Bustle's bond was set at $200,000 cash.

The murder of the elderly man made statewide news after police discovered his body at his residence on Abway Street off Lake Cumberland Road (Hwy 461) in Mount Vernon. Sanders was a sports legend and still holds records as a quarterback for his team at Knoxville College in the 1960s and neighbors say he was an avid church goer as well.

Immediately after the murder, police had no suspects but began questioning neighbors and searching for video surveillance in the area. After a four month investigation, police had already arrested three of the suspects and Bustle was arrested soon after.

Superintendent receives high praises from board

Board preparing for 2017-18

By: Mike French
 With a two-page agenda, the Rockcastle County School Board began its regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening with the annual evaluation of Superintendent David Pensol.

Pensol received high marks across the board and members of the board spoke out of his accomplishments while serving in his current position. In fact, since Pensol has taken the seat as Superintendent, the Rockcastle County School district has been listed as one of only 12 counties in Kentucky as a "District of Distinction" by the state. "We are very fortunate to have Mr. Pensol. His kind of dedication is a huge benefit to the students in our school system," said board member Carrie Ballinger.

Pensol thanked the board for the high praises but said, "We can't get distracted from our goal. Regardless of funding cuts and adjustments school systems are having to make, the best possible education of our kids is the goal. It is a privilege to work as the Superintendent. We have a unique opportunity in public education to have a profound impact on the students and families in our community. Our children deserve the best education that we can possibly provide. During these times of financial cuts, increasing demands and diminishing support for public education, we need to be stronger and more vocal advocates for our community's children. Education is the greatest resource available to a community and we must

Garden variety savings

With the help of a state grant through Kentucky State University and the USDA, Rockcastle County officials have started their own jail garden, according to Jailer Carlos McClure. McClure said the garden spot, located behind the 911 Center, will be filled with vegetables that will later be used to feed the inmates. "This will save the county money, provide work for our work release program, and help everyone involved," McClure said. Rockcastle County Judge/Executive Doug Bishop agreed, "We are helping inmates learn to work with their hands and be more prepared when they are released as well as providing a service to our community. The food is healthier, much cheaper and will provide life lessons for inmates." Deputy Jailer Tina Smith, who was in charge of the inmates Monday, said the garden will have corn, tomatoes, peppers, cucumbers and potatoes. Michael Lewis, director of the program, said the grant will also provide two jobs for veterans who will teach inmates how to grow vegetables.

Aces Over

By Mike French

As I heard someone say years ago, life is not about how many breaths you take, but is about the moments that take your breath away. Well, this week, I'll admit that I gasped for air in a moment that I won't forget.

About three to four times a week, I go out to the porch to practice my banjo or guitar. I enjoy the fresh air and it keeps my fingers limber for upcoming gigs.

Over the past couple of months a little girl, (about 8-10 years old) across the road, has been coming outside to her porch every time I go out to practice.

This little girl apparently hears me playing and runs outside immediately and begins to dance and twirl and laugh and sing as I play.

At first, there was no acknowledgment that I was even there. She simply danced and enjoyed the music. But after a couple of weeks, she began to nod or wave at me or even smile. But she never stopped the dancing.

From the time I went outside to the time I headed back in the house...she danced.

I have never spoken to this little girl and have never seen her parents. But she seems totally engrossed in the music. I don't know if she is a banjo fan or just music in general but for whatever reason, she has been as dependable as a Swiss watch and has been outside dancing and twirling every time I have taken an instrument out there.

Once, she brought out a little plastic flute and attempted to play along with me as she danced. But apparently she didn't enjoy that and she never brought it out again.

However, this Friday night was a little different.

I hit the porch with banjo in hand and immediately started looking for the little girl.

She was a little late this time. She was usually outside before I finished a verse of Cripple Creek.

Apparently this time, she had taken the time to write a note before coming outside.

Instead of dancing, she ran out the door, across the road, up to my porch and laid a torn and dirty piece of paper by my feet. She looked up at me for only a split second and then took off back to her porch without a word and started twirling in the cool of the evening.

As I finished playing the last song, I bent to pick up the piece of paper as the little girl watched me. There in golden crayon the note read, "I love you so much!"

As I walked in the door reading the note I turned and yelled back to her "I love you too." She smiled and went inside.

I haven't been outside since that evening and I wonder what the next trip will bring.

I have a few people telling me it may be a school girl crush and that I better be very careful how I handle the situation. I would hate to have a daddy running after me with a shotgun.

One never knows what goes on inside a home or what this sweet little girl is thinking. But I can't help but wonder if sixty years after I am gone, some grandmother will be sitting in a rocking chair telling a story to her little granddaughter about an old guy that used to live across the street that made her smile and dance and twirl.

Points East

By Ike Adams

When I was growing up in the Head of Blair Branch, there in Letcher County back in the 1950s and 60s, my Mom always had at least a couple varieties of fast-growing green beans coming in by or before the middle of June.

I remember names like "The Little Howard Caudill Bean," "The Creed Craft Bean," "The Little Jim Bean," "The Nancy Crase Bean," etc. All of these varieties were named for people who had given her the seeds but had already forgotten their proper names by the time they were shared with Mom.

Even though some of the varieties may have been the result of accidental cross breeding, it is much more likely that the seed had been passed around so often that folks simply forgot what they were originally called.

In any event, the ones I remember best, including all 4 of the varieties named above were "bunch beans" the term that mountaineers used for what we now call "bush beans", meaning varieties that grow in clusters less than two feet tall and need no support for the vines climb.

I remember selling seeds in spring and the company would insist that I try peddling out half a dozen or so packs of "Tenderette Bush Beans," that nobody wanted to buy because they thought that meant you had to cut bushes for them to grow on. Mom tried a pack one year and declared them "nothing but a bunch bean that's not fit to eat but that's another story for later this year.

By June we were so tired of eating the home-canned green beans several meals each week for more than 7 months that the first few "messes" of any kind of fresh green bean was considered a treat.

These early varieties were not considered good for canning, or at least not nearly as good as the main crop half runners, fall beans and white corn-field beans of which most families on Blair Branch preserved upwards of 200 or more quarts every summer.

As a consequence, Mom never planted more than a

Music Sets the Mood

Dear Journal,

When I was diagnosed with cancer about two years ago, we were in the ongoing process of redoing the house. I say "ongoing" because it began about six months or a year after we were married. We would complete a room and slowly move on to another.

