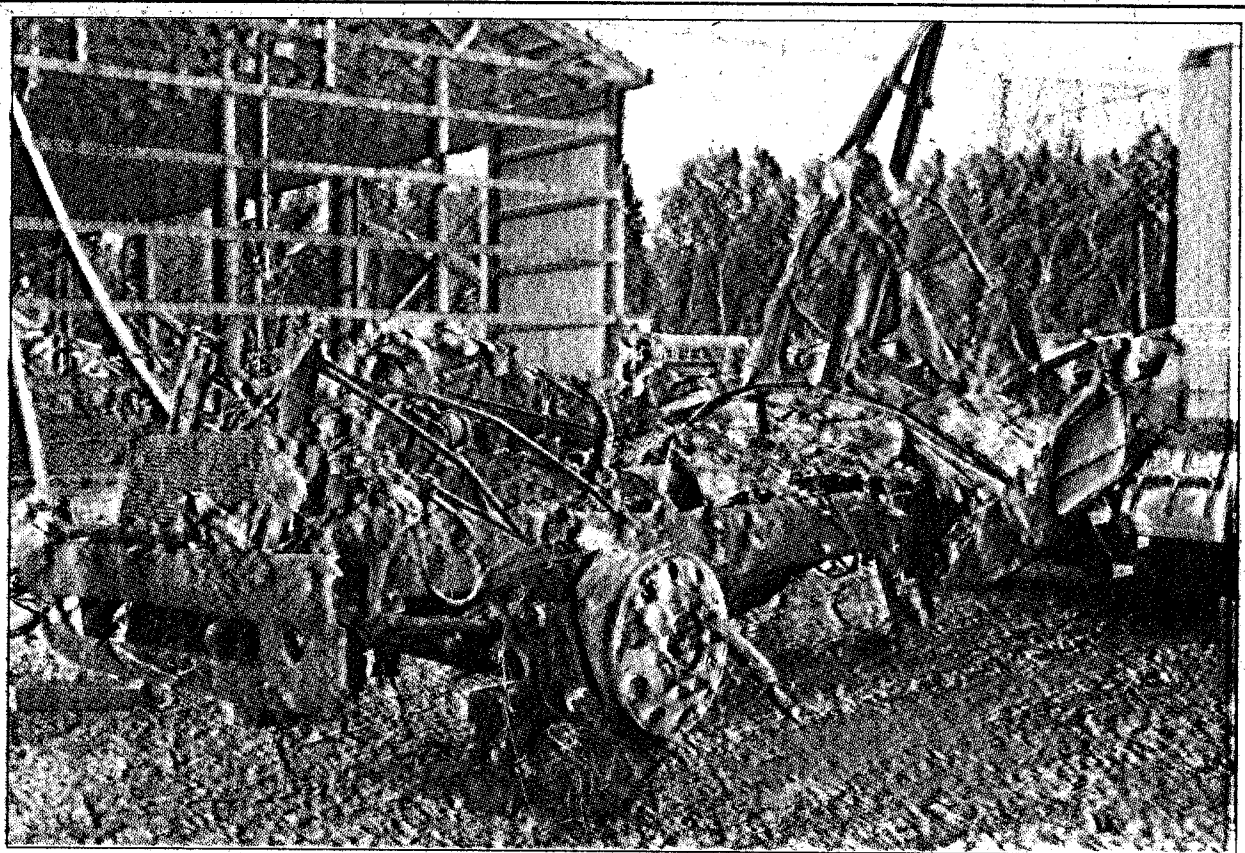

Investigators suspect that the torched semi-truck may be the same truck that was involved in a hit and run collision with Trooper Donnie Foley last Friday night on Hwy 192 in London.

According to original reports of the collision, Foley was stopped at a traffic light at an intersection when a semi-truck rear-ended his cruiser and then struck the cruiser a second time. After the second impact, the semi-truck fled from the scene. Several other police units responded and searched the area, but were unable to locate the semi-truck.

Foley was transported to Saint Joseph Hospital in London where he was treated for his injuries and later released.

Cochran said they are not for sure if the same semi-truck found on Lower River Road was the semi-truck involved in the hit and run crash. He said both incidents are still under investigation by the Kentucky State Police.

If you have any information about either incident, contact the Kentucky State Police at 606-878-6622 or 1-800-222-5555.

Veterans have opportunity to visit memorials in Washington this Fall

There is no greater honor than to be of service to the individuals who built our nation after a world war and to those who are responsible for sustaining and maintaining our freedoms and the way of life we so cherish. The Honor Flight Program is one way of saying "Thank you, and Welcome home!" Honor Flight Bluegrass Chapter flies veterans to Washington D.C. for a one-day all expenses paid trip to visit the memorials that have been built to honor their service and sacrifices. Of the 16,112,566 members of the United States Armed Forces who served in World War II, only 850,000 still remain; 10, 626 of which live in the state of Kentucky (based on VA 2014 numbers).

In 2015, Honor Flight Bluegrass Chapter will fly three missions to Washington-May 16th flown out of Louisville, June 6th also flown out of Louisville and September 26th flown out of Lexington. Each hero will have a guardian (taken from the term guardian angel) accompany them on the flight. The trip can run 12 hours from wheels up to welcome home; and that guardian will be with their hero for every minute. If the hero needs a bottle of water, wants a picture taken, or simply wants to remember their military experiences: the guardian will be there for them. The September flight is sponsored by a single Lexington Anonymous Donor and Touchstone Energy. 72 Veterans and their Guardians will depart Lexington Bluegrass Airport at 7:30 am on US Airways charter for Reagan Int'l Airport and arrive back in Lexington at 10:15pm.

Guardians pay their own way-this year the donation is $500 and includes everything but most importantly-the privilege to escort a real live hero to Washington to see their memorials. Many guardians have said that this trip changed their lives. All monies needed for this mission is raised with fundraisers and private and corporate donations. All donations go to fly the vets-there is no paid staff and everyone is a volunteer.

Honor Flight Bluegrass Chapter is now taking applications for the September 26, 2015 flight out of Lexington, for Veterans, Guardian and Volunteers. Applications can be found on line at their website: www.honorflightbluegrass.org or by contacting Phillip Pittman (859)263-8124 or pittmanpnc8657@aol.com. World War II, Korean War and Vietnam War Era veterans may all apply, but within the applicant base, top priority is given to World War II Veterans that have not visited the Memorial and all Veterans from other wars that have been diagnosed with a terminal illness. The next priority is those that served in the Korean War and then those that served in Vietnam War.

Information on the solar system signage was researched and written up by students in 6th, 7th, and 8th grade Math and Science BRAVO. The students were able to see their work displayed in person on a field trip to the ASPI Wilderness Site, about five miles south of Livingston. On Saturday, May 30th, everyone is invited to view the new trail, visit the Nature Center, take guided hikes, and participate in nature activities at a free Open House from 10:00 a.m. - 2:00 p.m. Help complete the sculptures of the planets by weaving fabric, complete a scavenger hunt, walk a slack line, have a picnic lunch, or just relax in the woods.