By the time we got a room or so complete, it looked like we needed to go back to the original room and begin again. I have half of what we have boxed up sitting here and there. Everything is helter-skelter. We even came across a sale on a new stove and refrigerator a few months ago that has never made it to the kitchen. This cancer thing and the recovery from it has robbed me of about two years or so of life and I'm just now trying to get back on track.

Yesterday, we made great strides in redoing the kitchen. Stanley had cleaned our cabinets the other day and we began painting them yesterday. I'm going for a clean, airy look with lots of light and openness. It's going to be done in the primitive style which I just absolutely love.

While we were doing the painting, Stanley turned on some old 1930s and -40s music through YouTube. It was the Big Bands and crooners like Doris Day, Rosemary Clooney, Bing Crosby, Frank Sinatra, Judy Garland, and Dinah Shore. We were really getting into it. Our moms and dads probably really got into it back in the day, too.

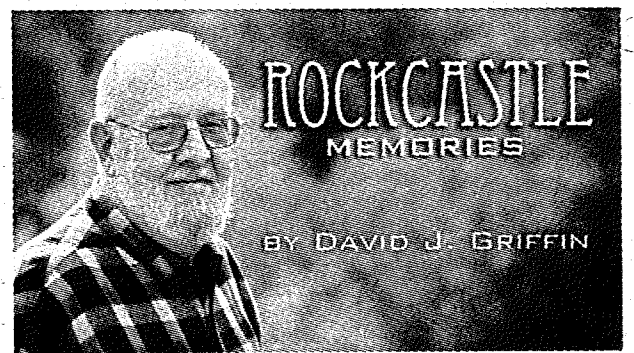

You know, before long images came and went from my mind. I saw the clothing, cars, and a different lifestyle...the lifestyle of a bygone era, the "Greatest Generation". All who know me know I love the movies of that era, especially the musicals. I guess secretly I long to have lived during that era...I can really identify with it.

The more I listened the more I wished to be alive in the 1930s and through the 1950s. It made me think of a movie I saw once, "Somewhere in Time".

Christopher Reeve had fallen in love with Jane Seymour about 1912 and he had been reincarnated to the 1980s. He time-travelled back to the past and they rekindled their affair.

Actually, I once saw a documentary on time travel. Albert Einstein and others have proven on paper that such a thing is possible. I think when we have flashes of deja vu, we are seeing our life from another angle. Sometimes I feel certain I've been a certain place, met someone, done a certain thing, or said something at one time before.

Wouldn't time travel be wonderful? We could go back and witness history, meet our ancestors, or travel to the future and see all of the things there awaiting us. Let the music take us there.

School Vaccinations

Anyone from my generation likely remembers having to get "shots" while attending grade school. These were basically mandatory vaccinations that were scheduled to be given on a certain date, at which everyone was lined up like little toy soldiers.

I distinctly recall being in the second grade when a nurse showed up at school, promptly beginning to display all of her medical supplies. Our teacher explained that we were having school inoculations that day, and we were instructed to go to the nurse as soon as she called our names. Oh, how I hated needles!

I dreaded the day that dadgum nurse showed up. Several students got in line immediately when their names were called, but when she called my name, I had decided on another route.

"My mother is going to take me to Dr. Griffith for my shots," I said. So the nurse called the next name, and that seemed to be that. I thought that this strategy would rid me of my destiny with those hated needles, but was I ever surprised when I got home. Of course, my teacher had called my mother in order to explain that she needed to have a note from Dr. Griffith once I had completed my vaccinations.

When Bee realized what had happened, I am sure that she handled the call with her usual grace and assured the teacher that she would see to it all. But man, by the time that I arrived home, she was absolutely furious!

"Why did you do that, David Joe?" she asked with an incredulous tone - as if I had committed some sort of crime. She proceeded to explained to me that my misbehavior meant that she would not only have to make an appointment with our personal doctor, but that she would also have to take off from work, costing her money, and then spend even more money to pay for the injections that were being provided without charge by the school system.

I felt like a worm by the time she was finished with me.

All of this made a distinct impression on me. While I was disappointed with myself that I had told a "little white lie," I hated that Bee was so infuriated with me. From that point on, for the rest of my school years, I always volunteered to go first when the school nurse came a calling. I guess being first in line was my own form of penance.

Although I still had an aversion to needles, my bearing up under the load of guilt ended up paying off in a manner that I could never have expected. By the time that I was a senior in college, I was given a Teacher's Assistant (TA) position, in which I was to assist the instructor with his Anatomy and Physiology labs. My very first assignment involved...needles. I was instructed to take a small sample of blood from each student so that we could type each one and make specimen slides in order for them to study their own blood cells. In those days, TA's took blood in labs without fear of contracting the diseases that are faced in this more modern age.

For many years, I used

Yards to Paradise

By Max Phelps
Gardening in the Forest

Permaculture became a new word in the dictionary not that long ago. By combining permanent and agriculture, using perennials (trees are perennials, too) and self-propagating plants and animals, organic gardening has taken a new step—working with nature, not against it. Can you garden in the forest? Can you create a low-input backyard forest that will yield a sustainable harvest, including fruits and nuts, provide shade and wildlife habitat, and even possibly firewood/timber? A garden forest can be an Eden paradise.

Gardeners typically think of tilling the soil, buying new plants each spring, and doing it all over again the next year.

Anytime you have to buy new plants or seeds, buy fertilizers to enable the process to continue, it isn't very sustainable over the long haul. Our ancient ancestors often were hunter-gatherers. More recently, farming consisted of raising your vegetables, maybe your grain, your beef, pork and poultry, collecting eggs from your own chickens. Part of that process was returning the litter or manure from the work horses or mules or oxen back to the fields. Another part of the scenario was harvesting food and storing for winter, and saving seed for next season's plantings. Such self sufficiency was part of my life as a child. It's becoming popular again, as a hobby at least, even if nobody actually wants to give up their tv or smart phone, their tractor or riding mower, and especially not their running water and electricity.

Cropping the forest, making the most of your woods, seems like a very sensible thing to consider. You don't need to be an ecological freak to grow some food in the woods, or create a little forest garden in your yard.

Now moving past theory and daydreaming, what can we do in our landscape that will be environmentally friendly and at the same time provide us some things we can eat or otherwise use?

Fruits. We can naturally grow pawpaws, currants, elderberries, honeyberries, wild blueberries, persimmons, mulberries, and perhaps apples and pears, too. But there are so many other fruits, depending on your climate, that are possible to grow at home.

Nuts. Black walnuts is a natural. Hickory nuts, hazelnuts, beechnuts, are a few that will work. Even white oak trees produce edible acorns, for you, for deer, for wild turkeys, and many other critters. (The squirrels may leave your bird feeders alone if you have a natural banquet of nuts for them—on second thought, the trees may become your bird feeders too as they produce things the birds will help themselves to.)

Many minor or niche items such as mushrooms and herbs can be grown in the woods, or in your backyard.

And, yes, among your landscaping plants.

Sure, you can plant a Bradford pear or a red maple. But why not consider an apple and a sugar maple or sweet birch instead. (There are even newer apple cultivars that are disease free, have red or pink blossoms, and reddish bronze or purplish leaves—with edible fruit as the bonus.) Instead of the snowball bush that has no fruit, why not do the kind that does have fruit? For that spirea or burning bush, why not substitute a honeyberry or blueberry bush?

The point to take away is that you can grow edibles in the yard with a low amount of input, while having shade and curb appeal at the same time. Paradise not only has water, it has food. May your yard become more like a paradise and less like a piece of real estate you must mow every week for seven months of the year, with nothing in return.

few short rows of early beans, "just enough to eat on," as she would put it." On the other hand she made sure that there would, in fact, be more than plenty to eat on and she was more than happy to share the surplus with friends, relatives and neighbors.

We usually picked the beans in peck (1/4 bushel) or half bushel buckets and we picked until the bucket was full or until there were no more beans left to pick. Usually that meant we had more beans than we needed to make a cooker full but not even close to enough to make a canning even if she had been inclined to do so.

In the spirit of "waste not, want not" whatever bean pods left over once the cooking kettle was full had their strings removed and were thoroughly washed without being snapped or broken into small pieces.

Using a large "darning needle" that was much larger and longer than a typical sewing needle and capable of being threaded with twine much sturdier/stronger than regular sewing thread, the extra bean pods were threaded onto three to 4 feet lengths of heavy twine that had been previously used to seal sacks of livestock feed.

I actually enjoyed poking the big needle, about 3 or 4 inches long, through the bean pods and stringing them up. We'd select the largest pod we could find and tie it to end of a length of twine to anchor the ones that would be threaded above it and keep them from sliding off the string. We sometimes had competitions to see who could make the longest string of beans without the string breaking from being over-weighted. If a string did break, that meant a bunch of beans had to be threaded back onto another string. The extra work took any fun out of the competition.

In those days, we had no air conditioning and the cooking was done on a coal fired cook stove. The strings of beans were hung on a rack, made especially for that purpose, behind the stove until they were completely dry.

After 1960, the year we got an electric stove, they were hung on clothes lines, and brought inside at night to avoid dew fall. Once they were as dry as winter feed corn shucks, they were stored in various ways for the winter; hence the name, shuckey beans.

And if given a choice right this minute between a big helping of fresh green beans or a mess of genuine "shuckey beans" or "leather britches" as they were sometimes called because of their toughness before cooking, I would opt for the shuckey.

those same laboratory exercises in my own Anatomy and Physiology (A&P) classes at George Rogers Clark High School in Winchester. One year, I had four A&P classes per day. Those classes earned a positive reputation at GRC, where a good number of my students went on to become physicians, nurses, and physical therapists.

I suspect that my desire to teach A&P classes may have actually arisen from my difficult experience with shots and needles in the second grade. My new-found manhood at that young age gave me "a leg up" on my interest in the biological sciences.

Have you had your "shots" this year?

Rogers applauds $1.87 million ARC investments in E. KY

U.S. Rep. Harold "Hal" Rogers (KY-05) applauds the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) for investing $1.87 million to help expand and diversify the economy in the coalfields of southern and eastern Kentucky. Together, the projects will help create new jobs, support new businesses, enhance workforce training and education, promote exports of Appalachian-made crafts and products, and boost tourism efforts in the region.

"The ARC continues to help empower southern and eastern Kentuckians through critical funding for projects that will inspire folks to start a dream business, strengthen our STEM education and workforce development efforts, and revitalize tourism in our region," said Congressman Rogers. "This funding works in concert with the mission of SOAR - Shaping Our Appalachian Region - as we reimagine and diversify our rural communities."

The Kentucky projects are part of a total ARC investment totaling $15.7 million for 18 projects in seven Appalachian states.

"Each one of these awards is a blueprint for new jobs, fresh opportunities, and a robust economic future for Kentucky," said ARC Federal Co-Chairman Earl F. Gohl. "Together, these investments bring added capital into the Region, and help Appalachia prepare to globally compete in manufacturing, technology, construction, and a variety of other industry sectors."

The ARC awarded funding through the POWER Initiative (Partnerships for Opportunity and Workforce and Economic Revitalization) for the follow projects:

• $1 million ARC grant to Community Ventures Corporation in Lexington,

To all individuals having loved ones buried in the Elmwood Cemetery in Mt. Vernon. The Elmwood Cemetery Perpetual Care Corp. is asking for assistance in the upkeep of the cemetery. Kentucky, for the Build Appalachia Loan Fund project. The Build Appalachia Loan Fund will provide affordable capital to educational institutions in Appalachian Kentucky and West Virginia who will own, operate, and manage facilities that are eligible for New Markets Tax Credits (NMTC). The loan fund will provide gap financing for major projects and will attract primary and leveraged financing for the construction or renovation of college facilities. A strategic partner in the Build Appalachia Loan Fund is the Appalachian College Association, a group of 4-year private educational institutions that seek new sources of investment capital. The fund's focus will be in healthcare-related higher education, given that much of the region is medically underserved and there is strong demand for qualified health professionals. Additional financial support for the fund is being provided by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, the Mary Reynolds Babcock Foundation, and the Opportunity Finance Network. The Build Appalachia Loan Fund will leverage $50 million in private investment in 5 projects, creating 500 new jobs in healthcare related activities.

• $497,305 ARC grant to Morehead State University in Morehead, Kentucky, for the next phase of Shaping Our Appalachian Region Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (SOAR STEM) project. The project's goal is to develop a highly skilled STEM workforce that can foster job growth and business expansion in an area that has experienced major job losses because of the decline in coal. It has four main areas of focus: upskilling teachers so that they receive National Board Certification; training high school teachers across 27 counties of eastern Kentucky to implement curriculum developed by Project Lead The Way, a nationally recognized developer of K-12 STEM education curricula and professional development; supporting the development of Mentoring Centers--partnerships between industry and local school districts that provide paid internships and mentoring for high school students and connect the future workforce with local employers; and support for maker spaces, entrepreneur hubs, and a Navy Seals coding boot camp that provide hands-on skill training and experience. The program will train over 80 teachers and impact 20,000 students over the first three years of implementation.

• $300,000 ARC grant to Southeast Kentucky Community and Technical College (SEKCTC) in Cumberland, Kentucky, for the Selling to the World Initiative. SEKCTC, along with Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program (EKCEP) and the Discover Downtown Middlesboro Main Street Association, piloted an initiative in 2015 targeting eastern Kentucky artisans and craftspeople whose products are the type and quality that could support internet-based businesses for world-wide marketing and sales. The Initiative seeks to boost the region's economy—which has been adversely affected major job losses in the coal industry—by growing local businesses, strengthening the entrepreneurial support system, helping "brand" products from the region, and promoting exports. The two-year launch phase of the initiative was privately funded by the New York Community Trust. The ARC investment will continue this activity, concentrating on artisan businesses from four coal-impacted eastern Kentucky counties, one county from northeast Tennessee, and one from southwest Virginia. The program for artists and craft makers is expected to help create 30 new jobs and leverage $297,000 in private investment.

• $80,000 ARC technical assistance grant for Eastern Kentucky PRIDE, Inc. in Somerset, Kentucky for the Restoring PRIDE in Kentucky's Appalachia project. PRIDE, along with The Foundation for Appalachian Kentucky, Eastern Kentucky University, and Union College, will develop a tourism-based strategic plan for 41 counties in eastern Kentucky, an area impacted by the downturn in the coal industry. By the end of the 12-month technical assistance, the partners will decide upon a branding plan to attract public and private investment for increased economic activity via joint marketing initiatives, new branding, and heritage tourism activities. Restoring PRIDE in Kentucky's Appalachia will help current businesses to increase their revenue and provide support to at least 20 new entrepreneurs within the project area over the next three years. The project partners will work to leverage at least $500,000 to invest into the implementation of the branding plan.

all work together to remain committed to ensure a quality education is available to the children of our county.”

Board members also said farewell to Chris Cornelius, Director of Transportation. Cornelius has worked with the local school district for 27 years and was presented with a gift from the board.

“While we are happy for Chris, he is going to be very difficult to replace,” said Pensol. “He has been wonderful to work with.”

Cornelius also said his farewells to the board. “There is a lot about this job that I will miss. And probably some things I won’t,” he said laughingly.

Cornelius’s retirement will be effective as of June 30th but told the board that he will be available to help with the transition to whomever is appointed to his position.

In operations and actions, the board approved school trips, student/teacher agreements with EKV, employee and coaches handbooks, FRYSC memorandum, Midway University student/teacher agreement, certified evaluation plan, community education memorandum, approved a performance bond, a bond of depository for Citizens Bank, a bond of depository for Community Bank, Title I parent involvement policy and utilization of Head Start.

The board also got their first look at the Fund 2 tentative budget for the upcoming fiscal year which provides state allocations of $1,004,927 and federal allocations of $1,950,381. However, the figures in the bud-

Mahaffey’s bond was set at $25,000 cash/property.

Joshua R. Spoonamore, 32, of Sand Gap was indicted for possession of meth and his bond was set at $5,000 cash/property bond.

Besides these seven, and four others indicted for the murder of Bennie Sanders (see story elsewhere on this week’s front page), four other indictments were also handed down.

Jason B. Wheeler, 27, of Stallworth Road, Mt. Vernon was indicted for burglary, theft by unlawful taking and criminal mischief, all involving an incident at the IGA Fuel Center in Mt. Vernon on May 20th of this year.

His bond was set at $45,000 cash/property.

Tommy W. Adams, 49, of Ottawa Road, Brodhead, get are tentative because the allocations have not yet been made and the numbers used are from last year’s allocations. The board also agreed to purchase district insurance for the 2017-18 school year. The general insurance will cost the district $161,914 which is up over $1,000 from last year due to KDE requirements. However, according to officials in the finance department, the rate is still lower than most districts due to the county’s safety efforts and continued improvements.

The board also approved the student and athletic insurance which will cost the district $78,190 which is over $5,000 higher than last year. But officials say this rate increase is because there were an unusual number of accidents last year.

The board also reviewed the Superintendent’s personnel report.

Full time certified employees hired were David Owens, assistant girls basketball coach at RCHS, Dustin Reynolds, science teacher at RCMS and Ella

Bradley, elementary teacher at MVES.

Resignations listed were Devin Hasty, assistant boys basketball coach at RCMS and Ashley Bohlman, receptionist.

Besides Cornelius’s retirement, Roxanne Hammond also retired from her position of district health nurse.

was indicted on four counts: wanton endangerment (two counts), assault and resisting arrest.

His bond was set at $50,000 cash/property.

Darron Dooley, 34, of Mills St., Berea and Megan

L. Richards, 24, of Lair St., Mt. Vernon were named in a joint indictment for the offense of receiving stolen property.

Both Dooley’s and Richard’s bond was set at $40,000 cash/property.

CHEESE SQUARES

1 cup of sugar, divided for cheese mix and for topping
1/4 cup of cinnamon
2 boxes (8 ounces each) cream cheese, very soft
1 egg, separated
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 rolls of crescent dough
Preheat oven to 325° degrees. Mix together 1/4 cup of sugar and 1/4 cup of cinnamon – set aside for topping. (I like a little less cinnamon because it can get too harsh). Microwave cream cheese for 1 minute, stir. Repeat to get soft enough. Mix together softened cream cheese, remaining sugar, egg yolk, and vanilla until smooth.

Grease a 9 x 13 pan (I prefer glass, I also use cooking spray to grease the pan because it’s easy) Roll out 1 package of crescent dough smooth to the edges of the pan. Pour in cheese mixture and spread smoothly over dough. Roll out remaining package of crescent dough over top of the cheese mixture. It will be too small but only stretch it a little to almost fit to the edges of the pan without disturbing the cheese mixture.

Take the separated egg white and beat it with a basting brush for 1 minute or until slightly frothy. Brush over the top of crescent dough. This will make the dough soft and now you can stretch the dough to the edges of the pan using the basting brush without messing up the cheese mixture underneath.

Take the sugar and cinnamon topping and sprinkle evenly over the top of your cheese squares. Cook for 25 minutes at 325°. Cool and slice into squares.

Cream sugar and butter; add eggs and beat well. Add vanilla, flour, baking powder, and salt. Add additional flour if needed to make a stiff dough. Turn out onto a floured board. Roll and cut into desired shapes. Bake at 375° for 10 to 15 minutes.

2nd Lieutenant Jackie Alexander welcomed home after a tour in Iraq.

At Air Force Academy

Jackie Alexander begins collegiate coaching career

Becoming a coach has always been in the sights for former Rockcastle County Lady Rocket, Jackie Alexander. Although the path to the profession has been unconventional, Alexander never lost touch of her ultimate goal.

Alexander graduated from RCHS in 2010 and transferred to the University of the Cumberlands in 2011 after a short stint at the United States Military Academy at West Point. She was a 4 year letter winner and all-conference selection while playing shooting guard for the Patriots. During Alexander's career, UC won the Mid-South Conference title in 2012 and made 3 appearances (2012, 2013, and 2014) in the NAIA National Tournament.

As a student athlete at UC, Jackie graduated cum laude with a major in Biology and minors in Spanish and Military Science while simultaneously being a member of the Women's Basketball and Army ROTC programs. Upon leaving West Point, Alexander didn't see the Army in her future but life had other plans. Jackie joined ROTC in 2013 and commissioned as a 2nd Lieutenant in the Active Army in May of 2014.

Since receiving her commission as an Active Duty Army Officer, Jackie was an honor graduate from the Basic Officer Leader's Course for Chemical Officers at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri. Since then, Alexander has been stationed at Fort Campbell, Kentucky where she has served as the Battalion Adjutant for 5th Battalion, 101st Combat Aviation Brigade. Most recently she deployed as the Company Executive Officer for the Headquarters Support Company of the 101st Airborne Division Headquarters Battalion in their support of Operation Inherent Resolve in Baghdad, Iraq.

Although the Army has been the focus for Alexander since college graduation, she has maintained a presence in the basketball community as well. Alexander has coached the Lady Vikings of Northwest High School (Clarksville, TN) for the 2015-2016 and 2016-2017 seasons. She coached the 17U Clarksville SOL AAU club in 2015. As her military obligation comes to a close, Alexander has her sights set on the next chapter which includes coaching and video coordinator operations at the college ranks. Jackie has accepted a position with the Women's Basketball program at the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, CO. Air Force competes at the NCAA Division 1 level in the Mountain West Conference.

"I hope to bring my passion for the military and service academies along with my experience as an Army Officer to the Air Force program. Air Force head coach, Chris Gobrecht has a servant leadership mentality in the way that she runs her program. I cannot wait to learn from her and embark on this new journey" said Alexander. Alexander credits the Lady Rocket program for laying the foundation for where she is today as a person, Army Officer, and now Coach.

Encourage your young angler's growing interest this summer

If free fishing weekend was a homerun with your kiddos, you might be wondering about how to keep the momentum going throughout the summer.

Take a cue from them: keep it fun.

Does this mean they need to catch a fish or get a bite every cast? Not necessarily. Fun can be wading a creek or floating down one for the first time in a canoe or kayak. Fun can be seeing how many different species of fish you can catch or how many fishing holes you can visit this summer. Fun can be catching your own live bait then using it to catch dinner.

Fun does not have to be complicated, but finding the time can be for grown-ups.

A memorable fishing trip does not require an entire day. Take off after work with your new fishing buddy and fish until dusk, or rise early and fish until mid-morning.

You probably have an idea about where to go, but lay out the options and let your young angler make the final decision. They will appreciate being involved in the process.

"Offer your suggestions but don't be too pushy," said Easton Copley, aquatic education program coordinator with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Farm ponds and Fishing in Neighborhoods (FINs) lakes are excellent options. The odds of catching fish consistently can be better in these smaller bodies of water.

The FINs program includes 43 locations across Kentucky and each is stocked throughout the year. Hybrid sunfish have been stocked in almost two dozen FINs lakes in recent days. Channel catfish were stocked in many last month.

Streams are another good option.

"In the creek, you're always moving," said Mike Hardin, assistant Fisheries Division director for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. "There's always something new around the bend. If you're in the shallows, you're seeing minnows. If you're up in the shoal, you'll see crawdads. As you wade, you can see fish dart by. You can catch a lot of fish. They can always take a friend and all of you can just go to the creek and they find their own fun."

Kids love to play in the dirt and splash in the water. Teach them about how easy and fun it can be to do both by catching their own live bait.

Worms appeal to just about every game fish species and it's a fairly easy activity for a young angler to collect plenty for a day trip. Observe a driveway or sidewalk after a rain shower. Along with gardens, compost piles and areas where the soil stays moist and cool, these spots can yield a bonanza of live bait.

Like worms, crayfish make great live bait, especially in waters holding smallmouth bass.

"If you're going to look for crawdads in a large creek, look for backwater areas or areas with isolated, ponded water that's not really flowing," Hardin said. "You can flip rocks over there and the crayfish are easier to catch."

Don't forget about the pincers. Pick up a crayfish on either side of its midsection - behind the head and pincers - with your thumb and index finger. Crayfish are hearty and do fine kept in a small bait bucket filled with water. Hook them through the underside of the tail with an Octopus hook and fish them weightless or with a pinch weight.

"When you cast them in swift water, they swim a little bit and you can feel them thump. When you feel that thump, smallmouth just come to it," Hardin said. "When there's no more thump, and you feel that steady pull on it, you've got one."

A good starter set-up for a young angler is simple - a spincast reel spooled with 4-pound clear monofilament line threaded through the guides of a 5-foot or shorter rod. Thread a worm onto an Aberdeen hook, apply a small splitshot to the line beneath a bobber and they're ready to catch fish. Once they've got a handle on how to operate the basic setup, they may want to try different equipment or presentations.

Few things in fishing are more exciting than watching a fish crash a topwater lure. To assemble an easy and productive summertime topwater presentation for panfish and bass, thread the line through a clear casting bobber and attach a small swivel to the main line. To the swivel, tie a 12- to 18-inch monofilament leader. Tie a foam spider or popper fly to the other end.

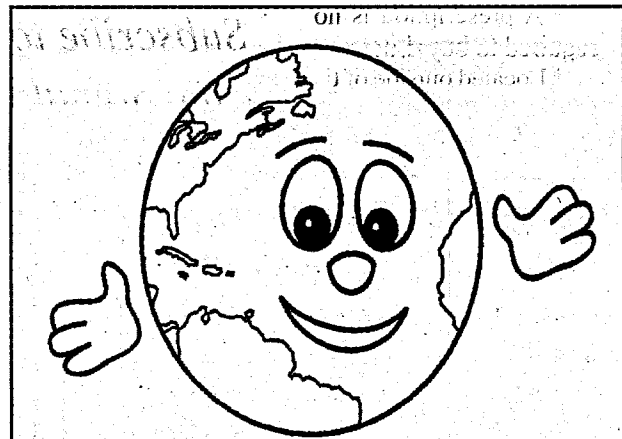

You will not want to forget your young angler's experiences and development, so consider keeping a summer scrapbook or get them in the habit of documenting their fishing adventures in a journal. These will become treasured keepsakes for years to come and imagine how impressed their teachers will be when the new school year starts.

Note the date and location of each outing. Include photographs of fish caught and a description of the trip. Keep a log of how many species of fish were caught by your young angler over the summer.

"A sticker chart would be cool, too," Copley said.

Measure and photograph the biggest fish. They may qualify your angler for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife's trophy fish program. Anglers who catch a qualifying fish by pole or line can receive a trophy fish pin. Learn more about the program on the department's website at fw.ky.gov.

Steep prescription discounts sign of fake pharmacy scam

Attorney General Andy Beshear recently issued a Scam Alert to warn of a scam targeting Kentucky families and seniors who are seeking to save money on their prescription drugs.

Staff at the Cabinet for Health and Family Services, Office of Inspector General, contacted Beshear's office after intercepting a phone caller attempting to lure in an unsuspecting victim by offering well-known prescription drugs for pennies on the dollar.

Beshear said once the caller has the victim's financial information they charge hundreds of thousands of dollars in unauthorized transactions on the victim's credit card and the prescription drugs never arrive.

"This is a scam that attempts to extort money from those who are seeking relief from the cost of their prescription drugs," Beshear said. "I appreciate the Cabinet for Health and Family Services for reporting this scam and working with my office to help make sure Kentuckians have the information they need to avoid falling victim."

Beshear said the best way to stay ahead of con artists is to be aware of new and trending scams by signing up to receive Scam Alerts from the Office of the Attorney General. Scam Alerts provide Kentuckians a direct alert, including tips on how to avoid scams reported in Kentucky. To enroll, text the words KYOAG Scam to GOV311 (468311), or enroll online at ag.ky.gov/scams and select text message or email alert.

* Not licensed in the United States

Trustworthy pharmacies always:

* Require a legitimate prescription

* Provide a physical address and telephone number in the United States

* Offer a pharmacist to answer your questions

* Have a license with the state board of pharmacy

To verify a pharmacy's license in Kentucky visit the Kentucky Board of Pharmacy website, or visit the FDA website for additional safe pharmacy information.

To help Kentuckians stay ahead of scammers Beshear created Scam Alerts. The service allows Beshear's office to send a text message or email alert to those signed up when new and trending scams are reported to his office. Each alert includes tips on how to spot and avoid the scam, and information on where to report any occurrences.

Kentuckians interested in receiving Scam Alerts can text the words KYOAG Scam to GOV311 (468311), or visit ag.ky.gov/scams to sign up with your mobile phone number or email address.

Local, state and federal government employee email addresses under siege

Attorney General Andy Beshear recently issued a Scam Alert to warn Kentuckians of an email scam that relies on spoof government employee email addresses to defraud Kentuckians.

Five recent reports to Beshear's office indicate the spoof email appears to come from a current Kentucky state government employee and solicits money in order to receive a sweepstakes prize the consumer has supposedly won.

Beshear said the content of the message might also include an official request for personal or financial information or seek payment for an outstanding debt.

"By using advanced technology to spoof actual employee email accounts, scammers are adding a new twist on impersonation scams that have traditionally been carried out over the phone," said Beshear. "A Scam Alert was issued today to help ensure Kentuckians are aware that they should be cautious of emails that appear to be from an official government employee and legitimate email account."

In addition to the current reports, similar instances indicate con artists are also taking on the persona of employees of the U.S. Census Bureau, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, Internal Revenue Service and a variety of local law enforcement agencies.

Beshear and his Office of Senior Protection recommend the following tips from the Federal Trade Commission to help avoid the scam:

* Do not trust, and verify. Call the government agency or employee directly to verify the email address and information. Know that government agencies will never call or email asking for immediate payment in order to receive a prize or grant.

* Do not provide financial or personal information. Never provide or confirm financial or other sensitive information, including your bank account, credit card, or Social Security number, unless you are confident that you are speaking to the correct person and organization for a legitimate purpose.

* Do not pay to win a prize. If you did not enter a sweepstakes or lottery, then you could not have won. Never pay to receive a prize or have a prize mailed. Remember, it is illegal for a sweepstakes promoter to request upfront fees, and all foreign lotteries and sweepstakes are illegal.

* Be cautious of an email request to reset a password. Scammers often use what appear to be legitimate emails to trick a user in to resetting an email account password. Once the scammer has the new account password, they can access the information in the account and use the account to scam others.

One of the critical missions of the Office of the Attorney General is to help Kentucky families, seniors and businesses recognize and avoid scams.

Beshear said that government employees are often the subject of scammers and over the past year Beshear's office has warned of several employee impersonation scams, including: IRS scams, jury duty scam, local sheriff's deputy scam, federal warrant scam and a business email compromise scam.

Over the past year, more than 200 reports of impersonation scams were submitted to the Office of the Attorney General. Ten of those reports account for Kentuckians losing nearly $50,000.

Former Kentucky Supreme Court Chief Justice honored by KHA

The Kentucky Hospital Association (KHA) presented several awards during the Association's Awards Luncheon on May 19, at the 88th Annual KHA Convention in Lexington. KHA's Health Care Governance Leadership Award, which recognizes individuals who have had a positive and sustainable impact on the quality of care in their community, was presented to Former Kentucky Supreme Court Chief Justice Joseph Lambert, board chair of Rockcastle Regional Hospital and Respiratory Care Center in Mount Vernon.

Serving as the board chair of Rockcastle Regional Hospital and Respiratory Care Center, Joseph Lambert has given decades of service to the organization, the local and regional community, and to the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

"I am honored by this award from the hospital association," Lambert said. "I have been privileged to serve with many other board members, physicians, and members of the hospital staff. They have been, and continue to be, the most dedicated people I have ever known."

Elected to the Supreme Court of Kentucky in 1986, he served the people of Kentucky as a justice for 22 years. In 1998, he became Kentucky's fourth chief jus-

Justice by a majority vote of his fellow justices and was subsequently elected to two additional four-year terms as chief justice. During his tenure, he focused on implementing cutting-edge programs throughout the Commonwealth. Justice Lambert counts among his most significant accomplishments the 2002 passage of the amendment that made Family Court a permanent part of the Kentucky Constitution.

A native of Rockcastle County, Lambert has been steadfast in his support of his local community through his involvement and leadership in various civic organizations. Following in his father's footsteps, he has served on the board of directors at Rockcastle Regional Hospital since 1988, and was elected chair in 1989.

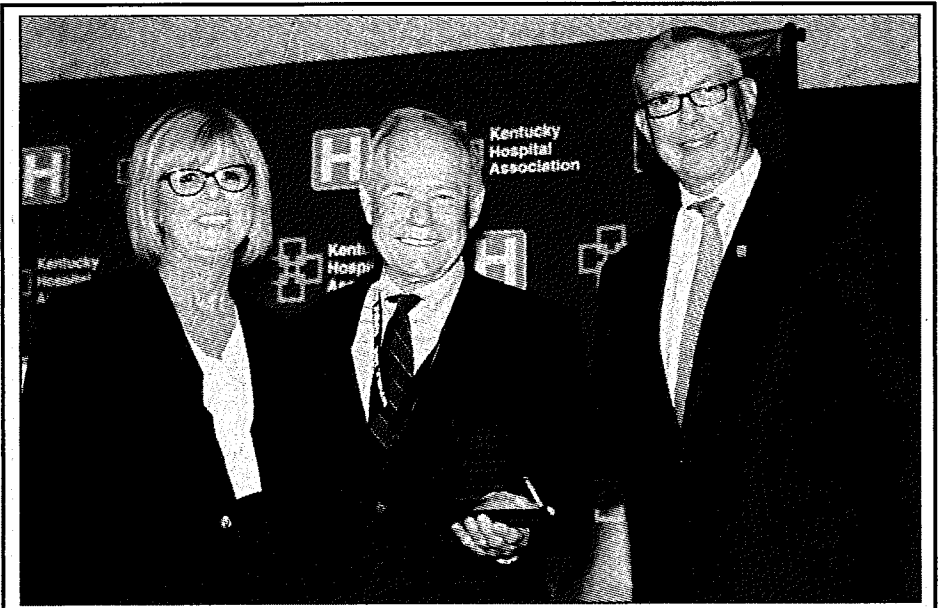

During his time as chair, the hospital has seen tremendous growth as a regional health care provider and as a well-known leader in community outreach. Beginning with 32 ventilator care beds, and with multiple expansions through the years, the organization will soon become the largest freestanding ventilator-dependent facility in the nation when it opens its newest addition of 28 beds this spring, bringing the total to 121 beds. The Respiratory Care Center has become nationally renowned for this specialized patient population. Accepting pediatric and adult patients from across the Commonwealth and extending to 28 states, Rockcastle Regional has remarkable success with weaning mechanically ventilated patients with an average wean rate of 40 percent.

However, growth has not only been experienced within the Respiratory Care Center. In 1998, a state-of-the-art medical arts complex opened, bringing more than 40 health care specialties to the community. An Outpatient Services Building was added in 2007 and in 2014 a 32,000 square-foot facility, which supports two primary care clinics and a general surgery practice, opened. These efforts significantly increased access to primary and specialty care for patients throughout the region.

Joint Commission accredited since 1999, Rockcastle Regional has also received national recognition for ventilator care and received numerous awards and recognitions, including the Excellence in Patient Care Award from the Studer Group and eight KHA Quality Awards.

It is the strong dedication of individuals like Joseph Lambert that make such accomplishments possible and demonstrate the dedication the KHA Governance Award honors.

KHA's Health Care Governance Leadership Award, which recognizes individuals who have had a positive and sustainable impact on the quality of care in their community, was presented to Former Kentucky Supreme Court Chief Justice Joseph Lambert, board chair of Rockcastle Regional Hospital and Respiratory Care Center in Mount Vernon. ## Brodhead little park to be repaired soon

Members of the Brodhead City Council discussed the repair and upgrade of the "little" park shelter during Monday night's regular monthly meeting.

Councilmen Rick Kirby, John Burton and Brian Bullock discussed the materials needed to repair the park back to safe and usable condition. But Mayor Walter Cash suggested the council look into the price of completely demolishing the existing shelter and building a new one.

On a motion by Burton, the council agreed to compare the price of repairing the area with the price of removing the old shelter, hauling away the material, cleaning up the area and building a new shelter.

The council also discussed the public usage of the park once renovations are complete and some suggested a system where citizens could reserve the space for reunions and other activities.

City Clerk Becky Bussell said she has had some negative experiences with the reserving of the park in the past. "Sometimes four people reserve the park for the day and then later a group of 30 people want to reserve it that same day," she said.

Burton also informed the council that the new railing for the pump station has been ordered and is on its way. Burton said the railing will be placed in the areas where pedestrians could fall and be injured. "It's all about safety," said Burton.

Burton also told the council that he and others are looking into new avenues for an additional police cruiser for the city. Burton said he is attempting to get a cruiser donated to Brodhead. "These are very nice cruisers and are ready to go," said Burton. "If we can get one donated, it could be a big benefit for our city."

Bullock said the city is "moving in the direction of adding another police officer eventually" and when that time comes the additional cruiser would be helpful and ready to go.

A police report presented to the council listed the activity of the Brodhead Police Department in the past month and included five arrests, four traffic citations, two motorist assists and other actions.

A guest, Rodney Adams, informed the council that he intends to run for constable in the next election.

The council then entered into executive session to address personnel matters.

Martin Dairy receives small business award

Martin Dairy Farm, located in the Three Links area, was recently chosen as the Small Business of the Year by the Peoples Rural Telephone Cooperative (PRTC).

The business was begun in 1969 after Jack and Darlene Martin moved back home and Mr. Martin's sister and her husband had a cow for sale. "I decided that would be a little extra income for us. Well, that bought our groceries and I thought I might as well get a few more. So, I ordered 30 more heifers," Jack Martin said.

There are now more than 100 cows in the herd and their son, Grant, who got started in the business about 30 years ago, is now his father's partner. Grant's wife, April, and their two children, Megan and Will, also work on the farm.

In answer to what is the best part of their job, Jack said "We really like all of it but I somehow enjoy the milking part of it. I'm going to have to have my knees replaced real soon, so it's painful for me. But I really enjoy milking. My son and I also pastor a church together at Three Links Christian Church and we also really enjoy that."

As to why is it important to shop local? the elder Martin said, "There are many reasons for it; mainly it helps local people. With me and my business, it helps me to buy things from people that I know so I know where it's coming from. It helps the local economy, it helps local people and it just helps all the way around."

Grant's and April's daughter, Megan is a graduate of EKU with a Wildlife Management degree. She is spending the summer in Missouri in the University of Missouri working as an Avian Field technician.

Will is a senior at EKU, majoring in Fire Protection Administration. He is also a member of the Climax Volunteer Fire Department.

PRTC commented at the presentation, "We are proud to be part of a community where a business like Martin Dairy offers quality products to customers and contributes to the local economy. It is an honor to award them with the Small Business of the Year Award and we wish them much more success in the future."

The Better Gift
By Howard Coop

Father's Day, since it was first observed on June 19, 1910 in Spokane, Washington, has always been observed on the third Sunday in June. It originated, and was set aside, as a special time for children of all ages to recognize the significance of fatherhood and honor their fathers and pay tribute to them.

Good fathers, for all they are and all they do, deserve honor and recognition, and that honor and that recognition is more, much more, than that proverbial ugly tie that, customarily, is presented as a gift on that special day. It is love, respect, and appreciation.

We are here because of our fathers. Our fathers are our progenitors who passed on to us more than a material heritage. Our earthly fathers passed on the genes, those elements by which hereditary characteristics are transmitted and determined, that our heavenly Father took and shaped into the unique individuals we became. Therefore, we are what we are because of our fathers.

But good fathers are far more than the progenitors of the race of which we are a part. They are role models who, with their daily lives, give their children a pattern after which those children may pattern their lives; they are teachers who give their children instruction when they seek to understand the problems of life; they are wise counselors who advise their children when they face difficult situations and need guidance; they are reliable supports when, in moments of weakness, their children need a shoulder upon which to cry and lean; and good fathers are loyal friends who "stick closer than a brother" with their children through all of the struggles and triumphs of life. But words are inadequate. After all has been said, good fathers are more.

On Father's Day a material gift is good. It may come as an external expression of an inner feeling of love and respect. But the better gift is a life that reflects the heart and soul of a good father.

JEC, CoBank donation helps feed the hungry

Jackson Energy has partnered with CoBank, a national cooperative financial institution, to support God's Pantry Food Bank and their work to help feed the hungry. The donation is through CoBank's Sharing Success fund, which matches contributions to community organizations in rural areas. CoBank is a financial lending agency based in Denver, Colorado, and it primarily provides financial services to rural areas. "God's Pantry Food Bank meets the needs of many families in our service area," says Jackson Energy Vice President of Member Services Sandy Painter, "and this donation will support the work they do through the Food Bank's Regional Distribution Center in London."

God's Pantry Food Bank provides more than 26 million meals every year for families in its Central and Eastern Kentucky 50-county service area. The distribution center in London serves food banks in 12 counties, which includes the Jackson Energy service area. The Sharing Success program allowed Jackson Energy to make a $2,000 donation to support the food bank.

"We're so grateful to Jackson Energy and CoBank for this donation," says God's Pantry Food Bank CEO, Michael Halligan, "this will help us create greater access for our partner agencies in this region that are directly impacting the lives of struggling families."

OP-ED: Streamlining Adoption the Goal of New Working Group

By David Meade
State Representative

In the 2017 Session of the Kentucky General Assembly, a focus like no other was placed on children and families. In historic fashion, the Legislature passed critical legislation to improve foster care placement, protect life, and combat our devastating drug epidemic.

And thanks to the leadership of Speaker Jeff Hoover, we will now have the chance to do even more in the Interim, due to the newly-established House Adoption Work Group. This bipartisan group, consisting of both republicans and democrats, will work to bring aggressive reforms to Kentucky's adoption process. Specifically, we will meet throughout the year to develop policy recommendations for next session, with a focus on making it easier and more efficient to adopt in Kentucky.

It is an honor for me to be named Chairman of this working group, and I'm excited to work to ease the process of adopting, and to place more children into deserving, loving homes. Adoption is highly personal to me. As an adoptive father, I have seen firsthand the blessing of giving a needy child a forever home, supporting them, and providing them with a better life. My wife and I love our daughter with all of our hearts.

The sheer amount of time it takes to adopt a child is disheartening, and if families choose to adopt outside the foster care program, it can get extremely costly. In a state and country with many blessings, and as much freedom as we have, there is simply no excuse for this. The excessive paperwork, redundancy, and overall bureaucracy has real-life consequences; these unnecessary regulatory burdens keep children out of safe and loving homes.

Something has to change, and we are on the brink of making that a reality. It generally takes around 1.5 years to adopt in this state. In my case, which was an international adoption, my wife and I had to wait three years until our daughter's adoption was finalized. In addition to these lengthy wait times and mountains of paperwork, it can cost anywhere between $10,000 and $35,000 to adopt a child. The chaotic, time-consuming, and expensive way in which we handle adoption discourages parents from permanently opening up their homes to those who need a home the most.

For so many reasons, I couldn't be more excited for this working group to deliver on behalf of the most vulnerable members of our society. We have already held our first meeting on this issue, and will be gathering monthly to find real, practical solutions. I, along with co-chair Joni Jenkins of Louisville, are both dedicated to this cause, as are our seven colleagues. These are not partisan issues; this is about bettering the lives of our children and families. President Ronald Reagan once said, "Belonging to a family is a natural and vital component of life, and every child deserves to be a member of a loving and nurturing family." We believe this to be true, and will work hard to make the adoption process more efficient for children and families of Kentucky.

Each member of the General Assembly was elected to take on big issues, and to solve the problems facing Kentucky. Further, we have a Governor who has also faced the difficulties of adopting, and has pledged to work hand-in-hand with us to make adoption easier and more efficient.

All of the pieces are coming together for sound action on making it easier for families to adopt, and making Kentucky the national standard for dealing with this issue. Now, it's time to get to work.

Second Reading and Final Adoption of Rockcastle County Fiscal Court 2017-2018 budget will be held on June 27, 2017 at 4:00 p.m.
